The Grand Central Railroad Station Chicago.

Is being fitted up for hotel purposes during the world's fair. This magnificent fire-proof structure, located at the corner of Harrison street and 5th avenue, in the very heart of the city, will devote the 3rd, 4th and 6th floors to this purpose. It will be run on the European plan. Each room will have hot and cold water, electric lights and be steam heated. The office and ladies parlors etc. will be located on the 3rd floor and the building will be supplied with all modern conveniences. There will be from 100 to 200 rooms for guests.

This acquisition to the hotel facilities of Chicago will be appreciated by those who wish to be safely housed in a fire-proof building, conveniently located in the city.

Those desiring accommodations can secure them by addressing Mr. T. C. Clifford, the manager, at Chicago Ill. The hotel will be opened May 15th 1893.

The Grand Central Station is the Chicago depot of the Northern Pacific railroad, [Wisconsin Central division] and by taking this through car line to the world's fair city, visitors will avoid the discomfort of transfer through the city.

From this station trains run direct to the world's fair grounds at intervals during the day.

VISITORS TO THE TWIN CITIES.

No one should visit the Twin Cities this summer without running out to Minnetonka Beach and Hotel Lafayette, the largest and best located resort house in the west. The lake is one of the most picturesque in the country and is well supplied with steamers and sail, and rowing and fishing craft. A number of regattas will be given. The Great Northern has a double track line to the lake and runs frequent trains.

MINNESOTA
STATE NORMAL SCHOOLS
WINONA, MANKATO, ST. CLOUD AND MOORHEAD.

These schools are organized for the training of teachers for the common schools of the state.

ORGANIZATION.—Each school comprises two departments—the normal department and the training department or Model School.

The Normal department embraces:

(a) An elementary course for teachers of rural districts and elementary grades.

(b) An advanced course for teachers of advanced grades.

(c) A Professional course for teachers who have completed the required academic work elsewhere.

(d) A kindergarten training course (at Winona and St. Cloud.

ADMISSION.—Graduates of high schools and colleges and teachers holding county superintendents' first and second grade certificate are admitted without examination. All others are required to pass an entrance examination.

EXPENSES.—Tuition is free to all who pledge themselves to teach in Minnesota.

Text books are furnished at a rental of three dollars per year. Provision is made in each school for economical living. The average cost of furnished rooms with board is $3.00 per week. The Ladies' Home at St. Cloud offers board, furnished room, heat and light at $3.00 per week.

The new dormitory at Moorhead will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall term.

DIPLOMAS.—By a recent act of the legislature a diploma becomes a state teachers certificate of the first grade.

The next school year opens at Winona, Sept. 1st; at Mankato, Sept. 4th; at St. Cloud, Aug. 29th; and at Moorhead, Oct. 3rd.

For free catalogues and circulars giving all information, address the presidents as follows.

DEVILS LAKE CHAUTAUQUA.

The first summer Assembly of the North Dakota Chautauqua comes off June 28th to July 17th. An extensive program has been arranged, including many noted speakers, singers, etc., and the occasion promises to be most interesting and instructive. Devils Lake is a summer resort point. The Great Northern Railway gives reduced rates. Address J. B. Fancher, Secretary, Devils Lake, N. D. for programs and other inform. A trip to the lake and assembly will make an enjoyable outing.

A LARGE DROP IN RATES TO THE WEST.

The Great Northern inaugurated its new train service to the Pacific Coast on the 8th inst. with sweeping reductions in rates, amounting to 40 percent in many cases. The rate from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Puget Sound was reduced First-class from $60.00 to to Spokane from $28 to $30, and to Helena and Butte from $40 to $25, with corresponding reductions on second-class tickets, both through rates applying proportionately to intermediate points. It is the purpose of the Great Northern to make rates to help the development of its territory. It is much the shortest line across the continent, was built on business principles, and at a cost of about one half of that of the older trans-continental lines, and is therefore prepared to correspondingly well by its territory and patrons in rates and accommodations.

AND THEY WERE HAPPY

As Sensible People Who Have No Romance About Them Deserve to Be.

She was a girl about eighteen years old out of a possible twenty. She had on a neat calico dress, a white apron and a cute but cheap straw hat. Just as the young man was passing she dragged a bundle containing twenty-six yards of brussels carpet out of the side door and flung it over the veranda rail and jumped after it.

He stopped dead still and a smile of hope lighted up his aristocratic features. While he smiled she opened up the bundle and seized one-half of the carpet and hoisted it over a clothes line. While he smiled more and more and seemed to whisper to himself, she spat on her hands, grabbed the other half, and, with a long drawn "na!" she boosted it over a second line, says the Detroit Free Press.

"Eureka!" gasped the young man, as he drew nearer; but the girl was looking for one of those swamp elm sticks which they sell with baled hay at 1,000 per cent profit and heard him not.

She presently found one. It weighed about fifteen pounds. She tucked up her sleeves, moistened her palms, seized it with both hands, and with a "h-u-u-u!" which could be heard down on the next block she fetched that carpet a swat which made buttons and hairpins fly ten feet high.

"Eureka some more!" chuckled the young man with the Queen Anne countenance—"but this is what I've been looking for."

Swat! Swat! Swat! Fine combs, tooth brushes, dress-stays, powder-rags, shoe buttons, pins, darning needles and receipts for chapped lips fell in a golden shower on the rich green grass.

"Excuse me, miss, but are you engaged, matrimonially?"

"No, sir," she sweetly replied, as she turned to find the young man at her elbow.

"Have you whitewashed the cellar, papered two or three rooms, trimmed the bedsteads and beat all the rest of the carpets?"

"I have; and cleaned the pantry, and taken down two stoves in addition."

"'Tis well. I am Claude Melnotte, son of the old twenty millionaire Melnotte, and his only heir. Will you marry me?"

"I will."

"Good! I'll be here at 1 o'clock sharp, with the license and the preacher. Till then, ta! ta!"

Inadmissible.

The technicalities of the law are often too fine-drawn for the lay understanding. The Rochester Post-Express reports a case which sounds like a burlesque, but it is said to be true. At a term of the circuit court in one of the up-river counties, not long ago, a horse case was on trial, and a well known "horseman" was called as a witness.

"Well, sir, you saw this horse?" said the defendant's counsel.

"Yes, sir, I——"

"What did you do?"

"I jest opened his mouth to find out how old he was, an' I says to him, says I, 'Old feller, I guess you're purty good yet.'"

"Stop!" cried the opposing counsel. "Your honor, I object to any conversation carried on between the witness and the horse when the plaintiff was not present."

The objection was sustained.

Astonished Savages.

The author of "Where Three Empires Meet" took some Kafirs from their desolate inland home in the Himalayan gorges beyond the mountain ranges to the more civilized south. Like most savages, they looked with stupid indifference at the marvels about them, and once only were they excited by an incident which opened their eyes to what they considered an extraordinary and unnatural state of things.

They were descending a road when one of them chanced to remark that he was hungry, and the English "sahib" bought him some food at a way-side shop. The Kafir saw the money change hands.

"How is this?" he inquired in surprise. "Do you have to pay for food in this country?"

"Certainly."

"What a country!" cried the man, in amazement. Then after pondering a while he continued, doubtfully, "Suppose a man had no money in this country; he might starve!"

"It is quite possible."

The Kafir shook with uncontrollable laughter. It was the best joke he had ever heard. He then explained the ridiculous system to his companions, and they roared in chorus.

Persistent Childhood.

A little girl made a great clamor one night, after she had gone to bed, insisting that a certain doll, named Elizabeth, should be brought up stairs to her. Her mother finally called up to her, after having commanded her two or three times to keep still:

"If I come up, Mary, I shall certainly whip you!"

"Aall right, mamma," said the little girl, choking back a sob, "and when you come up, p-p-lease bring Elizabeth!"

Another child, a boy, behaved so badly that his father said to him:

"My boy, I shall certainly have to buy a whip to punish you with!"

"And after you've whipped me," said the boy, his face lighting up, "may I take the whip to play horse with?"

Very Good, Considering.

DR. PRICE'S BAKING POWDER,

Supplying the Army, Navy and Indian Departments.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: The purchasing agents of the United States government have ordered nearly one hundred thousand pounds of Dr. Price's Baking Powder in the first five months of this year.

The government exercises great care in selecting its supplies of all kinds, rejecting everything that is not of the best, and the very fact that it has adopted Dr. Price's Baking Powder is proof that it has found it the best of all the baking powders. Dr. Price's is peculiarly adapted for climate changes affect it, this brand keeping fresh and sweet for years while other baking powders deteriorate rapidly.

It is guaranteed to the government to be a pure cream of tarter powder free from ammonia, alum, or other harmful substances, and it is also the only baking powder prepared by a physician of high standing.

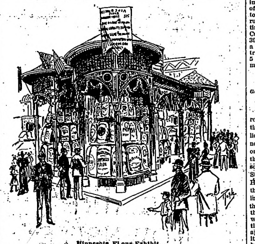
FLOUR AT THE FAIR.

MINNESOTA THE ONLY STATE TO GIVE IT DUE PROMINENCE.

Flour, the Most Important Product Shipped Abroad From the United States, Has Been Slighted at the Exhibition.

Jackson Park, Special Correspondence.—One of the exhibits of Northwestern states which has not been given due prominence in the agricultural building is that of flour. This is probably due to the fact that Minnesota is the only state which seems to have been properly alive to the importance of this display. The exhibit is confined to the upper gallery of the agricultural building, although American flour is probably the most important manufactured product sent abroad from the United States. It certainly, in connection with our great export of wheat, furnishes the best advertisement of the greatness of America of any branch of our foreign commerce. Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, New York and Missouri manufactures the major portion of all flour exported. Of course Minnesota must be considered the banner flour producing state as well as the banner wheat state, mainly on account of her great supply of No. 1 hard wheat from North Dakota and the Red river valley, which is required as a mixer to manufacture the best flour the world over. Minneapolis, Duluth and Superior must be regarded as the great flour centers and primary wheat markets of the world. There is certainly no branch of manufactures in which the Northwestern states attain such a clearly defined preeminence over all competitors. The displays of flour and feed products at the Columbian exposition clearly indicate this pre-eminence to the visitor who may not know these facts from the actual experience gained in the commercial and manufacturing world. Minnesota naturally outranks all competitors. The Washburn-Crosby mills of Minneapolis and the Duluth Imperial mill have the most characteristic and meritorious displays. The great Pillsbury system of mills of Minneapolis does not make a separate exhibit in the flour milling department, although all grades of their flour are upon exhibition in the state flour booth and in the Northern Pacific observation train in the transportation building. The Washburn-Crosby exhibit embraces models of their whole plant in Minneapolis upon a large and extensive scale, including all of their mills, elevators, warehouses, track and switching facilities, etc. It is the largest flour exhibit here and embraces many novel features. For instance, the company has constructed a large barrel containing 10,000 small barrels 2 by 2 1-2 inches, representing their output of flour in one day. They are also furnishing an unlimited number of these small barrels as a memento of the Columbian exposition to visitors. They are made hollow, with a removable cap, so that they furnish an excellent receptacle for small articles.



A Minnesota Fl our Exhibit.

The exhibit contains a large painting of a field on the farm of Dalrymple of North Dakota containing 2,500 acres of standing wheat, which is being harvested by self-binders. It requires that this field be cut in one day and the wheat threshed to supply the mills of this company with sufficient wheat for one day's grinding.

The Imperial mill of Duluth has a very unique design in the shape of an old-time water-wheel rustic flour mill, the great wheel of which is kept constantly running by a stream of water. On the inside of this large model is a reduced size reproduction of the Imperial milling plant as it stands to-day. It is the largest single flour milling plant in the world, capable of turning out 6,000 barrels of manufactured flour daily. The design of the water wheel mill has furnished in a competition extensively advertised by the company for a scheme of exhibition at the world's fair, and netted the successful originator of this plan $100 for his pains. It is a model of the first mill operated by the family of the present manager of the Imperial mill, in Pennsylvania, thirty-odd years ago. The flour mills of the state at large are represented by a huge booth containing specimen sacks of the flour of about 80 per cent. of the mills of Minnesota. This flour is put up in silk and satin sacks and makes a very pretty display. Each sack bears the superscription in fancy lettering of the maker of the flour and its grade. The Wisconsin flour mills are only represented here by an exhibit of the Listman mill of West Superior in a small booth, in which specimens of its flour are represented under glass. There is no demonstration of the fact that Superior is liable soon to become one of the greatest flour milling centers in the world in connection with Duluth's board of trade.

South Dakota's great flour milling industry is represented by a model built from sacks of flour of an old-fashioned flour windmill, such as one might find to-day in picturesque Holland.

For some reason or other the flour mills of North Dakota are not represented here. Most of the efforts of the state were directed toward making a good display of the wonderful resources of the state in hard wheat and forage grasses.

—Ralph McKenzie.

BATHING IN ELECTRICITY.

Remarkable Experiments With Currents of High Frequency.

In his experiments with electrical currents of high frequency, Mr. Tesla early pointed out the remarkable influence of the magnetic waves on the human organism, and even suggested several ways in which the electricity might be applied as a remedial agent. In studying the effects of these currents, the well-known authority, Dr. A. d'Arsonval, has devised an ingenious method of immersing of the subject to be treated entirely, or in part, in the oscillating magnetic field of high frequency. The subject to be treated is placed in a cylinder of insulating material, such as hardwood or glass, and the cylinder wound with one or more layers of electric light cable; this constitutes a sort of solenoid, in the interior of which the subject is placed. The coil is traversed by the discharge of the condenser rendered oscillatory in the manner described by Dr. d'Arsonval before the physical society of Paris last year. He employs as a condenser from two to twelve Leyden jars, arranged in two batteries joined in cascade, each jar having a metal surface nineteen inches high and eight inches in diameter. The charging is accomplished by a 15,000-volt transformer from a Siemens alternator without iron and having a capacity of twelve amperes at 350 volts.

Under these conditions the induction effects of the coil on all bodies plunged in its core are of the most striking nature. Thus, if within the coil consisting of only three or four turns of a cable having ten strands of wire, there be inserted a copper wire which has a single turn, to which a 100-candle lamp is attached, and requiring three amperes at 110 volts, the lamp is brought to a white incandescence. If a man embraces the coil, as it were, and holds in each hand the terminals of an incandescent lamp, the circuit so formed by his arms is the seat of an induced current sufficiently powerful to light the lamp, which takes one-tenth of an ampere. The resistance of the skin is reduced as much as possible by plunging the hands in two vessels containing warm salt water. This mode of electrification exercises a very powerful action on the phenomena of nutrition, as is shown by the analysis of the products of respiration, and by its action on inferior organism.—Philadelphia Record.

A MEAN TRICK.

Changing the Book Marks Loses a Lawyer His Case.

A lawyer defending a promissory note went to lunch, leaving his books and citations on the table in the court room. The opposing counsel sneaked back into the room and changed the places of all his book marks. In the afternoon the lawyer, taking up his books, referred the court to his authorities. His lordship noted every volume and page carefully and took the case under consideration. In rendering his opinion he said:

"I was inclined, after hearing the argument of counsel for the defendant, to non-suit plaintiff, but I find, after referring to the authorities quoted by counsel, none of them bear on his case, and I am led to think that the gentleman has willfully been trying to insult the court. He has referred me to an action of an Irishman who sued the the proprietor of a monkey for damages by biting him, to a case of arson, one for burglary, two of petty larceny and three divorce cases, none of which bear on an action to recover on a promissory note. Perhaps the grossest insult to the court is referring to 'Duckworth vs. Boozyman,' an action charging defendant with breach of promise. Judgment for plaintiff, with costs."

The lawyer never knew what the matter was, and to this day thinks the judge was out of his mind.—Pearson's Weekly.

LEAPS OF HORSES.

Extraordinary Jumps made in English Steeplechases Years Ago.

One of the most remarkable jumps by a horse on record is that made by Chandler, a steeplechaser, while running in the Leamington Cup at Warwick, Eng., in 1847. The distance covered in one leap has been variously measured. For a number of years it was thought to have been 39 feet, but the editor of the sporting paper in which the record was first published afterward explained that this was a printer's error, and that the distance was in reality 37 feet. This in itself is big enough—so big, in fact, that there are many horsemen in England to-day who will swear that it is exaggerated. The portion of the race in which the jump occurred is reported as follows in a description of the race in Bell's Life of the issue of March 28, 1847:

"This left the lead with King of the Valley, but he refused at the top of the hill, and soon after Regalia caught up with him. They raced together to the brook, with Chandler following them. Chandler's rider pulled back as they approached it, expecting that Regalia would bring grief to somebody, and when they arrived at it sent the spurs into his horse, and followed them with all steam on. Both went into the brook, and while they were there Chandler, who was not able to stop, whatever inclination he may have had to do so, made an extraordinary jump and cleared the brook, horses and riders together."

The account goes on to say that Chandler won the race with ease. The length of the leap was immediately measured, but there was some doubt as to where the animal had landed, as the ground was soft and a number of footprints had been made.

Capt. Broadley, the rider, who seems to have been a modest person, said that the distance was 37 feet. This beat the record, as far as known, the best previous performance having been that of Lottery, who cleared between 33 and 34 feet. One of the witnesses of the jump was William Archer, father of the famous Fred and Charles Archer, and he was willing to swear ever afterward that the distance was 39 feet. The Hon. F. Sawley, a well known sporting writer in England, was also on hand, and he declared in a recent article that the tape measured but 34 feet. This is the minimum estimate. Summing up, it may be said that, while there is some doubt as to the exact number of feet cleared, Chandler's performance was an unusual and important one. The same may be said of a horse called Proceed, who is said to have cleared 37 feet while running in a steeplechase about the time of the above event. A horse called Culverton is reported to have jumped 39 feet on one occasion, and Lather, a hunter, owned by one Lord Ingestrie, is said to have jumped 37 feet, 5 inches over a pit. None of these measurements is absolutely authentic.

DON'T ABBREVIATE NAMES.

Good Taste Demands the Use of the Full Christian Name When Possible.

The newspapers note a marked tendency toward the use of the full Christian name in books and standard publications, and in social matters. One now seldom sees the name of an author on the title page of a new book with the mere initials. Ralph Waldo Emerson practically began this in the United States, and even Thomas Wentworth Higginson's later books have followed this plan of signature. The full name is impracticable in newspaper work, says the Champaign Gazette, especially when there are two or more; but in cases where there are but one single christian name, both on account of the appearance and for the sake certainty, it is highly important that it should be given in full. Nobody with a good eye or ear can be satisfied to see or hear such a name as G. Sharp or J. Jones, not to mention J. Smith, and the number of names that appear in this slipshod manner in the newspapers is something surprising. The explanation is that the reporters find it next to an impossibility to obtain names correctly, because everybody has a large number of acquaintances concerning whom no occasion has arisen for learning the full and correct names. An intolerable abomination also is the abbreviation of such names as John, James, Joseph and Charles into Jno., Jas., Jos. and Chas. Not less distressing is the habit of mentioning in print the familiar names of elderly people with the prefix of "uncle," "aunt," "grandfather," "grandmother," and the like. This class of people may be deferentially mentioned as Mr. and Mrs. followed by the correct initials, where there are two or more, or with the first Christian name always spelled out where there is but one and preferably so if there are two.

SECRECY OF THE MASK.

It Has a Special Charm for the Inhabitants of Italy.

The Italian nation is especially appealed to by the charm of mystery and all those indefinite possibilities which lurk behind the secrecy of the mask, says the Gentleman's Magazine. Not but that this license of masks was frequently abused; Alessandro VI., who, with Madonna Lucrezia, was so fond of watching the maskers go past from the balcony of Castel St. Angelo, had to forbid masks in 1499 under pain of the gallows, to such an extent did the factions and ill-disposed at Rome take advantage of them to pay off old scores, and so many people were killed or wounded every day in the streets.

Connected with the old Saturnalia, as we have seen, the masks were the special characteristic of the Fabulae Atellena and the less aristocratic Mimae, and nobody who has seen the collection of such antiquities at Rome, Naples and Pompeii will doubt the important part that masks played in the life of the early empire. Thence we may trace them down in the antique farces, which gradually blended with the sacred representations of the Middle Ages until they ultimately laicised them and removed them from the church; or, again, they would pop their strange countenances out from their hiding places periodically at carnival time, until they emerged once more into the full light of day in the "Commedia dell'Arte," and in Pantaloon, Harlequin and Brighella, we see merely the gradual evolution of the old Roman masks.

A Kindness.

"East, West, Home's Best."

It is a pleasing weakness of human nature to assume that every good thing belongs in a peculiar way to one's own country or to one's own special part of it. A Frenchman who had been spending a considerable time in Germany exclaimed, immediately after crossing the frontier back into his own country:

"There are birds singing in the trees. We are in France again!"

This story is matched by a true one of a New England woman who spent two years in Illinois, and returning to her beloved home, wrote as follows to a friend in the East:

"It is so nice to be back in the East, and hear the locusts, katydids and brown thrushes once more."

All these creatures had made the summer air musical in the part of the country which she had been visiting, but during her banishment she had never heard them.

Vast Power of the Atmosphere.

Somebody has made the calculation that, taking the quantities roughly and in round numbers, the atmosphere weighs about a ton to every square foot of the earth's surface, 25,000,000 tons per square mile, or 5,000,000,000,000,000 tons on the total of 200,000,000 square miles; and its energy is that due to the motion of this inconceivable mass at velocities varying all the way from the slightest zephyr to the hurricane and the cyclone, rushing over the prairie or over the surface of the sea at more than one hundred miles per hour. Again, according to this authority, a cubic mile of air, weighing about ten billion pounds, develops at the rate of motion of the cyclone, some 4,000,000,000,000 "foot tons" of energy, and if all were employed at such rate for the performance of work, useful or destructive, this number of "foot pounds" would be equivalent to more than 2,000,000,000,000,000 horse power.—New York Sun.

KNOWLEDGE
Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.
Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.
Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

ENCAMPMENT OF THE G. A. R.

GATHERING OF THE VETERANS AT INDIANAPOLIS.

Annual Review of the National Encampment—Col. J. P. Adams of Massachusetts Elected Commander-in-Chief—Reports Read.

Indianapolis, Sept. 6.—The stronghold of Hoosierdom has capitulated before the onslaught of the boys who wore the blue, and with flying flags and keeping step to the same old strains that led them through valleys and over mountains three decades ago. The veterans marched like a victorious army up and down the principal streets amid the plaudits of a multitude of enthusiastic spectators. The line of march was so arranged as to take in both fashionable residence quarters and the business district, starting from Seventh and Meridan streets, going south to New York, thence to Pennsylvania, thence to Market, east to New Jersey, south to Washington and west to Tennessee, a distance of between three and four miles. Maj. Gen. John R. Carnahan, who has gained fame by his magnificent commandership in uniformed ranks, Knights of Pythias, was chief marshal of the day, and he was surrounded by experienced assistants in the persons of Gen. N. R. Ruckle, as chief of staff; Eli F. Ritter, the prohibition advocate whose reputation is national. At 10:30, the designated hour, the firing of a fifty-pounder gave the signal that all was in readiness to move. The boys from Illinois, by virtue of seniority, had the honor of right of line following immediately after the chief marshal and his staff. Following the Illinois division came the detachment from the Keystone State, and behind these a large and creditable representation of the veterans of Ohio. Connecticut was sandwiched in between New York and Massachusetts, and after the latter the departments followed each other in this order: New Jersey, Maine, California, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Potomac, Virginia and North Carolina in one department; Maryland, Nebraska, Michigan, Iowa, Colorado and Wyoming in another; Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Oregon, Kentucky, West Virginia, South Dakota, Washington and Alaska combined. Arkansas, New Mexico, Utah, Tennessee, Louisiana and Mississippi in one department; and Florida, Montana, Texas, Idaho, Arizona, Alabama, North Dakota, Indian Territory and Oklahoma. The rear of the column was brought up by the department of Indiana, which comprised nearly one-half of the entire number of veterans in line. The vets were reviewed by Commander-in-Chief Weissert. Ex-President Harrison stood on his right and Generals Lucius Fairchild of Wisconsin and Lew Wallace, both of whom marched in line until the stand was reached, on his left. Each vet saluted the commander-in-chief and the ex-president as they passed.

Officers Elected.

Indianapolis, Ind. Sept. 7. — The officials and delegates of the national Grand Army encampment were regretfully compelled to allow pleasure to give way to business, and invitations to reunions and dinners and other social courtesies were put aside for the more serious matter of government of the order. Tomlinson hall had been gorgeously decorated in honor of the encampment and presented a beautiful appearance. The regulations by which only members of the order are permitted to be present as spectators were rigidly enforced. It was not until nearly 11 o'clock, an hour after the appointed time, that the delegates appeared in sufficient numbers to warrant Commander-in-Chief Weissert in declaring that the twenty-seventh annual encampment was formally opened. Owing to the delay of several of the departments in submitting their reports the commander-in-chief had been unable to complete his annual address until within an hour of the opening of the proceedings, and it was therefore submitted to the encampment in manuscript instead of the usual pamphlet form. The report of Adjt. Gen. Gray showed that the order had gained 50,308 members during the year and lost by death, discharge and suspension 59,025; the total membership in good standing is 397,223. Thirty-five thousend veterans were suspended for various causes. "The death roll call exceeds that of any previous year. Seven thousand and two comrades have joined the 'right wing' of the Grand Army of the Republic, which has gone into camp across the river." During the year the order has disbursed $307,000 in charity.

The three following officers were elected, practically without opposition: John J. G. Adams of Massachusetts, commander-in-chief; Col. I. N. Walker of Indiana, senior vice commander, and J. C. Bigger of Texas, junior vice commander. The new commander-in-chief, John J. G. Adams, or "Jack" Adams as he is called at home, is one of the most popular veterans in New England. He has a record that any man may be proud of. In 1861, before he was twenty years of age, he enlisted as a private in the battalion which became the nucleus of the Nineteenth Massachusetts. He served throughout the war, rising step by step to the rank of captain. When not disabled by wounds he participated in every march and in every battle of the Army of the Potomac, in which his regiment took part. At Fredericksburg he saved the regimental colors from capture after eight color bearers had been shot down. He was severely wounded in the second day's battle at Gettysburg, and a second time before Pittsburg, where he was captured and suffered the horrors of a southern prison. Not infrequently the old wounds take him to bed with pain for days at a time. He is a member of Lander post at Lynn, Mass., the second in membership in the country.

Next Year in Pittsburg.

Indianapolis, Sept. 8.—The annual encampment came to a close last night with a great pageant. This pageant was one of the memorable things of the twenty-seventh annual encampment, and preparations for making it a success had been going on for many weeks. It represented the military history of the United States, and embraced floats, tableaux and fireworks. The national encampment convention concluded its labors last evening. A report on pension was adopted. It arraigns the present administration for its penurious activity in the line of cutting off the pensions of old soldiers and compelling them to produce evidence that their pitiful allowances were not secured by fraud, instead of placing the burden of proof on the numerous government officials, who are lavishly paid for their service in this direction.

The convention will meet next year in Pittsburg. At the final meeting of the ladies of the Grand Army the following were elected: President, Mrs. Amanda Withers of Minnesota; senior vice president, Mrs. Taylor of Ohio. As a finale to the encampment the citizens furnished a war pageant after the style of the South Mardi Gras.

HOBOES' WORK.

Hillsboro, N. D., Sept. 8.—"Hoboes" held up and robbed two workingmen here. The men had been threshing, and had received their pay during the day. One man lost about $9 and the other only 35 cents. They had spent most of their funds. An attempt was made on a third man. He was ordered to hold up his hands, but he ran and escaped, not however, without a painful wound in his foot from a pistol shot fired after him by one of the robbers. The sheriff, with a posse, has been running some of these tramps out of town to-day.

A few days ago the court heavily sentenced three "blind piggers." To-day, by order, the sheriff destroyed two cases of liquor which had been found in possession of one of them.

WORKINGMEN'S CONGRESS.

Paris, Sept. 8.—The socialistic leaders have determined that there shall be a workingmen's national congress to consider matters of party policy, and a summons has been issued for such a convention to be held in the latter part of September. This contemplated body will digest and define the future policy to be followed by the Socialist deputies who have been elected to the chamber. The general plan of the leaders involves a parliament faction similar to that which exists in the German reichstag. The congress of socialists will also determine and possibly formulate certain bills which it is their purpose to have introduced in the chamber at its coming session. If the proposed measures are rejected, the socialist leaders will refer the matters back to the centers interested.

RESUME WORK.

Alton, Ill., Sept. 8.—The Illinois Glass works are preparing to resume operations. Yesterday fire was started in one of the flint factories and preparations are being made for the resumption of work throughout the plant.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 8.—The Buck Stove and Range company has resumed work after a stoppage of several weeks. About 350 men are given employment.

Newburyport, Mass., Sept. 8.—The Peabody mills, which have been shut down for the past five weeks, started up.

Lowell, Mass., Sept. 8.—The Collins mills of Collinsville started up with all hands at work yesterday, after a shut down of four weeks.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 8.—The Peoria pottery, which has been shut down for several weeks, is preparing to resume operations. The company is among the largest in the country.

BADLY DAMAGED.

Washington, Sept. 8.—The damage to the lighthouse system along the Southern coast was so serious by last week's hurricane that it is probable the lighthouse board will have to ask congress for a special appropriation to make the necessary repairs. Reports received at the treasury department show that nearly all the lighthouses along the South Carolina coast sustained some damage, and, while it was small in some cases, on the whole the system received such a blow that it cannot be well retrieved without special appropriation. Reports have not been received from some of the remote stations in the South, but it is not believed that any of the lights except those near Charleston have sustained much damage.

BADLY HURT.

Washington, Sept. 8.—John W. Ross, president of the commissioners of the District of Columbia and practically mayor of Washington, was seriously injured Wednesday night by jumping from a cable car in motion, and landing in front of a swiftly moving car coming in an opposite direction, which knocked him down and dragged him a distance of thirty feet before the car could be stopped. Mr. Ross sustained a severe fracture of the ribs, but at a late hour he was resting easily and his physicians are hopeful of his recovery.

WILL HAVE A NEW BRIDGE.

Aitkin, Minn., Sept. 8.—A meeting of the county commissioners was waited on by a delegation of business men and farmers, who argued the imperative necessity of a bridge across the Mississippi at this point. The county surveyor was ordered to take surroundings and the auditor to advertise for proposals for building the bridge. The proposed bridge is to be a steel arch drawbridge, and may be regarded as an assured fact.

STRIPPERS.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 8.—The Cherokee strip fever has struck the Kansas Citys with full force. The ticket sellers at the Santa Fe, Rock Island and Missouri Pacific railway offices in this city report the sale daily of hundreds of tickets to points on the borders of the strip. The purchasers are mostly young men.

PEIXOTO DICTATOR.

Buenos Ayres, Sept. 8.—The latest news from Rio Janeiro reports that a revolution has broken out there under the leadership of Admiral Custodio do Mello. The insurgents have seized the war ship Aquidaban, the cruisers Republica and Trjant and four torpedo boats. It is reported that President Peixoto has proclaimed himself dictator.

London, Sept. 8.—The Vienna correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says the czar has directed that military maneuvers of the large scale be hid in the autumn near the Austrian frontier. Regiments have been ordered to the maneuvers from Podolia, in spite of the cholera epidemic in that province.

A HOT WAVE.

Montevideo, Minn., Sept. 8.—A hot wave passed over this region yesterday afternoon, sending the weather bureau thermometer to 99 in the shade. The wind is now north, and rapidly growing cooler.

MOURN PETER KLECKER.

Owatonna, Minn., Sept. 8.—Peter Klecker, a young tinner in this city, took his wife and child out to his father-in-law's on Sunday last, and on Monday disappeared and has not been heard of since. He will long be remembered by his numerous creditor friends.

FIFTY THIRD CONGRESS.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SPECIAL SESSION OF CONGRESS.

Condensed Record of the Business Being Transacted by our National Law-makers—Routine Report Day by Day.

Washington, Sept. 6.—A resolution for the daily meeting of the senate at 11 a. m. was offered in the senate by Mr. Voorhees (Dem. Ind.), who said that he would call it up for action to-morrow. An extraordinary bill was introduced by Mr. Peffer (Pop. Kan.) for the creation of a department of education, the construction of a college of scientific learning in the District of Columbia, the appropriation of $20,000,000 for the purpose of, and the further appropriation of $800,000,000, the interest on which is to form a fund for the support of the college. A concurrent resolution for the appointment of a joint committee to consider the question of finance (seven senators and seven representatives) was introduced by Mr. Morgan (Dem. Ala.) and went over until to-morrow. The speech begun yesterday by Mr. Peffer (Pop. Kan.) was concluded by him this morning in almost five minutes, and then the senate was addressed on the silver question by Mr. Stewart (Rep. Nev).

Washington, Sept. 7.—In the senate a bill was introduced by Mr. Cullom (Rep. Ill.) and referred to the finance committee for the repeal of all acts for the creation or maintenance of a sinking fund. A report was made from the committee on privileges and elections for the poyment of $2,500 to each of the three claimants for seats under appointment of governors, and it was referred to the committee on contingent expenses. The resolution for the 11 o'clock meeting was presented and Mr. Voorhees (Dem. Ind.), who had offered it, withdrew it, stating that he did so after consultation with friends of repeal on the Democratic side, who thought that if the time for the senate was used carefully as much progress could be made. Mr. Morgan's resolution for a joint secret committee on finance was taken up and Mr. Voorhees and he suggested its reference to the finance committee. Morgan argued against the suggestion, stating that the purpose of the resolution was to supersede the finance committee in each house and substitute a joint select committee for them. Mr. Voorhees' motion was carried—337 to 21—which is interpreted as a temporary victory for repeal men. Speeches on the repeal bill were then made by the various members.

There were not more than a hundred members present when the house was called to order. The house resumed the consideration of the new code of rules, the pending question being the Kylo amendment striking from the rules the clause making 100 members a quorum in committee of the whole. The motion was agreed to—118 to 61. The house adopted the new code of rules at 3:50. Adjourned until Saturday.

Washington, Sept. 8.—Among the numerous resolutions presented and referred was one by Mr. Walcott (Rep., Colo.) for the immediate repeal of the McKinley tariff bill. Mr. Voorhees mover to take up the Sherman act repeal bill, which motion was agreed to, and Mr. Stewart of Nevada, who was entitled to the floor, postponed the continuation of his speech until Mr. Walthall (Dem., Miss.), who had signified his desire to address the senate to-day, had concluded his remarks. Mr. Walthall then addressed the senate. His speech was in favor of bimetallism. Mr. Stewart (Rep. Nev.) again took the floor at the conclusion of Mr. Walthall's remarks, and proceeded with the third installment of his speech (begun Tuesday). At 4:15 Mr. Stewart was still holding the floor. Mr. Daniel (Va.) went over and whispered a word in his ear, wen, to the astonishment of all, he announced that he would now close his speech. The senate then proceeded to executive business, and at 5 p. m. to-morrow.

Washington, Sept. 9.—At 12:30 the repeal bill was taken up without objection, and the senate was addressed by Mr. Faulkner (Dem., W. Va.). After Mr. Faulkner closed his speech the floor was taken by Mr. Turpie (Dem. Ind.), who addressed the senate in favor of the principle of bimetallism. After speeches by Mr. Jones of Arkansas and others, the senate adjourned.

The house met to-day, and after the introduction of a number of bills adjourned until Monday.

POSSIBLE LYNCHING IN IOWA.

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 11.—Excited citizens of Warren county are out in squads hunting an unknown negro man who attempted to assault Miss Florence Arnold at Indianola. The life of the negro is in imminent danger if he is found. Miss Arnold, who is twenty-three years old and pretty, was alone in the house in the outskirts of the town when the negro entered through a window and before she could give the alarm, gagged and bound her. He was about to accomplish his purpose when an approaching wagon frightened him and he escaped to a neighboring corn field.

NAVAL CADETS.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 11.—The following named candidates have passed a successful examination for admission to the United States naval academy: David E. Thelow, First district, Wisconsin; Joseph W. Gaeme, Twelfth district, Pennsylvania; Harry E. Yearnall, Third district, Iowa; Julius Falk, Fourteenth district, New York; O. G. Murphy, Tenth district, Ohio; Hilary Williams, Sixth district, Indiana; Hugh K. Taylor, Sixth district, Ohio; Irwin F. Landis, Seventh district, Kansas; George Webber, Third district, Arkansas.

CLOSING SESSION.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—The closing session of the Catholic congress was marked by no falling off in the attendance, and the Hall of Columbus was crowded with delegates and visitors when Chairman O'Brien called the gathering to order. The reports of the various committees were acted upon, after which the sections to which the various papers had been referred submitted their reports. After the adoption of resolutions declaring a new allegiance of the delegates to the church farewell addresses were delivered by several dignitaries of the church, including Bishop Keane, of the Washington university, and Cardinal Gibbons.

BITE OF A RATTLESNAKE.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Walter Ralston, known as "Rattle Snake" Ralston, a snake charmer, is in the hospital dying from the effects of a bite by a rattle snake. Ralston has been giving exhibitions in a dime museum, and to-day was to try a new lot of rattle snakes which had just been brought from Florida, and which had been wagered by the man who brought them that he could not handle. Ralston went into the cellar to get the snakes when one of them slipped out of the box and caught him on the hand. He loaded himself with whisky but his arm in a few minutes was frightfully swollen, and the physicians at the hospital said he could not live. Shortly after Ralston was bitten the report got out that all the snakes had escaped from the box and there was a frantic rush for the doors. A lively crush ensued and several people were bruised in the struggle for the open air. None were seriously injured, however.

RUTH HAS A SISTER.

Washington, Sept. 11. — At exactly noon Saturday Mrs. Cleveland gave birth to a little girl. The birth of a baby in the White House was of course an event in which more than usual interest was felt. In an incredibly short space of time the news was known in congress and was spread through all the departments. The imminence of the important event was made known early in the day by the issue of an order countermanding the usual Saturday concert by the marine band in the White House grounds. Dr. Bryant, who accompanied the president and Mrs. Cleveland from Gray Gables and took up his quarters in the White House, was in attendance. Mrs. Cleveland and her latest daughter are doing well.

CORBETT'S UNCLE DROWNED.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 11.—The body of a man named Corbett was found in the river at Osage City to-day. He came down the river some days ago in a covered flatboat, and said he had come from the headwaters of the Missouri and was on his way to Chicago. He said he was an uncle of James Corbett, the pugilist. It is not known whether he committed suicide or was drowned by accident.

DISSOLUTION OF PARLIAMENT.

London, Sept. 11.—The Standard says that everything points to a dissolution of parliament next year. Mr. Gladstone, it says, deludes himself if he thinks that the constituencies will by then have forgotten his Irish policy. The second home rule bill will be worse than the first, and we cannot possibly have a third. The paper predicts that, under the circumstances, Mr. Gladstone can never obtain a majority in Great Britain again.

MONEY RECOVERED.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 11.—Detectives recovered $5,000 of the money stolen from the safe of the Adams Express company at Akron, Ohio, Friday night. It was found buried in a cornfield in the suburbs. The burglars have been arrested.

HINDOOS SHOT DOWN.

Calcutta, Sept. 11.—A number of Hindoos at Busselpore, in Northwest Bengal, tried on Wednesday to capture a quantity of commissory cattle. Troops were called and the Hindoos, with fanatical fury, fought until the troops were ordered to fire, when they scattered. Three of them were killed.

RUN DOWN AND KILLED.

Lebanon, Ill., Sept. 11.—Andrew Fritch of St. Louis and J. Clernon of Breeze, Ill., mine laborers, were run down by a passenger train on the Ohio & Mississippi at Bennett's coal mine and instantly killed yesterday.

NO WORK FOR THRESHERS.

Breckinridge, Minn., Sept. 11.—The towns are full of threshers out of a job. Farmers throughout Wilkin and Richland counties are generally refusing to thresh at the present prices of grain. No trouble is anticipated.

HONOR FOR ST. PAUL.

Washington, Sept. 11.—St. Paul is to have a great ocean liner named in her honor. One of the quartet of vessels of the American line will be called St. Paul and another St. Louis.

INVESTIGATORS FROM FRANCE.

New York, Sept. 11.—A delegation of fifty-two French workmen representing different trades arrived here to-day on the steamer La Gascogne. They will visit factories, inspecting the system of work and the standing of American workmen.

KILLED IN A STREET FIGHT.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 11. — George Klacyk, an Italian, was shot dead and Mike Soloka dangerously slashed with a razor in a street fight at Wilmerding, Pa., late last night.

BISMARCK SERIOUSLY ILL.

London, Sept. 11.—The Daily News' correspondent at Kissingen says: Prince Bismarck is too ill to travel and his departure from here has been postponed for a fortnight. The ex-chancellor is seriously ill. He is unable to eat and is generally in a bad condition.

THE VALKYRIE'S OWNER.

London, Sept. 11.—Lord Dunraven, the owner of the yacht Valkyrie, leaves for New York on the steamer Campania next Saturday.

IRISH FIGHT GLADSTONE.

THE AMERICAN NATIONAL LEAGUE AGAINST THE HOME RULE BILL.

A Manifesto Issued Declaring That Measure a Fraud and Predicting Defeat for Gladstone at the Polls.

New York, Sept. 11.—Considerable dissatisfaction has been evinced by the leading members of the Irish National league in America as to the provisions of Gladstone's home rule bill, which was rejected on Friday by the house of lords by the immense majority of 419 to 41.

The members of the opposition say that the bill does not present the elements of finality, and places the Irish nation in a worse position than at present. The executive of the Irish National league complains that the evicted tenants have been left uncared for, while the disfranchisement of twenty-three Irish seats under the bill, while the land and police questions remain in the hands of the government, would seriously influence the power of the Irish members in the house of commons. Immediately upon the rejection of the home rule bill by the house of lords the executive of the Irish National league decided upon issuing a manifesto to the Irish people in America setting forth their views upon the provisions of the rejected bill and their ideas as to the course which the national league should adopt in the present crisis. The manifesto says, among other things:

"The bill submitted to the house of commons was practically worthless. The imposition on our country of the mutilated skeleton which was just ejected by the house of lords would be an outrage, and the serfs who would accept it with thanks would merit the scorn of the nation. We have no hesitation in declaring that no more pernicious influence has been at work than the influence of Mr. Gladstone in recent years. The spirit of Irish nationality was being steadily destroyed by this influence fostered by a designing agency which prefers a West Briton to an Irishman. Mr. Gladstone, whether he appeals to the country this year or not, will, in the opinion of those thoroughly acquainted with the situation, be defeated at the polls. A great convention of Irishmen from all countries we think should be called and a plan for united action formulated and adopted. At such a convention the example of the American patriots might be emulated and a declaration of Ireland's independance given to the world."

ROBBERS IDENTIFIED.

Delta, Colo., Sept. 11.—The two men who were killed last Thursday while attempting to escape after robbing the Farmers and Merchants' bank and killing its cashier were positively identified to-day as Tom and Fred McCarthy, father and son. The third man who participated in the robbery but escaped is Billy McCarthy, also a son of Tom McCarthy. These men constituted the McCarthy gang of Oregon, and were wanted there for robbing stages and the United States mails. There is a reward of $10,000 for them on that account. Ex-Chief of Police Farley of Denver says that Tom McCarthy is the man who robbed President D. H. Moffett, of the First National bank of that city some four years ago, securing $21,000.

ARREST OF A MURDERER.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 11.—The murderer of Mrs. Jane Wright, better known as Madame Wright, the wealthy proprietoress of an employment agency, was taken to-day in less than twenty-four hours after the crime was committed. The crime was the result of a conspiracy formed by two desperate men, whose motive was robbery. One, the man who actually committed the deed, is Henry Jones, a cook. The other was John Clark, also a cook, and an ex-convict who had obtained his freedom only six days before the crime. Clark received as his share in the crime $100 and a gold watch. He was arrested.

ANARCHY IN SPAIN.

Madrid, Sept. 11.—A riot broke out in Santander on Saturday during a fire in a populous quarter. A mob forcibly entered the municipal buildings, and, after destroying the furniture, threw everything out of the windows. The residences of the mayor and the leading councillor were treated in the same way. The mob was finally dispersed by troops. The riot was ostensibly caused by a deficiency of water, but it is really another evidence of the wave of anarchism passing over Spain.

SKIPPED TO AVOID ARREST.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 11. — George Muloch, real estate dealer here, and a prominent member of the Baptist church, is discovered to have been guilty of incest with his nineteen-year-old daughter. The girl revealed the terrible crime to her mother, and the latter at once notified the church authorities who held a secret meeting yesterday and expelled Muloch from the church. Muloch and family moved in the best society here and the revelation produced a big sensation. The girl says her father has been having intercourse with her for over a year. Muloch skipped town to avoid arrest.

MANGLED BEYOND RECOGNITION.

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 11.—A wreck was caused yesterday on the Pan Handle by the breaking in two of a freight train at Big Walnut, a few miles east of this city. An unknown man was killed, the body being mangled beyond recognition. Frank Deitrick, a brakeman of Huntington, Ohio, was probably fatally injured.

FOR A PORTAGE RAILWAY.

Washington Sept. 11.—Secretary Lamont has sent to the house the report of the board of engineers on the obstruction in the Columbia river between Three Mile Rapids and Celilo Falls, Washington and Oregon. The method of overcoming the obstructions favored by the board is a portage railway from Celilo to a point below the Three Mile rapids.

JOY FOR FARMERS.

St. Louis, Sept. 11.—Badly needed rain fell throughout the southern half of Missouri and northeastern Arkansas to-day, doing great good to growing crops.

RIGHTED.

Lanesboro, Minn., Sept. 11.—The Bank of Lanesboro closed its doors a week ago Saturday. The depositors met at the city hall and voted unanimously to instruct the bank to open its doors and resume business at once, ample time being given. The bank reopened this morning.

A very large number of prairie chickens have been killed here this year but the covies have nearly all been broken and the remaining birds are getting wild. Plenty have been left for a good crop next year.

Prof. A. D. Wishard was in town today and signed the contract with the school board to teach here the coming year. Prof. Wishard has an excellant reputation as a teacher and our school should under his instruction be greatly improved.

The price of wheat has been doing much better lately and no. 1 hard is now worth 55 cents here. This is a raise of 15 cents a bushel over the lowest price. Indications point to a still higher price and we hope it will be realized.

J. Q. Cronkhite, the brilliant Peoples party orator of Northern Minn., and ex-editor of the Marshall Co. Banner, passed through town last Wednesday on his way to Thief River Falls. We acknowledge a pleasant call.

Threshing reports would indicate that the wheat yield will be from ten to twelve bushels to the acre. This is not large but the quality will be excellant, nothing poorer than no. 1 northern and nearly all no. 1 hard, which will command a better price than a larger quantity of poorer wheat.

The village school will commence the fall term next Monday morning. It is important that all children who expect to attend school the coming year should commence at the beginning of of the term and we hope all parents will see that their children attend from the start.

Farmers are doing more early plowing this fall than ever before. Although the ground has been very dry and the work hard to do a large amount has already been done. It speaks well for the country and shows that our farmers are progressing in the right direction.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan McLaughlin came back Tuesday morning from their wedding trip and will settle down here. Mr. McLoughlin was deprived of the good position he held as assistant superintendent by the failure of the Red River Valley Elevator Company and he will take his brother's place here buying wheat again. Al. goes to Argyle to take charge of an elevator.—Norman County Herald.

There is circulating around Washington a chart prepared by E. A. Jones, of 19 East Fifty-ninth street, New York, which is attracting a good deal of attention. The chart shows that during Grant's second administration that the average market price of silver per ounce was $1.32 and wheat was $1.24.

It is not because there is too much farm produce that prices are so low now, but because there is too little money in circulation. This must be borne in mind in deciding whether it pays to farm. Prices are down not only for grain, but for everything else. Many merchants of the cities have announced all merchandise at half price simply because they must get cash and they have actually been selling staple groceries and dry goods and clothing at half the regular price. It is not surprising under these circumstances that wheat and pork and everything else should be down for the purchasing power of a dollar has been enhanced by the unnatural financial conditions—N. W. Agriculturist.

The Jamestown Alert very properly observes: "Insurance companies seem to be easy subjects to panicky scares these days. Several companies have withdrawn from North Dakota after meeting a few extra losses. The state has paid the companies millions in insurance and just as soon as a siege occurs there is a flutter and several of the hit birds get out. The claim is made that the rates are too low owing to competition. If the business had not been profitable the field would not have been entered by the numerous and wealthy insurance corporations eagerly bidding for the premiums. It seems as if the few companies that have done so are hardly doing the right thing in so abruptly quitting the state on account of a single heavy loss."

The insane rush of the "boomers," who camped for weeks on the borders of Oklahoma waiting for the disappointment that must come to them with its opening, is being repeated in the country of the Cherokee outlet. Upon this strip of land which lies between Kansas and Oklahoma, and is within the jurisdiction of the latter, the settler has long cast the longing glances that belong to the forbidden. It has an area of from 6,000,000 to 8,000,000 acres, but, After the lands reserved for schools and other public uses are subtracted and allowances made for rivers, roads and untillable tracts probably half of the latter amount would fairly represent the area available for actual cultivation. This would make 25,000 farms of a quarter section each, while it is estimated that there are at least 100,000 people camped about the boundary waiting for the 16th of the month to give them entry. Although the usual reports of a fertile soil and a delightful climate are spread abroad, it is probably an even issue which are the most fortunate, the men who secure claims or the multitude who will find everything taken before their turn comes.—Pioneer Press.

The wheat is all stacked or threshed and nearly all the oats. The weather has been fine this fall and the work was rushed. This will insure a first class grade for the wheat.

One hundred million tons of water pour over Niagara Falls every hour. This is said to represent 16,000,000 horse power. Some idea of this enormous amount of water may be had by understanding that all the coal produced in the world would not make enough steam to pump a stream of equal size. —Ex.

Great West: Dr. Cleveland's prescription for the present financial stringency is, "coolness, calmness" in large and frequent doses. Keep cool. Don't get excited. Put your money in a bank and lose it, but don't fret. Sell cotton at five cents a pound, but keep cool. Let your wheat go at fifty cents but don't get excited. Let the farm, the old homestead where you have brought up your children, go under the unredeemed mortgage, but preserve perfect "calmness." In other words, "lay low, there's a hen on." Wall street is on the financial nest hatching but a conspiracy. Keep cool, you might scare her off. Somebody fan us.

Crookston Times. Notwithstanding that the railroad companies have cut the wages of their employees on an average of 25 percent, and that the price of wheat is down to a little more than half of what it was a year ago, yet there has been no reduction on the transportation charges. Two years ago one bushel of the farmer's wheat would pay the freight on ten bushels to Minneapolis or Duluth. Now, it takes two bushels to do it, and this notwithstanding the fact that the operating expenses of the railroads has been reduced almost if not quite one fourth. Now we submit that this is manifestly unfair and unjust. It is more. It's downright robbery and can be called by no other name.

Too Much.

He had asked her to be his wife.

How many men have asked women to be their wives, and yet no man ever asks the question without fear and trembling.

She was not beautiful, and her mother was still living.

Neither was she rich, but he had asked her to be his wife.

She had not accepted him, nor yet had she rejected him.

She told him to come to her on Sunday evening, and he should have his final answer.

What a tempest of emotion swept over him until that Sunday evening came!

But it came at last, as Sunday evenings have been coming ever since the week of creation ended. When he saw her, his heart beat like a triphammer.

She was cool and self possessed.

She was sure she had him.

"Well, well," he exclaimed eagerly, anxiously, "let me have my answer."

She hesitated a moment.

"Speak," he pleaded. "I am prepared for the worst."

"I will be yours," she cried, flinging herself at him.

He let her fall.

"Great Cæsar!" he groaned. "I thought I was prepared, but I find I am not." And with a low moan of agony he sank to the floor and rolled over four times.—Detroit Free Press.

No Health.

Mr. Higgs, the provision dealer, was never known to take a cheerful view of life under any circumstances. One morning a customer on his way down town called at the store to leave an order, and the following conversation ensued:

"Good morning, Higgs! Fine weather we're having."

"Y-es," Higgs admitted, with a deep sigh and a glance around his rather dingy shop. "I s'pose it's what ye might call fine weather—out o' doors."

"My wife wants you to send her around some vegetables—a bushel of potatoes"—

"I'm all out o' p'taters jest now," interposed Higgs sadly.

"H'm! Can you let us have half a peck of tomatoes then?"

"No. I'm all out o' tomatters jest now."

"Well, how about turnips?" persisted the would be customer.

"I'm all out o' turnups jest now!"

"In that case I must buy elsewhere," said the unsuccessful applicant, turning to go. "Oh, by the way, Higgs," he said as he paused on the threshold, "you haven't seemed very well of late. How is your health at present?"

"Thankee," said Higgs, with the most utterly despondent air that could be imagined, "to tell the truth, I'm all out of health jest now."—Youth's Companion.

The Straight Way Was Good Enough.

She walked up to the fan counter of a large store, rustling in silk petticoat and gorgeous in russet shoes and chamois gloves.

"Have you," she began in a loud but not absolutely certain voice, "have you—er—any of these dersecencyle fans?"

"Any what?" inquired the clerk in amazement.

"Oh," said the young person loftily, "they're generally called fans dersecaycle, but the straight way seemed good enough for me."

When even this information failed to throw any light on the subject, she walked out again, saying that she'd look elsewhere where the clerks knew something. Such are the ways of the fin de siecle young person.—Omaha Bee.

The Wrong Man.

Bret Harte is so frequently complimented as the author of "Little Breeches" that he is almost as sorry it was ever written as is Colonel John Hay, who would prefer his fame to rest on more ambitious work. A gushing lady, who prided herself upon her literary tastes, said to him once: "My dear Mr. Harte, I am so delighted to meet you. I have read everything you ever wrote, but of all your dialect verse there is none that compares to your 'Little Breeches.'" "I quite agree with you, madam," said Mr. Harte, "but you have put the little breeches on the wrong man."—Argonaut.

How He Did It.

"I have a sure way of getting mosquitoes out of a room," said the melancholy man at the seaside boarding house.

"How do you do it?" asked several people at once.

"I go out of doors myself," he replied.—Washington Star.

Getting Too Serious.

Elaine—Why did you break off your engagement with George?

Gladys—You see, we are forced to be together a good deal, and I found I was getting fond of him.—Chicago Record.

Getting Up.

"There goes Van Dubble, the artist. Is he rising in his profession?"

"Oh, yes. Why, he has got so he can borrow $5 or $10 at a time."—Life.

Made Up.

She made up her frizzes with irons,
She made up her face with chalk;
You'd never suppose
That her lips of rose,
Whenever she'd smile or talk,
Were colored with scarlet tinting,
Or her blushes were purchased pink,
Or this beautiful girl's
White teeth were pearls
She could take out as quick as wink.
She made up her neck and shoulders
(They were both of them kalsomined),
And one day when Fred
Asked if they should wed
She easily made up her mind!

Domestic Infelicity.

Two negro women met on Thompson street.

"Has yer heard from yer husband, Gabe, since he done left yer?"

"I got one letter from him outer de pos' office."

"I s'pose, from de way he 'bused an beat yer dat yer sent it back to him widout openin it?"

"Yer jess bet I don't open de letter after de way he treated me. No, indeed, I didn't. I seed him in his coffin fust."

"But dar mout hab been a $5 bill in de letter."

"No, dar wasn't no $5 bill in de letter de low, mean, wuffless yaller moke."

"How does yer know dat ef yer didn't open de letter?"

He Was Willing.

One day the illustrious Choequart saw an elderly gentleman nestled in a corner of Tortoni's reading The Constitutionnel. "Waiter," he cried, "give me The Constitutionnel." "Sir, it is in hand," was the reply. Five minutes elapsed, and Choequart, growing impatient, again cried, "Waiter, I thought I asked you for The Constitutionnel?" "Sir, it is still in hand," he answered. Choequart, who was a tall, thin man with waxed mustache like rattails—a kind of Don Quixote—rose from his seat, advanced toward the elderly gentleman and snatched the paper from him. High words followed, seconds were named, and the next morning Choequart received a sword thrust in his chest which laid him up for a month.

As soon as he had recovered he went again to Tortoni's and found his adversary reading the same paper and in the same corner. "Waiter!" he shouted, "The Constitutionnel!" "It is in hand, sir," was the response. He again waited five minutes, and then, placing himself in front of the gentleman in a military attitude, said to him, "Well, sir, do you wish me to give you another lesson?"—Argonaut.

"Yes."

"Well, he's quit. He says his wages has been cut down, an he can't afford it no more."

"I'm sorry for him."

"Fur him? I'm the one to be sorry fur, you miserable hound! It ain't hurtin him any. He's gittin his money back out o' me, durn him!"—Chicago Tribune.

The Reward of Wickedness.

"I never robbed a man but once," said the honest tramp, "and then I was starving. He would not give me a penny, and I couldn't stand the gnawings in my stomach any longer. So I knocked him down and went through his pockets. What kind of a haul did I make? Just one little bottle, what read on the label, 'Pepsin, for that full feeling after eating.'"—Tit-Bits.

A Labor Question.

A vagrant on being brought before the beak wept so bitterly as to evoke the sympathy of the worthy magistrate, who kindly inquired, "Have you been out of work for a long time?"

"Ever since my poor mother died."

"How old were you at the time?"

"Eighteen months, your worship."—Conteur.

Very Strange.

A True Humorist.

The humorous editor sat in his chair,
While over his face spread a smile,
And a friend of his humorful held he there,
He grinned as he read it the while.

For I took occasion to note
That the jokes which made him so fiendishly glad
Were the things that he himself wrote.

The Grand Central Railroad Station Chicago.

Is being fitted up for hotel purposes during the world's fair. This magnificent fire-proof structure, located at the corner of Harrison street and 5th avenue, in the very heart of the city, will devote the 3rd; 4th and 6th floors to this purpose. It will be run on the European plan. Each room will have hot and cold water, electric lights and be steam heated. The office and ladies parlors etc. will be located on the 3rd floor and the building will be supplied with all modern conveniences. There will be from 100 to 200 rooms for guests.

This acquisition to the hotel facilities of Chicago will be appreciated by those who wish to be safely housed in a fire-proof building, conveniently located in the city.

Those desiring accommodations can secure them by addressing Mr. T. C. Clifford, the manager, at Chicago Ill. The hotel will be opened May 15th 1893.

The Grand Central Station is the Chicago depot of the Northern Pacific railroad, [Wisconsin Central division] and by taking this through car line to the world's fair city, visitors will avoid the discomfort of transfer through the city.

From this station trains run direct to the world's fair grounds at intervals during the day.

VISITORS TO THE TWIN CITIES.

No one should visit the Twin Cities this summer without running out to Minnetonka Beach and Hotel Lafayette, the largest and best located resort house in the west. The lake is one of the most picturesque in the country and is well supplied with steamers and sailing, rowing and fishing craft. A number of regattas will be given. The Great Northern has a double track line to the lake and runs frequent trains.

MINNESOTA STATE NORMAL SCHOOLS
WINONA, MANKATO, ST. CLOUD AND MOORHEAD.

These schools are organized for the training of teachers for the common schools of the state.

ORGANIZATION.—Each school comprises two departments —the normal department and the training department or Model School. The Normal department embraces:

(a) An elementary course for teachers of rural districts and elementary grades.

(b) An advanced course for teachers of advanced grades.

(c) A Professional course for teachers who have completed the required academic work elsewhere.

(d) A kindergarten training course (at Winona and St. Cloud.

ADMISSION.—Graduates of high schools and colleges and teachers holding county superintendents' first and second grade certificate are admitted without examination. All others are required to pass an entrance examination.

EXPENSES.—Tuition is free to all who pledge themselves to teach in Minnesota. Text-books are furnished at a rental of three dollars per year. Provision is made in each school for economical living. The average cost of furnished rooms with board is $3.50 per week. The Ladies' Home at St. Cloud offers board, furnished room, heat and light at $3.00 per week.

The new dormitory at Moorhead will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall term.

DIPLOMAS.—By a recent act of the legislature a diploma becomes a state teachers certificate [illegible].

The next school year opens at Winona, Sept. [illegible] at Mankato Sept. [illegible] at St. Cloud, Aug. [illegible] and at Moorhead, Oct. 3rd.

DEVILS LAKE CHAUTAUQUA.

The first summer Assembly of the North Dakota Chautauqua comes off June 28th to July 17th. An extensive program has been arranged, including many noted speakers, singers, etc., and the occasion promises to be most interesting and instructive. Devils Lake is a summer resort point. The Great Northern Railway gives reduced rates. Address J. B. Fancher, Secretary, Devils Lake, N. D. for programs and other inform. A trip to the lake and assembly will make an enjoyable outing.

A LARGE DROP IN RATES TO THE WEST

The Great Northern inaugurated its new train service to the Pacific Coast on the 6th inst. With sweeping reductions in rates, amounting to 40 percents in many cases. The rate from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Puget Sound was reduced First-class from $60.00 to, to Spokane from $56 to $30; and to Helena and Butte from $40 to $25, with corresponding reductions on second-class tickets, both through rates applying proportionately to intermediate points. It is the purpose of the Great Northern to make rates to help the development of its territory. It is much the shortest line across the continent, was built on business principles and at a cost of about one half of that of the older trans-continental lines, and is therefore prepared to correspondingly well by its territory and patrons in rates and accommodations.

Last summer I was attacked with a bad case of flux, and after taking four doses of Beggs' Diarrhoea Balsam was immediately relieved and cured. I have sold it for the past six months and may say that it gives general satisfaction.—W. Smith, M. D. Puxico, Mo. For sale by J. L. Johnson, Druggist.

Without a Competitor.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

Is so far beyond other brands of baking powders in its purity, wholesomeness and leavening power that it is practically without a competitor. Adulteration prevails to such an extent that the consumer in many sections is at the mercy of the venders of the ammonia and alum baking powders. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is the only powder prepared by a physician of high standing, and almost the only pure Cream of Tartar powder to be obtained.

ETIQUETTE AT WASHINGTON.

In Official Circles It Is of Great Diplomatic Importance.

In regard to the importance of the question of rank and precedence in Washington, the late governor and United States senator, E. D. Morgan used to tell a story that perfectly illustrates the strict punctilio of the diplomatic circles here, and also how much the new senator has to learn, no matter how well acquainted with the usages of the grande monde he may be elsewhere. Gov. Morgan, by the way, was born to the purple, had seen much of good society before his elevation to the chief magistracy of his own state of New York and the United States senate.

"The matter of etiquette embarrassed me a good deal when I first went to Washington as a senator," said he. "It was in the early days of the war, and Mr. Seward, who was an old friend, was secretary of state. There was a good deal of dinner giving that winter (1863) and I did as the others were doing. During the holidays in 1863, I invited the members of the diplomatic corps to meet the secretary of state at dinner. The times were squally, and Seward had told me privately that he wanted all the social aid he could get, especially with the foreign ministers in Washington. Sir Frederick Bruce was the English minister then. He was a special friend of my wife and myself, and had often visited at our home in New York. Senor Tassara, the Spanish minister, was the dean or senor of the diplomatic corps. At the congress of Vienna in 1810 the rule was adopted and is still in existence, that diplomatists' precedence at a court is regulated by the term of service at that court. So, as my dinner was to diplomats, things had to be regulated according to diplomatic usage.

"Sir Frederick Bruce was my oldest acquaintance among them, and I asked him to take Mrs. Morgan out to dinner. 'My dear sir, I can't do that,' said Bruce. 'Tassara's the dean. It's his right.' 'Oh, the d——l,' said I. 'England is a bigger country than Spain. Besides, you're an old friend of ours. Let the etiquette go.' 'But I daren't,' said Bruce. Just then Seward came up. Hearing what was going on he called me to one side and said: 'This may not seem of any importance to you, Morgan, but it is of immense consequence to me and the country. Spain is friendly to us. Tassara, being a Spaniard, is extremely punctilious. If, at a diplomatic dinner, his right of precedence is disregarded, he would take it as a deliberate insult to his nation. So, for heaven's sake, let him take Mrs. Morgan out; otherwise he will write to his government, and we will have no end of a row over it.' Of course, with this view before me," said Gov. Morgan, "I could only comply with the requirements of courtesy and etiquette, and asked Senor Tassara to take my wife out, which he did, and we had no row with Spain."—Washington Post.

Steam From Slag.

The enormous amount of heat habitually wasted in cooling molten slag has incited an Australian to work out a scheme for generating steam by this means. The boiler or receptacle for the water has running through it from top to bottom funnel-shaped pipes, something after the style of a candle mold. The molten slag is poured into these receptacles and communicates its heat to the water. When the slag becomes solid a door at the bottom of each receptacle is opened, the slag is knocked out, and the whole filled again. The apparatus has been tried and 100 pounds pressure of steam raised. If the ideas of the inventor be thoroughly carried out the value of the process will be enormous.

The value of infantry was not fully recognized by mediaeval commanders until the fifteenth century.

YOU GET STRONG, if you're a tired-out or "run-down" woman, with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. And, if you suffer from any "female complaint" or disorder, you get well. For these two things—to build up women's strength, and to cure women's ailments—this is the only medicine that's guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, your money is returned. On these terms, what else can be "just as good" for you to buy?

The "Prescription" regulates and promotes all the natural functions, never conflicts with them, and is perfectly harmless in any condition of the female system. It improves digestion, enriches the blood, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and vigor.

For ulcerations, displacements, bearing-down sensations, periodical pains, and every chronic weakness or irregularity, it's a remedy that safely, and permanently cures.

A MOST WONDERFUL DOG.

Can Tell the Days of the Week and Different Railroad Trains.

Those people who do not believe in dog stories are really subjects for heartfelt commiseration; they have either been unfortunate in their canine acquaintances or have not the penetration requisite for proper interpretation of dog characteristics. A Louisville railroad man has a dog that distinguishes the days of the week and different railroad trains. On days when Midget's owner made his regular trips the dog accompanies him to the station, but never attempts to board the train—just stays on the platform, an interested spectator, and wags his tail cheerfully as the train moves out. On other days and other trains—suburban trains to Parkland or Pewee Valley—he hops aboard without hesitation, evidently aware that the ride in prospect is one that he may share. Midget swears, too; swears like a pirate.

The family understands him, but they report that his language is too terrible to be repeated. When things don't go to suit him he retires under a bed or sofa and lies there rolling off oaths of fearful description for hours. A young man who was attentive to Midget's young mistress unintentionally offended him, but the dog got even. He actually broke off the match. He knew the regular nights on which the youth appeared, and at an early hour would ensconce himself under the parlor sofa, from which coign of vantage he would growl forth such volleys of personal and profane remarks that the prospective lover became intimidated and ceased his attentions. In recognition of which services Midget's master gave him a beautiful collar.

Telephones in a Storm.

A celebrated English oculist warns the public against the use of the telephone during a thunder storm, and relates an incident that occurred to a friend of his, who went to the telephone for the purpose of acquainting the central exchange at a distant city that a storm was approaching and the instrument would not be available until it was over. The moment he put his ear to the telephone a flash occurred, and he received a blow of such severity that he was sent across the small chamber against the opposite wall. Otherwise—beyond the temporary but very rude shock, which he described as "a severe box on the ear"—he was unhurt. In this respect he was more fortunate than an artilleryman who while using the telephone in the field during some recent military maneuvers, was struck dead by a powerful current of electricity which passed over the telephone.

A Pioneer Newspaper Woman.

Mrs. E. J. Nicholson is said to be the only woman in the world who owns, edits, manages and publishes a great daily newspaper. She was first a contributor of poetry to the columns of the New Orleans Picayune, which she now owns, under the name of Pearl Rivers, and some years ago was made literary editor of the paper by Col. A. M. Holbrook, its editor and proprietor, thus being the pioneer newspaper woman in the South. After a time she became the wife of Col. Holbrook, and at his death inherited the paper, much encumbered by debt, with a dubious outlook. She assumed the responsibility courageously, and, with able assistants, has put it again on a substantial basis. A few years ago she married George Nicholson, who was business manager of the paper.

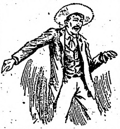
THE MIDWAY PLAISANCE.

SIGHTS ONE MAY SEE ON THAT RENOWNED STREET.

The Building Where You Can Get Your Baby Checked—The Oriental Dancing Girls Are Not Graceful, But They Are Vulgar.

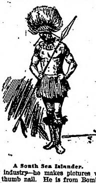
Old Vienna is one of the quaint villages which open from the Plaisance, where you will find good music, pretty girls and good beer, if you can descend to any such mundane beverage, to the soft strains of a lute or violin, played by a practiced hand. It will cost you a quarter to be admitted, and once in the streets of old Vienna you are expected to contribute your quota to the expenses, according to a writer in Detroit Free Press. It is a feast to the eyes with its ancient architecture of fifteenth century civilization, and the ear is gratified by the soft strains of music, but you must sit down at one of the garden tables and order something to eat and drink. I only ordered coffee for my delectation, and while I waited for it a couple came in, and the man, who looked like Bismarck, ordered beer. When it came the woman ordered the waiter to change it for coffee. This he would not do, and she indignantly took the glass and poured the contents out of a side window. With that Mr. Bismarck rose, leaving his meal untouched, and walked away. She ate her lunch quietly and without any hurry and followed him, and later I saw them walking about amicably arm in arm.



"Come in and See the Ostrich."

This village is essentially foreign, and it is hard to imagine a more brilliant and fascinating spectacle than it is when illuminated at night. Indeed, the whole Midway is like fairyland. I was there on one evening last week when all the natives were running up and down as happy as children. The Indians got into a scrap and the police had to gather them in, but that only added to the general hilarity. The South Sea Islanders, with very scanty costumes and much paint and tatooing, paraded around shouting at the top of their voices. The fireworks brought out the peculiar architecture of the buildings in weird and fantastic shapes, and the slowly revolving Ferris wheel was, with its electric lights, a dazzling sight as it carried its crowded cars around. There was never anything in this prosaic country quite so charming and attractive as the Midway Plaisance.

I found a foreign artist who is paying his expenses at the fair by a peculiar industry—he makes pictures with his thumb nail. He is from Bombay, India, and his name is Purushotam Rao Telang, and he is an officer in the employ of the Indian government. He speaks English very well, but not until he has heard all that people have to say to him, and been spoken to in various hybrid tongues, and approached with all sorts of curious contortions. He is in the Bombay exhibit, and for ten cents he will produce the exact representation of a flower, stalk of leaves, and the initials of your name with that accomplished thumb nail. He learned the art as an amusement in his own country. Kate Field complimented him on his beautiful choice of language. He is very modest and says of his work, "It is nothing," but I would like to see any one reproduce the four-leafed clover which he "thumbed" on my card. It is not mere outline, but a perfect intaglio.



A South Sea Islander.

Sitting on the veranda of the New Hampshire state building I amused myself with watching the people who passed, and noticed the way veils, gloves and handkerchiefs dropped along their path like shooting stars. One pretty girl flirted a dainty white suede glove and dropped it. A man who only saw the glove, and not its owner, picked it up and laid it on a pile of guide books on a table near by. The man who was selling the books had gone away, but when he returned and saw that unoffending glove he pounced on it like a hawk and banged it into the dust under his stand, where it was lost to sight, to memory dear.

Veils were picked up and hung upon trees or other projections; handkerchiefs were usually pocketed. In the transportation building a young couple were looking at a sixteenth century coach and a small boy belonging to them wandered off and was lost. The parents were nearly frantic when they missed him, but he was found by a Columbian guard, who gave him into the keeping of a strange lady while he went in search of the mother.

He accosted the first wild-eyed, distracted-looking woman he met, who proved to be the mother all right, and there was a scene, and people standing around wiped their eyes and thrilled with excitement.

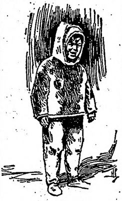
"Have you seen the Screech?" asked one woman of another, as they wandered about.

"No—what is it?"

"Oh, it's a place where you can leave a baby all day and have a check for it, just as they do with umbrellas and parasols."

She meant the creche, but I am not sure that her nomenclature was not correct. The babies are beautifully cared for by strangers, and the check with their number is fastened on their little shoulders with a safety pin, and a corresponding check is given to the mother. The older children play on the roof garden and have amusements provided for them. The creche is admirably conducted. Visitors are not allowed to go through it, as they would be disturbing elements. The way to see it is to look in at the windows and view the workings of the institution at a distance. The building was designed especially for children, and the plan had its inception at a bazar held at the house of Mrs. Potter Palmer for the purpose.

"Come in, c-o-m-e-i-n" bawls a voice on the Midway, and a man with a Yankee intonation tells you that there are ostrich eggs inside the gate at which he stands as big as—here he takes a long breath and draws a equatorial circle with his hands. We went in, and having in mind the adventures related by Rider Haggard in the land of the ostrich, I stepped about rather gingerly. The birds were big and scraggy, with necks that would have rejoiced the heart of a boarding house keeper, and wings ditto—they were so scraggy and tough. They are horribly tame, and tried to lunch off our pocketbooks, and I regretted not taking a handful of refreshing shingle nails along. Their feathers are draggy, and did not compare at all with those seen in the milliners' window, so I concluded that again nature was superior to art. The native Kaffir is more of a curiosity than the birds, except that one realizes on seeing their formidable proportions how easy it would be for that powerful foot to cast a blow that would break a man's neck. Their eyes, as they come up close to you, twinkle with curiosity and a shrewd intelligence which is not carried out in their behavior, they having the least sense of anything in natural history. As to the eggs, they are large; but what what would you expect—hummingbirds?

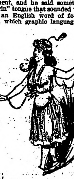


Prince Pomiuk.

The Esquimaux are not in it with the rest of the exposition. They skipped out one day and set up a private museum of their own. Little Columbia Isabella, the first baby born at the world's fair, is a sturdy youngling now, and did not die, as has been misrepresented. I was much taken with little Prince Pomiuk, who went and put on his Greenland-icy-mountain suit and let me take his picture, which pleased him very much. The reindeer and sledge dogs are in rather a dilapidated state, but the village is well worth seeing, if only that one-half of the world may learn something about the way in which the other half lives. It is at the Fifty-seventh street entrance to the grounds. Those who have seen these people in their own native country will notice a few discrepancies in their mode of living here, especially when they are seen by the electric light. I am sure they will be as glad to get back to their frozen peaks, their ice-cold whale blubber and tallow luxuries, as that other Esquimau who tried to live in Boston, and cold as it is in that classic town, pined for his native icebergs, and died for joy when the vessel upon which he sailed sighted one.

By the way, the first European ever born in America was an Esquimau. It did not live long, and the story of its life and death is a most pathetic one. These people are as fond of their home as the Swiss mountaineer is of his chalet and, stolid as they look, the tears will come over their broad cheeks when they get one of their periodical fits of homesickness.

In turning a corner of the Midway plaisance the other day, I met one of the attractions of the fair, a South Sea Islander. I met him so suddenly that we both sat down for a moment, and he said something in a "furrin" tongue that sounded very much like an English word of four letters, with which graphic language is often embellished. I did not care to answer, indeed I hurriedly left the spot, and declined afterwards to visit the South Sea Island reservation or see the war dance which they give every hour.



Cairo Dancing Girls.

Apropos of dancing, there being a large party to keep each other in countenance, we went into the streets of Cairo to see the dancing which had been described in such florid language. Well, it would have made dear departed Barnum wild with joy, it was such a fake, excuse the slang. I expected to see oriental beauties who swayed languorously like lilies on their stalks. Swayed—nothing! They were coarse, gross, lazy girls who had been picked up anywhere, and decorated with cheap bangles; they gyrated in clumsy antics about as gracefully as a cow would dance. They were too stupid to flirt, and as the audience was composed mostly of women and girls, they didn't attempt to, and as for any immorality—there was none, the dance was stupid and vulgar, a repelling process that is a safeguard against seeing it again. As a catch-penny feature of the Plaisance, it is to be condemned.

A RUN ON A GROCERY.

The Queer Outcome of a Groundless Panic at a Pacific Coast Shingle Mill.

There was a "run" up at the little town of Hamilton, Wash., recently which the Puget Sound Lumberman thinks ought to find its way into literature devoted to queer things. Now, the ordinary "run" is generally confined to banks, and is associated with a long line of frantic people and a bank president with pallid features, agitated nerves and a forced smile. There was no bank president in this case, no long line of horny-handed depositors and no locking of doors and putting up an announcement of failure. Your average Hamiltonian puts his money in a stocking or in an empty stove and cares not for banks. The "run" in question was on a grocery store belonging to the Washington Red Cedar Shingle company. A "run" on a grocery store is about the funniest thing—for the proprietor—that can happen. The filer of the mill on the morning of the "run," to use a local phrase, "yumped his yob," and wanted his cash before pay day, contrary to the rules and regulations made and provided. The mill owners, making up their minds to discourage this habit of their men leaving them in a lurch, refused to pay the disconsolate filer until pay day. The filer thereupon filed an attachment on shingles of the company, and this caused the "run." Without looking into the situation, local creditors and mill hands commenced a "run" on the company's grocery store, with the object of taking out their wages and debts in lard, dried apples, syrup, tobacco, chow-chow, bacon and other necessaries of life.

The clerk, who had been dozing behind the counter, jumped four feet in the air when the door opened and a half-dozen brawny, wild-eyed shingle weavers appeared. Bringing up the rear was a crowd of laborers, all clamoring for groceries. Soon it became apparent that the clerk could not tie up the packages fast enough, and he told the crowd to help themselves while he checked up the goods. When Manager Boardman returned in the evening from the woods, whither he had gone after a supply of logs, the clerk was lying exhausted across an empty pickle barrel and the store had the appearance of the last act of a cyclone. When the clerk recovered he informed Boardman of the "run," and Boardman laughed long and loud. While he was surveying the wreck in came a drummer for a Seattle grocery house and mildly inquired if anything was wanted. Boardman looked queerly at the drummer, laughed and pointed to the empty shelves. The drummer knew his business, and that night he carried the largest order of the month to Seattle. Before morning Boardman had discharged all liens, and the mill was started up as usual. Some persons are mean enough to say that the drummer put up a job on the shingle mill employes so that he could book an order. It may be so, and the mill employes are inclined to believe anything just now. If you go to Hamilton drop in and see Boardman and have him relate the story about the "run." Should you go over to the mill don't be surprised if you see one of the weavers drop his bunch of shingles and go back of the boiler and kick himself. You will know that he was in the "run," and that he has a house full of dried apples, pickles and canned fruit that he will never get rid of.

JUST LIKE A HOTEL.

Description of the Latest Thing in Railroad Cars.

A new departure in conveniences of railroad travel is on exhibition at the Park square station of the Old Colony system, and it is attracting the general commendation of railroad men and travelers, says the Boston Herald. It is a train of four hotel cars, built from plans perfected by Supt. E. G. Allen, of the Old Colony system, and combining a remarkable number of novel features for the convenience and luxury of travelers, while their style and finish are all that can be desired. Each car is a completely equipped hotel. The corridor, from end to end, is a zig-zag, resulting in economy of space and greater width to the staterooms on either side. There are sixteen of these rooms, each designed for two persons, with generous seats, mirrors, lavatory, luggage racks and drawers, independent light and ventilation, bookcase, safe for valuables, etc. The kitchen is in the middle of the car, and its ranges, ice chests and lockers are below the floor, resulting in great economy of space. Each room has its own table for two, and with two cooks and two porters in each car, its occupants can all be promptly and satisfactorily served at once. There is no traveling the length of the train to a dining car, and no waiting for a place at the table. Everything is cozy and convenient, and if a couple choose to spend half the forenoon over their breakfast no one else has occasion to complain. The same is true of the entire use of the room. The occupants can be as secluded as in a hotel chamber, with none to molest or make afraid. Each room has the ordinary two sleeping berths, but instead of the semi-publicity and stuffy curtains of the ordinary sleeper, there is absolute privacy obtained by wooden partitions, while much ingenuity has been exercised to secure the maximum of comfort in the way of light and ventilation. With the train is a combination car for smokers and baggage, and in this is a dynamo which furnishes electric lights in each room. The cooking is done by gas, and steam heat from the locomotive is conveniently supplied.

Solving the Tramp Problem.

A Kansas woman who has been elected police justice of her city has adopted a novel solution of the tramp problem. The first tramp who was brought before her for judgment was sentenced to two baths a day for ten days and to hard labor on the stonepile, with the order that he should be fed if he worked and starved if he shirked. The prisoner survived the ordeal, but now the first question a tramp asks on approaching a Kansas town is whether the police justice is a man or a woman.—Milwaukee Journal.

HERE IS A TROLLEY CRANK.

He Predicts That the Atlantic Will Be Crossed by Means of the Trolley.

Perhaps the steamer of the future will be operated on a trolley by means of a submarine cable. The advantages of this plan would be great, as it would prevent the necessities of carrying immense quantities of fuel and of keeping the vessel loaded down with enormous engines. All the delay and difficulty and expense of managing furnaces and engines on board ship would be done away with by the oceanic trolley system and the ships could be made so much lighter that they could go whizzing across the ocean in a couple of days. Danger of accident could be brought to be no greater than it is at present by having a sufficient number of repair steamers on the route, which could keep the cables in repair and in case of any accident to the trolley could bring the passenger boat into port or put it again in connection with the cable.

There can be no question that the proper means of crossing the Atlantic quickly is by some system which will allow the motive power to be applied from the shore, either, by a trolley or a cable. The limit of speed for ships that carry engines and fuel is certainly practically reached on the surface, and there are difficulties in the way of submarine navigation which it would be hard to conquer. The trolley system is capable of greater extension, and we may yet live to get to Europe by its means.

Cement for Steam Pipes.

A prominent engineer recommends the following recipe for stopping up leaky steampipe joints: Five parts plaster of paris, five parts yellow ochre, ten parts litharge, five parts of red lead and four parts of black oxide of manganese. To these powders, which should be mixed thoroughly, a small amount of asbestos powder and boiled oil is added. The cement hardens in from two to five hours.

Help Offered.

Owing to the extreme financial depression hundreds of men in all our cities have been thrown out of employment. Many of these are able and willing to do farm work. There are doubtless many farmers who need help for the remainder of the season—and others who could find work all winter for good men, at low wages. A bureau has been organized in St. Paul, under the name of "The Public Employment Bureau," by city officials and citizens, to find work for as many as possible of her unemployed workers. Any farmer needing help, either for the fall months or for the entire winter, may readily secure it by addressing Mayor F. P. Wright, St. Paul, Minn., stating what he wants, and on what terms.

Gov. Waite has telegraphed several members of the Colorado legislature now in Denver asking them to meet him on his return from Chicago. He says he shall probably have to call an extra session and wants to talk the matter over.

AROUND A GREAT STATE.

INTERESTING EVENTS OF THE WEEK IN MINNESOTA.

Important Occurrences in the North Star State Day by Day—A General Resume of the Week's Doings Arranged for Rapid Reading.

Monday, Sept. 11.

Burglars broke into the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul depot at Cannon Falls and blew open the safe, but got nothing.

The house of Charles Stahnke of Danewood caught fire and burned. Loss, $1,500; insurance, $850. Very little was saved.

A domestic employed at the Batlo hotel at Red Wing named Ida Johnson, disappeared. A thorough search failed to locate her whereabouts. She recently came from Sweden.

The eight-year-old son of John Jardine of Shakopee accidentally shot himself with a revolver. He didn't know it was loaded, pulled the trigger and shot himself through the heart, dying instantly.

O. Erickson, from Rosseau, Kittson county, while riding from town with Eli Dalquist, county commissioner of Marshall county, was killed near Warren by their team running away.

Forest fires are raging south of Hinckley, and a heavy wind is driving them on. The villagers are already making preparations for an active defense against the flames. Great damage is done the timber.

A small barn at Montevideo belonging to R. S. Harter was burned. His team perished in the flames, as all attempts to get them out were unsuccessful. The loss was about $300; no insurance. The fire was set by some small children, who were playing with matches.

Tuesday, Sept. 12.

The dwelling house of Isaac Stevens at Montrose was partially destroyed by fire, with their household goods. Loss, $200; no insurance.

Rev. C. K. Austin, a resident of Rice county for twenty-four years, died at his residence three miles from Dundas, aged sixty-eight; cause of death, heart disease.

Near Windom, while threshing, but on different machines, August Lokken and Pascal Vought had the fingers of their left hands taken off in the cylinder of their machines. Amputation was necessary.

Mrs. G. E. Marienus of North Branch attempted suicide by cutting a vein in her arm with a razor. She also made a gash in the leg. Despondency over the sickness of her child is the probable cause.

Wednesday, Sept. 13.

Charles White, charged with the murder of Harry Walraven at Mankato, was discharged. The evidence was insufficient to hold him.

The receipts of the Freeborn Agricultural society, above the expenses and all indebtedness, are $600. The premiums will be fully paid.

John Long and wife of the town of St. Joseph, two aged people, when driving home were thrown out and probably fatally hurt. The injured are parents of the Great Northern yardmaster in St. Cloud.

The citizens all over Morrison county are being very favorably impressed with the new railroad scheme. There does not now exist any doubt in the minds of those best informed that the bonds will be voted.

Word was received at Duluth that the single rotary saw mill of the Cranberry Lumber company, on the south shore, was totally destroyed by fire. The dock and 1,000,000 feet of lumber were saved. The mill was valued at $5,000; insured for $3,200. Fire started in the engine room.

Burglars broke into P. N. Allen's furniture store, Nick Fieder's lumber office and Bosch's elevator at Cannon Falls and tried to break into O. F. Peters' hardware store, but did not get in. The safes were left open. The iron drawers were broken open and carried away, but they contained no money.

Mrs. Warner, with a servant girl, filled a gasoline can from a tank in the barn of Dr. G. F. Warner of Mankato, and the girl stepped on a match, which set fire to it. Mrs. Warner was badly burned about the face and elsewhere.

Henry Paulson has been arrested near Swan River charged with criminal assault upon Mrs. John Looma, who lives a few miles above Floodwood. Paulson worked for the woman's husband, who was away on the night of Sept. 1, when the crime is alleged to have been committed. Paulson has been taken to Duluth.

Thursday, Sept. 14.

W. O. Pillsbury was killed at Ashby by being thrown from a horse.

The barn and grain stacks of Ole A. Overly, southeast of Albert Lea, burned, entailing a loss of $1,000 or over.

The residences of Dr. Blaikmer and Walter Thompson at Albert Lea were burglarized.

A Minneapolis fireman was fatally injured by falling from a ladder while fighting fire.

A farm hand, who had been working on a farm in North Dakota, was robbed of $30 by two men at Moorhead.

W. D. Silvey was appointed receiver of E. P. Emerson, of the Spalding hotel, Duluth, to succeed Paul Schaney, who declined to serve.

A spark from a thresher burned the separator of Ole N. Dahl at Montevideo. About two hundred bushels of wheat of C. N. Meckleborg were also burned. Loss, $600 on the grain; insured.

The report of the auditing board of Freeborn county, just made, shows a fine condition of finances. The county is absolutely out of debt and has a balance on hand of $20,538.38. The tax for county purposes is low, and is reduced each year.

Four threshing outfits have been burned at Delhi. The work was supposed to be that of an incendiary. The large number of threshing machines in the country is supposed to be the cause of the deed. The loss is about $3,600.

Friday, Sept. 15.

W. Finck, who has been employed at the sheriff's office, St. Paul, is mysteriously missing.

The state board of equalization is asked to reduce Dakota county assessments one-half.

Claude Brown of Fergus Falls, while hunting in a boat, shot himself and died from the wound. He had been married one year.

Charles Ulrich of Le Sueur lost his barn by fire. Seven horses and twenty sheep were burned in the barn, besides hay, farm machinery and stock of grain. No clue to the origin of the fire.

The grocery firm of Johnson Bros., on Vermillion street, Hastings, have made an assignment to T. D. Lovering of St. Paul, for the benefit of their creditors. The schedule of assets and liabilities has not been made, but the amount is small.

S. B. Molander has been appointed county auditor of Kanabec county to succeed Andrew Norum, deceased. Mr. Molander was auditor eight years previous to the election of Mr. Norum, and his familiarity with the work will put the office in shape at once.

Notwithstanding the hard times the brick yard in Albert Lea has been run right along and a fresh kiln of over 400,000 has just been lighted. Brick are shipped all over Southern Minnesota and Northern Iowa. The fuel used is soft coal, and it is said to be fully as good as wood for this purpose.

Saturday, Sept. 16.

While at play in the street at Wood Lake the daughter of Rev. G. W. Lutz was run over by a passing team and instantly killed.

Fire damaged the Leavitt house at Tracy to the amount of $2,500; insurance nominal. It is supposed to have been incendiary.

Alexandria McKillop was given a verdict at Duluth for $7,500 against the street railway company. McKillop lost a leg by being run over by a car.

The merchants of Canby who were burned out in the recent fire, have decided to put up temporary buildings and open for business at once. The frame buildings will be eventually replaced by substantial brick structures.

The body of Mr. Russell, the settler near Pine City who disappeared recently, was found in the woods near his home. It was plain he had been gored to death by a cross bull which was allowed to run loose. He leaves a wife and six small children.

Otto Lundeen, who has been on trial at Mora for the last three days for the murder of Lars O. Larson, committed on Aug. 13, 1893, was convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced by the court to imprisonment for life. When being brought up for sentence to be pronounced, he broke away from the sheriff and ran nearly a quarter of a mile before he was recaptured.

Sunday, Sept. 17.

Rates on flour, grain and millstuff are advanced by the Soo and St. Paul & Duluth roads.

Lizzie Bresland of East Duluth is arrested in St. Paul for running away from home.

A young man named Barley, living just north of Le Sueur was suffocated in the smoke from a burning hay stack on the night of Sept. 14.

Fire on the farm of Jerry Creed, northeast of Rochester destroyed a fine frame barn, two wagons, hay and grain in stack. It is supposed to have caught from a straw burner engine. Loss about $5,000; insured for $1,000 in the Continental.

Diphtheria has been epidemic in Red Wing and vicinity for several weeks. The board of health yesterday ordered the schools closed. The city council meets this evening and will consider the matter of building an isolation house and a steam disinfector as requested by the board.

A report has just come in from Bethel, Anoka county, of fiercely raging timber and prairie fires. Sheets of flame are driven by the furious gale. Over 100 men with teams are performing superhuman efforts to stop the tide of destruction. Hay, peat marshes and timber burn with fearful rapidity. No burning of houses or fatalities are yet reported.

Astonished Savages.

The author of "Where Three Empires Meet" took some Kafirs from their desolate inland home in the Himalayan gorges beyond the mountain ranges to the more civilized south. Like most savages, they looked with stupid indifference at the marvels about them, and once only were they excited by an incident which opened their eyes to what they considered an extraordinary and unnatural state of things.

They were descending a road when one of them chanced to remark that he was hungry, and the English "sahib" bought him some food at a way-side shop. The Kafir saw the money change hands.

"How is this?" he inquired in surprise. "Do you have to pay for food in this country?"

"Certainly."

"What a country!" cried the man, in amazement. Then after pondering a while he continued, doubtfully, "Suppose a man had no money in this country; he might starve!"

"It is quite possible."

The Kafir shook with uncontrollable laughter. It was the best joke he had ever heard. He then explained the ridiculous system to his companions and they roared in chorus.

Coming to the Point.

FIFTY THIRD CONGRESS.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SPECIAL SESSION OF CONGRESS.

Condensed Record of the Business Being Transacted by our National Law-makers—Routine Report Day by Day.

Washington, Sept. 12.—In the senate the greater part of the time was occupied by Senator Pugh (Ala.) in opposition to the repeal of the Sherman law. He was followed by Senator Teller (Colo.), also against the bill, who concluded his speech begun on Saturday last. The silver men neither Saturday nor today followed the tactics inaugurated early last week of insisting upon the presence of a quorum, and apparently the feeling between the friends and opponents of repeal is much better than it has been heretofore during the session.

Washington, Sept. 13.—The senate was prompt in getting to work on the repeal bill. The Stewart resolution as to senators holding stock in national banks was laid over until to-morrow. At 12:30 the bill was taken up and Mr. Mitchell (Rep. Or.) made a long speech against the repeal of the Sherman act.

The house transacted only routine business. Mr. Hepburn (Rep. Iowa) attempted to secure consideration of a resolution calling on the secretary of the treasury for information as to the amount of merchandise transported from one United States port to another over Canadian territory. Mr. Geary (Dem. Cal.) objected, and the resolution was referred.

Washington, Sept. 14.—Mr. Allen (Pop. Neb.) occupied the floor of the senate in advocating the Stewart resolution up to 2 o'clock, when the presiding officer laid before the senate the repeal bill, the resolution going to the calendar. Mr. Voorhees, in charge of the repeal bill, said the bill had been discussed in the house seventeen days and in the senate twelve days. He therefore thought the time was approaching when the day for a vote should be fixed. He asked that general debate close a week from to-day, and that the amendments then be discussed until the Saturday following at 2 o'clock, under rule 8, when a vote should be taken on the substitute and all the amendments. Mr. Dubois denied that the subject had not been discussed to the satisfaction of either congress or the country as had been asserted. Mr. Voorhees said he would renew his request at some future time, and Mr. Shoup of Idaho proceeded to address the senate under the regular order.

The house transacted routine business of an unimportant character. An objection prevented a resolution offered by Mr. Talbert (Dem. S. C.) directing the committee on banking and currency to report immediately a bill for the issue of $125,000,000 of treasury notes from being considered. The house went into committee of the whole on the printing bill.

Washington, Sept. 15.—The struggle over the federal election repeal bill begun in the house with the opening of the session, the Republicans (under the lead of Mr. Burrows) filibustered to prevent the reception of the report from the committee on election of president and vice president, in favor of the Tucker bill. On Mr. Burrows' motion to dispense with the call of committees for reports, the Republicans refrained from voting, thus breaking a quorum. The vote resulted: Ayes, 4; nays, 106. A call of the house was ordered. Several Democrats who feel that they are acting with the administration in opposing legislation until the silver legislation is out of the way, also refrained from voting. The Democrats realize that they must secure a quorum of their own party before they can secure action on the federal election repeal bill, and after a day devoted to filibustering adopted a resolution revoking all leaves of absence except those on account of sickness, and telegrams were ordered sent to absentees notifying them to return.

In the senate, after the offering of Mr. Faulkner's amendment to the repeal bill—proposing the coinage of $800,000,000 of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1—and a personal explanation from Mr. Hawley (Rep. Conn.) denying that he had been absent from the senate chamber more than three days during the present session, the repeal bill was taken up and Mr. Daniel (Dem. Va.) addressed the senate in opposition to it.

Washington, Sept. 16.—Some routine business having been disposed of, the struggle over the federal election bill was resumed and the Republicans again resorted to filibustering tactics. The attendance was very small at the opening. Mr. Burrows demanded the ayes and nays on the call of committee reports. The vote resulted, yeas 1, nays 149—no quorum, the Republicans and administration Democrats refusing to vote. The house devoted the remainder of the day to delivering eulogies on the life and character of the late Congressman Chipman of Michigan.

After the routine morning business the repeal bill was taken up in the senate, and Mr. Lindsay (Dem., Ky.) addressed the senate at length.

Washington, Sept. 18.—Senator Voorhees will one day this week move to prolong the day session of the senate into the night, and it is understood that he and his immediate supporters will make a strong effort as the circumstances will permit to have the repeal bill pushed to as speedy a termination as possible. The motion will, of course, be opposed by the adherents of silver, and it may be expected that it will at least introduce an enlivening element into the proceedings of the senate. After this motion is presented may come a test vote on a motion to adjourn. What would be the fate of such a motion no one will attempt to say. There are some advocates of the bill who hesitate from motives of expediency to go to this extreme at this time in forcing a physical test.

The Republicans in the house will continue their filibustering tactics against the bill repealing the federal election law, and the Democrats must secure a quorum of their own party before they can make any progress with the measure.

APPEAL FOR FUNDS.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 18.—Gov. Northen has issued an appeal to the people of his state to furnish money and provisions for the destitute and suffering of Brunswick. Funds should be forwarded to the mayor of Brunswick. The appeal says that he is "just in receipt of a telegram from Hon. Thomas W. Lamb, mayor, informing me of the continued spread of the yellow fever at Brunswick. It is now plainly evident that the fever will become epidemic."

SHOT THROUGH THE HEAD

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 18.—Another murder was discovered this morning, the body being found in an oil car, No. 40207, while the train was being made up here in the Northern Pacific yards to go East. This car was brought in from Tower City early this morning. The body was that of a man who had been shot through the head, the bullet passing clear through and lodging on the other side of the car, where it had been carefully cut out. Another ball was found near it, and apparently the murderer had twice fired at the man.

Later two harvest hands recognized the man as having been at Casselton yesterday, and he wanted them to come down with him on a freight, but they were afraid of robbery and refused. They also gave the name of a store at which he bought a shirt he had on when killed. The man worked for Senator Haggart four miles west of the city during the summer, and a year ago was employed by Maj. Flemming at Wheatland. Sheriff Barnes offers a reward of $250 from his own funds for the discovery of the murderers, and the county commissioners will probably add to this amount.

MANY FATALITIES.

Arkansas City, Kan., Sept. 18.—A dozen dead bodies have been found between Arkansas City and Perry. Not all have been identified, and the manner of death of only a few has been ascertained. The charred body of a woman was found at a place where a prairie fire had burned over the ground. The number who received broken arms and legs in the rush of Saturday is very great, and the doctors are kept busy attending the wounded.

Kansas City, Sept. 18.—There was a big exodus of disappointed people from the Cherokee strip to-day. The Santa Fe brought in three special train loads this morning and the Rock Island two. All the regular trains on both these roads were crowded with men and women who left the strip last night and who are glad enough to get back to civilization. A whole party of people from Illinois who had planned to establish a colony of their own in the strip came back on the Santa Fe. It was the most forlorn looking party that the officials of the union depot had ever seen. They were dust-begrimed and weary. They made the run on foot from the line north of Orlando, Okla., and got nothing after having stood in line for four days at the registration booth, sleeping on the ground and existing on muddy water and dry bread.

NOW AN ARCHBISHOP.

Dubuque, Iowa, Sept. 18.—The pallium was conferred upon Archbishop Hennessey at St. Raphael's cathedral here yesterday in the presence of more than 2,000 spectators. Twice as many more who could not gain admission waited patiently outside through the service. Cardinal Gibbons, Mgr. Satolli and Archbishop Hennessey were enthroned immediately on their arrival at the altar and all was in readiness for the pontificial high mass. The celebrated Mgr. Satolli then enrobed and mass was sang by the papal ablegate as never before heard in this arch diocese. At the conclusion of the mass the pallium was conferred by Cardinal Gibbons with the ceremony attending investiture. At 3 p. m. a banquet was tendered the visiting clergymen at St. Joseph's Catholic college. Among those who responded to toasts were Mgr. Satolli, Archbishop Ireland and others.

FLOODS IN CHINA.

Washington, Sept. 18. — Acting Vice Consul of the United States C. D. Tenny at Tien Tsin, North China, reports that disastrous floods prevail in Northern China. A large part of the country between Tien Tsin and Peking and Paoting Fu and to a distance of thirty-five miles south of Tien Tsin has been laid waste. The autumn crops have been totally destroyed and many houses have been swept away. As famine already exists owing to the irregularity of the rainfall, the present floods will bring untold misery upon the people.

MURDERED.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 18.—A man was found murdered in the northern part of the city this morning. Apparently his name was Jim Smidt, and his home was West Superior. He was apparently killed three or four weeks ago, and his body was dragged into the thick bushes by the two or three men who murdered him for his money. His skull was fractured in several places, and the jury brought in a verdict of murder, but could not obtain any information as to who committed the crime.

GREAT DISTRESS.

London, Sept. 18.—The distress in the mining districts increases and there is no appearance at present of the strike coming to an end. Between Leeds and Bradford half the mills have stopped or will shortly. In the Wakefield districts 4,000 children are being fed by charitable organizations. In Derbyshire, where there are 50,000 people idle, the strike fund is exhausted.

SPECULATED.

Olean, N. Y., Sept. 18.—During the past few days judgments to the amount of $90,000 have been filed against C. G. Thyng, the well known oil and mining operator, and captain of the Forty-third separate company. Expensive speculation in Carolina real estate on borrowed capital is said to have been the cause of his reverses. Other Olean business men, it is said, may also suffer from Thyng's embarrassment.

ONE KILLED.

Rome, Ga., Sept. 18.—Three negroes who murdered old man Hall and wounded two others near here yesterday were run out of the swamp in which they were surrounded this morning and one was killed. The other two were landed in jail. They may be lynched, but the more prudent may prevent this.

A SUCCESS.

Washington, Sept. 18.—Information received at the navy department of the trial of the gunboat Castine at New London, Conn., yesterday, is that it was so successful that the builders will receive a premium amounting to about $65,000. Her speed without tidal corrections was 16.4 knots.

YAWL CAPSIZED.

San Fransisco, Sept. 18.—Capt. Dole, of the British ship Bannockburn, which arrived here from Swansea a few days ago, was drowned in the bay yesterday afternoon by the capsizing of a yawl.

ASHLAND MAY BE BURNED

THE CITY NEARLY SURROUNDED BY FOREST FIRES.

Hundreds of Men Now Fighting the Flames—Three Families Perish Near Ashland and Many Other Lives May be Lost.

Ashland, Wis., Sept. 18.—Ashland has been seriously threatened, and unless the wind changes or a fall of rain comes the town may suffer much damage from forest fires. A fire started back of the city some days ago, and to-day a strong southeast wind sprung up, against which the fire has burned toward the city from the northeast, and which has carried the flames toward the city from other directions at a terrible rate. On the south the fire has burned to within a few feet of residences and scores of men are out with brushes attempting to check its progress. The city fire department is out in squads of five to ten men at all threatened places. To-day one of the main pipes of the water main broke at the pump house and but little pressure could be turned on the hose at places where the firemen were stationed. In the extreme east end of the city where many residences are located, also the roundhouse of the M. L. S. & W railroad, the fire has burned to within a few feet of the buildings. Families have moved their goods out and are standing guard over them. At the Lake Shore roundhouse the engines were moved out and placed along the track. The coal sheds of the company are guarded by scores of men. The fire has burned along the edge of the building and also burned over pile after pile of ties. Everything is so dry that if the fire gets across the lines of the fire break, as it threatens, the entire city is in danger. The air is filled with cinders and is very hot. From surrounding towns and from settlers on outlying lands come the report that widespread damage has been done by the flames. Many homesteaders just out of Ashland report houses destroyed and several people overcome by heat and smoke. It is known that three families have perished, and it is thought that others have also been lost.

West Superior, Wis., Sept. 18.—For several days this city has been covered with dense smoke from the numerous forest fires south of here, but no danger was anticipated until to-day, when the fires approached this city forced on by a strong wind. The fire departments were called out and the flames were extinguished before they reached any of the buildings on the outskirts of the city. A number of small fires burning in the city limits where land is being cleared have also been extinguished. There is no possible danger of the fires reaching this city.

Milwaukee, Sept. 18.—Rain has extinguished the forest fires around Marshfield, Merrill and Stevens' Point.

TRAIN MEN ARE KILLED

Bird Island, Minn., Sept. 18. — Last night as freight train No. 76 was passing over the switch at Olivia, the engine tipped over and the tender and fourteen cars loaded with wheat, flax and flour were piled on top of it. Engineer George Remsen, Fireman Charles Hedding and Brakeman Anton Brewer were instantly killed. It is the most serious wreck that ever occurred on the Hastings & Dakota road. The dead men all leave families in Minneapolis. The cars were splintered into kindling wood and piled up fifteen to twenty feet high.

VESSEL SUNK.

Duluth, Sept 18—The new steel Anchor line freighter Cadorus was sunk yesterday afternoon in the harbor in a collision with the Harley. The Cadorus was coming out of the Eastern Minnesota in tow of a tug, and the Harley, in charge of a tug, was crossing in from the slip. Through some misunderstanding of signals the two craft came together, the Harley striking the Cadorus full amidship, striking through her plates. The Cadorus sunk before she could be towed back to the dock. She is loaded deep with flour. It is impossible to tell what the loss will be. The injuries to the vessel cannot be estimated until she is raised. The damage to the cargo depends on whether the doors in the water-tight bulkheads were closed or not. The loss is not likely to be under $20,000, and may reach a much higher figure.

SOONERS SHOT.

Guthrie, Okla., Sept. 18.—Information received here by courier tells of four sooners who were shot and fatally wounded by soldiers. The names of the killed are at present unknown. The men killed had received had received their certificates and gone into the strip to locate claims. Several soldiers came upon the sooners and called on them to halt, which they refused to do, whereupon the soldiers fired upon them.

BRIDGE COLLAPSED.

New Orleans, Sept. 18—The iron bridge across Harvey's canal, six miles above this city, gave way last night while a train of the Southern Pacific was passing over it. The locomotive and tender went through while one of the coaches was piled on top of the wreck. Four persons were injured, none, however, fatally.

TOO RECKLESS.

Pittsburg, Sept. 18. — Stanley Boyer was instantly killed, and William Slyperk, Joseph Slavereswky and Ignatius Mistozak seriously injured by a nitro glycerine explosion at Oakdale this morning. The men are coal miners and had stolen the nitro glycerine. They were recklessly experimenting with it when the explosion took place. Boyer was terribly mangled and died in twenty minutes. The concussion shook every house in the town of Oakdale and badly frightened the inhabitants.

GOING TO PIECES.

Duluth, Sept. 18—The steamer Mowatt, which went ashore yesterday at Eagle River, is valued at $25,000. She is understood to be in a dangerous position, and if the northwest gale that blew here yesterday prevailed down the lake she has probably gone to pieces by this time. No particulars of the affair have been received.

WILL RESUME.

Wilmington, N. C., Sept. 18.—The Wilmington cotton mills, after a suspension of four weeks, will resume work Sept. 25.

John Kivel, of Thief River Falls, has taken the contract to carry the mail three times a week between Crookston and Thief River Falls on the days the train does not run. He will commence on Oct. 2nd. This will give us a daily mail the same as we had before the Great Northern favored us with a daily train.

The sudden death of Mrs. K. O. Gigstad last Friday evening was a shock to all who knew her. She had been sick for about a week but all thought that she was recovering. Mr. Gigstad is left with five small children to mourn the loss of wife and mother and the sympathy of all is extended to them in their bereavement. Mrs. Gigstad has been a resident here for the past eleven years and had won the esteem of a large circle of friends who followed all that was mortal to the grave last Monday. The interment was made in the Swedish Lutheran Cemetery.

New York, Sept. 10.—The recent financial disturbances were discussed from Rev. Tomas Dixon, Jr.'s pulpit today. He called the panic a senseless stampede and declared the cause of the trouble could properly be charged to capitlists and large money holders—"conspirators against the race." Said he:

"We have lost not one dollar of the real wealth of the nation. We are not today one cent poorer in that which constitutes the wealth of the people. Such a panic could have been produced only by human trickery and chicanery. That panic was manufactured to order. It was done with malice forethought and it has in it all the elements of the deed of Cain. There was a concerted action of a certain coterie of great money hucksters throughout the world. They began without cause save the secret design of conspirators to call in their loans, to refuse applications for money from the best security, and in every way to contract business. They issued a year ago certain secret financial bulletins to the lesser lights, giving them warning to follow in the steps of their masters.

"Their movement was against the money of America. They demanded the repeal of the silver purchase clause of our present law. And they demanded its unconditional repeal—that is that gold should for the time be only recognized as money. They forced the president of the United States to call congress together and recommend this.

There is one phase of the wheat market situation that the northwestern wheat combine ought to explain. Duluth wheat—The name our northwestern wheat is known by in England—is quoted there 3 shillings a quarter, or about 9 cents a bushel higher than no. 2 red western, which is Chicago's contract grade. The latter grade is habitually quoted 2 to 4 cents higher than the former, while it costs no more, often costs less to get wheat from Duluth to Liverpool than from Chicago. Now the question is: How can Chicago pay 3 to 4 cents a bushel more for wheat than the northwestern combine pays when it must sell it for 9 cents a bushel less? Is it not a conservative and reasonable assumption that the 12 to 18 cents discrepancy herewith referred to measures the size of the tribute paid by northwestern wheat growers to its wheat combine? When taking 40 cents a bushel for for wheat, suffering dockage and stealage galore, this is a good proposition to think about, to swear about and possibly to vote about a year hence.—Farm Stock and Home.

Crookston Times, East Grand Forks has commenced to get back to its old record and is rapidly transfering its population to the county jail. Five new boarders were sent over and placed in Sheriff Grundysen's care last week. They were, John Caroll found guilty of petty larceny in stealing a coat from Wm. Dahl and sentenced to 30 days. Chas Evers, for the larceny of a watch valued at $20 for 60 days; Barney Guea, for stealing a bottle of whiskey worth 25 cents will board with the county for 40 days; L. Herrick, arrested upon complaint of Mary Murphy charged with the forgery of a check for $50 on a Moorhead bank, was committed to await the action of the grand jury; George Miller, charged with an attempted assault upon a young lady, also held to the grand jury. This is a pretty good showing for one week, and if East Grand Forks continues on in the same line a week or two longer it will be necessary to build an addition to the new jail.

Thos. Wilson, a prominent lawyer at Winona, has served an injunction on the state to prevent it from proceeding with the construction of the proposed elevator at Duluth. The plaintiff is a Northfield man and the ground on which the injunction is brought, is that the constitution prohibits the making of any internal improvements, except where a special grant for the purpose is made and also prohibits the expenditure of money by the state for the benefit of a special class of citizens The state has already purchased ground for the construction of the elevator and let the contract for its building. It is expected the injunction will have to be decided by the supreme court, and will result in the elevator project being defeated for this year at least,—Crookston Times.

For the last three years the government Commissioner, Hon. Darr Hall has been engaged in removing the Chippewa Indians to the proposed new home on the White Earth Reservation. He has succeeded in removing 22 of the noble red men, a number of whom are reported to have gone back to their old homes. At this rate the cost of removing these Indians will run up into the millions of dollars and the job be completed in about a hundred years. This is on a par with the whole Indian management of the state for the last twenty-five years.—Lumberman.

E. T. Spafford & Co.

The editor of "Bradstreet's," in an article in the September Forum, says it is demonstrable that more than 95 per cent and perhaps as much as 98 per cent of the actual business of the country involving the transfer of products is done on credit. This is a startling statement, and if it is true it shows clearly why anything that unsettles confidence and produces a curtailment of credit paralyzes business. The volume of money afloat large as it appears in round figures, is but a drop in the bucket. When it is all in use it does not accomplish more than 5 per cent of the transfers. The other 95 per cent is accomplished by credit whose foundation is confidence.

This mode of doing business is all wrong. Such a superstructure of credit built upon so small a foundation of cash is like an inverted pyramid. It can be too easily toppeled over. What is needed to insure stability is a greater proportion of transactions should be on a cash basis. If the volume of cash is sufficient panics cannot be so frequent nor so severe. Panic can destroy credit and thus shrivel up business in twenty-four hours; but cannot destroy actual cash, although if the volume of cash is insufficient it can cause it to hide away in safety deposit vaults and old stockings.

The volume of circulating medium in this country is altogether too small. It is less than $25 per capita when it is all in use. It should be increased to $100 per capita and credit curtailed to a proportionate extent. Fifty per cent instead of 5 per cent of transactions should be based on actual cash. Until the monetary system of the country is thus enlarged in volume and made adequate to the wants of trade, our people will be cursed with periodical panics and "hard times" periods of greater or less duration.—Daily News.

HE RELENTED.

The Magic Word That Saved the Old Man's Reason.

Hezekiah Smith, the millionaire builder, contractor and real estate owner, was sitting at his desk. His dark, stern face from time to time writhed with an expression that bespoke agonized thought. It was evident that something terrible was preying on his mind. Presently his secretary entered and handed him a card which read:

C. CHOLMONDELEY SMYTHE.

"Smythe? Smythe?" muttered the old man, "I know no one of that name. But show him in."

A moment later Mr. C. Cholmondeley Smythe was ushered into the presence of his father. He sank languidly into a chair, remarking: "Deah me! What a dawid bore! Yeuah lowly man wouldn't believe I was yeuah son, and I had to send in me card."

His father [illegible] at him first with surprise [illegible]

"Well," [illegible] impatiently, for he was [illegible] upon the degeneracy of [illegible] composure, "what has brought you all the way from Fifth avenue [illegible]? Are you in debt again?"

"Oh, deah, no!" and the fragile exquisite made a deprecating gesture.

"Well, then, what is it?"

"The fact is, guivnoh, I'm going to get mawwied."

"But Henrietta is still in Vassar."

"Henwietta? Weally, I don't undehstand!"

The old man jumped up in a towering rage that towered more than Babel on the plain of Shinar. Bringing down his large gnarled fist on the desk, he yelled: "Have you dared to think of marrying any one but [illegible] the daughter of [illegible] the richest [illegible]? You [illegible]"

"The daughter of a [illegible]," sneered the son.

"Yes," roared the father, "and the son of a hod carrier."

They glared at each other in silence—silence thicker than the mortar Smith put into his contract houses.

"What is her name?" the father finally hissed.

"Miss Lovina Ch—"

"What's that name again?" he exclaimed, a flush of joyous excitement oozing through his rockline complexion.

"Lovina."

"Spell it!"

"L-o-v-i-n-a."

"With the accent on the second syllable?"

"Yes."

"Hurrah!" he yelled, fairly dancing for joy. [illegible]

At [illegible] Mr. Smythe [illegible] and [illegible] Mr. Smith's [illegible] reverie by inquiring:

"Then am I to undehstand that I have yeuah consent?"

"What's that? Oh, Heavens! Certainly! Go and marry her whenever you like. She has saved my reason."

"Sir?"

"You see, I was half crazy trying to think of a name for the new apartment house I have just built. Lovina will do to a T."

And as the son faded gently out of the room the old man whispered over the sweet name again and again and rubbed his huge, hard palms together till they gave forth a sound like that of the sand paper boards they manipulate in the wings when the pretty soubrette is dancing a double shuffle.—Life.

He Left.

A certain allopathic physician, not more than a thousand miles from a given point in the city of Detroit, has a daughter whose steady companion is a pronounced homeopath, and for reasons not at all professional the father doesn't admire his possible son-in-law, though the daughter does. Some time ago the old gentleman found the young man at his home, and thinking it a good time to settle matters he proceeded to speak his mind very freely to the youth.

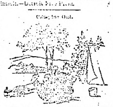
"Well, have you said all you wanted to say?" inquired the suitor when the father had made a series of uncomplimentary and [illegible] remarks.

"No, I haven't," exclaimed the allopath, [illegible]. "I want to say that my advice to you is to get out of this house at once and never come back again."

The young man braced up and smiled.

"Well," he responded, "you may go to Jericho with your advice. I'm a homeopath, I am, and I don't allow any allopath in existence to prescribe for me. Good evening," and the young man sat down so firmly that the old gentleman concluded he had better go himself, and left the house himself.—Detroit Free Press.

Case for Out.



Voice From Tent—Is that you, Bill? Bring in the whisky when you come. I left it standing by [illegible].—Life.

A Triumph of the [illegible]

Photographer—Try to look, madam, look as pleasant as you can! Try to think of something exhilarating.

Customer—Well, but what, I wonder?

Photographer—Consider, for instance, that you [illegible] only get to pay me [illegible] shillings per dozen [illegible], while my competitor over the way charges 9 shillings!—Tit-Bits.

It Didn't Work.

"What can I do for you?" he asked of the caller.

"I came to collect for the ventilating fan we put in for you."

"Oh—er—I see. I'm sorry, but we aren't cashing any drafts at present."—Washington Star.

Old Heads.

Visitor—How old are you, Molly?

Molly—I am going on 15 years.

"Is that so? I thought you were younger than that."

"Come, now, you are trying to flatter me for some purpose or other."—Texas Siftings.

Thought Well of Them.

"Now, Mrs. Branson," said the broker, how shall we invest this money for you?"

"I don't know," said the lady. "What do you think of these Fluctuating stocks? I understand a great deal of money is made in them."—Harper's Bazar.

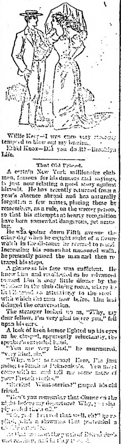
How He Corrected It.

"If you think you've got such a dead sure thing on that claim against me, why don't you sue me for it?" asked the man with the double chin.

"I could sue you and collect it easily enough, and you know it," replied the man with the bushy eyebrows, "and I would have done it long ago but for the reason that it would have brought your other creditors down on you like a thousand of brick. I don't want to break you."

"I—I'll pay it this afternoon, every cent," said the other, rubbing his jaw thoughtfully. "But that won't go with the next man that tries to work it on me, by George!"—Chicago Tribune.

Asking For Information.



Willie Keep—I was once very strongly tempted to blow out my brains.

Ethel Knox—Did you do it?—Brooklyn Life.

That Old Friend.

A certain New York millionaire clubman, famous for his dinners and sayings, is just now relating a good story against himself. He has recently returned from a year's absence abroad and has naturally forgotten a few names, placing these he remembers, as a rule, on the wrong person, so that his attempts at hearty recognition have been somewhat dangerous, yet amusing.

He was going down Fifth avenue the other day when he caught sight of a figure which in the distance he seemed to recall. Increasing his somewhat measured walk, he presently passed the man and then retraced his steps.

A glance at his face was sufficient. He knew him and recollected as he advanced toward him a cozy little dinner by the window in the club dining room, where he had listened so attentively to the stories with which the man now before him had deluged the conversation.

The stranger looked up as, "Why, my dear fellow, I'm very glad to see you," fell upon his ears.

A look of keen humor lighted up his eyes as he clasped, apparently reluctantly, the speaker's extended hand.

"You are very kind," he murmured, "very kind, sir."

"Why, what nonsense! Here, I'm just going to lunch at Delmonico's. You must come with me and tell me some more of your French stories."

"Stories! What stories?" gasped his old friend.

"Don't you remember that dinner on the night before my departure? Why, you simply [illegible] that off."

"Oh, yes! I [illegible] that well, eh?" he replied, with a slowness that portended a [illegible].

At that moment the path of Delmonico's was reached, and in they [illegible].

An hour was passed over a delightful lunch, whereat the multimillionaire related anecdotes of his year's travel.

The bill had just been presented and receipted as he said:

"I'm devilish sorry, you know, but I'm awfully bad at names. I've quite forgotten yours. I am Jack —— of C—— club."

"And I," responded his guest, "I'm Jennings, the C—— club's steward."—New York Herald.

Caught.

Dr. John Erskine, a well known Scottish divine, was remarkable for his simplicity of manner and gentle temper.

He returned so often from the pulpit minus his pocket handkerchief that Mrs. Erskine at last began to suspect that the handkerchiefs were stolen by some of the old women who lined the pulpit stairs. To both to balk and detect the culprit she sewed a corner of the handkerchief to one of the pockets of his coattails.

Half way up the stairs the good doctor felt a tug, whereupon he turned round and caught hold of the hand of the guilty old woman, saying, with great tenderness and simplicity:

"No' the day, honest woman; no' the day. Mrs. Erskine has sewed it in."—Spare Moments.

Making a Bargain.

Gus de Smith—Your charge for pulling that tooth is 50 cents?

Dr. Molaryanker—Yes, that's the regular price.

"Here is a dollar bill."

"I can't make the change. What do you say to pulling another tooth for the change?"

"No, I thank you."

"Well, suppose I pull two teeth for the 50 cents? You can't kick about that."—Texas Siftings.

Sensible.

Visitor—So you have discharged your girl, Mrs. Lovepeace?

Mrs. L.—Yes, I could not stand her any longer.

Visitor—When are you going to get another?

Mrs. L.—Oh, I shall take a few weeks' rest first.—Detroit Free Press.

Out of Sight.

"Is this the bureau of information?" said Mr. Meddergrass to the clerk at the World's fair grounds.

"Yes, ma'am."

"Then I wish you'd tell me where Silas is. I told that old man of mine he'd get lost, an now he's gone an done it."—Harper's Bazar.

Mr. Willus (who detests society)—You didn't care anything for company when I was courting you.

A LARGE DROP IN RATES TO THE WEST

The Great Northern inaugurated its new train service to the Pacific Coast on the 8th inst. With sweeping reductions in rates, amounting to 40 per cent in many cases. The rate from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Puget Sound was reduced First-class from $60.00 to [illegible], to Spokane from $50 to $30; and to Helena and Butte from $40 to $25, with corresponding reductions on second-class tickets both through rates applying proportionately to intermediate points. It is the purpose of the Great Northern to make rates to help the development of its territory. It is much the shortest line across the continent, was built on business principles, and at a cost of about one half of that of the older trans-continental lines, and is therefore prepared to correspondingly well by its territory and patrons in rates and accommodations.

"JACK OF ALL TRADES."

Antique Rubbish About Being "Master of None."

The boy of to-day, even while at school, has learned something of the trades, and as a result he has acquired a healthy disrespect for the traditions of the trades. For generations young men have been taught that the common trades are a deep mystery, initiation therein requiring long years of apprenticeship. The trade schools have shown that this is not so, and that all the more common handicrafts, bricklaying, paper hanging, plastering, simple carpentering, mason work, etc., are extremely simple, and that, with the usual allowance of American "gumption," a very fair degree of skill may be gained by any intelligent boy, under a good teacher, in a comparatively short time. Moreover, the boy to-day recognizes that the antique rubbish about the "jack of all trades good at none" is rubbish.

The American of the first 200 years of our history was in a dozen trades and master of all. He could swing an ax in the forest with extraordinary skill, and was mason, bricklayer, plasterer, gardener, fisherman, sailor and soldier at will. Three generations ago the fisher-farmers of Massachusetts bay had every man his tiny shoe shop in his yard. The fish scrap heap on the shore roads were pungent witnesses to the fact that the dwellers in the little "green-blinded houses" were farmers, fishermen and shoemakers, as the season served. They plowed their fields in May, and the bay in summer, and pounded the lapstone when fields and floods were frozen. They were masters of three trades and jacks at none, and could man a "Constitution," as 1812 demonstrated. To-day in many a rural village are native Americans good at a dozen jobs, from preaching a sermon to riding a mower—skilled, as a man should be, in many things.—Charles Barnard, in Social Economist.

A BRIDE'S QUEER MANIA.

She Stole a Babe and Claimed It as Her Own.

New York Sun Cable Correspondence: A peculiar case of kidnaping in a suburb of London has attracted much attention for the last few days. A young woman of sixteen years, three months married, met a nurse girl in charge of a year old infant belonging to a wealthy family. After admiring the child, she sent the girl on an errand. When the girl returned the baby and the young woman were gone.

The child wife took the baby home, cut off its hair and went to bed with it. When the husband, a boy of sixteen, returned, he found his wife in bed with the infant which she declared was their joint property. The boy was rather surprised to find himself a father, but did not know much about babies and believed it. He explained to the magistrate afterwards that he did not become suspicious till he found the baby had eight teeth.

The young wife's sister called the next day and was told the same story. She knew more about babies and finally carried it to the police station. The whole police force of the metropolis had been searching for the baby. It was returned unharmed to the distracted parents.

The young wife was arrested. She told the judge she did not know where she got the baby and supposed it was hers. Medical experts questioned her and reported her suffering from a peculiar form of epilepsy, with lapses of memory and not responsible. The judge discharged her.

PREHISTORIC MAN.

Two Distinct Races Once Inhabited This Continent.

A study of the remains of prehistoric man in North America leads one to the conclusion that there were two distinct races or types living on this continent, one belonging to the Pacific and the other to the Atlantic slope. The Rocky Mountain range was the boundary line between them as far south as the Rio Grande, Mexico and Central America belonging to the Pacific section.

Do not these facts indicate that our continent was originally peopled by two distinct streams of immigration, one to the Atlantic and the other to the Pacific coast? Cyrus Thomas argues in Science in favor of his view.

The idea was formerly current that America was settled originally from a single source, by Asiatics who came over by way of Bering Straits, but this is losing its hold on the minds of students. The very marked similarity between the ethnic types of the Pacific slope and those of the islands of the Pacific, renders the probability great that these two types are related and came from a common stock.

If this is so, then the races on the Atlantic slope probably came over from Europe by way of a land connection which formerly existed over the North Atlantic.

For His Boys.

In a paper read before the Iowa Bankers' association, Mr. W. H. M. Pusey related a characteristically "human" anecdote of President Lincoln. While in Mr. Pusey's office one day, Mr. Lincoln took out of his pocket an old document, and said:

"I wish you gentlemen would locate this land warrant for me. It is my pension obtained as captain in the Black Hawk war."

Mr. Pusey remonstrated with him for having kept it so long.

"You ought to have entered the warrant years ago," he said, "when it could have been placed in land further east."

"Yes, I know it," answered Mr. Lincoln, "but I have kept it as a souvenir of the war, and to show Bob and Tad that I have been a soldier."

LORENA.

How it had all come about I could not say. But there I stood before my glass, looking at a bride I hardly knew; for I had not been used to such fine clothes as she wore, though I was called the prettiest girl in Los Angles.

I did not think myself that, remember. I had been glad when Paolo thought me fair, for I loved him. But Paolo was a sailor, and had to leave me now and then. With him all the joy of my life used to depart, and only returned when he came home again from one of those long voyages, with coral and shells and bright birds and other presents of the sort that sailors bring to those who stay at home. These he gave mostly to my aunt, Donna Maria, a Spanish woman, who spoke of herself as an unhappy exile, and grew fat on her sorrows.

She made plenty of money in her little restaurant, where she sold eatables of all sorts—coffee, omelets, and all kinds of corn-meal dishes of her own invention. People came to eat there, or took the things away in baskets; she did not care, so that they paid her her price.

At one side of the wide room was what might be called an extra department, where I stood behind a counter and sold cigarettes—which women bought as often as men—beads of the cheapest sort of amber, and a sort of warm-tinted powder, which gave a mysterious look to the dusky faces of the black-eyed women who used it.

Sometimes I would light a cigarette for some gay youth or gallant elderly man, "to perfume it," as they used to say. But my aunt's eye was always on me; I was never left alone.

"You must never compromise yourself," my aunt would say, "for I wish you to make a good match."

When Paolo began to court me she was angry, and would have turned him away, but that I said to her:

"If Paolo is driven from the door I leave you."

She knew I meant it, and had to accept the situation.

I was Paolo's betrothed, and though he was now only a sailor, he vowed to be captain and owner of a vessel soon—to make himself rich for my sake.

Oh, how happy I was in his love! how bright and glad the future looked! The skies of my life were so bright that I could not dream that clouds would ever come.

The first one gathered on the day he told me he was about to go upon a long voyage—to be gone two years.

"I shall make money. I shall come home to marry you, Lorena," he said.

But the cruel parting for such a long time seemed very terrible to me. When he sailed all was very dark, but I counted the days and weeks and months, and now and then I got a letter. It was on these letters that I lived, when with a strut and a stride, a hat on one side of his head, and a cloak tossed over his shoulder, Don Pietro walked into our place.

On the first day he gave me a look; on the next a word. Then he began to tell my aunt how rich he was—how great, how wonderful a man altogether.

My aunt repeated all that he said.

"What is that to me?" I used to answer. "I hope he pays you for the time he occupies in boasting."

After a while she told me that he wanted to marry me, for I was the most beautiful girl he had ever seen.

"Tell him I am betrothed already," I said, "and that I will never marry any one but my Paolo while he lives."

At that time I had just had a letter from Paolo, and it lay against my heart as I spoke; but from that day no other came.

I waited and waited.

Don Pietro stared at me over the counter, whispered praises in my ears, told me of his possessions, his wealth, his grandeur, and in spite of glances that were almost insults, words that turned his lips pale.

I was wild with anxiety, and it grew greater and greater, and one day a sailor, with great earrings in his ears, walked into the shop.

"Where can I find the Senorita Lorena?" he asked.

My aunt pointed to me.

He bowed and his face grew grave.

"Senorita, forgive me for bringing bad news," he said. "I cannot help it. I vowed a vow to a dying man. I have come a long way to keep my promise, made on an open raft, on a raging sea. The Santa Estella had been wrecked. Some of us clung together on this raft. It was midnight. The man next to me put his lips to my ear. 'I grow faint,' he said. 'I am dying. If you are saved, swear to go to Los Angeles, to the shop of Donna Maria, and tell her niece, Lorena, how Paolo died, and that his last thought was for her.' 'I swear,' I shouted.

"At day-break, I was alone on the raft. I have said all."

I dropped to the floor as he spoke, and for hours knew no more.

And now all hope was gone, life was an empty blank to me. Yet still Don Pietro came to the shop, still he wooed me in spite of my repulses.

My aunt pleaded with me, and I was weak with woe; so, when a year had passed, I said to her one day:

"Do with me what you will. Tell Don Pietro that I hate him, but will marry him if he will be satisfied with hate."

The don's answer was:

"Lorena's hate is better than the love of any other, I only ask her to marry me."

Then he gave my aunt much satin and costly lace in which to deck me, and here I stood before the glass.

It made me no more wretched—utter misery can fall no deeper.

I had said to myself:

"My aunt shall have the gold the don has promised her for arranging this marriage, and before his lips touch mine, I will drive a dagger to my heart. So she will be content, and the angels will forgive me and bear me to my Paolo in heaven."

That was a happy thought. I smiled at the bride in my mirror, and let them lead me away.

In that town, the procession of the bride to church was a great affair. My aunt, in stiff black silk and a lace mantilla, led; a train of girls followed, some carrying my veil.

We were to meet the bridegroom at the altar. Banners fluttered, flowers were thrown.

We approached the church steps, and suddenly I saw one standing there—a sailor in seaman's costume—Paolo! and no other. Paolo with the glow of health upon his cheek, and the light of love in his eyes.

He had only paused to see the bride. But when he recognized me his cheek grew white, despair gleamed in his eyes, and he started forward as if to clutch me.

"My Lorena!" he cried.

"Back!" cried my aunt. "Dare not to touch her. She is the bride of a great gentleman, who now awaits her in the church. The holy priest also is waiting. Come, Lorena, come."

But I cried out to him:

"Listen, Paolo. I was true to you; but, when your ship was wrecked, your shipmate came and told me that you were dead, and sent adieu to me before you went down into the water."

"My ship was never wrecked," he said. "They told you lies."

"It is too late to talk of that," said my aunt, dragging me into the church; but I called back:

"Come and see me married, for old time's sake, Paolo!" and he replied:

"I will. And when you have said yes, Lorena, I will kill myself!"

A moment later Don Pietro, in all his bravery, met us, and we stood before the priest. I listened to the words he said until he asked me if I would take Pietro to be my wedded husband; then I cried out in a loud voice:

"No, no, no—never! Oh, holy father, save me from him! I hate him, and he has lied to me, and sent one to tell me my betrothed husband was dead. He stands there—Paolo, whom you know well, just returned from the sea to claim his bride!"

Now my aunt screamed out; now wicked words fell from Don Pietro's tongue; now Paolo rushed to the altar and knelt beside me while I knelt at the good father's feet.

Pietro would have killed him, but for the cross the priest held above up both. He commanded the angry pair to leave the church, and that there should be silence in the crowd, and then married me to Paolo, so that those whom God had joined man might not put assunder.

Donna Maria was a furious woman that day, but on the next when armed men rode into town to arrest the man who had called himself Don Pietro, who was no Spanish grandee, as he pretended to be, but a robber and assassin, whose wealth was all acquired by crime, she thanked heaven for preserving me from the fate of being his wife, and gladly forgave me and my Paolo, and we were so happy that we also forgave her freely.

GOOD OLD TUNES.

Origin of Old Hundred, God Save the King, Yankee Doodle, and Others.

"Old Hundred" has been variously ascribed to Dr. Martin Luther, Dr. John Dowland and William Franck. Dr. Lowell Mason wrote quite a treatise on the old tune in 1853, saying emphatically that it was written by Guillaume (William) Franck (1543). But later musical historians and antiquarians who have investigated more closely say it was composed by Louis Bourgeois (born about 1500 and died about 1572—some say in the massacre of St. Bartholomew), of France, 1551-2.

The old tune, "God Save the King," or "America," so universally sung to "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," was undoubtedly composed by Dr. John Bull (1562-1628), music teacher to Queen Elizabeth, about 1600.

The tune of "Yankee Doodle" has had seven or eight treatises written upon it in the last thirty years, ascribing it to various dates and origins, even back to the Netherlands and the days of Cromwell and the Charleses. Dr. Geo. Grove of London, Eng., author of the "Dictionary of Music and Musicians," has investigated thoroughly the various musical libraries and the British Museum, in England, finding no trace of it whatever, thus exploding all the mystical, traditional and apocryphal accounts thereof. But "Yankee Doodle" has an origin, and has a history. It was written by Dr. Richard Schuchburg (whose commission dates 1737), in the French and Indian war of 1755 under Gen. Jeffrey Amherst, and was intended as a "take off" on the "rag, tag and bobtail" recruits of the colonies that came into the army. It "took" so well, however, that the Americans have ever adopted it, and would not part with it for anything. The first words,

Father and I went down to camp, were in the Boston Journal, 1768, and the first record of the tune is in Arnold's "Two to One," 1784; so that "Yankee Doodle," although written by a British surgeon, is really American.

The tune, "Star Spangled Banner," is an adaptation of "Anacreon in Heaven," composed by Dr. Samuel Arnold (1739-1802), of England, 1770.

"Hail Columbia," or the "President's March," was by Prof. Phylas of Philadelphia, 1739.

Portuguese Hymn, or "Adeste Fideles," by English musicians, is ascribed to John Reading. There were three of the name. The first died in 1692, the second one about 1720 and the third (1677-1764) is the reputed author of "Adeste Fideles." But Herbert P. Main of New York, a pretty thorough musical antiquarian, says the tune cannot be found as in existence previous to 1790. He says the grand old tune was composed and written by Marcantonio Simoe (1762-1830), an Italian who composed and wrote much for the stage eighty or ninety years ago, in 1792-93. He wrote under the assumed name of "Portogallo."—Boston Transcript.

Significant.

Dr. Edward Payson, the beloved minister of a church in Portland in the first part of our century, was a preacher who could present the truth entrusted to him with a wise skill and tenderness of feeling calculated to disarm the most prejudiced foe.

Even in administering a rebuke he was ever tactful and gentle, and one instance of such care is often related of him.

"What makes you blush so?" said a reckless fellow in the stage to a plain country girl who was receiving the mail bag at the postoffice from the hand of the driver. "What makes you blush so, my dear?"

Dr. Payson, who sat near him, and had been until this moment unobserved, gave the girl no time to answer.

"Perhaps," he said, gently, "it is because some one spoke rudely to her when the stage was along here the last time."

Only Cholerine

The French are a valient people, but they are also a very cautious people. The two opposite elements in their character are neatly "taken off" in one of their own journals.

A disease resembling cholera, and called "cholerine," has appeared at Marseilles. Dr. Cassoulet, a local practitioner, is seen packing his trunk to depart.

"Going away, doctor?" he is asked.

"Yes. You see, if it were the true cholera, the genuine, the terrible Asiatic article, I should not budge an inch. I should remain firmly at my post. But as it is only cholerine, the simple cholerine, I shall go!"

BIG FIRES IN THE SUN.

Disturbances Which Materially Affected the Weather on This Planet Recently.

Tremendous fires on the sun's surface, exceeding in size and intensity anything measurable by human understanding, recently drew the attention of all astronomers. This description of the wonderful solar disturbances was given to a Philadelphia Record man by Astronomer Garrett P. Serviss:

"A stupendous group of black spots easily visible to the naked eye when the latter is protected by a dark glass, was on the meridian of the sun. No less than twelve smaller groups of spots were visible on the disc at the same time, so that the appearance of the sun's face was most extraordinary when viewed with a telescope. The large group is in the southern hemisphere, and is probably the reappearance of a huge spot seen at previous times. It showed two main centers of activity, and the area of the solar surface covered by it was not less than 3,000,000,000 square miles. The western nucleus of the group presented a vast circular pool, the center of which was as black as ink. The diameter of the black center was not less than 14,000 miles, but its outlines were broken by fiery bridges projecting into and across it. One of these, whose length could not have been less than 10,000 miles, was seemingly split in two from end to end, while another vast curving line of flame ran in and across the pit to join it. The eastern nucleus was still larger, and showed a marvelous mass of black chasm crossed and divided in every direction by blazing tongues and bridges. Around the edges of the great group eruptions of metallic vapor were evidently taking place, lifting masses of blazing matter to the height of many thousand miles. Changes in the details of some of the spots indicated that the most tremendous forces were at work. A group of spots at once so large and so complex as this has very seldom been seen upon the sun. It is not improbable that it is situated at or near the same point on the sun where the huge spot of February, 1892, appeared, which was accompanied by a widespread magnetic storm and a gorgeous red aurora. According to our theory of the relation of sun spots to terrestrial magnetism, this group should have produced its greatest effect upon the earth several days ago, when it was just coming around the eastern edge of the disk; but, according to another theory, its maximum effect is due now, when it is near the solar meridian. If auroras are not seen to-night in places where the sky is clear it will be well to look for them during the coming few days, because, although the great group is now past the center, yet other groups which may develop much activity are just coming around the eastern edge of the sun."

HIS BLUFF FAILED.

A Woman Who Was Not to Be Bulldozed Out of Her Present.

It was late when Mr. Blobbs got up yesterday morning, and he hustled around his room like a wild man. When it came time to put on his trousers he plunged into a wardrobe and pulled down all the garments that were on the hooks. Then he fell on his knees and pawed the pile over nervously, says the Buffalo Express. He handled every garment twice, and did not find what he wanted. He swore three separate and distinct oaths and then shouted, "Mary!"

There was no reply. Blobbs poked his head out of the door and yelled again, "Mary!"

"What is it, dear?" asked some one at the rear end of the flat.

"Come here, and get a move on, too."

Mrs. Blobbs came into the room. Her face was flushed from breakfast preparations, and there was some soot on her nose. "What do you want?" she asked.

"Where's them gray pants of mine?"

"What gray pants?"

"Them gray ones that's been hanging in that closet for two months."

"Aren't they in there?"

"No, they ain't in there. Now, what have you done with them?"

"Were they gray, with a little red stripe in them?"

"You know well enough that they were. Don't stand there chewing about them any longer. Where are they?"

"Gray ones with red stripes," mused Mrs. Blobbs. "I'm sure I don't know. Oh, yes, I do, too; I traded them off to a man for a lovely kettle."

"You what?" gasped Blobbs.

"Traded them for a kettle. You didn't want them, did you?"

Mr. Blobbs was so mad that he frothed at the mouth. He raved and shouted around the room. He kept this up for ten minutes. Then he saw that Mrs. Blobbs didn't care, and he tried other tactics. "I'm sorry you sold them," he said, "not because I needed them especially, but because you did yourself an injury."

"How so?" asked Mrs. Blobbs, interestedly.

"Why, I had $10 in one of the pockets of those pants that I was going to use to get you a birthday present next week. I kept it there so I would have no opportunity to spend it. Now, aren't you sorry you sold the pants?"

"Oh, I don't know," replied Mrs. Blobbs, sweetly, for she saw through the scheme immediately. "You see, I went through the pockets and found the money. I went shopping with it yesterday."

Do you wonder that Blobbs could not eat his breakfast?

Horrors of a Fireroom at Sea.

Air is supplied to the firerooms of ocean steamships through a ventilator on deck, which is supposed to be turned to face the direction of the wind. Sometimes this turning is neglected. Then ensues a terrible state of things down below in the already overheated fireroom. The air becomes stifling, the unfortunate stokers gasping in vain for a breath of fresh air. The smell of the oil and the abominable odor of the bilge water are enough to knock out the strongest man. No pen can describe the horrors of life in the fireroom during these times, and the wonder is that scores of the stokers do not drop off instead of the few that are reported. The coal trimmers and coal passers are just as badly off as the stokers, having to breathe the poisonous atmosphere. Another thing which makes the life of a stoker a very unhappy one is the fact that the floor of the fireroom on which he stands is always hot. The floor, which is composed of steel plates, retains the heat, and, as a consequence, blisters the feet of the stokers, who can scarcely stand up at times, they are so much tortured in this respect.—New York Morning Journal.

Never buy whiskey for medicinal purposes unless you know the bottlers of it to be reliable, as most whiskies sold under celebrated names are spurious, cheap articles, whose bottlers cannot afford to have their names on the labels.

Uncle Sam's Monogram Whiskey is bottled by the oldest and largest firm in the Liquor line in the Northwest and the favor with which it has been received is the best proof of its superior quality. Ask your druggist or retail dealer for it.

Honest Praise.

Jenny Lind's judgment of books, though undirected by anything like training, showed independence and penetration. A writer in the Century says that she was a devoted admirer of Carlyle's writings, and that the last book she read before her death was Mr. Norton's volumes of the correspondence between Carlyle and Emerson.

No doubt her admiration for the great denouncer of shams was largely due to the intense sincerity of her own character, which made it impossible for her to tolerate even those slight deviations from strict truthfulness which are seldom taken seriously, but are looked upon as the accepted forms of good society.

One day, many years after her marriage, when she was staying with a friend not far from Peterborough, she attended a service in the cathedral.

The dean, who, probably without much critical musical judgment, thought the singing quite perfect, was rash enough to ask her how she liked his choir.

She looked at him with a quiet smile, and replied, "Oh, Mr. Dean, your cathedral is indeed most beautiful."

Light Diffusers.

Much attention is now being directed to the securing of the maximum efficiency of the electric light, not only in projectors but in domestic lighting. A recent suggestion that glass should be made for arc lanterns corrugated on both sides, serves to recall the fact that in 1870 Breguet supplied thirty large lamps for the Havre harbor works. At first the lantern glass was painted white, but as this obscured the light too much, the glass was replaced by two sheets of the ordinary corrugated glass of commerce, placed with the corrugations at right angles. This had the desired effect, the lantern became luminous over the whole surface, and the deep shadows were softened.

KNOWLEDGE
Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

Gov. Nelson has appointed Robert Jamison as judge of the Fourth judicial district to succeed Judge Hooker, deceased.

A Minneapolis man accused of theft was arrested at Perham, escaped and committed suicide rather than be recaptured by a posse.

Fire damaged M. Frankovitz's hardware store at Fergus Falls $3,000. The Syndicate Insurance company of Minneapolis has a $500 policy on it, and it is fully insured.

Hans Peterson of Mendota, for assaulting his eleven-year-old daughter, was sentenced by Justice Johnson at Hastings to ninety days in jail. The complainant was R. A. Hoyt, secretary of the Humane society, St. Paul.

John Alexander, town of Farley, was found dead in his wagon. He had been to Warren and got drunk. He came home and did not want to go into the house, so he slept in his wagon and died from exposure.

Grace Chapman, the eleven-year-old daughter of a farmer living near Echo, was accidentally shot by a young man. He took a loaded musket from the house to kill polecats in the field, not knowing there was a cap on the gun. The whole charge entered the body of the girl. The doctor says the wound will prove fatal. She is in an unconscious condition.

Annie, the twelve-year-old daughter of Hugh Krucke, a herder near Duluth, was shot and dangerously wounded by Jergan Jeronimus. The two men had a quarrel some days ago, which led to the shooting. Two shots were fired from a window at Krucke by Jeronimus. The second shot struck the girl in the abdomen. Her recovery is doubtful. The perpetrator of the deed, a cigar maker, has taken to the woods. A posse has been organized to attempt his capture.

Friday, Sept. 22.

A flowing well, the water of which rises ten feet above the ground, and which, when analyzed, was shown to have mineral properties and to be of great medicinal value, has been put down on the property of O. L. Dudley in the heart of the village of Buffalo.

Cunningham, who so cleverly represented himself to be an auditor of the American Express company, and secured over $200 from agents in the vicinity of Winona, has been arrested at Lyle, where he tried to work the same game. At that place he had secured a partner, who was going to check up the freight business at the same time.

Between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning Charles Reclunks, living in Minneapolis, was shot by a highwayman and robbed. There were four in the party. They came in with a large gang of tramps on a Northern Pacific freight from the harvest fields of North Dakota. While Reclunks was walking toward home the four men approached and fired, one ball taking effect in the thigh. He fell and his assailants proceeded to maltreat him brutally. After taking $17, all that he had, from his pockets, they fled.

Judge Dickinson, of the supreme court, resigns, and Hon. Daniel Buck is appointed to fill the unexpired term.

Burglars went through C. E. Bordy's hardware store at Eyota, securing a large quantity of cutlery, revolvers and silverware. No clue.

Sparks from an engine burned a setting of wheat stacks of C. M. Bourden near Red Lake Falls. The separator was badly damaged.

An attempt was made by two men to rob the Northern Pacific depot at Hawley by hiding in the depot and slugging the clerk. Their scheme was foiled by the timely arrival of a citizen, who knocked one robber down, secured him and placed him in the jail. The other one got away.

A sneak thief stole a pair of trousers from the room of James Quinlivan, a hotel and restaurant man at St. Cloud, and in the pockets of which there was $1,170. He gained an entrance through a rear window. The man robbed had the money for the purpose of cashing railroad checks. The police have a clue.

A sad case of brutality has come to light near the village of Morgan. There was a misunderstanding between Robert Pfile and his wife, she getting the worst of it. Mrs. Pfile walked seven miles to the village with blood flowing from her mouth and ear. Pfile was found guilty of assault and battery. It will be some time before he can again abuse his wife.

Rough on the Infant.

"Mr. Scribbler, have you seen anything of the baby?" asked a distracted woman about noon last Thursday, as the furniture was being placed in the van for removal.

"No. How'n thunder can I take care of a baby and see that this crockery is put in the warehouse van without being smashed to flinders?"

"But I'm sure I hear the darling crying somewhere. Are you sure that she is not in the clothes basket with the saucepans."

"No, she ain't. How d'you s'pose she'd get in there?"

"But I hear her as plain as can be. Why, Peter, I do believe she's in this roll of carpet!"

It was true. The baby had been left in the middle of the sitting-room floor, and the men who took up the carpet tossed a breadth over her without observing her, rolled her up in it, and stood the carpet up in the hall. The child when rescued was punctured here and there with rusty tacks, and its mouth was partly stuffed with carpet dust, but otherwise it was quite hearty. —Tit Bits.

FIFTY THIRD CONGRESS.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SPECIAL SESSION OF CONGRESS.

Condensed Record of the Business Being Transacted by our National Law-makers—Routine Report Day by Day.

Washington, Sept. 19.—The attendance in the senate was a small one. Mr. Stewart (Rep. Nev.) gave notice that he would at the earliest possible opportunity offer an amendment to the silver bill inviting Mexico and the South and Central American republics to join the United States in a conference for the purpose of adopting a common silver dollar on less than 383.16 grains. The senate then went into executive session. After remaining in executive session but a few minutes the Peffer resolution to investigate train robberies was put before the senate, but without disposing of it the senate in a body, preceded by the vice president and by the officers of that body, left the chamber in order to participate in the ceremonies attending the anniversary of the laying of the capitol cornerstone.

There were only 125 members present when the house met at 1:45 p. m. Immediately after the reading of the journal and prayer by the chaplain the house proceeded in a body to the stand where the cornerstone centennial was being celebrated.

Washington, Sept. 20.—The financial situation in the United States senate has reached a critical stage. Mr. Voorhees, leader of the repeal forces, after a sensational denunciation of the New York bankers and a defiance to the press that has been criticising his actions and questioning his motives, demanded that the minority senators name a date for a final vote, and Mr. Dubois of Idaho met the demand by a positive declaration that the anti-repeal men would oppose the passage of the repeal bill by availing themselves of every advantage afforded them under the rules and usages of the senate. Voorhees retaliated by giving notice that he would to-morrow move for longer and more nearly continuous session, and the financial situation in the senate now appears to have resolved itself into a mere question of endurance. Immediately after the assembling of the senate the repeal bill was taken up and Mr. Voorhees once more attempted to obtain an agreement as to when a vote should be taken. He reviewed the history of the rules of the senate from its creation, showing that for seventeen years from 1798 the senate had among its rules the provision for the previous question. It was tried fully, and in 1800, when Thomas Jefferson was president, it was deliberately abandoned and never claimed or admitted again. "I am now arraigned," said Mr. Voorhees, "before public opinion for not terminating this debate. As well might I be arraigned for not terminating the tide of the ocean or the northwest winds. For eighty-seven years this body has been a law sufficient unto itself. It has never been found wanting in peace or war, so that the criticisms of a certain class will fall as harmless on this body as they fall upon me." Mr. Platt gave notice of a closure resolution. Discussion of the repeal bill was then resumed, and Mr. Mills addressed the senate.

After an objection (in the house) was made to the resolution offered by Mr. Flinn of Oklahoma calling on the secretary of war for information relative to the shooting of settlers on the Cherokee strip by United States soldiers, the fight was resumed over the federal election bill, and the ayes and nays were ordered on Mr. Burrows' old motion to dispense with the call of committees. The Democrats came within five of a quorum, securing 173 votes, but as a miss is as good as a mile, the filibustering continued. A Democratic caucus convened immediately after the house adjourned at which it was decided to push the bill to a vote.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Victory finally crowned the efforts of the Democrats in the house, but the battle to secure the report on the Tucker bill repealing the federal election laws was begun five days ago, was only won by the vigorous application of the party lash, supplemented by an order from the committee on rules. Even then it required six hours of hard fighting before the stubborn minority could be defeated. Every expedient that skillful parliamentary maneuvering could devise was resorted to by ex-Speaker Reed, who stood in the breach all day, directing the movements of the minority. The task was hopeless, however, as long as the Democratic quorum, which appeared for the first time, held. Once only did the quorum break down. But on the next roll call it reappeared and the ground that had been lost was quickly regained. The Republicans took their medicine with fairly good grace, when at last the fight was over the report on the Tucker bill was presented and with it an application from the committee reporting it asking for a special order for its consideration.

After the routine morning business in the senate there was a conflict between Mr. Voorhees and Mr. Platt (Rep. Conn.) as to the right of the floor. Mr. Platt was given the opportunity of stating that, as the senator from Mississippi (Mr. George) desired to address the senate early to-day, he (Mr. Platt) would not to-day introduce the resolution of which he had given notice yesterday, but would do so at some future time. Mr. George then began his speech.

Washington, Sept. 22.—In the senate Mr. Platt (Rep. Conn.) offered the resolution for a closure, of which he gave notice last Tuesday. The discussion on Mr. Platt's closure rule was brief and closed by letting the matter go over till to-morrow, when Mr. Teller is to speak against it. Mr. Platt was complimented by Mr. Voorhees for his clear and lucid statement of the situation. Substitutes for the resolution were suggested by Mr. Hoar (Rep. Mass.) and Mr. Hill (Dem. N. Y.). A strong argument in favor of the closure rule was made by Mr. Lodge (Rep. Mass.) although he recognized the fact that the adoption of the rule would be made use of to pass measures which he considered worse than the Sherman act—that is, a new tariff bill and a bill to repeal the election laws. The repeal bill was then taken up and Mr. White of California addressed the senate, claiming that there were other causes for the financial panic besides the Sherman act.

There were many empty seats in the house. Indeed there were not more than 100 members present when the speaker's gavel called the house to order. After a short passage between Mr. Reed (Rep. Me.) and the speaker relative to the journal, the approval of the latter was deferred, and Mr. Catchings presented the report of the rules committee, providing for taking up the election law repeal bill on Sept. 26, and a final vote on Oct. 10. The ayes and nays were called on ordering the previous question and it was ordered—175 to 4. The house then proceeded to vote on the report of the committee on rules. The report was adopted—ayes, 170; nays, 3. The house then took up and discussed the report of the committee on accounts.

Washington, Sept. 23.—After a very short routine morning business session the cloture resolution was laid before the senate and Mr. Wolcott (Rep., Col.) took the floor and made a statement. Although he said that he would vote against it, he declared that no factious opposition would be made to it, and that a vote upon it could be reached much sooner than a vote upon the repeal could be. If the senate desired a vote on the cloture resolution, it could have it without much debate. He would not interpose the slightest objection to a full and fair and free vote upon it. He would be content himself with voting against it. If there was a failure to press it to a vote, then criticism on the senator's opposition would have to cease. The debate on the repeal bill could be stifled by the cloture rule, but it could not be stifled otherwise. In his own opinion, however, cloture was not necessary, because there had been no factious delay. Mr. Teller (Rep., Col.) followed. Mr. Teller closed his speech with the earnest declaration that he would resist, by every method, obstructive and otherwise, the adoption of a rule in the senate which would limit or restrict debate. The resolution then went over until to-day, when Mr. Turpie (Dem., Ind.) is to speak upon it. The repeal bill was then taken up and Mr. George (Dem., Miss.) continued the speech against it which he began on Wednesday. He was followed by Senator Hansbrough (Rep., N. D.). The senate then adjourned.

No business of importance was transacted in the house and there was an entire absence of the excitement that has prevailed for the past few days.

Washington, Sept. 25.—The senate will again this week prove its claim to be called a deliberative body. The week will be given up entirely to speechmaking unless the unexpected should happen. The agreement for sessions beginning at 11 and closing at 6, announced by Mr. Voorhees Friday, will take effect to-day and is to continue during the entire week, if no longer. It is understood that while this truce remains there is to be no effort, as on Thursday, to force a vote on the repeal bill by sudden tactics. In view of this circumstance and of the additional fact that silver men are still resolute there is no chance for a material change of programme unless it should come through a compromise. There is a small storm cloud in the horizon for to-day in the shape of Senator Stewart's resolution concerning the duties of the various branches of the government. It is understood to be the intention of the Nevada senator to arraign the president for his alleged interference with congressional duties. Other senators have intimated during the present session that they had opinions upon this question. If they should desire to express themselves more fully than they have done the Stewart resolution will afford the opportunity and may provoke some sharp rejoinders.

The house will devote its entire attention for the week, excepting to-day, to the Tucker bill for the repeal of the federal election laws. The debate will run according to the special order adopted on Friday throughout this week and next and until Tuesday, Oct. 8, of the week following. Mr. Tucker of Virginia will have charge of the debate on the Democratic side and Mr. Johnson of North Dakota on the Republican side. It is probable that the debate will be of an exceedingly lively character. The reconstruction period will be lived over again, and Tammany and John S. Davenport will cut a prominent figure.

WOOLLEY DENIES.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—"I shall not let this disturb me at all, and shall be doing my work when the devil has caught the man who instigated the charge," said John G. Woolley, the temperance speaker, referring to a dispatch from St. Paul which said he had been accused of maladministration of charity funds intrusted to him. "It all comes from a personal enemy who has been trying to injure me for months," continued Mr. Woolley, "and this same man has endeavored to secure the publication of this slander in almost every Western newspaper. There is absolutely no truth in it. The Rest Island scheme is managed by an association, and the $14,000 devoted to the purchase of the property was well expended, and the real estate is not in my wife's name. No man can truthfully say that there has been any mismanagement of trust funds, and this secret attack is hardly worth any notice. No suits have been instituted against me in St. Paul so far as I have heard."

BOLD ANARCHISTS.

New York, Sept. 25.—Naturally all this hubbub about anarchists and their threats to force capitalists to disgorge hoarded millions has disturbed the money kings of New York just a little. The condition of the masses is discussed oftener in the millionaires' clubs, and the situation reviewed and the social problem solved from the standpoint of the man of millions. But while the moneyed men of New York will tell you that they have not the slightest fear of danger to person or property from the alleged great army of hungry men in the slums of New York, they will admit that they have taken precautions. One of the first discoveries made by a reporter was that Collis P. Huntington, the railroad magnate, and Cornelius Vanderbilt had been notified quite recently by an alleged anarchist that their new palaces on Fifth avenue would shortly be blown skyward by that pet of the anarchist, the dynamite bomb. At least 500 new watchmen have secured employment since the anarchists began their recent noisy meetings on the East side.

MITCHELL WILL FIGHT.

New York, Sept. 25.—At the Hoffman house Charles Mitchell signed articles of agreement with the Coney Island Athletic club to box James J. Corbett for the championship of the world and a purse of $40,000 on or about Dec. 18 next. The articles will be taken by Judge Newton to Asbury Park to-morrow. Corbett is training there. Corbett's signature will then be attached to the articles.

REDS THROW SOME BOMBS

AN ANARCHIST ATTEMPTS TO MURDER GEN. CAMPOS.

Two Bombs Thrown at the General During a Review of Troops—The General and Several Others Injured and One Man Is Killed.

Barcelona, Sept. 25.—A tremendous sensation was caused here yesterday by an attempt to murder Gen. Martinez Campos, the famous Spanish commander, ex-president of the council, and the man who made the military pronunciamento which gave the throne of Spain to Alfonso II. Gen. Martinez Campos was present at a review of the troops of this district, and surrounded by a brilliant staff he watched the maneuvers, and seemed highly pleased with the appearance of the troops. At any rate, he was laughing and chatting with Gen. Castelloi, chief-of-the-staff, and so doing he rode to the reviewing point and the march past commenced. The troops had already commenced the march past when a wild, excited looking man was noticed to be pushing his way through the crowds nearest to the staff of the general. At first it was imagined that the man was only an individual who, carried away by the excitement of the moment, was rudely pushing himself forward. Several people remonstrated with this man, but he paid no attention to anybody around him, while intently watching Gen. Martinez Campos. When the actions of the wild looking man began to attract the attention of the staff, he was within a few yards of the general. Suddenly the man pulled what appeared to be a ball from the right hand pocket of his trousers and threw it at Gen. Campos. A terrific explosion followed. Before the report had died away, and while the people were too petrified to move, the man quickly took a second of the strange balls from the inside pocket of his coat and hurled it at the general, who was then prostrated upon the ground. Happily a man in the crowd struck the bomb thrower's arm just as the second deadly missile was thrown, and while it exploded among the staff officers, it did not fall close to Gen. Martinez Campos. Then the man who had thrown the bombs was seized and thrown to the ground, half a dozen people holding him down, until the staff officers crowded around the prostrate form of the great general. Gen. Campos was injured severely, but ordered the review to proceed. There were several persons in the crowd who were injured severely by fragments of the bomb. In addition, Generals Bustos and Mollus were also wounded, and a civic guard standing near Gen. Martinez Campos was instantly killed. The name of the bomb thrower has been ascertained to be Pallas. He is known as a notorious anarchist, and when questioned concerning his crime, defiantly admitted that he intended to kill Gen. Martinez Campos and his staff. The anarchist will probably be tried by court martial, and may be shot within twenty-four hours.

RIOT IN BROOKLYN.

New York, Sept. 25.—Brooklyn streets were the scene of a bloody riot that lasted nearly three-quarters of an hour, in which 130 Italian laborers, 78 Irish laborers and 75 policemen participated. Many of the fighters were badly injured. During the last week the Brooklyn city railway has been working night and day to complete the trolley system in Sands street and Flushing avenue. A row started between an Italian and an Irish foreman. This led to a battle, both gangs taking sides in the melee. The men were armed with axes, spades, iron rivets and pickaxes. In a moment the whole neighborhood was in an uproar. Bricks were thrown which smashed windows and doors. There is a large Italian population in this section, and the Italian combatants receiver reinforcements. Three of the Italians rushed into the hallway of Charles Marler's house at the corner of Navy and Nassau streets. All carried axes. They were met by Mr. Marler, who tried to prevent their entrance. They knocked him down and ran up to the roof. They demolished the chimney and hurled the bricks at their antagonists. The latter fell back towards Sands street. The Italians followed, and near the corner were again driven back. Police Capt. Hardi and forty officers came on a run down Flushing avenue. They were not noticed at first, and it was only when their clubs began to fly that their presence became known. The Italians showed no intention of desisting, and turning on the officers of the law, began to fight them. Roundsman Eaton led thirty-five men from the second precinct into Sands street, and when the Italians realized that they had a foe behind as well as one in front, they surrendered. The police arrested twenty. Four others who were severely wounded wer takn to the city hospital. Almost all of the rioters suffered cuts and bruises.

MURDERED A MOTORMAN.

St. Louis, Sept. 25.—Edward Fitzwilliams, motorman and conductor of a Lindlind (suburban) electric car, was assaulted by four drunken negroes who refused to pay their fare. As he turned away one of the negroes shot him in the back. The four then disconnected the trolley and fled, leaving Williams dead in the car. The police have so far been unable to trace the murderers.

MAIL HACK ROBBED.

McAlister, Ind. T., Sept. 25.—The mail hack plying between Fert Gibson and Tehlequah was robbed by two masked men yesterday. The pouch was looted and two registered letters taken. There is no clew to the robbers. This makes the second time this year that the Tahlequan has been robbed.

PRAIRIE FIRE.

Gary, S. D., Sept. 25.—Reports come of a fire northeast of town which has burned a large quantity of hay and considerable machinery.

HELD UP AT CARLTON.

Carlton, Minn., Sept. 25.—Two robbers held up W. T. Barker, deputy sheriff, in charge of the Carlton County bank of this place, while the cashier was at dinner, securing about $60 in silver. The robbers ran for the woods south of town, holding pursuers at bay with loaded revolvers.

HIS NAME IS EDISON.

Logan, Iowa, Sept. 25.—It has just been developed that the real name of the convicted diamond robber, Frank Shirtliffe, is Edison and his home is at Gifford, Iowa.

A few evenings ago on a Milwaukee train, says an exchange, there was on board a newly married couple from Missouri. They occupied a berth in a sleeper and their cooing was dovelike and attracted the attention of, of some, and distracted others. Finally the lady said: "I am going to get a drink of water. When I come back stick your foot out of the berth so I won't make a mistake." When she turned to come back every foot in the car was exposed. There are some mighty mean men in this county.

It was cold the other morning and a reporter found Fred Eikhof sitting on a beer keg in front of his saloon sunning himself and singing in an undertone, "the melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year. It's a little too warm for whiskey, and a little too cold for beer,"

In a year's time the mobilized forces of Europe have increased from from 12,500,000 to 22,000,000. The continental powers have been steadily hoarding gold, alleged war chests. The recent maneuvering, the army bills and budgets, the national feeling expressed: the unfriendly attitude of the powers in their tariffs and diplomatic relations have all made the world wonder. A London correspondent cables: "Lovers of peace cannot gain much encouragement from the European situation as it presents itself to-day. No casus belli or tangible excuse for war threatens, except the Siamese affair, which for a moment is not discussed; still the impression grows stronger daily in the great capitals that the cords of international friendship—or rather tolerance, for no stronger sentiment exists—are under a severe and increasing strain, Students of public affairs in both London and Paris all look forward to the coming winter and spring as the most critical period for Europe. No government is planning or desiring war, are indications though that more than one is expecting it, and all are preparing for it.—Minneapolis Tribune.

L. M. Kjos, of Rocksbury township appeared before Justice Williams last Friday and swore out a complaint against Patrick Moylan, of Thief River Falls, charging him with striking his two sons while out hunting the day before. A warrant was issued and Constable Patterson arrested Mr. Moylan and brought him before Justice Williams Saturday afternoon. Attorney Ira C. Richardson appeared for the defendant. On motion of Mr. Richardson the action was dismissed on account of a defect in the complaint, but Michael Kjos one of the boys assaulted immediately swore out another warrant. A jury was ordered by the plaintiff and an adjournment was taken until Monday at 1 p. m. On Monday John Watts, of Crookston, appeared as counsel for plaintiff and another adjournment was taken to take the deposition of the complaining witness who was detained at home on account of illness. The trial commenced at 7 p. m. The cause of the trouble was a hunting party, consisting of Patrick Moylan, Adam Zeh, Sam'l. Heasley and Mr. Shuster, of Thief River Falls, getting on to L. M. Kjos' land. They were ordered off by Kjos' two sons and started to go but when they got to a point where the boys said was the line their dog came to a point. The Kjos boys had been following them and they ran forward and tried to scare the chickens away. When the hunting party came up Andrist Kjos put a shot gun (which was afterward found to be loaded with buck shot) up to Patrick Moylan and said if they shot chickens there he would shoot. Moylan grabbed the gun and struck Andrist knocking him down, when his brother, Michael Kjos came up he knocked him down also. The trial lasted until one o'clock and the jury labored to agree until 2 p. m. Tuesday when they concluded that they could not agree. During most of their ballots we learn that they stood nine for aquittal and three for guilty. Both parties agreeing the case was left with Justice Williams who decided that there was not sufficient grounds for conviction and the prisoner was discharged.

Mgr Nugent spoke interestingly of the postal savings banks in England which have worked for the best interests of poor people. "Attached to the various district postoffices" said he, "is a savings bank for the convenience of people who wish to make small deposites. This is an immense advantage to servants and young people and to those who wish to husband their earnings. The lowest sum taken at one deposite is one shilling and the sum received in a year is limited to £30 to the person. The government pays the depositors 2½ per cent interest. The facilities have been a great advantage to the humbler classes. Recently the government has added to this department a branch of life insurance which is much the same as an ordinary life insurance. The advantage to be gained by such an insurance, in which the government is the security, is plainly to be seen and needs no comment. The insurance is a certainty and does not depend upon the fortunes of a single company. I believe that were this country to adopt the postal savings bank and insurance system it would work great results among the laboring people of the nation."—Globe.

It has been known for some time that the gamblers of East Grand Forks intended to open their places and defy the law just as soon as harvest was over and money began to circulate freely again. This was to be done in spite of the city authorities who were equally as determined that gambling in East Grand Forks was a thing of the past. On Saturday night the first brush came and the gamblers were knocked out in the first round by Mayor Sullivan and his efficient police officers. A game was started in the rear room of one of the saloons but the police soon got on to it and raided the place. The gambling outfit was confiscated and four of the fraternity were snatched off to the cooler where they paid fines of $25 each. All power to Mayor Sullivan's administration, say we. It will make a respectible city out of East Grand Forks yet.—Crookston Times.

Ihave recommended Beggs' Blood Purifier and Cherry Cough Syrup several times and must say that I have been surprised and more than pleased at results following use of same. I am not in habit of endorsing patent medicines, but can say truthfully, Beggs' medicines are all that is claimed for them.—Tesah Jones, M. D., Wintersville, Mo.—For sale by J. L. Johnson Druggest.

I have been troubled for several years with scrofula, caused by impure blood, but could get no relief until lately. Our druggist recommended Beggs' Blood Purifier and Blood maker so highly that I decided to try it and have up to the present time, used five bottles and find it to be all that it is recommended. —Orrin Stone, Otsego Wis.—For sale by J. L. Johnson, Druggist.

PHILOSOPHICAL.

An Old Negro Who Thought a Great Deal of Himself.

Old Pete was a philosopher. He was described to me as having both a retrospective and philosophical cast of countenance. He had been a soldier, having belonged to one of the most gallantly behaved colored regiments that fought in the battle of Fort Donelson.

The person to whom I am indebted for the following dialogue discovered old Pete upon the hurricane deck of a Mississippi steamer, and by way of an introduction said:

"I suppose you were in the war, for you look like a soldier?"

"Yes, sah, I had a leetle taste ob it at Fo't Donelson."

"Stood your ground, did you?"

"No, sah; runned."

"Ran at the first fire, did you?"

"Yass, sah; would hab run sooner if I'd knowed it was comin'."

"Why, that was not very creditable to your courage."

"Massah, dat wasn't in my line. Cookin' ware my perfesshin."

"Well, but had you no regard for your reputation?"

"Yes, sir; but reputation's nuffin whatever to me by de side of life."

"Do you consider your life worth more than other people's?"

"Wuth more to me, sah."

"Then you must value it very highly."

"I does, sah, more dan all dis world, mo'ah dan $1,000,000, for what am dat to a man wid de bref out'n himself? Preservation am de fust law, sah."

"But why should you act upon a different rule from other men?"

"'Cause different men has different vallers on dair libes. Mine am not in de market."

"But if you had lost it in the war you would have had the satisfaction of knowing that you died for your country."

"What satisfaction would dat be, massah, wid de power of feelin gone?"

"Then patriotism and honor are nothing to you?"

"Nuffin whatever, sah. Nuffin whatever; I 'gards 'em as 'mong de vanities."

"But if our soldiers had all been like you traitors might have broken up the government without resistance."

"Yaas, sah, dar wud been no help for it."

"Do you think any of your company would have missed you if you had been killed?"

"Mebbe not, massah. A dead white man ain't much account, let alone a dead niggah, but I'd miss myself awfully, and dat was de pint wid ole Pete."—Philadelphia Times.

A Felt Hat.

Some Apt Replies.

The stories told of the ready wit of Mr. Charles H. Webb are many and amusing. Best of all, they rarely contain any of that "sting" so frequently found in the repartee of acknowledged wits.

On one occasion when Mr. Evans, recently returned from Brazil, was relating to Mr. Webb some of his hunting exploits in that country, where he had bagged monkeys, tapirs and many other creatures, Mr. Webb asked:

"Are you a good shot?"

"Oh, I can snuff a candle," replied the traveler.

"I suppose that's why you went out there to practice on tapirs," said the wit quietly.

A certain judge, a scholarly man and a most brilliant conversationalist, who was, however, noted as an interminable talker, said one day, speaking of Mr. Webb, "There's a clever fellow, a brilliant fellow; what a pity he has an impediment in his speech!"

This remark was repeated to Mr. Webb by an intimate friend. On hearing it he said gravely:

"There's judge ——; he's a clever fellow, a brilliant fellow; what a pity that he hasn't!"

An excellent rebuke is that which Mr. Webb is reported to have given to his cook on one occasion.

"You don't think I'll ate with a nagger!" inquired that functionary indignantly on hearing that a colored waiter had been engaged.

"I don't know," answered Mr. Webb quietly. "I'll speak to him and see if he has any objections."—Youth's Companion.

All Right.

"My wife will bear witness," said the prisoner at the bar, "that at the very time I am accused of burglarizing Mr. Smith's premises I was engaged in walking the floor with my infant child in my arms, endeavoring to soothe it by singing 'Rock-a-by, Baby.'"

"The prisoner is discharged," remarked his honor. "He can prove a lullaby!"—Harper's Bazar.

Encouraging.

The Rector—Well, Mr. Smithers, what did you think of the entertainment last night (penny readings and part songs by the choir), and my Shakespearean recitation; did you like it?

Farmer Smithers (churchwarden)—O-h—yes, sir, seemin'ly; I hain't heard no complaints.—Tit-Bits.

Preposterous.

"What's the matter, [illegible]? You look sad."

"I am sad. I decorated a set of soup plates for Mrs. Bondelle, and what do you suppose she does with them?"

"Give it up. What?"

"Uses 'em for soup!"—Life.

TERRIBLE LUCK.

One by One His Children Went Back on Him.

A gentleman who was rusticating in the northern part of New Hampshire took a tramp along the hills one day recently. In passing a hillside farm he saw an aged granger hoeing a very stony potato field near his house, and the gentleman stopped to converse with him.

"Your potatoes seem to be doing well?" he started in.

"Oh, I reckon I'll hev a few pertaters," rejoined the farmer drily, as he stopped hoeing the rocks off the vines and glanced at the stranger curiously from under the wide brim of his weather beaten straw hat.

"Other crops good?"

"Oh, the crops is jest toler'ble, as usual, I s'pose," replied the farmer indifferently as he came up to the rail fence, dragging his hoe after him. "But I'll tell yer jest how 'tis, squire," he continued confidentially. "I'm the most unfortunit ole critter in Coos county."

"Farming doesn't pay very well up here, I suppose."

"Pay! Nuthin pays me, squire, but I did expect a leetle or suthen from my crop of young uns."

"Children turned out bad, eh?"

"Jes' so, stranger. The hull on 'em has been a dead loss to me. Dan'l—I named him for Dan'l Webster an give him a good eddication—he's a hoss doctor; practiced on my old mare, an she died. Zeke went inter what they call the green goods business—keeping a grocery store, I s'pose—but he busted up, an he writes me that he's now workin in a place called Sing Sing; says he's got a good stiddy job, but the pay ain't good, an he's allers wantin to borrer a dollar from me. Sam an Hi wentter brakin on the railroad, an I had ter pay the funeral expenses of both of 'em. Maria Ann got married to a drummer at the county fair last fall, an went up in a balloon, but they came down safe an hev ben honeymoonin with me an the old woman ever since. Lizy, my youngest, ain't wuth her keep, an she's a-teasin me to buy her a bysuckle—me, who hain't laid eyes on a $5 bill sence the war. I tell ye, stranger, I'm the most unfortinit old critter with my young uns that ever lived," he groaned.

"You certainly have had bad luck with your children."

"I should say I had. Now, there's Bill Durkee up ter Colebrook, he's had the greatest luck with his. They supports him in good style, an Bill hain't done a stroke o' work fur five years."

"All smart and steady, eh?"

"That's where you miss it, squire. They ain't any on um taken that way."

"How is it they get along so well, then?"

"They are all freaks and have all got good stiddy jobs the year round. Sal weighs 'bout a ton. Mirandy's got tremendous long hair, an his oldest boy was born without legs. An here I be without even a mammoth hog or a two headed calf," sighed the aged farmer as he went back to his hoeing.—Boston Journal.

Not to Be Bunkoed.

The old fellow had come to Chicago to see the World's fair, but he was inclined to be suspicious and cautious. He had gone to the little hotel that he had been told to go to, but he eyed every one about it with more or less suspicion. He had settled down in the office to read a paper, when a clerk approached him and asked, "Are you Jacob Wilder?"

"Hey!" he said, instantly on the alert.

"Are you Jacob Wilder?"

"Want me to play keards or somethin'?" he asked.

"No. I simply want to know"——

"I writ my name in that there book once," he interrupted, "an I won't sign nothin else."

"I don't want you to sign anything."

"I reckon you're goin to tell me me'n your father was old friends."

"No, I'm not," replied the exasperated clerk, "but you're Jacob Wilder. I have a letter for you."

The old man shook his head doubtfully. "John—that's my son, you know," he said slowly, "didn't tell me nothin about any scheme o' that sort. I reckon you'd better hang onto the letter, mister. I ain't takin no chance of bunko or flimflam."

"Maybe it's from your son," persisted the clerk.

"That's so. Mebbe it is," he said, scratching his head. "Well, jest you lay it down on the table, an I'll take a look at it, but I ain't a-touchin of it till I see what it is."

He took a look at the address and then picked up the letter. "It's John's writin," he said, "an I reckon it's all right, but don't you take none o' my letters out o' the postoffice again. Jest you tell the postmaster to lay 'em to one side, an I'll call fur 'em myself every day reg'lar till I go back."—Chicago Post.

Musical Item.

Mr. Morris Parke called at the house of Mr. Hudson Rivers, and they were having a quiet chat together when a peculiar noise was heard.

"What is that noise I hear?" asked Mr. Morris Parke.

"Now you've got me," replied Rivers. "It is either my wife singing or the dog howling in the back yard. I am always getting myself into trouble by mistaking one for the other."—Texas Siftings.

Very Tough.

Customer—If you ever send me another piece of meat like the last one, I'll take away my custom.

Butcher—What was the matter with it?

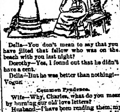
Customer—Why, it was so tough that when it was cooked I couldn't even get my fork into the gravy.—Harper's Bazar.

Cause of the Rush.

Visitor—What's the matter with the women over there, guard? Panic?

Guard—No. A cadet's just come off duty.—Chicago Tribune.

Running a Great Risk.



Della—You don't mean to say that you have jilted that fellow who was on the beach with you last night?

Dorothy—Yes, I found out that he didn't have a cent.

Della—But he was better than nothing!—Vogue.

Common Prudence.

Wife—Why, Charles, what do you mean by burning our old love letters?

Husband—I have been reading them, my dear, and it occurred to me that after I die some one who wished to break my will might get hold of them and use them to prove I was insane.—Tit-Bits.

A Pathetic Appeal.

"Brethren," said a preacher when the collection was being made, "perhaps one of you will be good enough to put a needle and some thread in the bag so that I may be enabled to make some use of the buttons with which you are all so liberal."—Hermitas de Oro.

The Grand Central Railroad Station Chicago.

is being fitted up for hotel purposes during the world's fair. This magnificent fire-proof structure, located at the corner of Harrison street and 5th avenue, in the very heart of the city, will devote the 3rd, 4th and 6th floors to this purpose. It will be run on the European plan. Each room will have hot and cold water, electric lights and be steam heated. The office and ladies parlors etc. will be located on the 3rd floor and the building will be supplied with all modern conveniences. There will be from 150 to 200 rooms for guests.

This acquisition to the hotel facilities of Chicago will be appreciated by those who wish to be safely housed in a fire-proof building, conveniently located in the city.

Those desiring accommodations can secure them by addressing Mr. T. C. Clifford, the manager, at Chicago Ill. The hotel will be opened May 15th 1893.

VISITORS TO THE TWIN CITIES.

No one should visit the Twin Cities this summer without running out to Minnetonka Beach and Hotel Lafayette, the largest and best located resort house in the west. The lake is one of the most picturesque in the country and is well supplied with steamers and sailing, rowing and fishing craft. A number of regattas will be given. The Great Northern has a double track line to the lake and runs frequent trains.

MINNESOTA STATE NORMAL SCHOOLS
WINONA, MANKATO, ST. CLOUD AND MOORHEAD.

These schools are organized for the training of teachers for the common schools of the state.

ORGANIZATION.—Each school comprises two departments—the normal department and the training department or Model School. The Normal department embraces:

(a) An elementary course for teachers of rural districts and elementary grades.

(b) An advanced course for teachers of advanced grades.

(c) A Professional course for teachers who have completed the required academic work elsewhere.

(d) A kindergarten training course (at Winona and St. Cloud.

ADMISSION.—Graduates of high schools and colleges, and teachers holding county superintendents' first and second grade certificate are admitted without examination. All others are required to pass an entrance examination.

EXPENSES.—Tuition is free to all who pledge themselves to teach in Minnesota. Text books are furnished at a rental of three dollars per year. Provision is made in each school for economical living. The average cost of furnished rooms with board is $3.00 per week. The Ladies' Home at St. Cloud offers board, furnished room, heat and light at $3.00 per week.

The new dormitory at Moorhead will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall term.

DIPLOMAS.—By a recent act of the legislature a diploma becomes a state teachers certificate of the first grade.

The next school year opens at Winona, Sept. 1st; at Mankato, Sept. 4th; at St. Cloud, Aug. 29th; and at Moorhead, Oct. 3rd.

For free catalogues and circulars giving all information, address the presidents as follows.

DEVILS LAKE CHAUTAUQUA.

The first summer Assembly of the North Dakota Chautauqua comes off June 28th to July 17th. An extensive program has been arranged, including many noted speakers, singers, etc., and the occasion promises to be most interesting and instructive. Devils Lake is a summer resort point. The Great Northern Railway gives reduced rates. Address J. B. Fancher, Secretary, Devils Lake, N. D. for programs and other inform. A trip to the lake and assembly will make an enjoyable outing.

A LARGE DROP IN RATES TO THE WEST

The Great Northern inaugurated its new train service to the Pacific coast on the 8th inst. With sweeping reductions in rates, amounting to 40 percent in many cases. The rate from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Puget Sound was reduced first-class, from $60.00 to [illegible] to Spokane from $35 to $30; and to Helena and Butte from $40 to $25, with corresponding reductions on second-class tickets both through rates applying proportionately to intermediate points. It is the purpose of the Great Northern to make rates to help the development of its territory. It is much the shortest line across the continent, was built on business principles, and at a cost of about one half of that of the older trans-continental lines, and is therefore prepared to correspondingly well by its territory and patrons in rates and accommodations.

Last summer I was attacked with a bad case of flux, and after taking four doses of Beggs' Diarrhoea Balsam was immediately relieved and cured. I have sold it for the past six months and can say that it gives general satisfaction.—J. W. Smith, M. D., Puxico, Mo.—For sale by J. L. Johnson, Druggist.

A PUBLIC BENEFACTOR.

A Little Man Spot Had Discovered the Prize Thirst Producer.

A little man with a bald spot on the back of his head and a general air of lassitude sat at a table in an uptown cafe and drank. He ordered all sorts of drinks and made away with them without turning a hair.

After he had been pouring liquid into himself for an hour a man who had been watching his irrigation walked over to the table and said: "What in blazes are you trying to do, drink yourself into a state of insensibility?"

The little man ordered two gin fizzes, cautioned the waiter to tell the bartender to make them long and replied: "Nix. I'm utilizing a great discovery. I found out yesterday how to make a thirst that would be the envy of every man in town if he knew of it. It's a bute. Why, I've been drinking all day, and I'm as dry as I was when I began. I've got a thirst that's fit for a king."

"How'd you get it?" asked the other man.

"Easy as falling off a log. When I think of all the time I've gone around without a thirst when I might have had the cuckoo I've got now it makes me weep. I'm a great discoverer. Stanley isn't in it with me. He benefited some of his fellow men, perhaps, but I bring a boon to every man who wants to relish liquor in whatever shape. I can create a thirst in an hour that will take days to satisfy. Simple, too. Yesterday I walked around in the sun and got sweaty. Then I went over to the gymnasium and exercised a while until I was dripping. Then I went down to the bath and sat for half an hour in the hottest room. By that my pores had exuded about a gallon, more or less, of water. Then I took a plunge and went home."

"But where does the thirst come from?" asked the other man.

"Got to get that water back somehow, haven't I?" asked the little man. "It leaves you with a thirst that's worth thousands. Waiter, bring me a sherry cobbler, a claret punch and a bottle of Bass. Thirst? Why, I won't get it quenched before Wednesday. I will be the envy of the community."

And half an hour later the little man was negotiating for cut rates on a bottle of lime juice and a tankard of Pilsner.—Buffalo Express.

Sparrows and Mirrors.

A correspondent informs the London Spectator that his daughter writes to him from Bangalore that she is "obliged to cover up" her "looking glass with a towel," for the sparrows come in, sit on the frame, and tap at themselves, making both glass and dressing table in a horrid mess. At first the towel kept them away, but they were always on the watch, and if any one threw back the towel they would be there in a minute. But now they hold back the towel with one claw, hold themselves on with the other, and peck away at their images."

FIRST ELECTRIC CAR IN AMERICA.

It Was Run in Baltimore Seven Years Ago, and Is Now Old-Fashioned.

In the car barns of the Baltimore City and Suburban road, near the corner of Huntingdon avenue and Oak street, is a relic which President Perin thinks will figure in a museum one of these days, when rapid transit, by electricity especially, has completely revolutionized Baltimore, and made the city's progress and development a matter of record, says the World.

Half hidden with cobwebs and dust, and pushed in one corner to make room for the vehicles in daily use, is a car which is historic, for it is the first real electric car ever run in the United States and the second in the world, Germany claiming the honor for the other.

It was in the summer of 1885 that the City and Suburban secured the now old-fashioned motor and put it into operation, but, while the concern was practically a failure, electricians from all parts of the country flocked this way to see the novelty tested, and the car was a drawing card for the time being. In the spring of the same year W. M. Daft, the distinguished electrician and scientist of New York, was requested to come to Baltimore by the Suburban Railway company, through President Perin, with expectations that he would be able to make practicable the problem of faster street locomotion by electricity. After no end of experiments, failures and delays, Aug. 26, 1885, just seven years ago, saw the road completed and the "Morse" made its first trip, which met all requirements and was pronounced a success.

The trailer attached, with its twenty-five passengers, covered the distance of 2 1-8 miles in five minutes' time, a rate of speed equal to the rapid flyers of to-day. The road was kept in operation some time and then the company began the improvements, which are still under way, at a cost of over $1,500,000. The old "Morse," while running well enough for the time, did not answer requirements, because a ground current was used, and frequent accidents occurred through contact of wires with gas pipes and the like, and stoppages and delays finally became so numerous that horses again replaced the coup-shaped motor car, while the $2,000 Daft relic was stabled as a trophy on Huntingdon avenue, to be still later supplanted by the improved type of rapid transit vehicles.

Pretty Work-Baskets.

Attractive little work-baskets seen at the exchanges look as if they dated back a hundred years or more. They are made of a rectangular piece of cardboard at the bottom. Two long narrow pieces for the sides join the shorter pieces used for the ends, all cut so that they flare sharply at the top. Each piece is covered on both sides either with China silk or cretonne, and the pieces are neatly overhanded together, with a silk or cotton that matches the ground color of the covering. Cardboard or a strip of leather, also covered, is used for a handle. Inside the baskets are little shirred pockets and a small flat cushion. The quaintness of the baskets is best attained when some neat, quiet little pattern is used for the covering. Persian or tiny flower patterns are the most pleasing.—New York Evening Post.

THAT LETTER.

"Oh, Jeanne, you quite forgot to put a rose in my hair!" exclaimed Lillys Forsythe as she stood in all her queenly beauty before the long mirror in her boudoir.

"I should consider my toilet incomplete without it," as the little French maid brought forth a crimson rose to pin in her young mistress' hair.

Lillys made a beautiful picture in the full glare of the light, which caused her raven hair to seem the blacker against the delicate yellow of her evening gown.

"Mademoiselle looks beautiful—like a bride," remarked Jeanne.

"Do you think so?" said Lillys, glancing dreamily at her own reflection, then brightening suddenly.

"Jeanne, you are a flatterer—I do not believe you—besides brides never wear red roses. The idea! Jeanne, only my third ball to-night, and to look like a bride! You may rest assured I am going to enjoy life now and shall not marry for many a year."

"Ah! Mdlle. Lillys, qui sait! You will be in love before you are aware," replied Jeanne, with a wise nod of her head.

Lillys laughed gayly, took a few last glances at herself in the mirror and was satisfied.

The clock on the mantel struck 9, and Lillys was buttoning the last button of her long gloves, when the servant announced Mr. Crayton.

"Very well, I shall be down directly. Jeanne, throw my opera cloak over me, don't muss the lace—there, hand me the fan—I'm ready."

The next moment Lillys had reached the drawing room and greeted Mr. Crayton, her escort for the evening.

Arriving at the magnificently-lighted dancing-hall of Mrs. Upton's handsome mansion, Lillys Forsythe was at once the center of attraction.

It was a well-established fact that Kenneth Crayton was madly in love with the young woman and that he was the favorite one of her admirers. I say "favorite" inasmuch as she accepted his invitations more frequently than others, but just this evening she became convinced that she was not the least bit in love with him.

"Of course I am to have my usual number of dances on your programme, Miss Forsythe?" said Kenneth Crayton.

"I think not, Mr. Crayton, as Mr. Barlow has already secured several and—"

"Then I am to understand that I may take what is left?" questioned Crayton, not without sarcasm, for if there was one thing he could not endure it was to see himself eclipsed by another, so ambitious was he and so accustomed to success.

"No, not exactly," replied Lillys, with a sweet smile, the instrument which had never failed her in conquering him.

"Confound Barlow, anyhow!" he murmured.

"Mr. Crayton," as she looked at him with a tragi-comical expression which was very fetching, "how complimentary."

Later in the evening as the strains of a dreamy waltz floated on the air, Lillys, leaning on the arm of Herbert Barlow, walked into the library and there in a secluded nook they sat down on the divan.

Lillys had a peculiar way of making herself effective; she did not pose, but, being graceful, every one of her attitudes was picturesque and pleasing. Herbert Barlow's eyes even were dazzled by her entrancing loveliness as she sat there against the rich oriental tapestries, with her sparkling, brown eyes scanning his face.

"Oh, I had almost forgotten; this is the waltz I promised Mr. Crayton. Do take me back to the ball-room, Mr. Barlow, before it is too late."

"Miss Forsythe," began Barlow, in measured tones, looking steadfastly at the girl with his penetrating gray eyes, "can you not give up one dance with that man for me?"

"Yes, but—" Lillys tried not to notice nor understand the last words.

"Mr. Crayton was already complaining of being treated unfairly by me to-night, and so—"

"So it would serve him right to suffer little for such a remark," put in Barlow.

"No," with a little pout, "not exactly; he has been very kind to me all along." With that the girl arose, and there was nothing for Barlow to do but to escort her and to wonder why she treated him with such exasperating indifference.

Lillys Forsythe was an orphan, and the heiress of her father's enormous wealth. For a year or more she had made her home with a married cousin several years her senior. Dorothy Kirk and Lillys Forsythe, besides being cousins, were the best of friends, and Gordon, Dorothy's husband, greatly appreciated the presence of his wife's relative at his home.

"It kind of livens up the house," so Mr. Kirk expressed it, "to have a young girl around. A man likes to see some merry-making when he comes home from his office."

As for Lillys, she was perfectly happy when Dorothy gave her permission to have the apartments adjoining the nursery, for she was exceedingly fond of her cousin's children, and in turn was their very idol. Of the three rollicking, romping, four-year-old Teddy was the especial favorite of "Aunt Lillys." In her room he was monarch of all he surveyed, and not a morning went by that he would not slip quietly into Aunt Lillys' room to see if she were up.

The morning following Mrs. Upton's dance Lillys was the first to reach the dining-room. When Dorothy came down and saw Lillys she said anxiously:

"Why, my dear, how tired you look! An evening's dissipation does not usually tell so plainly on your face."

"Tired? Yes—I did not sleep after I came home; now don't begin to worry about that. I can make up for lost sleep all day, if I wish. By the by," changing the subject to avoid other questions, "did you ever meet Mrs. Upton's niece?"

"Miss Deane—Mildred Deane? Oh, yes, she visits this city every winter. They say Mr. Barlow is quite taken with her," said Dorothy, carefully scanning her cousin's face.

"Young Barlow is a man of splendid make-up," put in Mr. Kirk, who had just seated himself at the table.

"You danced with him last night, of course?" asked Dorothy.

"Why, 'of course,' Dorothy?" questioned Lillys with a faint smile.

"Well, my dear, I have seen him pay you marked attention and hear he is Kenneth Crayton's rival——"

Mr. Kirk laughed.

"Rival!" interrupting her cousin. "That is a misnomer, I am afraid. What would Miss Deane say to that?"

At this point Teddy came up to Lillys declaring that "Doggy Jack want to come in, auntie; he c'ying for 'oo," and gave her no peace until she went to the door with him to let in the whining animal.

This practically broke up the conversation at the breakfast table, but Dorothy's words rung in Miss Forsythe's ears for some time.

She knew very well that Herbert Barlow was in love with her—how could she help it? There are certain things in life which need not be told; they are felt. But it was her wish that no one should talk to her about it.

Since Herbert showed his affection for her she had quite neglected Kenneth. But she was a proud young woman and was bound not to show her love for a man who was spoken of by all society people in connection with Mildred Deane. If once she loved a man she wanted him to be her lover only—a selfish trait of hers, in fact the only bit of selfishness she could pardon in herself.

That evening while Lillys was out at a dinner party, Mr. Barlow called to see her. When Dorothy informed her of the fact the next morning she flushed slightly, but said, in firm tones:

"I am sorry to have missed him."

She slept longer than usual that morning and, noticing this, Teddy made it his task to find out the reason. In passing through the library he saw his mother put a letter on the table, saying: "A letter for Lillys."

Teddy's little nose just touched the surface of the table and his eyes peered at the white missive for a moment, and, his mother having left the room, he said to himself as he stood on tiptoe and reached his chubby little arm across the table: "Dess I'll tate it to her."

In the upper corridor, in front of Miss Forsythe's door Teddy encountered Jeanne, the maid, who placed her index finger to her lips with a significant "sh-h," which danger signal Teddy did not appreciate, however.

"I'se doin' to Aunt Lill, I is."

"No, Teddy; she is sleeping; not now."

From the moment he saw Jeanne the little chap had hidden the letter he carried under his skirt.

"But I say I'se doin'; dot somefin for Aunt Lill." And he made an effort to open the door with his one free hand.

"Let me see. What have you for auntie?" questioned the girl, bravely holding the fort.

Teddy looked up at her defiantly. "Won't tell 'oo." And when his attempts to get in were again frustrated by the hard-hearted Jeanne, Teddy set up a terrible howl, all the while clutching the letter with his little fist, so that the maid carried him off in all haste to the farther end of the house.

When at length she had set down the obstreperous young man he ran away as fast as he could and hid in a closet, where Jeanne could not find him.

As she started down the stairway for the nurse Teddy came out of his retreat after having tucked away the letter in an old box in the closet.

Then he called down the stairs, triumphantly: "Now, I do tell auntie on 'oo," meaning the innocent Jeanne.

The night after the dance at Upton's Herbert Barlow had made a resolve to find out as soon as possible whether or no Lillys Forsythe loved him. He was a man of great determination and decision, and consequently he set out for the Kirk mansion to call upon the young lady. What was his dismay to find her out! He surely could never screw up the necessary courage again to face Miss Forsythe with the intention of proposing to her—to her who had never given him the slightest encouragement.

But he was in love, and men in love are often desperate. Never before had a woman made so deep an impression upon him, for he was not the young man to have the picture of a different girl enameled on the inside of his watch every three months.

Lillys Forsythe's face was enameled on his heart and nothing could efface it. Now that fate had not been propitious, he decided to write a letter pleading his cause—how stiff the phrase sounded. How cold his thoughts stood out in black and white. But he could wait no longer. He felt that he must ask her that very night or never. He had not loved before (the talk about him and Mildred Deane being a fabrication of her own), and he would never again have faith in womankind if Lillys did not accept him.

Miss Forsythe arose at about noon the next day, and upon reaching the dining room was informed that a box had arrived for her. As she opened it the sweet, heavy perfume of a superb bouquet of American Beauties greeted her, and she searched in vain for a card of the sender.

"No name!" she said to herself. "It cannot be Kenneth Crayton's peace-offering! He is too stubborn for that. Perhaps——" and the color crept into her cheeks at the thought. "Perhaps Mr. Barlow sent them. Pshaw! Lillys Forsythe, you silly girl!" and she jumped up suddenly, as if to shake off the fond illusion. She did not know how near the truth she had come in her suspicions.

Six weeks later Lillys Forsythe bade her friends farewell, as she started on her trip to London, where she intended to visit an old uncle who was occupying a fine house on the outskirts of the great metropolis. There she hoped to find some diversion, for her heart was heavy and she was greatly perplexed. Dorothy was dissatisfied with her for refusing "that splendid Mr. Crayton," besides two other men of good standing.

Since Herbert Barlow had treated her so coldly and had finally left the city altogether Lillys felt as if life in her native town would be unendurable.

In London she was received with open arms by her uncle and his family, who were quite proud of their American connection. She became so enchanted with her new life and surroundings that she almost forgot her former home, all but the one person whose image often came before her.

One day, early in September, she and her cousin were taking a hurried trip down town on the underground railway.

At one of the stations, as the conductor suddenly slammed the door of their coupe, Lillys looked around, and as she caught sight of a familiar face opposite her, exclaimed:

"Why, Mr. Barlow, how strange to see you here!"

The gentleman addressed smiled, and extending his hand in greeting, said: "Yes, strange indeed. Whoever would have thought that we should meet here actually under English soil?"

Then followed an introduction to Lillys' cousin.

"When did you leave home?" queried Barlow.

"Oh, I have been here ever since last spring," answered Lillys, "and how long have you been traveling abroad, Mr. Barlow?"

"For the last seven or eight months," he answered, his face clouding; "home had no more charms for me," he added, "so I have been 'doing the continent,' as the English say."

Lillys felt as if she had been stabbed his words were strangely significant to her.

A few more remarks were exchanged before they reached their destination, and Barlow left them after promising to call the following evening.

The remainder of that day was like a dream to Lillys Forsythe. Such unexpected meeting was enough to upset any one, she said, excusing her numerous blunders that afternoon.

Herbert Barlow appeared to be somewhat changed, Lillys thought—there was something in his manner that puzzled her.

When the appointed evening arrived Mr. Barlow was announced. Lillys was the first to welcome him, and as Barlow grasped her hand in greeting he held it firmly, and as their eyes met a mutual understanding seemed to have grown between them.

"Let us abolish all formalities, Miss Forsythe," said he, seeing that they were alone; "before I leave you again I must know why you never answered my letter in which—in which I asked you to become my wife?"

"Letter?" asked Lillys, with trembling lips, as a bright crimson colored her cheeks. "I do not understand!"

"Is it possible," as a faint gleam of hope lit his beautiful gray eyes, "that you never received it?"

"I know nothing about such a letter," said Lillys, almost inaudibly, for her heart was beating violently.

For a moment all was still. Herbert Barlow eagerly scanned the girl's face—a terrible feeling of doubt crept over him—had she ignored the letter? The thought was suffocating him. He burst out:

"Miss Forsythe—Lillys—tell me why you never answered it."

"Mr. Barlow," as she looked him in the face, "I never received such a letter from you—I—"

"Then, may I ask you right here—will you be my wife?"

"Yes," was the simple answer, which came from the very depths of the girl's heart, and came gladly.

"But," she said suddenly, "what will Mildred Deane say?"

Barlow laughed. "Married a month ago to Kenneth Crayton, you foolish little woman," and he sealed her mouth with a kiss.

The proposal, to be sure, was laconic enough but that was characteristic of the man—the love-making followed and continued indefinitely. Soon after a quiet wedding took place in London—Herbert would have it so—and their wedding journey took them back to their American home.

But the mystery of the important letter was never solved—who would have dreamed of suspecting four-year-old Teddy or of searching for it in the depths of an old closet?

WASTED POLITENESS.

Story of a Prince, a Long-Tailed Coat and a Chicago Matron.

Here is a new story about Prince Engalitcheff, the handsome Russian, who, being at all hours of the day one of the best groomed young men in all Chicago, is always a welcome guest at the big palaces along the avenues.

In the matter of dress the prince is a sort of fashion plate that the young men of the town delight to copy, and it is in connection with his very faithful following of the sartorial fashions that this rather amusing story is told:

Attired in one of the very long frock coats coming down almost to one's ankles and that now constitute "the proper caper" for young men of fashion in the afternoon, the prince called the other day at a very swell Michigan avenue mansion, the chief ornament of which is a young lady, who, while she more than once has been reported engaged to be married within the last year, still lends hope to her host of adorers by refraining from an actual dip into the matrimonial sea.

The prince entered and was warmly welcomed by the young lady and her mamma. The latter, after a minute or two, asked cordially: "My dear prince, won't you take off your coat?"

Much too well bred to express surprise, the prince merely declined the invitation, and the conversation proceeded.

Presently the elder lady, oblivious of the nods and winks sent in her direction by her charming daughter, repeated the invitation: "Prince, you must be frightfully warm with that heavy coat on. Pray remove it; you will be so much more comfortable."

The prince looked just the least bit embarrassed as he replied: "Excuse me, my dear madame, but if you please I will r-r-retain it."

It was not until the noble caller had left the house that the daughter explained to her doting parent that the prince had not worn an overcoat.—Chicago Times.

A Solvent for Gutta Percha and India Rubber.

The demand for both gutta percha and India rubber is extensive and increasing yearly, owing in a large measure to developments in telegraphy and electric engineering, besides many uses which are being found for them in minor industries. The present supply of gutta percha is not sufficient to meet the demand, and it is believed that unless steps are soon taken to preserve the sources of supply there will be an actual dearth of the commodity. This has had the effect of raising its value in the market, and while in 1860 the price of the best quality of refined gutta percha was $1,200, by 1889 it had advanced to $3,000 per ton. An attempt has been made to economise this useful material by combining it with rubber, which is a much cheaper article, varying as it does in price from $750 to $1,600 per ton. In a new invention the two materials are blended by a cheap process, both being partially dissolved and afterward intimately mixed. The main feature of the invention is the employment of a substance hitherto little known or understood, but which exhibits singular properties. This substance acts as a solvent both on gutta percha and rubber, and combines with them in such a way as to form a united and homogeneous mass, which possesses the qualities of the best gutta percha, while being superior to it in non-oxidizing properties, elastic, tensile strength and insulating power, besides being produced at much smaller cost.

A Bicycle Plating Dynamo.

An ingenious dynamo has been invented for the purpose of facilitating the work of jewelers, bicyclers and students in plating, and experimenters and small platers will find it equally useful. The dynamo is a regular machine of high efficiency. It is cast on an iron pedestal, with an arm extending for the support of the saddle and hubs in which the main bearing runs. The machine has a regulation bicycle saddle, with spring adjustments and an ajustable saddle-post, and either a child or the tallest man can, after mounting the saddle, operate the machine by working the pedals after the manner of the ordinary cycle. It can also be run by a belt connected direct to a small armature pulley, if desired. The buffing machine has taper holes, chucked into both ends of the shaft of the armature. In fact, the machine is not only a dynamo, but also a buffing lathe, combining the two machines required for plating. It is stated that by the use of this dynamo a dozen knives and forks can be plated with a triple coating of silver in twenty minutes.

A SNIDE SMUGGLER.

One of the Frauds Who Tempt Simpletons to Foolish Purchasers.

I was in Barclay street the other day when a big, suspicious-looking man touched my elbow and asked me to step aside for a moment, says the Detroit Free Press. When he had stopped, he looked all around to see of there was a policeman in sight, and then whispered:

"Please don't give me away. I am an unfortunate man and have been driven to do wrong. Can you make use of these?"

He held out a pair of eye-glasses, which looked to be worth $4 or $5, and continued:

"I may as well tell you the truth, I stole these to get bread for my family. You can have them for a dollar."

"No, thanks."

"Seventy-five cents."

"No."

"Take 'em at fifty? Just try 'em on and see if they are your fit."

"Don't want them at all, my dear boy. Your game is at least a year old, and I was initiated months ago. Go and be dishonest, and may luck attend you."

He winked and smiled and passed on. They were cheap glasses, not costing the manufacturer over 12 or 15 cents a pair. An agent here has 100 men at work selling them on the "lay" I have described. Each peddler pretends to have stolen the glasses, and in that way he finds customers who would otherwise look upon him as a fakir. As stolen glasses they are considered a great bargain at 75 cents. If offered in an honest manner nobody would take them at 25 cents. See the human nature in it? I've seen a gray-haired old chap from upcountry, who has preached honestly all his life, slyly pocket a pair of glasses and get out of the neighborhood almost on a run, fearing the police might get hold of him, and I've seen a Wall street broker buy an extra pair to send to his old mother, and disappear around the nearest corner like a noon-day shadow.

"Yes, it's a good lay," replied one of the peddlars after we had drunk our beer, "but I shall drop it for a better thing next week. I'm going to peddle laces around the suburban towns."

"On what line?" I asked.

"Oh, stolen goods, of course! I can buy lace at 9 cents a yard wholesale which I can take out and sell at 20 or 30 cents. All I've got to do with the average woman is to drop a hint that I smuggled or stole it, and she'll rake up her last penny to buy with. I've got a sister who clears $25 a week right here in New York on kid gloves. Buys 'em at wholesale, goes from house to house as a smuggler, and makes a profit of from 30 to 50 per cent. So-long, old man; got to rope in three more suckers this afternoon."

An Experiment in Air Navigation.

Preparations are being made in Paris for a balloon experiment, the success of which would mark a distinct advance in air navigation. M. de Savine intends to start in the car of a balloon from the Champ de Mars, and is confident of being able to reach Russia in a few days without his balloon having descended. If this attempt succeeds, it may be possible with the apparatus M. de Savine has invented to undertake the exploration of the polar and other unknown regions, which till now have been inaccessible. M. de Savine recognizes that motive power is at present powerless to overcome atmospheric currents, but he thinks he has solved the problem of utilizing these currents, which at various heights are so different and numerous. An ordinary gas balloon, coupled underneath to a Montgolfier, will be used. The balloon will contain 3,200 cubic meters of gas, and is to be strong enough to carry the whole weight of the apparatus required.

Sunday, Sept. 24.

Judge Dickinson, of the supreme court, resigns, and Hon. Daniel Buck is appointed to fill the unexpired term.

Burglars went through C. E. Bondy's hardware store at Eyota, securing a large quantity of cutlery, revolvers and silverware. No clue.

Sparks from an engine burned a setting of wheat stacks of C. M. Bourden near Red Lake Falls. The separator was badly damaged.

An attempt was made by two men to rob the Northern Pacific depot at Hawley by hiding in the depot and slugging the clerk. Their scheme was foiled by the timely arrival of a citizen, who knocked one robber down, secured him and placed him in the jail. The other one got away.

A sneak thief stole a pair of trousers from the room of James Quinlivan, a hotel and restaurant man at St. Cloud, and in the pockets of which there was $1,170. He gained an entrance through a rear window. The man robbed had the money for the purpose of cashing railroad checks. The police have a clue.

A sad case of brutality has come to light near the village of Morgan. There was a misunderstanding between Robert Pfile and his wife, she getting the worst of it. Mrs. Pfile walked seven miles to the village with blood flowing from her mouth and ear. Pfile was found guilty of assault and battery. It will be some time before he can again abuse his wife.

Monday, Sept. 25.

Jergan Jeronimus was bound over at Duluth, charged with assault in the first degree, for shooting Elizabeth Knuckey.

Mrs. C. Hammer, aged ninety-three years, a resident of Houston county for forty years, died on her farm near Hokah.

The St. James hotel at St. Cloud, whose proprietor, James Quinlaven, was robbed of $1,000 on Thursday night, has been closed by creditors.

The Carleton County bank at Carlton was robbed. The men only secured $68 and escaped in the thick woods south of town. There is no clue up to the present time.

People at Le Sueur are all excited over the attempt to burn the large hardware store of W. H. Tomlinson. The fire was started in the basement under a barrel of linseed oil. No clue.

Sneak thieves went through both hotels at Bird Island. T. E. Kelly, village marshal, lost a watch and pocketbook the night before. Both hotels at Olivia were robbed of money and watches.

Another robbery was committed at St. Cloud. This time it is Mat Weiren's saloon, where the frisky burglar got over $300. After closing up last night the bartender secreted the money under a large flower pot, but this morning it was gone. No clue.

Mat Weirens' saloon was burglarized at St. Cloud. Weirens is in Chicago, and the bartender, under his instructions, hid the money in the room. He placed about $325 under a flower pot in the window. This morning it was gone. There are no signs of the entrance or exit of the burglars. Suspicion points to an assistant in the saloon.

Tuesday, Sept. 26.

A proposition is made to pump out Lake Shagma, at Ely, Minn., in order to get at the rich iron ore deposits at its bottom.

William Waters, a farmer, committed suicide by cutting his throat at his home at Lake Lillian, ten miles south of Atwater yesterday. Despondency caused by family troubles, it is supposed, induced the act.

Egle's flour mill burned at Hector. Loss, $5,000; insurance, $1,000. The Hector Lumber and Supply company's office was also burned. Loss, $300; fully insured.

A case of grave robbery is reported at Mazeppa. The body of a child buried by August Gatze, a butcher of this place, was found missing from its grave. It was buried in a lot belonging to a man named Blake.

By the explosion of a shotgun Lewis Ahlstome, a cook of Minneapolis, was seriously injured at Rich Prairie and brought to the hospital at Little Falls.

While hunting near Duluth John Carlson's shotgun was accidentally discharged into Charles M. Thorsen's right leg, crippling him for life. Thorsen is nineteen years old and Carlson fifteen years.

Joseph Weirtzel, postmaster at Albany, and Henry F. Meyer, proprietor of the Commercial hotel at the same place, met with an almost fatal accident. While out hunting ducks in Goose lake in a canvas boat the frail craft collapsed and sank. Both hunters lost their guns and everything except their lives, which they saved by swimming nearly half a mile.

Wednesday, Sept. 27.

The diphtheria is subsiding at Red Wing. There has been about sixty separate attacks and half a dozen deaths.

Henry Ellmann is caught by the ferry cable and drowned while attempting to cross the river at South Park, St. Paul.

Four men have been arrested at Milton charged with the burglary of the hardware store of Hon. H. T. Helgeson.

Iwan Gow, a Minot boy, placed a cartridge on the stove and now he is short two fingers and a thumb. It was loaded.

Sheriff Bingenheimer of Morton county has arrested in St. Paul F. O. Kuhn, wanted in Mandan for forgery, and has secured requisition papers to bring him back for trial.

The large barn of S. Swennunison of Park River, which burned recently, was insured for $600. The place caught fire from the pipes of tramps who were sleeping in the building. Had the wind been in an opposite direction to what it was, a part of the town would have gone.

AN UNDERTAKER'S TRICK.

How He Took Trade From an Established Competitor.

A young man who went into the undertaking business in a suburban town recently conceived a plan for booming his gruesome occupation, says the Philadelphia Call. There was a rival undertaker in the place, and he had nearly all the business. The young man, however, felt confident that the growing population of the town warranted his coming there, but the older undertaker, whom everybody knew, seemed to have, as the boys say, "a lead-pipe cinch" on all business. The newcomer was not dismayed, but periodically did a trick that soon put him in "the game."

The trick was nothing more or less than this: On bright days a brand new hearse with a stylish coffin in it would be seen driving up and down the main streets and then suddenly disappear off into the country. Sometimes it would be a large hearse, and sometimes a small white one with a tiny coffin in it. Of course there was nothing in the coffins, but there was in the strategy, for Mr. Newman soon got a considerable portion of the town trade.

No Sign of It.

Patsy Clementine had been a field hand "in ole Virginny befo' de wah," but at its close she came North and went into service in a New England city. Her new mistress found her willing to learn, but ignorant on most subjects connected with the kitchen.

One day the old lady had been making pies, and when they were done she placed in the oven a turnover, made for her little daughter's delectation, and bidding Patsy Clementine "watch that turnover," she left the kitchen.

At the end of half an hour she returned. Patsy Clementine sat comfortably on the floor before the oven, the door of which was wide open.

"What are you doing?" demanded the mistress, as her eyes took in the still pale turnover, on which the darky's eyes were apparently riveted.

"I 'clar to yo'," said Patsy Clementine solemnly, rolling her eyes up at her exasperated mistress, "I aint move my eyes off dat triflin' little pie sence you is gone, an' it hab not turn ober yet, an' dat's de truf, sah's I'se a free niggah!"

FIFTY THIRD CONGRESS.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SPECIAL SESSION OF CONGRESS.

Condensed Record of the Business Being Transacted by our National Law-makers—Routine Report Day by Day.

Washington, Sept. 27. — Mr. Dubois (Rep. Idaho) created a sensation by offering the following resolution, which went over for a day: "Whereas several sovereign states are without the full representation in the senate that they are entitled to; therefore, be it Resolved, That the consideration of legislation relating to the federal election laws, tariffs and finance matters which materially affect the partially unrepresented states be postponed in the senate until Monday, Jan. 15, 1894, to enable the States of Washington, Montana and Wyoming to have the votes, influence and protection in the senate which are guaranteed to each sovereign state by the constitution of the United States." The resolution was laid on the table—27 to 10. The repeal bill was then at 12:10 o'clock again taken up. Mr. Stewart, who was recognized, said he would yield to Mr. Dubois of Idaho, who had given notice of an intention to speak to-day. Mr. Dubois, in turn, yielded to Mr. Perkins.

The galleries of the house were well filled in anticipation of the opening of debate on the bill to repeal the federal election laws. There was a particularly heavy attendance in the long public gallery opposite the speaker's chair, which is known as the "black belt." The massing of negroes in the galleries indicated the great interest they manifest in the result of the present struggle. The two weeks' debate on the Tucker bill was begun by Mr. Tucker of Virginia, the author of the bill, who opened for the Democrats. Mr. Johnson (Rep. N. D.) presented the minority report and said it embodied his views. Mr. Brossius (Rep. Pa.) spoke against the bill and the house adjourned.

Washington, Sept. 28.—The day in the senate was the most exciting of the session, and the debate the most acrimonious. The principal participants were from widely separated geographical sections and of diametrically opposite characteristics. The young and dashing senator from Colorado, Mr. Wolcott, breezy and impulsive; the astute and silent senator from Maryland, Mr. Gorman, conservative and pacific. It is not often that a senator suggests that one of his peers on the floor has listened at committee room doors, or that a senator refers to the motives which influence a brother senator in changing his vote. When, therefore, such a debate occurred the greatest excitement prevailed, and while it lasted was more potent in maintaining a full attendance of senators than a call of the senate.

Mr. Morse created quite a wrangle in the house over its refusal to permit him to print some newspaper articles in connection with his recent criticism of Commissioner Lochren. Mr. Bland presented a substitute for Mr. Loud's resolution calling for information as to how much silver was purchased in July and August, asking the secretary of the treasury why the full amount required under the act of July, 1890, had not been purchased in those months. Mr. Morse, who was vexed over the refusal of the house to permit him to load the Congressional Record with abuse of Commissioner Lochren, made the point of no quorum. For three hours Mr. Morse blockaded all business in this way and the resolution was carried—188 to 1. The Tucker bill then came up and Mr. Lawson of Georgia addressed the house in support of the measure.

Washington, Sept. 29.—The lie was passed at the opening of the session of the house between Mr. Morse of Massachusetts and Mr. Fithian of Illinois, but no blows were struck and no blood will be spilled. The altercation was an outgrowth of Mr. Morse's filibustering course yesterday. Mr. Morse in a five-minute speech tried to justify his action, during which he charged Mr. Fithian with being solely responsible for the refusal of the house to permit him to print in the Record some newspaper extracts attacking Commissioner Lochren. Mr. Fithian, rising to reply, said that inasmuch as Mr. Morse had seen fit to criticise him, that he desired to call the attention of the house to a rather dubious proposition made by Mr. Morse to him. He said Mr. Morse when he (Fithian) objected to his leave to print, came to him with honeyed words and informed him that he was a member of the committee on public buildings and grounds, and intimated that if he (Fithian) had a public building bill, he (Morse) might be able to help him if the Illinois congressman could find his way clear to withdraw his objection. "That is absolutely false," shouted Mr. Morse, striding in a warlike manner toward Mr. Fithian. "If the gentleman from Massachusetts denies this statement, I have proof to adduce that will satisfy any member of the house. My colleague, Mr. Goldzire, heard the conversation." As Mr. Fithian said this Mr. Morse backed against the rails and replied: "What the gentleman says has the color of truth, but the construction he places on it is unqualifiedly false." "If the gentleman denies my statement," yelled Mr. Fithian, shaking his fist angrily at the Massachusetts congressman, he is wilfully lying himself." In a minute the house was in an uproar. The speaker quelled the impending riot by pounding his desk vigorously with the gavel, and declaring both gentlemen out of order. This closed this incident. After some routine business, the debate on the elections bill was resumed and Gen. John C. Black of Illinois, ex-commissioner of pensions, took the floor in support of the bill. He was followed by Mr. Johnson (Rep. Ind.) who arraigned the Democratic party in such a manner that it brought Mr. Breckenridge (Dem. Ky.) to his feet with a reply that angered Mr. Johnson, who twitted the Kentuckian about the Pollard seduction suit. This brought about a stormy scene which had not quite blown over when the house adjourned.

The resolution offered yesterday by Mr. Teller, calling for information as to the anticipation of interest on government bonds since 1890, was taken up in the senate and adopted. The repeal bill was then taken up and discussed without incident during the remainder of the day.

Washington, Sept. 30.—The Democratic repeal senators have practically given up the idea that the Sherman law can be repealed unconditionally, and have, after numerous conferences, decided upon a compromise which they believe will end the long fight and secure the passage of a bill to relieve the present situation by the end of next week. Senator Gorman and other Democratic repeal senators have been actively engaged in arranging the terms of the compromise, and they believe they have succeeded. It involves concessions of both sides, first the repeal of the purchase clause, second the coinage of a specified amount, two or two and a half millions per month, until the total silver coinage is $700,000,000, then the coinage of all the bullion in the treasury, and fourth the sale of gold bonds to increase the gold reserve to an amount which will be deemed sufficient to insure the maintenance of gold and silver money at a parity. When the proposition was submitted to Secretary Carlisle he insisted upon the latter provision to the agreement. It is the general understanding to-day that the silver Republican senators will agree to this compromise; indeed, Senator Gorman vouches for that. The only thing in the way of this programme now seems to be the president. He has not, so far as known, absolutely given his consent, although the acquiescence of Secretary Carlisle would indicate that he would do so.

Washington, Sept. 30.—In the senate the repeal bill was taken up and Mr. Harris (Dem., Tenn.) addressed the senate in opposition to the bill. Mr. Harris quoted from a speech of Mr. Voorhees delivered on Feb. 18, 1893, in which he said he would have voted to take up the Sherman bill some days prior to that, but that "its passage would undoubtedly demonetize silver and leave it supported by not one word of legislation."

The house devoted the day to the discussion of the federal election repeal bill.

GLEANED AT ABERDEEN.

Aberdeen, S. D., Oct. 2.—Hon. A. W. Campbell, judge of this judicial district, will be married to-morrow to Miss Mamie Havens of Webster. They will reside at Aberdeen.

A prairie fire, which covered a vast tract of country, raged to the northwest of the city last evening. An immense quantity of hay and grain was destroyed together with several farm buildings.

Last winter the legislature passed a law making it a misdemeanor for any person to "jump" a board bill. The first case was instituted and conviction secured thereunder in this city when Landlord Hadley had George Hammel arrested and sent over the road for ten days.

MINNESOTA DAY.

St. Paul, Oct. 2.—The adjutant general received a call Saturday from Lieut. Col. N. B. Fulmer of Winona, Capt. Joseph Huston of Minneapolis and Brig. Gen. C. A. Towne of Duluth. These gentlemen reported that they will participate in the trip to the world's fair on the 11th, in regard to which all the members of the governor's staff are displaying much interest. Mr. Muhlenberg states that at least twenty-six members of the staff will avail themselves of this opportunity of enjoying each other's society and also of seeing the greatest exposition in the history of the world. A special train will be chartered, which will accommodate the visitors both going and coming.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH.

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 2.—The attention of the authorities was called to the sudden death of a child, ten days old, belonging to a young couple named Minison, living in poverty in rooms over a store. The district attorney and sheriff visited the place and saw the child which, though it died but a few hours before, was black. The authorities left to look for a physician and when they returned an hour later the child was gone. The father had carried it to a grave yard and buried it. The district attorney is in doubt what to do owing to lack of evidence. The parents offer no explanation.

HARD UP FOR CASH.

Washington, Oct. 2. — Representative Pickler has received two little tokens that are being used as money at Elkton, S. D. One is of metal about the size of a nickel and the other of pasteboard, a little larger, and both are stamped as good for a certain amount of goods in a store in South Dakota. They were sent to Pickler with the request that he ascertain of the treasury department if the issue of the tokens is contrary to law. This, Mr. Pickler claims, very forcibly illustrates the scarcity of the circulating medium in South Dakota.

FORESTERS.

St. Paul, Oct. 2.—The annual report of the high court of the Minnesota Order of Foresters was issued last week by Milton Gorges, the high secretary. The report, which is neatly printed and attractively bound, shows an increase of eight courts and 358 members the past year, bringing the total membership to nearly 1,000. The order has a balance of nearly $800 on hand.

AN INDIAN OUTBREAK.

Washington, Oct. 2.—A serious Indian outbreak is threatened on the Yuma reservation in California. Maguel, a deposed chief, with a band of his tribe, is reported to have attacked the reservation school house. It is not known as yet how serious the attack was, nor is it known if any one was killed. This information was received at the interior department by telegraph to-day from Indian Agent E. Studillo, of the Yuma reservation.

SERIOUSLY HURT.

Osage, Iowa, Oct. 2.—Cornelius P. Sheehan, a member of the firm of E. E. Sheehan & Co., clothiers, was badly injured in a runaway. He is in a very critical condition.

TYPHOID FEVER.

Waterbury, Conn., Oct. 2. — Seven militiamen who were in camp at Niantic in August are among the victims of typhoid fever which is quite prevalent here.

REBELS WHIPPED.

Buenos Ayres, Oct. 2.—The Argentine government claims to have information to the effect that the revolution may be considered almost at an end.

SHE WISHED FOR DEATH.

Minneapolis, Oct. 2.—Two young men whose names are not given are said to have rescued a young woman from drowning herself in eighteen inches of Lake Calhoun water. The girl would give no account of herself or actions, but is thought to live in the vicinity of Thirty-first street and Pleasant avenue.

BURGLARS AT RICE LAKE.

Rice Lake, Wis., Oct. 2.—M. T. Howard's hardware store here was robbed of goods valued at $400 and $40 in cash. The sheriff has a clue and is in hot pursuit of the thieves.

MORTGAGES IN MINNESOTA.

STATISTICS GATHERED BY THE BUREAU OF LABOR.

Increase of Foreclosures on Acre Property Held for Speculation and a Decrease of Foreclosures on Agricultural Holdings.

St. Paul, Oct. 2.—The state bureau of labor, among its other statistical labors, is continuing its study, which it began about two years ago, of mortgage indebtedness and foreclosures. In addition to collecting its own statistics relating to the subject, the bureau has made some comparisons between the facts secured by the United States census department and those tabulated by itself. The census discloses the amount of mortgage debt in force in Minnesota Jan. 1, 1890. The special work of the state bureau gives the mortgage foreclosures in 1881, 1891, and also for 1892 and 1893. The statistics for the two latter years will be embodied in the next regular report of the bureau. The comparison of the mortgage debt in Minnesota with that of the foreclosures in 1891 disclose the following ratios:

The total amount of mortgage indebtedness resting on acre property Jan. 1, 1890, was $75,355,562. Of this debt there were foreclosed during the year 1891 $2,050,301. The total foreclosures on acre property in the state were therefore 2.72 per cent of the face of the debt on that class of real estate in the preceding year. This ratio does not, however, show the average amount of foreclosures on farm property for the reason that there is in Minnesota a large amount of acre property other than that used for farming. In certain counties, as Ramsey, Hennepin, St. Louis and Washington, the land sold by foreclosure was property purchased or held for speculative purposes mainly. Then the land in many other counties is valuable mainly for the timber or minerals which it contains. Thus there are in the state sixteen counties in which the land sold by foreclosure in 1891 was mainly or exclusively held for speculative purposes or for purposes other than agriculture. The mortgage debt of sixty-six counties mainly devoted to agriculture amounted to $55,607,794, of which there was sold by foreclosure in 1891, $1,145,961. This was 2.06 per cent of the amount of the debt in force on the same property the preceding year. But while the ratio of foreclosure in the sixty-four agricultural counties was as given above, the ratio in the other sixteen acre property 4.58 per cent, or 2.2 times as great. In those counties the debt in force on acre property being $19,747,704, with an amount of foreclosure of $904,451.

The mortgage debt on city or town lots in the state was larger in amount than upon all acre property, both agricultural and speculative timber and mineral. The amount was $122,390,407, on which there were foreclosed $5,951,485, or 4.86 per cent. This ratio for city lots was thus practically the same as that disclosed by the sale of speculative acre property in counties like St. Louis, Hennepin and Ramsey.

But while the ratio of foreclosures for the sixty-four agricultural counties was 2.06, that of eighteen counties, including Winona, Mower and Olmsted, which are devoted to mixed farming, showed in 1891 a ratio of only 1.32. These same counties ten years earlier, when devoted mainly to wheat, had a ratio of foreclosures more than five times as great, or greater than the present ratio on city lots for the state.

The highest ratio of foreclosure in 1891 was found in Cook with a percentage of 15.55, and the lowest in Nicollet, which had a mortgage debt of $456,621 and had no foreclosures. Among the others with a small ratio are Cass, with a percentage of .11 and McLeod with .16.

The study of the bureau of labor into the mortgage foreclosures of 1892 has not yet been completed. So far as they have gone they show an increase of foreclosures on speculative acre property and town and city lots in all the smaller cities and of the larger ones with one exception. But while there is this increase in the foreclosure on speculative property in the last two years over those of 1891 there is a decrease in the foreclosures of farm property in most counties. Thus the ratio of foreclosures in Freeborn county in 1892 and 1893 is approximately only about one-fourth and one-fifth of those of the earlier year.

DISTRIBUTED THE SWAG.

Toledo, Ohio, Oct. 2.—The authorities of Noble county, Ind., are said to be in possession of conclusive evidence to show that John Connors and Eva Flint, who were arrested at Kendalville last Wednesday in connection with the Lake Shore train robbery, were two of the participants in the distribution of the booty. A prominent official of the Lake Shore, who has just returned from Elkhart, Ind., is the authority for this statement. A number of railroad men were the chief actors in the hold-up and robbery of the train at Kessler, Ind. It is stated that the woman, Eva Flint, made several trips from Elkhart, Ind., to Chicago, with large quantities of bullion, specie and gold, part of the proceeds of the robbery.

CUT HIM IN TWAIN.

St. Paul, Oct. 2.—Charles Bergmann, sixteen years old, employed as a press feeder in the Pioneer Press job rooms on East Third street, was instantly killed yesterday beneath the wheels of a Great Northern freight train. The accident occurred near the Dale street bridge at the Omaha transfer. Bergmann was climbing on and off the moving cars and was thrown or fell between two cars. He lived with his father, John Bergmann, at 625 Kent street.

YELLOW FEVER.

Brunswick, Ga., Oct. 2.—Twelve new cases of yellow fever were reported yesterday—ten white and two colored.

HERE'S A PICKLE.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 2.—The state board of normal regents is tied up on the normal school at Superior. The committee appointed by the board to select a site visited Superior and chose a location. After the selection was made the board was informed that the site chosen had never been tendered the committee.

INJURED IN A RUNAWAY

Red Wing, Oct. 2.—Thomas Bryan of Burnside, was injured in several places in a runaway in this city. He was dragged a distance of two blocks between the horses.

The U. S. Senate is still pounding away on the silver question and the matter seems as far from a settlement as ever. As it stands now the west and south favor silver and the east is in favor of repeal. All sorts of compromises are being offered and rejected. The tariff, the federal election bill and all kinds of measures are getting mixed up in the fight. A political revolution is brewing and the old party lines are beginning to break. Next Fall we have a congress to elect and the people will win.

Foreign correspondents are trying very hard and with great perseverance to create the impression that Europe is on the verge of a war that will involve nearly every country in the Eastern hemisphere, and talk confidently of how "unless matters change decidedly before long, things will focus to a point which may cause that long-looked-for spark to fly which will set fire to Europe's powder magazines," and "in the meantime the arming of the legions of Europe continues, and the day of the general conflagration seems to be approaching day by day." If these correspondents were to be believed, Europe is sitting on a volcano that is liable to become active without a moments warning and blow the peace of the world into kingdom come. It is the same old cry that has been wafted across the ocean every few weeks for the past eight or ten years, but it has apparently no better foundation than the usual surface indications of international bitterness, especially between France and Germany. The best assurance that no war is at hand is that the interests of all the European countries lie in the direction of peace.

The Winner.

A late archbishop of Dublin, noted for his originality and love of a joke, was one day walking along a road, when he came across three tramps lying on a bank by the roadside.

They were thus addressed by his grace: "I would be willing to give half a crown to the laziest of you, if I could tell which of you is most entitled to it."

One of them immediately jumped up and said:

"Give it to me. I haven't done any work for six months."

The second came forward and claimed it, saying he had not worked for a year.

While these two were disputing about the honor of being the laziest the third man, who had not even moved, sleepily said:

"Come here, guv'nor, and put it in my pocket."—Amusing Journal.

An Exchange tells a story of a tramp who rang a doctor's bell and asked the neat trim, pretty woman who opened the door if she would kindly ask the doctor if he had a pair of old trousers he was willing to give away. "I am the doctor," replied the plump and pleasing young woman, and the tramp fainted.

The title of the "toughest town in the Northwest" has recently been transferred from East Grand Forks to Moorhead. The reason is that East Grand Forks authorities will not permit gambling dens and Moorhead has been allowing them to run wide open and almost without restriction. But the prospects are now favorable for a change and the "gams" may be obliged to seek other fields. It is reported that this action is due to a quarrel between two den proprietors who have been at outs for some time past. The "plugged" man retaliated by entering a complaint and having the place closed. It is also reported that the state officials of Minnesota have taken a hand in the matter, and ordered the mayor to show cause why he issues permits to the proprietors of the dens.—Crookston Times.

WEDNESDAY October 4 1893

SHE SMOKED.

And, Oh, How Glad He Was to Find That She Did!

Two of us left the train at a country junction to wait for the train on the other road. It was pouring rain, and the waiting room was only a box about 10 feet square. The other passenger was a woman about 40 years of age, fairly well dressed, and as disgusted with the situation as I was. We must kill off 2¼ hours some way, and neither of us had a book or paper. It rained pitchforks, and there was no stirring out.

I am an inveterate smoker. I had not smoked for two hours previous to our arrival, but I had not been cooped up there 10 minutes when I felt that I must smoke if I had to stand out in the rain to do it. Although not introduced to each other, the woman and I exchanged opinions on the weather and other things. This helped some, but at the end of half an hour I was half dead for a smoke. I had six real Havana cigars in my pocket, and the thought of them made my mouth water. I finally got up and began pacing the floor and wishing that woman in Jericho, and she presently observed:

"Stranger, ar' ye in an awful hurry to git home?"

"No. I didn't expect to get home before 7."

"Got a heap o' bizness on your mind?"

"I can't say that I have."

"Mebbe you've bin tooken sick?"

"No, I'm in perfect health."

"You was actin so mighty narvous I didn't know but sumthin was wrong. Look a-here, stranger, ar' you one of these overpartickler men?"

"How do you mean?"

"Why, one o' these men who turn up their noses at the smell of terbacker?"

"Great Scott, woman!" I shouted as I turned on her, "do you smoke a pipe?"

"I—sometimes!" she stammered. "And I'm just dead fur a few whiffs this very minit, and if you don't keer I'll"—

"And I can't live 10 minutes longer if I don't smoke!" I yelled, as I grabbed for a cigar and a match.

She produced a paper of tobacco and a clay pipe, borrowed my light and we sat there and puffed and talked and puffed, and so thoroughly enjoyed ourselves that she said as the train came along:

"I'm glad it happened to be you. Lands a'massy, but if I'd bin cooped up with an overperticklar man fur 2¼ hours I'd a bin so nigh dead fur a smoke that I'd a tumbled in a heap and kicked the bucket fur good!"—Detroit Free Press.

Too Late.

The man with an important air took the seat next to the amiable looking man and smiled.

"Vacation trip, I s'pose," ventured the important one. The other nodded.

"Ever hear of the engagement insurance company?" asked the man of importance. "You know in summer how very impressionable men are. Well, I represent a scheme that is simply great. A man may become engaged to a beautiful girl during his vacation and upon his return to town totally forget the fact, owing to pressure of business, hard work, and so on. But the girl may remember, and then there is likely to be trouble. Now, you take out a policy in our company, and we insure you against further worry. Furthermore"—

"But," interposed the amiable man, "I am not"—

"That may be," continued the other. "You do not seem to be that kind, but there's no telling what may happen. Now, for $1 a month you become a member of our company, and if you should be engaged and afterward suffer with lack of memory, and a breach of promise case looms up, why, then we take the matter out of your hands and settle it. See? Only one paltry dollar a month insures perfect liberty to you. Do you not think it would be well to take out a policy?"

The amiable man shook his head sadly.

"No," he answered, "it is too late. I have been married several years."—New York Herald.

Woman's Way.

They had been out yachting when a squall came up, and for a time it was doubtful whether they could continue their existences here or on some other planet. The women were frightened into hysterics and not even the masculine part of the crowd was without fear. Finally they were landed safely, and every one drew a deep breath of relief. For a few minutes there was silence. Then a feminine voice remarked devoutly:

"Thank heaven! Now let's go and curl our hair. It's all out."—Chicago Tribune.

A Broad Hint.

Miss Tentrunks—You seem fond of rowing, Mr. Smalltalk.

Mr. Smalltalk—Yaas, it's fine exercise for developing the arms.

Miss Tentrunks (who is dying to be squeezed)—I am glad you told me, for otherwise I would never have suspected it.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Mistake Somewhere.

Mrs. Fangle—Have you secured a lodger for your second floor yet, Mr. Goslin?

Goslin (horrified)—I haven't been looking for a lodger, madam.

Mrs. Fangle—Why, I'm certain my husband told me you had rooms to let in your upper story.—Waif.

The Woman of It.

A young lady, visiting for the first time in the country, was alarmed at the approach of a cow. She was too frightened to run, and shaking her parasol at the animal she said in a very stern tone, "Lie down, sir; lie down!"—Calcutta Times.

George—Off for a holiday, eh? That's rather a small satchel for a trip.

Jack—Yes, nothing in it but a camera, tripod, canvas suit, canvas cap, canvas shoes and a canvas boat.—Good News.

"What a love of a dog!" exclaimed a caller at a Jefferson avenue mansion as a bundle of hair and ribbons trotted into the room.

"Yes, but he's a dreadful care," sighed the mistress of the household sadly.

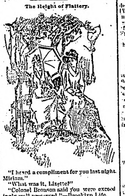
"What do you mean?" asked the visitor impulsively.

"Why, you know I bought Bijou in Paris last summer, and he doesn't understand a word of English, so I had a French maid for him all last winter, but last June she insisted on marrying some horrid creature, and now we have a French Canadian girl, and she worries me dreadfully."

"Does she abuse him?" asked the visitor indignantly.

"Oh, dear, no; she's as kind as can be, but these Canadians speak such poor French! Suppose she should ruin Bijou's accent! It makes me sick to think of it!" —Detroit Free Press.

The Height of Flattery.



"I heard a compliment for you last night, Miriam."

"What was it, Lizette?"

"Colonel Bronson said you were exceedingly well preserved."—Brooklyn Life.

Had to Do It.

Magistrate Ladner was seated in state behind the tall railing in his Callowhill street office, his dignified clerk at one elbow, his dreaded constable at the other, when a well dressed man entered, mounted the step below the railing, leaned over and observed:

"Judge, I wish you'd commit me to the house of correction."

"Too late," answered his honor curtly. "Drop around tomorrow morning."

The magistrate was thus brief because the request was no new one. Scores of tramps apply to the police justices for lodging and board on the Pennypack. But Ladner's visitor was not to be discouraged.

"My name, judge," said he, "is Silas Elkinton. I live at 2022 Gratz street. I've been drinking too much and eating too little. I'm all broken up, and I haven't a cent. Won't you give me a chance to brace up?"

"You can have it tomorrow," was the reply. "The boat has gone up the river, and I don't commit in the afternoon to suit the convenience of any man that wants to go to jail."

"I'm desperate," rejoined Elkinton. "If you don't commit me now, I'll smash somebody's window. Then you'll have to do it."

"Go ahead," said Ladner, for the man did not look a person to carry out the threat.

"You won't commit me?"

"No!"

Smash! Silas Elkinton's fist went through Magistrate Ladner's door plate glass, price, $1.75, right under the awful constable's very nose.

"Now," said the visitor, "I'll bet you'll commit me."

"You've thrown ceas," the magistrate rejoined, redhot. "I'll commit you for a year."

"You are more than kind," said Elkinton, and the constable marched him off to Moyamensing and a square meal.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Getting Out of It.

"Dennis, I'll give you a quarter if you'll take my dog to the pond and give him a swim," said a farmer to a native of Erin who was in search of work.

Dennis agreed, took the quarter and the dog and started off. He entered the first public house he came to, spent the quarter, asked the landlord for a pail of water, which he threw over the dog and then went back.

The farmer, however, noticed that the underpart of the dog's body was quite dry, and on taxing Dennis with the fraud got the reply:

"Faith, sorr, that dog can only swim on its back!"—New York Mercury.

Might Change His Mind.

"No, Herbert, I cannot marry you. Papa will not allow it," said a Harlem young lady to a member of the theatrical profession.

"Why not?"

"Because he says you are an actor. If I could only persuade him to go to the theater when you are in the play, I don't think he would object any more on that score."—Texas Siftings.

Words, Words.

Lawyer—And now please state the remainder of the conversation between you and the defendant.

Witness—I do not remember it, sir. The substance of it escapes me.

Lawyer (witheringly)—Never mind the substance of it. Tell us the words, and I fancy the jury will have the intelligence to get at the substance.—Harper's Bazar.

Fowl Training.

Mrs. Summerboard—This egg seems a little suspicious, and I'm sure I heard the hens cackling early this morning.

Mr. Summerboard—That's nothing. The farmer has the hens trained to do that every time a box of limed eggs arrives from the city.—Brooklyn Eagle.

It Was All Right.

Mr. Nuwed (gloomily)—My salary has been cut down 10 per cent.

Mrs. Nuwed (cheerily)—Oh! don't worry about that, dear! Silk, Ribbons & Co. are advertising perfectly lovely things at a reduction of 20 per cent.—Tit-Bits.

What He Took.

Bizz—I used to belong to a theatrical company myself.

Futlite—What part did you take?

Bizz—Oh, I took it all. I was treasurer. —Detroit Free Press.

Mrs. Banks—I don't know of but one way to keep a servant.

Mrs. Rivers—How is that?

"In alcohol."—Truth.

Still She Was In Favor of It.

Mrs. Watts—What, you don't mean to say that you do not believe in Sunday as a day of rest?

Mrs. Potts—I might, if Mr. Potts was not so fond of good dinners.—Texas Siftings.

His Summer Suit.

Binks—Is that a summer weight you've got on?

The Grand Central Railroad Station Chicago.

Is being fitted up for hotel purposes during the world's fair. This magnificent fire-proof structure, located at the corner of Harrison street and 5th avenue, in the very heart of the city, will devote the 3rd, 4th and 6th floors to this purpose. It will be run on the European plan. Each room will have hot and cold water, electric lights and be steam heated. The office and ladies parlors etc. will be located on the 3rd floor and the building will be supplied with all modern conveniences. There will be from 100 to 200 rooms for guests.

This acquisitson to the hotel facilities of Chicago will be appreciated by those who wish to be safely housed in a fire-proof building, conveniently located in the city …it.

Those desiring accommodations can secure them by addressing Mr. T. C. Clifford, the manager, at Chicago Ill. The hotel will be opened May 15th 1893.

The Grand Central Station is the Chicago depot of the Northern Pacific railroad, (Wisconsin Central division) and by taking this through car line to the world's fair city, visitors will avoid the discomfort of transfer through the city.

From this station trains run direct to the world's fair grounds at intervals during the day.

VISITORS TO THE TWIN CITIES.

No one should visit the Twin Cities this summer without running out to Minnetonka Beach and Hotel Lafayette, the largest and best located resort house in the west. The lake is one of the most picturesque in the country and is well supplied with steamers and sailing, rowing and fishing craft. A number of regattas will be given. The Great Northern has a double track line to the lake and runs frequent trains.

DEVILS LAKE CHAUTAUQUA.

The first summer Assembly of the North Dakota Chautauqua comes off June 28th to July 17th. An extensive program has been arranged, including many noted speakers, singers, etc., and the occasion promises to be most interesting and instructive. Devils Lake is a summer resort point. The Great Northern Railway gives reduced rates. Address J. B. Fancher, Secretary, Devils Lake, N. D. for programs and other inform. A trip to the lake and assembly will make an enjoyable outing.

A LARGE DROP IN RATET TO THE WELT

The Great Northern inaugurated its new train service to the Pacific Coast on the 5th inst. With sweeping reductions in rates, amounting to 40 percent in many cases. The rate from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Puget Sound was reduced First-class from $60.00 to … to Spokane from $35 to $30; and to Helena and Butte from $40 to $25, with corresponding reductions on second-class tickets both through rates applying proportionately to intermediate points. It is the purpose of the Great Northern to make rates to help the development of its territory. It is much the shortest line across the continent, was built on business principles, and at a cost of about one half of that of the older trans-continental lines, and is therefore prepared to correspondingly well by its territory and patrons in rates and accommodations.

Last summer I was attacked with a bad case of flux, and after taking four doses of Beggs' Diarrhoea Balsam was immediately relieved and cured. I have sold it for the past six months … say that it gives general satisfaction.—W. Smith, M. D. Puxico, Mo.—For sale by J. L. Johnson, Druggest.

"More Haste, Worse Speed."

Of all the "tournaments" I ever saw, one among "dairymaids" at an agricultural show was perhaps the last to associate itself with that heroic procedure which such a word suggests. There were about forty of them, armed with "churns" and started at the same moment to make butter against time. Each came provided with a watch, and the temptation was almost irresistible to turn the handle of the machine as quickly as possible. But no, butter must be "humored," not driven. The silent lists were filled with the provokingly deliberate "flip-flop" of forty churns. One of the slowest combatants won the race. I never realized more plainly that "haste is worst speed."—The Cornhill Magazine.

THE LETTERS J AND W.

An Interesting History of Two Important Members of the English Alphabet.

It is a fact not so well known but that it may be said to be curious that the letters j and w are modern additions to our alphabet. The use of the j may be said to have become general during the time of the Commonwealth, say between 1649 and 1658. From 1630 to 1640 its use is exceedingly rare, and I have never as yet seen a book printed prior to 1625 in which it appeared. In the century immediately preceding the seventeenth it became the fashion to tail the last i when Roman numerals were used, as in this example. viij. for 8, or xij. in place of 12. This fashion still lingers, but only in physicians' prescriptions, I believe. Where the French use j it has the power of s as we use it in the word "vision." What nation was first to use it as a new letter is an interesting but perhaps unanswerable query.

In a like manner the printers and language makers in the latter part of the sixteenth century began to recognize the fact that there was a sound in spoken English which was without a representative in the shape of an alphabetical sign or character, as the first sound in the word "wet." Prior to that time it had always been spelled as "vet," the v having the long sound of u or of two u's together. In order to convey an idea of the new sound they began to spell such words as "wet," "weather," "web," etc., with two u's, and as the u of that date was a typical v the three words mentioned above looked like this: "vvet," "vveather," "vveb." After a while the type founders recognized the fact that the double u had come to stay, so they joined the two v's together and made the character so well known as w. I have one book in which three forms of the w are given. The first is the old double v (vv), the next is one in which the last stroke of the first v crosses the first stroke of the second, and the third is the common w as used to-day.—Cincinnati Times.

A Peculiar Paper.

Ink erasers of all kinds are regarded with suspicion in many public offices, and it is not many months since the use of an effective ink-erasing solution which has been introduced into one of the public departments of New York city was forbidden by a special mandate from the mayor. It is held that quite enough men are already led astray by the facility with which the figures of books of account can be manipulated, and any thing which makes the erasure of legitimate records is operating against the interests of society. Quite in line with this distrust of ink erasers is the apprehension with which the news of the invention of a paper from which ink writing may be erased with a moist sponge has been received in Germany. The prevalent feeling in regard to the invention is indicated by the fact that it has not only been refused a patent, but its manufacture and sale has been declared unlawful. The product bears the appearance of ordinary paper and is made of the same ingredients, with the addition of asbestos and parchment glue. After being rolled the pulp is immersed for a few seconds in concentrated sulphuric acid, diluted with 10 or 15 per cent of water, and is then pressed between glass rollers and passed successively through water, ammonia solution, and a second time through water. It is next strongly pressed, by rolling, and finally dried on rollers of felt and heated metal.

Cooking by Electricity.

The greatest novelty in cooking appliances at the fair is unquestionably the apparatus for cooking by electricity, shown in operation in the gallery of the electricity building. The electric current is conducted into plates of enamel, where it meets with resistance and is converted into heat. These plates are attached to specially constructed ovens, broilers, griddles, flatirons, etc. An ordinary stewpan, coffee or tea pot, or steam cooker may be heated on the "disk heater." An outfit of articles necessary for a private house costs $60, or $77.50 if a heater for a kitchen boiler is included. Electricity has the same advantages over coal that gas has; its advantages over gas depend upon the fact that combustion, with its needs and limitations, is wholly done away with. There are no products of complete or accidentally imperfect combustion, there is not even a slight loss of heat into the room or up the flue. The strongest points of electrical cooking are comfort and convenience, but claims are made for it also on the score of economy. It is said that the cost of cooking by electricity is less than the cost with coal and about the same as where fuel-gas is used. This is on the supposition that the electricity is furnished at half the price charged for lighting.—From Household Arts at the World's Fair, by F. A. Fernald, in the Popular Science Monthly.

BY THE SAD SEA WAVES.

"Heavens and earth! can I believe my senses?" exclaimed Mrs. Tolliver. "Is it possible, or have I gone mad?"

Mrs. Tolliver, who was a member of one of the old families of Switchelville—an old member in every sense now—was not in the habit of uttering violent exclamations, or calling upon the heavens and the earth, or requesting invisible familiars to tell her whether she was in her right mind.

She was a stout, little old lady, not unlike the later portraits of Queen Victoria, and she had always felt that violent emotions, or the expression of them was inexpressibly ungenteel. Therefore she maintained a dignified gravity at all times, and expressed her displeasure when necessary, in choice words and an oratorical cadence.

Still, moments will come into any one's life in which the feelings resist control; this was one.

My dear reader, if you were a grandmamma, and had a lovely granddaughter and were to enter the music-room unexpectedly and find the music master kissing her, what would you say?

As probably you are of the granddaughter, instead of the grandmother, age, you may believe you would retire in confusion, and apologize afterward for intruding. At least it will be your opinion that that would be your duty. But wait till you come to forty years, and you will know much better.

Mrs. Tolliver was sixty, and knew exactly what she ought to do.

After the first moment of unutterable horror, she gathered herself together, assumed a queenly attitude, deliberately walked up to the young people, who, in their consternation, remained with their lips puckered up for a salute destined never to come off, his arm about her waist, one of her hands in his, as immovable statues. Indeed, I assure you they would have looked beautifully on your parlor mantel-piece, could Cupid then and there have transformed them into Dresden china figures.

Yes, Mrs. Tolliver knew what to do, and slowly and solemnly she sailed down the long room in her black satin, perfectly fitting mantle, bonnet of the latest matronly style, "as worn by the duchess of Dinglewood," said the English fashion magazine, and lifting to her eyes her long-handled glasses, surveyed the frightened sinners, much as she surveyed the game and poultry when she went to market.

First she examined them as a pair, then she directed her gaze toward her granddaughter, and said, solemnly:

"Adelaide Evelina, go to your own room and stay there until I come to you."

"Yes, grandma, dear," gasped Evelina. "Oh, yes, immediately; but please let me tell you."

"There is no occasion for telling me anything, Adelaide Evelina," replied Mrs. Tolliver. "Do as I say."

Adelaide cast a despairing glance at the young gentleman, and left the room.

"And now, Mr.—Mr.——"

"Moreau, Madam," suggested the music teacher. "Maurice Moreau."

"Ah, responded Mrs. Tolliver, who remembered his name perfectly well "Mr. Moreau, then you will please make out your bill at once—to date—since of course the lessons cease to-day."

"As to the bill, I hope you will not ask for one," said Mr. Moreau. "The pleasure of teaching Miss Adelaide would be recompense for anything. I know you are startled; I know you think me very wrong, but I love her—I adore her. And she has confessed that I am not indifferent to her. May I hope—"

"I requested you to make out your bill, Mr.—ah—Moreau," said Mrs. Tolliver, in a melodious monotone, dropping her glass and shutting her eyes.

But Maurice continued:

"Listen, madam. I am not rich, but I am of good family. Everywhere musicians are respected. I have some talent—others say more of me than that. I have composed a grand opera."

"That was all in the letters of recommendation," said Mrs. Tolliver. "And while I think of it, I must say that it astonishes me that musical directors of position, and above all, clergymen, should recommend a teacher who habitually kisses his young lady pupils. There is no depending on any one's vouchers nowadays. I suppose they do it—as housekeepers give good characters to poor servants—from lack of moral principle. However, I am never forgetful of principle. I shall remedy that error. A young man in the habit of—"

"Madam," cried poor Maurice, who had been running his fingers through his black and curling hair until it stood up about his head like a featherduster, "madam, do not say 'habit.' Never did I kiss a pupil in all my life before. Never have I loved one sufficiently to wish to do so. Adelaide is my first, my only love, as I am hers."

Maurice's grandmother was a German lady. It is possible this statement might have touched her heart. But Mrs Tolliver was from Boston. It acted on her forefinger, and that touched the hand-bell on the table. At the sound of the little ting-a-ling a black boy in livery appeared.

"Show Mr.—ah—Moreau out," said Mrs. Tolliver.

Mr. Moreau bowed, with his hand on his heart. Mrs. Tolliver dropped her eye-lids, and leaned back in the chair.

Until she heard the front door close, she remained motionless. But as soon as the hall was clear, she arose and hurried up-stairs.

If the walls of poor little Adelaide's boudoir had eyes and tongues they could tell you that even in the best society of Switchelville home manners occasionally differ from those kept for company. Human nature is pretty much the same the world over. Before madam had left the room miss had been called a little idiot, and a disgrace to her sex, and had had her ears boxed.

A few weeks later Mrs. Tolliver had had private interviews with the mammas, grandmammas, aunts, and, in one case, with the widowed papa of twin daughters, and the result was that Maurice's daily mail consisted for some time of little billets giving various reasons for discontinuing Maria's, Amanda's, Selina's, Maud's, Georgiana's or Cornelia's lessons for the present.

The girls were all as eager to "discontinue" as their elders could desire, when they fully realized that the romantic young teacher whom they had cakes were eated to the last crumb. all considered "so lovely," and who had never thought of kissing them, had been caught kissing Adelaide Tolliver. They kept the first part of the thought to themselves, and expressing the latter, won golden opinions.

Maurice, though without pupils, lingered in Switchelville in the vain hope of meeting Adelaide. But she was never permitted to go out alone.

He wrote twice. Unfortunately, Mrs. Tolliver knew his hand and reinclosed his notes unopened.

After awhile the family went to the seaside. The cook and gardener, a married pair, were left in care of the house. But a maid was going down. This maid had a tender heart, and took charge of a letter for Miss Adelaide, which she agreed to deliver secretly. Maurice paid high postage, to be sure.

However, he would gladly have given ten times as much, for Adelaide soon answered it. You may imagine the letter:

"We are at the Beach house," she wrote, in conclusion. "If you come out on Wednesday, grandmamma will be gone out to sail in the Patmore's steam yacht. I shall have a headache and stay at the hotel, and you could meet me on the beach at 1 o'clock, when every one will be at lunch. I shall be there, at all events.

"Your broken-hearted
—"Addie."

You may be sure that Maurice was on the beach in time.

I would like to quote: "One kiss they took, nae mair," but it would not be appropriate. They could not have counted their kisses. Those blessed seaside appetites left them undisturbed and unnoticed. But at last Adelaide said:

"Maurice, I suppose we meet for the last time. Grandma says that I must marry Senator Blackbag."

"But girls do not marry people because their grandmothers desire it," said Maurice.

"I know I shall," said poor Adelaide. "The family will back her up. I'm wax in their hands. I'm unable to fight; I can only die. I will soon, I know."

"We can elope," said Maurice.

"We would be followed. I should be brought back," said Adelaide. "What is the use of resisting fate?"

Maurice groaned. The fact that he has neither present traveling expenses or future market money handicaps even the most ardent lover.

"If we cannot live together, we can die together," was all he had to say.

Adelaide gently hinted that the future abode of suicides was theologically supposed to be rather uncomfortable; whereas, if they died at the appointed time they might meet in heaven.

"Of which we know very little," Maurice replied.

Then Adelaide hoped he "would not forget religious principle," and Maurice told her that she never loved him. Then she wept.

It was a very uncomfortable interview on the whole. At the moment of parting it became tragic. But as Mrs. Tolliver would be home at 5 o'clock, and the people were coming down to the beach, it was necessarily brief. Adelaide went straight to the hotel; Maurice walked away, plunged into despair as deep and romantic as any tenor in an Italian opera. Adelaide had been torn from him, also fortune in the shape of twelve music scholars and a church engagement, and he resolved to drown himself.

Yes, he would hire a bathing-dress, swim gayly out—swim until he met death. So it would end.

Being a German, Maurice began the programme correctly. He was a splendid swimmer. Out he went—out, out, out. It would be a good, long distance, too, before the end of his endurance came.

Meanwhile, he rather enjoyed it. But he was in earnest. Land was almost out of sight when suddenly shrieks fell upon his ears. They came from the deck of a little steam yacht. The people on board must have detected his design and were screaming over it, he thought, and swam faster. But something bobbed before him; it looked like a bundle of black silk. As he touched it, it gasped. He recognized on the instant that there was a woman in the bundle. He grabbed it.

However intent a man is on suicide a woman must be saved from drowning. It was an interruption, but he had plenty of time.

"Madam," he panted in an ear that opportunely turned up at this moment, "if you clutch me about the throat, we both go to the bottom. I don't care, but if you do—"

"I—have—common sense," spluttered the being in the bundle, and proved the fact by keeping its hands down. Therefore Maurice was able to swim in slowly but surely. A voluminous, balloon-like black silk skirt, and a bustle which acted in some degree like a life preserver, assisted maters materially, and finally the anxious crowd upon the beach began to cheer, and kindly arms received a bundle of black silk, above which appeared the face of Mrs. Tolliver, who had followed her escaping parasol from the deck of the steam yacht into the ocean.

Maurice was credited with having seen the accident, and having started on his long swim in consequence. Could he be expected to correct the impression? He was the hero of the hour to every one. His wish to die departed, and life grew sweet again when Mrs. Tolliver said:

"Some people would have allowed me to drown after the way I used you. But you are a man and a hero, and you shall have any reward you ask."

And, then, of course, Maurice declared that this world held nothing valuable to him but his Adelaide. Mrs. Tolliver said:

"Bless you, my children"—words to that effect. And Switchelville had a great wedding in the early winter.

"But for Maurice I might have been supper for the sharks that night," says Mrs. Tolliver, "and I know how to be grateful. I shall leave him all my fortune. Meanwhile, we live together."

THIMBLE RIGGING.

A Gentleman Who Knew What He Was About When Playing Frauds.

During a little pedestrian trip a gentleman came unexpectedly upon a country race course and on one portion of the ground found a thimblerig establishment in full work. Notwithstanding the remonstrances of his companion, the gentleman, who was a bit of a madcap, insisted on watching the game.

"Now, would the gent like to wager a crown he could find the pea?" remarked the expert.

"Yes," was the reply.

The money was on both sides deposited, and the pedestrian lifted up the thimble, pointed out the required pea and took the stakes.

A second bet, "double or quits," ended, to the surprise of the expert, in the same result.

Then a third wager, "a pound or nothing," steadied the nerves of the loser, and the trick was accomplished with great caution. The gentleman lifted up the thimble and showed the pea, at the same time pocketing the stake.

"S'help me," etc. "I didn't put it there!" exclaimed the bewildered artist.

"No, but I always carry my own pea," rejoined the man, who had come out right as he went on his way with his spoils of war.—London Tid-Bits.

LEFT THE BULL TO HIS FATE

A Texas Editor Whose Dignity Came to His Rescue After a Scrimmage.

A few mornings ago the Cleburn (Texas) correspondent of the Dallas News heard a scuffling noise and frequent exclamations emanating from the cow lot of Editor Scurlock, of the Chronicle. On glancing toward the place from whence the sounds came the reporter saw, to his utter amezement, the head of the Press Association—its honored president—engaged in a rough-and-tumble fight with Jack Dabney's Jersey bull. Interest in the fight soon took the place of astonishment. The Chronicle man was only armed with nature's weapons—the bull was equipped in like manner. The first round had been fought when the News man arrived. The bull stood facing his antagonist, who was standing in the corner of the fence, with his hat brim partly torn away, his shirt sleeve ripped up to the elbow and his face begrimmed with dust. The man of the quill opened the second round with a left uppercut on the bull's nose, and got a stomach punch for his pains; then he clinched the bull and round and round the lot they went, Schurlock going up and down with the motion of the bull's head like a mop used by a man seasoning barbecued meat. The bull had this round all his own way, and wound up by landing his antagonist against the stable considerably winded. Scurlock, as soon as he could catch his breath, started to call for help, but realizing that the reputation of the Press Association of Texas was at stake, decided not to "peach," but to fight it out right there if it took all summer. So making some kind of remark about the idea of a little old Jersey bull having the gall to tackle the president of the Texas Press Association, he spat on his hands and waded in again. In less time than it takes to tell it the bull lowered his horns, caught him on the hip, as it were, and sent him skyward, where he spread out like a parachute and come down flying-squirrel fashion on his stomach with a kind of a half-muffled thud.

"Dad gast your measly soul!" said Scurlock as he caught his breath and pulled himself to his feet. "I'll fix you with this scantling." But the bull knew what he was doing, and as he stooped to pick up the plank he found himself going in at the stable door and landed in the horse trough. Before the bull could follow up his advantage Scurlock had climbed down from the trough and slammed the door in his face. Then there was a picture to make an artist's heart swell. The bull on the outside bellowing and pawing up the dust, which completely enveloped the combatants, and the whole barnyard looked like a miniature cyclone was getting in its work. Scurlock boldly stood inside the stable, his clothes torn, hat gone, and his face blackened with the dust of the conflict and soliloquized somewhat after the following manner:

"You dad-gasted, measly scoundrel, you commenced this fight yourself. I was only trying to put you back in the stable and you got mad about it. Now, dad blame your hide, you can't come in here at all. I'll just crawl out of this back window and leave you where you are."

So saying, he locked the door and betook himself through the little back window over the horse trough.

How Gravitation Varies.

That changes, involving the displacement of immense masses, are going on within the earth is one of the suggested explanations of some observations recently announced in France. It has been found at the Parc St. Maur observatory that the force of gravitation, or the weight of bodies, undergoes daily variations. These are rendered sensible by placing in the earth a tube containing a column of mercury balanced by the pressure of hydrogen contained in a closed vessel connected with the tube, and registering by means of photography the alterations in the level of the mercury.

After all corrections have been made for the effect of changes of temperature, it appears that certain sudden variations in the level in the mercury are only to be explained on the theory that they are due to changes in gravitation. These variations last from fifteen minutes to an hour. They are, of course, very small, amounting to a maximum to only one-twentieth of a millimetre, but they may imply very great displacements of matter in the interior of the globe.

It has been suggested that similar experiments should be conducted in the neighborhood of active volcanoes, where liquified rock is moving beneath the surface, and other disturbances of the strata of the earth are taking place.

Such facts as these present to the imagination a very formidable picture of the gigantic commotions that accompany the slow cooling and contraction of the globe, on whose hardened crust we rear our edifices, wondering, when some of them are occasionally shaken down by earthquakes, at the instability of a planet that is apparently so solid.

Nice Discrimination.

"George" is a handsome bearded colored man, not black, but of a Spanish complexion, who is managing man—buyer, butler and general factotum—for a Boston lady who keeps an expensive boarding house "on the Hill. The manners of George, who was bred in the South, are perfect—at once self-respectful, easy and flattering to each boarder's feelings of personal consequence.

He is one of the rare men who is always deferential and never servile. Though but a head-waiter, he might well be called a gentleman. That he has a very nice discrimination in language this true anecdote will show.

The point on which George is touchy is the reputation of the boarding house in which he is so trusted, so liked, and so much the managing man. He is assiduous in maintaining the table on a liberal scale, and seeing that no boarder lacks anything or waits unduly for any attention by reason of the neglect of the minor servants, who are all women.

If they are all busy George "fills the gaps." Thus it chanced one day, not long ago, that he leaned deferentially over the shoulder of a new boarder and said: "Apple pie and ice cream, sah,"

The boarder is somewhat deaf, and long accustomed to less liberal boarding houses. Not sure that he had heard George aright, he looked around and said:

"What? Apple pie or ice cream?"

"No, sah, not here, sah! Apple pie and ice cream, sah," said George, with admirable suavity and perfect vindication of his boarding house from possible suspicion of being one of those places where they offer the guests nothing more than a choice between dishes of dessert.

Sermons—Slumbers.

"Shut the doors!" cried Father Andre one day to the Suisse on duty, when he observed the archbishop of Paris asleep during his discourse. "Shut the doors, the shepherd is asleep, the sheep will get out!" "Some men preach," said Sydney Smith, "as if they thought sin is to be taken out of a man as Eve was taken out of Adam, by casting him into a profound slumber." So at any rate thought not South, who, preaching one day at Whitehall, observed King Charles II. and several of his attendants asleep. Stooping down, he cried out to one of the delinquents, "My lord, I am sorry to interrupt you, but if you snore so loud you will wake the king."

His majesty thereupon awoke, and turning to his neighbor, remarked with his accustomed good nature, "This man must be made a bishop; remind me on the next vacancy." Latimer speaks of a woman who suffered from insomnia, and who, all soporifics having failed, was taken to the Church of St. Thomas of Acres, when she fell at once into a refreshing slumber. Lapenius, Chaplain to the Danish court, (1662), noticing that a large number of the congregation fell asleep during the sermon, suddenly stopped, and pulling from his pocket a shuttlecock, commenced to play with it. The strange device, we are assured, had the effect desired.—Temple Bar.

A Masher Who Could Not Stand a Girl With a Sketch Book and Pencil.

Three decidedly attractive girls got on a Sixth avenue elevated train at Forty-second street and immediately a score of masculine eyes were leveled at them. The girls found seats together and tried to appear unconcerned and quite oblivious to the pronounced advances for a flirtation from two young swells who sat opposite. But all their efforts to appear at ease were unavailing. The young men persisted and the girls blushed and looked uncomfortable. Finally one of the girls opened a small sketch book on her lap, and then raising her eyes she gazed straight at her admirer opposite. He petted his moustache and smiled. She made a few strokes with her pencil in the sketch book, but did not smile. When she raised her eyes again he realized that she was sketching him. The other two girls watched the progress of the sketch and giggled. This, with the smiles of the other passengers, was more than the subject of the sketch could endure. He crossed and recrossed his legs, pulled his hat down until it touched his nose, and at last rushed desperately into the next car. When he had gone the girls closed the unsoiled pages of the sketch book and laughingly threw away the bit of pencil, which, when picked up by another passenger, proved to be quite devoid of lead.—New York Advertiser.

Louis Chapelle, owner of a steam thresher, was found dead by the side of the road about nine miles north of Dover. Chapelle was supposed to have been thrown from his cart, as his neck was broken.

The county commissioners of Meeker county met to appoint a county treasurer to serve during the investigation. They appointed the suspended treasurer, much to the surprise of a great many. People are wondering what the governor will do in regard to the appointment.

Record Broken by a Hoosier Waiter.

"The worst 'done' I have been in a long time was at Indianapolis during the Grand Army encampment last week," said E. G. Gardner, a commercial traveler. "The crowd was too big for the town, and it was difficult to secure attention at the hotels. I was stopping at the Bates house, and had been sitting at the dinner table for half an hour clamoring for food. Finally, in an effort to impress the waiters with the advisability of serving me, I placed a silver dollar carefully but conspicuously under my glass. Presently a waiter passed by and spied it. He came back and made a bluff at arranging the table. I turned just then to speak to a friend at my side. Before I looked back or realized what the colored gentleman was doing he had raised the glass, extracted the coin and vanished into thin air. He had not taken my order, and he never came back any more. I waited another half hour, and had to give up a half dollar more to another waiter before I got anything to eat. I held to my money that time, however, until I got my dinner."—Washington Star.

Wondrous Sly.

"I tell yo' w'at, dat boy ob Pompey's am a sly little picawune," remarked Uncle Caesar, darkly.

"How's dat?" inquired the person addressed.

"It am jess dis a way," continued Uncle Caesar. "I see dat boy down in a s'cluded corner ob de Souf Meetin' house hoss-sheds dis mawnin'. He was standin' wid his back to me, but I know his back jess like I do his face, an' I suspicioned by de way he was stoopin' down an' makin' his jaws go, dat he was 'gaged on a watermillion."

"Sho, now!" ejaculated the listener.

"I crope up behin' him, an' put my han', sof', on his shoulder, an' I ax him, 'Gib me a taste o' dat watermillion, 'Gustus?' an' dat boy turn like he was shot, an'—W'a do yo' pro'nostigate?"

"I gib it up," said the listener.

"W'y, it wa'n't 'Gustus, true's yo's a born niggah! 'Twas a boy jess de size an' contumations ob 'Gustus, an' he had a big slice ob watermillion, sure 'nuff, but 'twa'n't 'Gustus. An' dat's w'at I mean 'bout his bein' a sly little picayune. T'ink ob him makin' a fool ob me, dat a way!"

A party of tourists have left Yuma, Sal., for an exploration trip to the mouth of the Colorado river.

FIFTY THIRD CONGRESS.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SPECIAL SESSION OF CONGRESS.

Condensed Record of the Business Being Transacted by our National Law-makers—Routine Report Day by Day.

Washington, Oct. 4.—A novel amendment to the bill repealing the purchasing clauses of the silver act of 1890 was submitted in the senate by Senator Morgan of Alabama. It proposes the re-enactment of the free coinage act of 1837 and the remission of 20 per cent of tariff duties to the countries which receive American standard dollars (of the present weight and fineness) at par as legal tender money. The debate on the repeal bill was continued by Senators Dolph of Oregon and Palmer of Illinois in advocacy of the bill and by Mr. Power of Montana against the bill.

The debate on the election bill in the house only showed one flash of interest—when Mr. Murray, the South Carolina negro representative, interrogated Kyle of Mississippi. Boutelle of Maine supported the colored man, and between them they forced the Mississippian to appeal to the speaker to prevent further interruptions.

Washington, Oct. 5.—In the senate the first open suggestion of a compromise on the repeal bill was made and attracted the closest attention on both sides of the chamber. Senator Butler of South Carolina, in an impassioned speech against the passage of the bill, made compromise the salient feature. In reply to the question which he said had been asked over and over again as to when a vote would be had on the bill, Mr. Butler said: "Compromise, compromise is the solution of the struggle here." At the conclusion of Mr. Butler's remarks Mr. Blackburn (Dem. Ky.) addressed the senate in opposition to repeal, and said that if he were obliged to choose between a gold and silver basis for the financial standard of the country, he would prefer a silver one. He hoped some acceptable compromise would be reached. Mr. Blackburn closed his speech by stating that while he allowed no one to exceed him in friendship for, and loyalty to, silver, he would not engage in any obstructive tactics in opposition to the bill. The people demanded action, and they were entitled to know their fate.

In the house under call of committees Col. Oates reported the bankruptcy bill, Mr. McCreary reported the substitute for the Everett bill; amending the Geary exclusion act, and Mr. Wheeler reported favorably a bill requiring railways passing through territories to establish stations at all town sites located by the interior department. The debate on the elections bill was taken up by Mr. Compton of Maryland, in support of the repeal.

Washington, Oct. 6.—In the senate Mr. Hill (Dem. N. Y.) gave notice that at some future day he would move to amend the rules providing that upon any roll call (other than one to expressly determine the presence of a quorum) any senator who is paired may announce such pair, and his presence and the announcement shall be entered in the journal and the senator so present and paired but not voting shall be counted as present, for the purpose of making a quorum. The repeal bill was then taken up. Mr. Call of Florida technically resumed the floor and on motion of Mr. Voorhees the senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. The senate remained in executive session until 5:15 p. m. and then adjourned.

Interest in the elections debate is not sustaining expectations in the house. It is flagging instead of increasing. To-day the only speeches that attracted any attention were those of the colored man, Mr. Murray of South Carolina and Mr. Mooney of Mississippi. Mr. Murray was accorded unusual attention, largely, perhaps, out of curiosity on account of his color. The public gallery was packed to the doors with negroes who applauded his utterances.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Congressman J. A. Tawney of Minnesota addressed the house for more than an hour on the subject of the repeal of the federal election laws, making what such Republican leaders as Henderson and Hepburn of Iowa, Boutelle of Maine, Grosvenor of Ohio and Burrows of Michigan pronounced the best speech yet made on the Republican side during the progress of the debate. He was listened to with marked attention. There was an unusually large attendance of members on both sides of the house, and more came in from the cloak rooms and lobbies during the progress of the speech. Even Speaker Crisp, who had resigned the chair early in the afternoon and was engaged in his private room, came out and listened attentively to the Minnesota representative. As he concluded he was congratulated by every Republican member on the floor. Altogether, it was as favorable a debut into the arena of national politics as Representative Tawney and his friends could have wished for him. The elections repeal bill was discussed by several others on both sides of the house.

In the senate Mr. Blackburn of Kentucky submitted an amendment to the bill repealing the silver purchasing clauses of the act of 1890. It strikes out the Voorhees substitute, leaving the bill as it passed the house, and then provides for the free coinage of silver of American production. The secretary of the treasury is authorized on the first day of each month to establish the seignorage to be charged for the following month, which is to be the difference between the market price of silver bullion and the minted value after coinage. This seignorage is not to be coined, but is to be sold by the secretary of the treasury for gold, to be used for the purpose of maintaining the parity of gold and silver. This is the amendment which Mr. Blackburn in his recent speech said he would propose with a view of reaching a compromise. The debate on the repeal bill was continued by Senators Call, Allison and others.

MISSOURI MURDERS.

Dexter, Mo., Oct. 9.—About midnight last night Joe Miller made an assault upon the home of Lee Edwards, with whom he sought a difficulty. In an effort to reach Edwards, who had retreated from Miller, the latter knocked Mrs. Edwards down. Edwards then shot Miller dead. He surrendered. William Rose was shot and killed near here last night by Dan Hawks, who alleges it was an accident, but who is in jail pending an investigation.

FOUND THE SKELETON

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 9.—A murder mystery was unearthed here to-day by the discovery of the bleaching skeleton of Paul Lee, a wealthy farmer, in the woods about two miles from the city. Lee was one of the pioneer farmers here and had amassed considerable property.

It is understood that Lee had not lived happily with his wife, and about two years ago he left for an extended visit at his old home in Norway. Returning in December last he found that during his absence his wife had secured a divorce on the grounds of desertion, and soon after had married a man who had been employed by Lee. He visited his home to effect some settlement with his former wife about property, having decided to leave the husband in possession of his former wife. Neither the woman nor her new husband would speak to him or allow him in the house. He returned to East Grand Forks and stopped several days at a boarding house, drinking heavily. He disposed of a quarter section of land, receiving $500 in cash. He then went to a saloon, where he purchased a jug of liquor, telling the barkeeper of his troubles. Lee remarked that he was going back to Norway and leave his property here.

Nothing had been seen or heard of him since until to-day, when a skeleton was found in the woods, which, upon investigation, proved to be the remains of Lee. A hole in the skull told the story of his death. The empty jug lay by on the ground. A search failed to find any money. It is believed that he was murdered for his money. The coroner will investigate.

EDITOR SUICIDES.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—What promises to develop into a sensational suicide occurred to-day on the railroad tracks at the foot of Monroe street. From papers found on the suicide's body he is believed to be Henry Kershaw, editor and manager of the New Orleans Commercial. Early this morning the police at the central detail station saw a well dressed man standing on the railroad tracks, apparently engrossed in deep thought. A long freight train was approaching and as it drew near him the man threw himself upon the track and placed his neck across the rail. Police-Lieut. Hayes and two patrolmen hastened from the station but were too late. The train reached the man before they had crossed half the intervening space and severed the suicide's head from the body.

PEACE IN BRAZIL.

Washington, Oct. 9.—President Peixoto of Brazil has consented to dismount the guns in Rio de Janeiro, and Admiral Mello, commander of the insurgent fleet, has agreed not to fire on the city so long as the guns remain dismounted. This word was received from Commander Picking, of the United States cruiser Charleston, now in the harbor of Rio de Janeiro, last night. The agreement was, it is believed, brought about through the efforts of the representatives of the foreign powers at Brazil. For the last week the foreign ministers have been trying to bring about an agreement to save the Brazilian capital from destruction at the hands of the rebels, and, according to the foreign official dispatch, they have been successful, for the present at least.

AFTER A BLACK DEVIL.

Fort Scott, Kan., Oct. 9.—The family of Miss Agnes Barr, the girl who was outraged in this city Saturday, succeeded in suppressing the tale of intense brutality until this morning. The negro horribly lacerated the girl's body, struck her with his fist, kicked her in the side and stomach, and when leaving dragged her to the door and compelled her to kiss him good by, saying he would probably never see her again. A colored man giving the name of Asa Clasley expressed a satchel to Kansas City an hour after the assault, and suspicion rests upon him. Several posses numbering 1,000 men are searching for the criminal. A negro is reported surrounded by a mob of several hundred men in the woods near here. The sheriff with twenty-five officers has started for the scene.

SHOOTING AFFRAY.

Minneapolis, Oct. 9.—What may prove a fatal shooting affray took place in South Minneapolis last night when Thomas Lawler, a bricklayer by trade, shot and seriously wounded Louis J. Schlink, a butcher. Schlink, who is a prosperous young man and unmarried, was at the residence of Lawler's divorced wife, helping move a piano, he said, when Lawler, whom it is said was drunk, fired four shots through the window at Schlink, one of them taking effect in the back, and may prove fatal, should inflammation set in.

VIGILANT WINS.

New York, Oct. 9.—Bowling along under a fair wind, the American cup defender Vigilant crossed the line at Sandy Hook lightship Saturday afternoon a winner in the first of the international races for the America's cup. The Valkyrie arrived home almost eight minutes later, and both were at once taken in tow by their respective tenders and hurried to their places of shelter off Bay Ridge. It was a magnificent contest from every point of view, and demonstrated, for that day at least, the superior construction of the center-boarder over the cutter, as well as the superior yachtsmanship of the men who handled the English boat. There will be another race this afternoon.

DROWNED.

Kaukauna, Wis., Oct. 9.—John Phillips has been missing since Thursday. This morning his body was found in a stream that runs back of the Kaukauna water power canal. It is supposed that he fell from the bridge while crossing over Thursday night and was drowned. He was a resident of this city for fifteen years, and was well-to-do. He leaves a large family.

ESCAPED.

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 9.—Superintendent Dickinson, of the Northern Pacific, has received a dispatch stating that Charles Jones, alias Charles Kincaid, who was the leader of the Northern Pacific train robbers captured in Montana, escaped from the officers. A posse has gone in pursuit.

DEFAULTING TREASURER.

Omaha, Oct. 9.—Late last night Barrett Scott, the defaulting treasurer of Holt county, reached O'Neill in custody. He was turned over to the county authorities and his bond fixed at $24,000.

TWO THOUSAND ARE DEAD

FEARFUL RESULTS OF THE STORM ALONG THE GULF.

It Is Now Known That Two Thousand Lives Were Lost Along the Louisiana Coast—The Property Loss Amounts to Millions.

New Orleans, Oct. 5.—Over 2,000 killed and nearly $5,000,000 of property annihilated, is the record of the great gulf storm in Louisiana. There has never been anything approximating it since the country was settled. More than half the population in the region over which the hurricane swept is dead. Everything is wrecked and not a house in ten is left standing, while the survivors are left in the most destitute condition, without food or even clothing, for most of them were sleeping in their beds when their houses were crushed by the wind or the waves.

New Orleans, Oct. 5.—It is now estimated that the loss of life on Grand isle and Cheniere and in the Grand and Adams bays, and the Cook, Chaton and Oyster Bayous settlements will reach 800 to 1,000. Matthew Wertzen and Dominick Mirgovich, two sailors, were rescued by one of the luggers. The story they tell of the disaster at Grand isle is horrifying in the extreme. They went almost wild in giving their description of the terrible night, and cried bitterly. The sea was raging all day, they said, and toward night had increased to an alarming degree. About 10 o'clock in the night it had shifted to the southwest. Then came the almost incredible story. These men said they were living on the island at the west end. Far out at sea, as the flashes of lightning would vividly illuminate the darkness, could be seen a mammoth wave traveling with wonderful rapidity towards the island. Closer and closer it came, and brought with it a noise of thunder. On, on, came the terrible wave, growing larger each moment. The island was in the stillness of slumber, and not a human being could be seen anywhere. These men being too frightened to go to their homes, remained in their boat during the terrible night. Horrified, they watched the tidal wave approach the island, until like a flash of lightning, it struck. Then all was darkness and the island as far as the eye could reach was covered with water. The next flash of lightning found the two fishermen far off to the north of the island, and, looking about in the direction of the island, they could see nothing but a sheet of water, the island having totally disappeared.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 5.—On both sides of the bay are many villages, some of which were totally destroyed, and their inhabitants have gone. There are no trains running either way on the Louisville & Nashville road, but a large force is clearing the wreckage, and an effort will be made to run trains to-night. An Austrian bark, name unknown, for Pensacola, is ashore in the gulf side of Navy cove. As none of the crew have come in it is supposed that all are lost.

COAL FOR AMERICA.

London, Oct. 5.—A dispatch received here from Sunderland to-day says that much excitement exists there owing to the fact that the United States coal merchants have entered into competition with those of England for the coal trade of this country. Ship owners, merchants and others received to-day circulars from the United States in regard to shipments of coal from Philadelphia, the freight being quoted at 12s 10d per ton. The correspondent who sent this item of news from Cumberland adds that this is absolutely unprecedented in the history of the coal trade of Great Britain.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

San Francisco, Oct. 5.—Chief of Police Crowley has decided to formally charge John Tyrrell with the murder of the four men killed by the dynamite explosion in front of Curtin's boarding house. Two men have testified that they saw Tyrrell acting in a suspicious manner just before the explosion, and a cable car gripman has positively identified him as one of the three men who boarded the gripman's car carrying a valise labelled Axel Sorenson, which was found loaded with dynamite.

CLAN-NA-GAEL.

London, Oct. 5.—The Pall Mall Gazette publishes a long interview with a secret service officer who was employed by the government since the Parnell movement. It is presumed that the officer referred to is the famous Le Caron, who was well known in connection with the great Times suit. The secret officer referred to declared that the Clan-na-Gael is being reorganized under the direction of Patrick Egan and Patrick Ford as a result of the rejection by the house of lords of the home rule bill.

FREE FIGHT.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—In a free fight at Lemont, yesterday, among the laborers on the drainage canal, John Ganley received a severe cut on the shoulder and lost so much blood that he may die. Charles Culver, who wounded Ganley, was badly cut in the forehead. Culver, Ganley, D. Connors and J. Kennedy were arrested and held in bonds of $500 each for fighting.

DROPPED DEAD.

Murphysboro, Ill., Oct. 5.—Capt. James Johnson, traveling passenger agent for the Cairo Short Line & Illinois Central railroad, dropped dead here this afternoon. Capt. Johnson was well known throughout the state. He was a resident of Belleville and had been for nearly forty years in the railroad business.

MIND A BLANK.

Black River Falls, Wis., Oct. 5.—Charles Gilbertson, well known in this section of the state, was adjudged insane by the county judge yesterday and taken to the state asylum at Mendota.

THROWN FROM A CARRIAGE.

Spicer, Minn., Oct. 5.—Mrs. L. Crevier and Miss M. McManus were thrown from a carriage. Mrs. Crevier's arm was broken and Miss McManus has a badly sprained ankle and wrist.

FINE GRAIN.

Pipestone, Minn., Oct. 5. — William Schuett, who owns a fine farm on section 10, in Sweet township, this county, is hauling some large loads of grain to this city. A few days ago he brought in a load of wheat which contained ninety-three bushels, and to-day he brought in a load containing 150 bushels of oats.

Dr. Wattson of Red Lake Falls was in the village a short time last Saturday. He had been called to attend to Oscar Prantz a farmer living west of here who has been ill several weeks with Typhoid fever. The Dr. reported that he is very sick and will probably not recover.

There is a very remarkable thing about the time of day. When it is one minute after nine o'clock it is "past nine," but when it is thirty minute after nine it is only "half-past nine."

The farm work is further advanced in this vicinity this fall than it has been at this time for several years past. The plowing is nearly completed and threshing will be finished in about two weeks

St. Paul Dispatch. A petition about 100 yards long was filed with the governor today asking for the division of Polk county into four.  The petition is the result of a number of towns to be county seats. This is the second petition from that county. The first was for one new county. The matter will be voted on at the next election.

CHICAGO, SEATTLE, AND THE WORLD'S FAIR.

October 1st through sleeping car service will be inaugurated over the Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul and Great Northern Railway. Cars leaving Chicago evening and Seattle every morning and run through without change. For further particulars or information about trips to any part of the country see agent St. Hilaire. Now is the time to visit World's Fair, Its like was never seen before will be seen again.

Prof. Hicks has this to say regarding the month of October: "October comes in with cool days and frosty nights From 3d to 6th change to warmer with bluster and fall rains. About 9th and 10th it will again grow warmer and severe autumnal storms with gales on lakes and seas. Snow north and west very probable, Storm period, 15th to 18th will take on more wintery aspect generally and will be followed by a cold wave and freezing to the north. Secondary disturbances due about 22d and 23d up to storm period 26th to 30th. This latter period promises a smart dash of winter toward and following the close of its storms. Seamen and Lake navigators should watch."

HARVEST EXCURSIONS.

Cheap round trip excursions to points along the Great Northern Railway, in Northern Minnesota and South and North Dakota, Aug. 22nd, Sept. 12th, Oct. 10th, from St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior, in connection with eastern lines. The Northwest is favored this year beyond other parts of the union, and now is the time to invite investors and home seekers to help continue development and growth. Advise your friends to take advantage of the low rates and visit you, or if you will write to F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A. St. Paul Minn., he will send publications and full information about rates, etc., to your eastern friends.

On Saturday last Hon. H. Steenerson filed a complaint with the railroad and warehouse commission stating that the rates charged by the Great Northern for the transportation of grain and mill stuffs from Crookston Fisher and East Grand Forks to Minneapolis and Duluth were exorbitant and asking that they be reduced to 12 cents per hundred to the terminal points named. The present rates on these products is 16½ cents from Crookston and 17 cents from Fisher and East Grand Forks. Steenerson sets forth in his complaint that the price of grain has declined 50 per cent in the last three years during which time the present rates have been in effect and that the price of labor has decreased correspondingly. He also ventures the opinion that the cost of operating the road has decreased from 25 to 40 per cent, and that the cost of equipment has decreased 20 per cent, The officers of the company have been notified and unless they decide to make a reduction a hearing will be arranged later,—Polk County Journal.

Thought It Was Worth More.

A few weeks ago a railroad collision killed among others a passenger living in a country town. His remains were sent home, and a few days after the funeral the solicitor to the company called upon the widow to effect a settlement. She placed her damages at £3,000.

"Oh, that sum is unreasonable," replied the solicitor. "Your husband was nearly 50 years old!"

"Yes, sir."

"And lame?"

"Yes."

"And his general health was poor?"

"Very."

"And he probably would not have lived more than five years?"

"Probably not, sir."

"Then it seems to me that £400 or £500 would be a fair compensation."

"Four or five hundred?" she echoed. "Why, sir, I courted that man for 10 years, ran after him for 10 more, and then had to chase him down with a shotgun to get him to marry me. Do you suppose that I'm going to settle for bare cost of shoe leather and ammunition?"

The man of law concluded that she deserved all she could get.—Spare Moments.

A TERRIBLE REVENGE.

A Deeply Wronged Cheese Gets Even With a Rich Banker.

Robert Bullion, the wealthy and luxurious banker, sat in his rich Nob Hill dining room alone. We say alone because there was no one with him. He had just finished a sumptuous repast and now reclined in his cushioned chair, reading the latest, fifth edition, extra, evening paper. Anon he sipped the small black coffee in which he thoughtlessly, carelessly dangled a Golden Gate souvenir spoon. Presently, without stirring, he raised his eyes.

"James," he called in the voice of one accustomed to a great command of language.

The functionary appeared.

"Cheese," said Robert Bullion. His voice was large and resonant.

Presently the door opened again and something came in and sat upon the table.

Silence reigned again. Robert Bullion had found something new in the silver question in the paper. Ere long, still without any movement, Mr. Bullion said slowly:

"Is that you, cheese?"

"Yes, sir," said Limberger in a rich, creamy tone of voice. Lim always speaks for himself.

"Come closer," said the banker.

The cheese obeyed.

Continuing without any upward glance, the rich man took the cheese in his right hand with some tongs.

"I just sent for you to say that you have been especially invited to be present at this dinner," the banker said. Then he bit a large crescent in the cheese and chuckled at the dryness of his own humor.

* * * * * * *

It was late at night. Robert Bullion had attended to all his lodge duties and now retired. He sank slowly into the soft embrace of his couch. It was a very expensive feather and eider down couch.

He was very drowsy. He fancied that he was just about to sleep, but he was mistaken. He awoke with a troubled start.

He was not in his own room. No, he was not in a bedroom at all. He was in some pantry. It looked familiar. In fact, it was familiar. It was his own pantry, and he was curled up in a horribly cramped position in a dish on one of the big high shelves.

This was simply awful. He was totally unable to move or help himself.

Outside in the dining room he heard the rattle of dishes. Some one was eating an evening meal. There was a long, harrowing silence. Then he heard a voice—strong, rich, creamy—say "James."

He then heard his flunky go into the dining room.

"Bullion," was all the voice said.

The butler came, took him down, dish and all, and permitted him to walk over and get upon the table in the dining room. Resistance to these details seemed impossible.

In his accustomed cushioned chair, reading the latest, fifth edition, extra, evening paper, sat a large, sleek well to do Limberger cheese. Anon Lim sipped a small black coffee, which he gently agitated with a Golden Gate souvenir spoon.

Ere long the rich cheese spoke.

"Is dot you, Bully?"

"Yes, sir," said Mr. Bullion.

"Come closer, Bobby."

Robert obeyed.

"I yoost send fur you to inform you dat you huf been elected to be bresent at dese high junks," said the cheese, with a slight German accent. Thereupon the cheese bit a large crescent out of Mr. Bullion's stomach and chuckled over the joke which it had cracked.

Mr. Bullion fainted with the pain in his abdomen. When he recovered, what there was left of him was again upon the shelf in the pantry awaiting the next meal. He was weak and exhausted. His stomach still pained him intensely. He rolled over in his anguish and fell headlong over the edge of the shelf.

When he came to himself, which he did when he struck bottom, he was upon the floor of his own bedroom again.

He staggered to his feet and dragged himself hurriedly to where he could get a brandy toddy.

The daily papers said one day:

"Robert Bullion, the wealthy banker who has been suffering from a severe attack of gout, is recovering as rapidly as can be expected."—Brooklyn Life.

An Awful Shock.

There is a little mother over in northeast Minneapolis, who has a 14-month-old infant son who is the apple of her eye, and whom she evidently regards as something of a heavyweight. She resides a few squares distant from the scene of the explosion of the other morning, and her house was one that felt the shock. A friend afterward expressed his sympathy.

"And did you really feel the explosion?" he asked.

"Yes, indeed," she replied. "It shook the house from garret to cellar."

"What did you think was the matter?" he curiously questioned.

"I thought the baby had fallen out of bed," was the unexpected answer.—Minneapolis Tribune.

A young man sat at the piano one evening and bored the majority of the guests for two hours, and one man was bold enough to ask who he was.

"Why, sir," was the indignant answer, "that's Mr. Allegro, a rising young musician of our city."

"Oh, he is!"

"Yes, sir, he is."

"Well, I don't believe it, for I'll swear I've been waiting here all the evening to see him rise, and he has kept there pounding at the poor, helpless piano as if he were nailed to the stool and clinched."—Texas Siftings.

Here is a story about Prince Engalitcheff, the handsome Russian who, being at all hours of the day one of the best groomed young men in all Chicago, is always a welcome guest at the big palaces along the avenue.

In the matter of dress the prince is a sort of fashion plate that the young men of the town delight to copy, and it is in connection with his very faithful following of the sartorial fashions that this rather amusing story is told:

Attired in one of the very long frock coats, coming down almost to one's ankle, and that now constitute "the proper caper" for young men of fashion in the afternoon, the prince called the other day at a very swell Michigan avenue mansion, the chief ornament of which is a young lady who, while she more than once has been reported engaged to be married within the last year, still lends hope to her host of admirers by refraining from an actual dip into the matrimonial sea.

The prince entered and was warmly welcomed by the young lady and her mamma. The latter after a minute or two asked cordially, "My dear prince, won't you take off your coat?"

Much too well bred to express surprise, the prince merely declined the invitation, and the conversation proceeded.

Presently the elder lady, oblivious of the nods and winks sent in her direction by her charming daughter, repeated the invitation: "Prince, you must be frightfully warm with that heavy coat on. Pray remove it; you will be so much more comfortable."

The prince looked just the least bit embarrassed as he replied, "Excuse me, my dear madam, if you please I will r-r-retain it."

It was not until the noble caller had left the house that the daughter explained to her doting parent that the prince had not worn an overcoat.—Chicago Times.

"Lowgienic Fare."

"Papa," said the boy as he looked over the table and saw that the usual bill of fare, consisting of bread, potatoes, dried apples and cold water, had not been varied by the addition of anything else, "can't you afford anything better than this kind of grub? Do other folks live on the same victuals we do?"

"They ought to, my son, whether they do or not. We are vegetarians and hydropathists and believe in living hygienically."

"This is hygienic, is it?"

"Certainly, my son."

"Then all I've got to say is that. I wish I'd been born in a lowgienic family."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

All Uncle Fred.

"The dear little thing has its papa's eyes, hasn't it?" said one of the admirers of a 6-weeks-old baby.

"Yes," added another, "and it's mamma's hair."

"It has its Uncle Fred's nose," said a third.

"Yes," joined in the happy papa, "and it's going to have its Uncle Fred's name in the hope that by and by it will get its Uncle Fred's money."—Harper's Bazar.

The Boy Found It.

Doctor—Did you take that prescription around to Mr. Ailing?

Boy—Yes, sir.

"I forgot the exact number of his residence. How did you find it?"

"I told everybody along the street that I had one of your prescriptions for Mr. Ailing, and they all told me to look for a house with crape on the door."—Good News.

A Compassionate Nature.

"You look sad," said one of young Feathergilt's friends.

"That's out of sympathy for my friends."

"Out of sympathy?"

"Yes, they are all so hard up that not one of them can lend me $5."—Washington Star.

The Discontented Lobster.

Across the shining summer shore
  Two lady lobsters strayed,
And one was bent with age and hoar,
  And one was but a maid,
Who, leaning on her parent's claw,
  In deep dejection said:

"Mommer, why is it I must wear,
  Always the same old dress?
Of course at your age one don't care,
  But I'm tired, I confess,
Of this garb of yellow, green and black,
  And its unbecomingness.

"Today I saw upon the shore
  A lobster like a rose,
I know that shade would suit me more—
  Why can't I have such clothes?
In such attire I'd be a belle
  And knock 'em down in rows."

Her aged parent dropped a tear
  Upon her wrinkled cheek,
And for a moment, faint with fear,
  She had not strength to speak.
Then blew her nose affectingly
  And said in accents weak:

"Oh, envy not that lobsterette
  Its garments debonair!
Into hot water you will get
  If you seek to be as fair.
And what boots it, after you've been boiled,
  What style or shade you wear?"

—Buffalo Express.

Anxious About That Score.

In a country town there lived an Irishman who spent most of his time and money at one of the many public houses. In consequence of this and the small wage he earned, he had run up a rather long score on the slate. One day a fire occurred at this particular public house, and the fire brigade was called into requisition. Among the first at the conflagration was the Irishman. Above the noise and din of the people assembled he was heard shouting vociferously, "Don't fail to play on the slate."—Tit-Bits.

The Grand Central Railroad Station Chicago.

Is being fitted up for hotel purposes during the world's fair, This magnificent fire-proof structure, located at the corner of Harrison street and 5th avenue, in the very heart of the city, will devote the 3rd; 4th and 6th floors to this purpose. It will be run on the European plan. Each room will have hot and cold water, electric lights and be steam heated. The office and ladies parlors etc. will be located on the 3rd floor and the building will be supplied with all modern conveniences. There will be from 150 to 200 rooms for guests.

This acquisition to the hotel facilities of Chicago will be appreciated by those who wish to be safely housed in a fire-proof building, conveniently located in the city itself.

Those desiring accommodations can secure them by addressing Mr. T. C. Clifford, the manager, at Chicago Ill. The hotel will be opened May 15th 1893.

The Grand Central Station is the Chicago depot of the Northern Pacific railroad, [Wisconsin Central division] and by taking this through car line to the world,s fair city, visitors will avoid the discomfort of transfer through the city.

From this station trains run direct to the world's fair grounds at intervals during the day,

VISITORS TO THE TWIN CITIES.

No one should visit the Twin Cities this summer without running out to Minnetonka Beach and Hotel Lafayette, the largest and best located resort house in the west. The lake is one of the most picturesque in the country and is well supplied with steamers and sailing, rowing and fishing craft. A number of regattas will be given. The Great Northern has a double track-line to the lake and runs frequent trains.

DEVILS LAKE CHAUTAUQUA.

The first summer Assembly of the North Dakota Chautauqua comes off June 28th to July 17th. An extensive program has been arranged, including many noted speakers, singers, etc., and the occasion promises to be most interesting and instructive Devils Lake is a summer resort point. The Great Northern Railway gives reduced rates Address J. B. Fancher, Secretary, Devils Lake, N. D. for programs and other inform. A trip to the lake and assembly will make an enjoyable outing.

A LARGE DROP IN RATES TO THE WEST

The Great Northern inaugurated its new train service to the Pacific Coast on the 18th inst. With sweeping reductions in rates, amounting to 40 percent in many cases. The rate From St. Paul and Minneapolis to Puget Sound was reduced First-class from $60.00 to ; to Spokane from $25 to $30; and to Helena and Butte from $40 to $25, with corresponding reductions on second-class tickets both through rates applying proportionately to intermediate points. It is the purpose of the Great Northern to make rates to help the development of its territory. It is much the shortest line across the continent, was built on business principles, and at a cost of about one half of that of the older trans-continental lines, and is therefore prepared to correspondingly well by its territory and patrons in rates and accommodations.

Last summer I was attacked with a bad case of flux, and after taking four doses of Beggs' Diarrhoea Balsam was immediately relieved and cured I have sold it for the past six months and must say that it gives general satisfaction —J. W. Smith, M. D. Puxico, Mo. For sale by J. L. Johnston, Druggist.

GOLD MISTAKEN FOR BASER METAL.

Blunders Easily Made by Those Accustomed to Handling Bills.

When you are not accustomed to the handling of them gold coins are a nuisance, says the New York World. They are so apt to be mistaken for coins of baser metal and smaller denominations, to the impoverishment of the individual who makes the blunder.

I still retain vividly painful recollections of an occasion when in London I paid a cabman a sovereign under the impression that it was a shilling. That cabman had a contract to drive me a certain distance every night, but I never clapped eyes on him again. He evidently wasn't a hog. He was satisfied with what he had made out of the contract and was willing to give some other cabman a chance.

I have no doubt that during the brief period recently when so many houses paid off in specie because they couldn't get bills many careless persons let gold slip through their fingers under the impression that it was silver or nickel.

One instance came under my own observation. A friend had just received his week's pay in five dollar gold pieces, and I improved the opportunity to tell him my experience with the London cabman, at which he laughed heartily. Then being something of a cigarette fiend he sought the nearest cigar store for the means of indulgence in his favorite vice. He thrust a hand into one of his pockets, tossed what he thought was a nickel on the counter and strolled out of the shop. I shall always patronize that cigar dealer hereafter when I get a chance. It didn't take him five seconds to decide that he preferred a nickel with a clear conscience to five dollars without it. My London cabman had been trained in a different school.

Invitations to Church Weddings.

On receipt of an invitation to a church wedding it is proper to mail, at any time before the ceremony, visiting cards, representing the persons invited, to the persons issuing the invitation, whether or not you attend the ceremony, writes Mrs. Hamilton Mott, in the Ladies' Home Journal. If a reception card is inclosed, a written acceptance or declination of both invitations should be sent at least a week before the wedding. For afternoon "At Homes" cards should be left for "Teas," though for evening receptions it is not usual to leave cards—a card-case not forming a necessary part of an evening costume. And finally it may be said that some prompt acknowledgment should be made to every form of social invitation, or the recipient will be guilty of a breach of etiquette.

The Model Girl.

"Yes, there was one girl who lived right along with us for twenty-two years," said the old lady, with a reminiscent sigh, "and she might have been with the family yet if she had wanted to stay." "She must have been a jewel," said one of the callers. "Yes. We never had any trouble with her about wages or afternoons out or anything of that kind." "Good cook?" "Excellent. She could play the piano beautifully, too." "Did you let her do that?" "Oh, yes. And she read the papers to us and kept the library in order, and could keep accounts and paint on china and embroider on silk as nicely as anybody you ever saw." "I never heard of the like! How in the in the world did you happen to let her go?" "Well, there came a young man along one day—a professor in college—and said he wanted her, and—and here's one of the children now. Come, darling, and sit on grandmother's lap."—Chicago Tribune.

Tempting Offers to Inventors.

It can hardly be doubted that there will be a good number of American competitors for some of the following prizes which are offered by the French society. A prize of $2,280 will be made in 1898 for the discovery that is most useful to the French industry. A prize of the same amount is given every three years by the society (the next award will be made in 1895), to the person making the most useful industrial discovery. The Henri Giffard prize of $1,140 is awarded every six years (the next award will be in 1896), to the discoverer of a valuable chemical or physical application in electricity, ballistics or hygiene. The special prizes for 1894 are: Three hundred and eighty dollars for a motor whose weight is less than fifty kilogrammes per horse-power; a prize of $570 for an apparatus that shall decrease materially the smoke of furnaces, especially those under boilers; a prize of $190 for a heavy oil engine; a prize of $570 for a steam engine consuming at the maximum speed, under average load, seven kilogrammes of steam per horse-power per hour; a prize of $570 for the discovery of a substance that can be substituted completely for gutta percha in at least one of its applications, or for work that will continue to develop the production or improve the cultivation of the gum. The following prizes are to be awarded in 1895: A prize of $380 for a small motor designed for use in a shop located in a house; a prize of $380 for the preparation industrially of ozone and means for its application; a prize of $380 for an apparatus or a process which shall make it possible to measure or determine the insulation of the different parts of an electric installation while the current is on; a prize of $570 for investigations which shall contribute to the discovery and application of the best means in domestic and general product for the purification of drinking water. Competitors must submit their proofs by the 31st of the December preceding the year on which the prize will be awarded.

The Editor of the "Sun" an Advocate of Life Assurance.

Mr. Charles A. Dana, editor of the Sun, has carried $50,000 of life assurance with the Equitable for a number of years. In evidence of his satisfaction he has authorized the publication of the following particulars:

$52,821 50. New York, July 10, 1893.
Received from the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, Fifty-two Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-one Dollars and Fifty Cents, in full of all claims, including profits, under Policies Nos. 211,432 and 212,944, on the life of Charles A. Dana, now surrendered, said policies being in favor of himself and not assigned.
—Charles A. Dana.

This receipt furnishes an admirable text for the following remarks:

It illustrates the fact that men of affairs—shrewd business men—at financial centers believe in the life assurance issued by the Equitable.

It illustrates the value of life assurance per se.

Had Mr. Dana died at any time during the existence of the assurance, his heirs would immediately have received $50,000 in cash.

But the Tontine policies of the Equitable have other advantages. For example, Mr. Dana was given the choice of a number of methods of settlement; the following are two of them:

Instead of drawing cash, he might have converted his policies into an annuity which would have given him an annual income for life of over $8,900. Or

The amount of his assurance would have been increased from $50,000 to $89,800, with no further premiums.

A FAMOUS TOUR.

FOREIGN COMMISSIONERS VISIT THE GREAT FARMS AT LARIMORE.

They See Forty-Five Deering Self-Binders, Manned by 150 Men, Moving in the Same Direction at the Same Time.

Forty-five Deering Twine binders, forming a procession half a mile in length and steadily moving through a waving sea of wheat—such was the sight that greeted the foreign commissioners to the World's Fair during their recent famous visit to the bonanza farms of North Dakota. This imposing spectacle was witnessed on the great Elk Valley farm at Larimore, N. D., a farm comprising 12,000 acres or nearly nineteen square miles, 10,000 acres of which formed one unbroken, fenceless field of wheat. To witness this sight the distinguished spectators, comprising fifty foreign diplomats, World's Fair commissioners and representatives of the foreign press, together with an equal number of Americans eminent in World's Fair, railroad and commercial circles, had undertaken the discomforts of a thousand mile journey from Chicago; and the exclamations of delight and surprise, and the cries of "bravo" that rang out on the air showed that their expectations were vastly more than realized. From St. Paul through Minnesota and North Dakota they traveled as guests of the Great Northern railroad, and the farther north they traveled the warmer and more cordial was their reception. Here at Larimore they found the climax of interest and the height of hospitality. They were met at their train and escorted to carriages by what seemed to be the whole population of the little city of Larimore, headed by O. H. Phillips, the mayor, Gov. Shortridge and N. G. Larimore, the proprietor of the great farm which they were to see. Silently, and almost breathlessly at first, they viewed the mighty phalanx of machines; then quickly alighting from their conveyances they followed the machines on foot, eagerly peering into their mechanism, as if bent on finding the secret of their perfect, automatic, almost noiseless action. For an hour or more they followed the machines, asking innumerable questions of Mr. Larimore and his sons, when their attention was called to scientific tests of draft that were being made under the supervision of Mayor O. H. Phillips and Mr. C. H. Olmstead. The machines tested, the Deering Pony binder and the Deering Ideal mower, were remarkable because embodying the ball and roller bearings, such as are used in bicycles and bicycle sulkies. Twelve tests were made on each machine with a registered Osterheld & Eickmeyer dynamometer, each representing the draft involved in cutting a 6 foot swath, 100 feet in length, in twenty to twenty-five seconds of time. The six cutting tests with the binder showed an average of only 298 pounds of draft. Six tests followed in which the machine was run in gear over the tops of the stubble just cut. This test, which is known as "rolling draft", showed an average draft of 207 pounds. The Deering Ideal mower, a new machine also fitted with the bicycle bearings, showed a cutting draft in heavy grass averaging only 126 pounds, and a rolling draft of only 93 pounds. The remarkably low draft—about half the draft of ordinary machines—shown by these figures for both machines was carefully noted by the astonished visitors as demonstrating the practicability of the bicycle bearings. The same Pony binder drawn by two light mules cut an acre of wheat in 23¼ minutes.

PAPER TWINE USED.

A notable feature of the binder test was the use on the Pony binder of the Deering "paper" twine, made from a wood fiber. This twine, patented by William Deering & Co., bids fair to prove a Waterloo to the twine trust, as it is said that it can be made and sold at prices considerably below those now paid for the hemp and sisal fibers.

At the close of these tests the commissioners, together with a party of spectators, were tendered a good, substantial prairie chicken dinner by Mr. Larimore. Toasts followed. Gov. Shortridge, Mayor Phillips and Rev. J. H. Keeler delivered eloquent addresses of welcome. Appropriate responses were made by D. M. Deperalta of Costa Rica, Mr. Grinevsky, the assistant Russian commissioner, Don Alberto Gomez Ruano of Uruguay, Mr. Harry Vincent of Costa Rica and Judge Atwater. Mr. Larimore also spoke. He said that by using the best methods and machinery he had reduced the cost of raising and marketing wheat to between $4.50 and $5.00 an acre.

MR. APPLEBY SURPRISES THE COMMISSIONERS.

Mr. John F. Appleby, the inventor of the Appleby Twine binder, whose presence was a surprise to the commissioners, told the history of his early struggles and the final universal adoption of his invention. He paid a glowing tribute to Mr. William Deering, to whose enterprise he said the world was indebted for the introduction and general adoption of the machine. Said he: "In 1879, when the Deering company made seventy-five of these binders, people smiled knowingly and predicted failure. The next year when Mr. Deering made 3,000 of the machines, the manufacturers of the old reaper and the wire binder said he was crazy. If he was crazy all the manufacturers of harvesting machinery who have been forced to follow his example have also become violently insane. [Laughter] and the millions of farmers who now use the invention are fit candidates for a lunatic asylum." [Laughter and applause.]

The excursionists left for Alton and the great Dalrymple farms at 4 p. m., where they witnessed threshing machines at work on a crop of wheat that was cut from 77,000 acres by 190 Deering binders—a make that is used exclusively by the Dalrymples. From Alton they journeyed to Fargo, where they were royally received and shown the marvelous result of the western pluck, which in a season of hard times had built a solid city of brick and mortar on the bed of ashes that had lain smoking there only ninety days before. From Fargo, the guests returned to Chicago brimful of enthusiasm over the wonders they had seen.

RIVER ABOVE THE RAILS.

The Unique Piece of Engineering Necessitated by a California Landslide.

Making a mountain stream run over and above a railroad track is a unique piece of engineering that the Southern Pacific company is shortly to commence near Wright's station, in the Santa Cruz mountains. Last spring, says the San Francisco Examiner, there was a big landslide at the northern end of the long tunnel near Wright's station which caused a blockade of the Southern Pacific Coast road for a number of weeks and caved in about a hundred feet of the tunnel. The moving side of the mountain as it came down the canon filled up the bed of a large mountain stream to such an extent that it was five or six feet higher than the track, while before it was several feet lower. The creek is dry in the summer, but during the rainy season, unless its course is diverted, the mountain torrent will sweep over the road so as to make its operation at that point impossible.

The officials first entertained the idea of carting away large quantities of dirt to lower the bed of the stream to its old level. But that plan was abandoned because of the great expense it would entail, and it was then decided to extend the tunnel northward 200 feet and past the point where the stream crosses the track by an arch of solid masonry. Plans for this stone tunnel have been completed. The arch will be twenty feet high and composed of huge blocks of stone that will stand the wear and tear of the weather for years. On the inside it will have the same width and height as the tunnel proper, and will be constructed in such a manner that the stream of water flowing over it will not percolate through. The top of the arch, when finished, will be about fifteen feet above the present bed of the stream, so the latter will have to be raised up to its level. This will necessitate filling in for a distance of several hundred feet. As the stream flows over the top of the stone arch it will have a fall of no less than twenty feet on the other side of the track. It will be a precipitous fall, and during the winter time, when the volume of water is large, will make a very pretty waterfall. The officials are inclined to think it will be the largest artificial waterfall in the world.

COUNTERFEITING.

The Extent to Which It Is Carried on by Immigrants.

One great benefit that the people of this country as a whole derive from national currency is the difficulty which counterfeiters have in imitating the paper and engraving used in its manufacture. A counterfeit bill is very seldom seen in New York city, for example, and is never willfully presented in any large store. It is not difficult for the newest immigrant to learn the distinctive marks and touch of our paper currency, and the Chinese, who early learn the appearance of the figures denoting the amount of the bill, are practically infallible in their judgment of good money. The United States secret service is well organized so far as the running down of counterfeiters is concerned, and the certainty of detection and punishment is so great that the regular professional American crook has given up the making of counterfeit bills as a bad job.

Yet, curiously enough, a small band of Italians have persisted in the criminal practice of making and uttering counterfeit silver dollars and counterfeit bills. Taken as a whole, the Italian immigrants must be placed among the most desirable that land in this country. As a rule, they are temperate, frugal and hard-working; if their Southern blood does sometimes get hot where women cause the quarrel, it is an excusable fault. Why the Italian criminal should take to counterfeiting is an unsolved mystery, but the fact remains that a great majority of the counterfeiters in this neighborhood are Italians.

The latest case of counterfeiting in which Italians have been engaged was discovered yesterday at New Haven. For some time past bad $2 and $5 silver certificates have been common in that part of Connecticut, and the local banks were compelled to issue descriptions of the false money. The $5 counterfeit was found much oftener than the $2 one, and, according to the banks, was a pretty good imitation. The irregularity of the colored figures and the moth-eaten appearance of the portrait of Gen. Grant were the two blemishes by which the note was shown to be bad.

About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon two Italians approached an Italian fruit vender in New Haven and purchased some peanuts, paying him with a $5 bill. For some reason not explained the sight of a policeman frightened the two purchasers, and they started to run away, dropping a roll of bills in their flight. They were caught and gave their names as Victor Ferrelli and Gerces Gleti. In their pockets were found $50 in counterfeit bills in addition to the roll which they dropped, and which contained eleven $5 bills.

More important than the capture of these counterfeiters themselves was the discovery of some papers which gave a clue to their quarters in Mulberry street in this city. So that there are hopes that the whole gang will be captured and an end put to their criminal operations. It is a pity that workmen clever enough to counterfeit paper currency should not see that it does not pay. Sooner or later they are certain to be caught and sent to prison. No gang of counterfeiters can carry on its work successfully for more than a few weeks at a time in any part of this country.—New York Evening Sun.

Ducks for Breeding Purposes.

One drake and five ducks is the proportion of sexes, and a flock of ten ducks should supply all the eggs that may be required for next year. As long as grass is plentiful and the ducks have a wide range they need cost nothing at this season, but as soon as it becomes necessary to feed them the flock should be reduced to a minimum, as they are voracious. Young ducks will bring as much now as at any time during the remainder of the year, and it will be an advantage to sell them. The old ducks will prove the best layers for next year.—Farm and Fireside.

MAN'S INCONSISTENCIES.

As Enumerated by One of His Loving, but Critical Sisters.

A man can take his life in his hand and go boldly into the trackless prairie to meet a herd of savage buffaloes, or he can traverse the horrows of an African jungle without a shudder in his body. But he cannot enter a fancy wool shop to match a special hue without breaking into a violent perspiration, and finally rushing away without fulfilling his task.

A man can suffer the amputation of a limb in heroic silence, but he cannot endure a mustard plaster on his chest without shrieking aloud for mercy, says the Cincinnati Enquirer.

A man can bear the deprivation of his wealth with the calmness of a stoic, but he cannot lose his collar stud on the bed-room floor without a violent outburst of temper.

A man can endure the pangs of hunger on a desert island with a brave spirit, but he cannot eat his bride's first pudding without a smothered ejaculation.

A man can smile grimly under the tortures of the rack, but he cannot tread on a tin tack with his bare foot without a big howl.

A man can walk forty miles a day and arrive fresh and bright at the end of his journey, but he cannot nurse a baby half an hour without complaining that he is utterly worn out.

A man can calculate to the uppermost farthing the cost of the Suez canal, but he cannot estimate the price of a woman's bonnet without egregious errors.

A man can possess the physical strength of a Samson, but he cannot help to take down the pictures for the annual spring cleaning without feeling completely exhausted with his labors.

A man can beard the savage tiger in his lair without a quiver of his muscles, but he cannot bring an unexpected friend to dinner on a washing day without trembling in every limb.

A man can suffer death at the stake with the dignity of a martyr, but he cannot chase after his hat in a public road without looking ridiculous.

A man can wait many years in proud silence for the public appreciation of his work, but at a domestic crisis he cannot get up and light the fire every day for a week without feeling that he is fit for immediate canonization.

A man will go through fire and water to win the girl of his heart, but he will not allow her to see him with a four days' growth on his chin.

DIFFICULT OF PRONUNCIATION.

Some Combinations of Vowels in English Which Stagger the Foreigner.

For making the s and z the tongue has to be partially applied to a portion of the palate next the teeth, says the Contemporary Review. Not only, however, must the contact be complete, but its place is indefinite. To make sh and zh the contact has to be made, not with the tip, but with the upper surface of the tongue, and must be an incomplete contact. Though for making the liquids the tip of the tongue and the sides of the tongue are used, yet the requisite is not any exact adjustment of the tip, but an imperfect contact with the palate. For the th the tip is used, along with the edges of the tongue, but no perfect adjustment is required, either to the edges of the teeth or to the junction of the teeth with the palate, where the sound may equally well be made. Though for the t and d complete contact of the tip and edges of the tongue with the palate is required, yet the place of contact is not definite and the tip takes no more important share in the action than the sides. Anyone who observes the movements of his tongue in speaking will find there occur no cases in which the adjustments must have an exactness corresponding to the extreme power of discrimination which the tip possesses; for speech this endowment is useless. Even were it useful it could not be shown that it has been developed by survival of the fittest; for though perfect articulation is useful, yet imperfect articulation has rarely such an effect as to impede a man in the maintenance of his life. If he is a good workman a German's interchanges of bs and ps do not disadvantage him. A Frenchman who, in place of the sound of th always makes the sound of z, succeeds as a teacher of music or dancing, no less than if he achieved the English pronunciation. Nay, even such an imperfection of speech as that which arises from cleft palate does not prevent a man getting on if he is capable. True, it may go against him as a candidate for parliament, or as an "orator" of the unemployed (mostly not worth employing). But in the struggle for life he is not hindered by the effect of being less able than others to maintain himself and his offspring.

Lolling the Tongue.

This disagreeable habit in horses is very often met with. A horseman, writing to the National Stockman, says it is caused by sharp teeth. He adds: The inside edges of the molars are rough and sharp, and continually rasp the tongue, causing him to drop his tongue, spoiling the looks and oftentimes the sale of the horse. In the first place it will do no good to apply any of the patent bits or appliances until the teeth are filed. Get some competent person to file the inside edges of the molars, then procure two pieces of leather long enough to slip over the rings of the bit. File on each side of the horse's mouth so that one end of the leather projects to the end of the horse's nose. Drive a few tacks through the lower ends; rivet the upper ends to the stay of the bridle so that the tacks will fit directly on the side of the mouth on which the tongue protrudes, and you will have a device which will cure him. I once owned a mare that lolled her tongue when tired. She produced a fine colt which developed the same habit. I broke him of the habit in the manner described.

Facts About Dress Skirts.

For the past year skirts have seemed so important that one naturally begins with them, though the fit and style of the bodice surely have more effect upon the general appearance, writes Emma M. Hooper in the Ladies' Home Journal. For street wear skirts must escape the floor; ball gowns will have a slight dip, resting slightly on the floor as the wearer moves; demi-trains allow five inches on the ground for carriage, dinner and such toilettes, though as a rule, young ladies do not like demi-trains. The immense two-yard trains are seldom seen, even wedding and matrons' reception gowns having a modest amount of the goods trailing over the floor. All skirts, except the extreme styles, are from three and one-half to four yards in width; the extremists have them from five to seven yards. While heavy stiffening has gone out, many still use a facing of sleazy crinoline to the knees, with the usual lining, which is shaped like and sewed with the outside. Velveteen binding on the edge has become the universally accepted finish, and now comes in lengths of three, four and five yards. In place of a belt at the waist turn the top of the skirt over on the wrong side and cord or face it. This allows the skirt to fall below the waist-line and saves one belt around the waist.

How to Keep Butter Sweet.

It is the easiest thing in the world. Simply put it in clean jars and cover with strong brine. This will keep pure butter a year fresh and sweet, as we know by experience. It is almost equally good to put it in oak casks, headed tight. This is equivalent to canning fruit. The brine in the case of the jars acts as a heading, keeping the air out. But butter should be made well; we have never experimented on poor butter. Work out the buttermilk till you have only pure "beads," clear as rain water; but do not work so much as to break the grain; in which case you have a tough, heavy article in winter and grease in summer. Such butter we advise no one to try to preserve.

Not Much of a Remedy.

Prof. Snore is very absent-minded. His wife rushed into his studio and exclaimed:

"Just think! I've swallowed a pin. What shall I do?"

"Ah, well," he replied, "don't worry about it. Here is another pin," taking a pin out of the lapel of his coat and handing it to her.

Praise Is Good

For any medicine you hear about, but to be made well by its use is still better. My only regret is that I did not take Hood's Sarsaparilla earlier. I have for many years suffered with an irritable itching all over my body and my left leg swelled and became so sore I had to give up work. Physicians prescribed for me for scrofula but did not cure me. Hood's Sarsaparilla gave me immediate relief, when I began to take it, and I am confident it has driven all disease out of my blood and given me

MINNESOTA CELEBRATES.

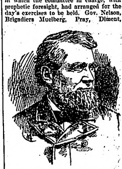
MINNESOTA DAY AT THE FAIR APPROPRIATELY CELEBRATED.

With Characteristic Enterprise the People From the North Star State Make the Best of a Very Dismal Day—Eloquent Addresses.

World's Fair Grounds, Special, Oct. 13. —Apparently Minnesota had not made her peace with the autocrat of the weather, for when the state's celebration was ushered in this morning it found an exceedingly leaky day. A fog, and a very English fog at that, was on duty long before the sun and Columbian guards had arisen, and it attended strictly to business all day. Disagreeably energetic puffs of wind strayed in from the lake, whisking skirts and ribbons and hats.

The Minnesota Building

was beautifully decorated, and thither drove the carriages of Gov. Nelson and staff when they arrived at 10 o'clock. They were greeted with ringing cheers and the waving of dainty handkerchiefs, and then were led to the festival hall, in which the committee in charge, with prophetic foresight, had arranged for the day's exercises to be held. Gov. Nelson, Brigadiers Muelberg, Pray, Diment, Towne, Murphy and Olson; Colonels Pusch, Smith, Blethen, Bevans, Fulmer, Whitney, Simmons, Stone, Hamlin, West, Eckstein, Wedge, Nelson and Mattson, his staff; ex-Governors Ramsey, Marshall, Austin and McGill; Hon. P. H. Kelly, Mayor Eustis and a score or more of the distinguished citizens of the state, were met at Chicago Beach hotel by the Third regiment, by which they were escorted to the Minnesota state building, where they were formally received by the state board and the woman's auxiliary board, after which they resumed their carriages and were escorted by Columbian guards to Festival hall.



Gov. Knute Nelson.

Nelson Introduced.

Mr. D. A. Monfort, president of the Minnesota board, introduced Gov. Nelson in a very eloquent address, in which he touched on the early history of the state and the prominent part Minnesota has taken in the exposition. In closing, he said:

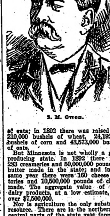
"To the press of Minnesota this board is deeply indebted for its generous assistance and hearty co-operation in the prosecution of our work. In conclusion I will only add that when this great exposition, now nearing its close, shall have become a thing of the past and there only remains to write the history and record of its results, I am certain that it will afford to the people of Minnesota great satisfaction to feel that they have been able to contribute in no insignificant degree to the success of an undertaking which has celebrated the 400th anniversary of the discovery of this continent in a manner appropriate to the importance of the event and commensurate with the dignity of the great American republic."

Gov. Nelson responded in a speech full of entertaining statistics, happy prophecies for the future, and covered the entire range of material progress. Following are some extracts from the address:

On the 13th day of October, 1857, the people of Minnesota adopted the constitution under which they became a state and a member of the Federal Union. This day and event we here and now commemorate on Minnesota's day at the world's greatest fair and exposition.

As we look back over the vista of more than a third of a century and note the pare its resources and status of to-day with that of early territorial days, we, who have seen it, and still more, you have lived it, are moved with great gratitude for the past and filled with boundless hope and assurance for the future. The statistics of the resources and possibilities, the growth and progress of Minnesota, read like a fairy tale.

In 1850 the population was only 6,077; in 1893 it is not less than 1,450,000. In 1860 the assessed value of the real and personal property of the state was but $35,753,408; in 1893 it is $637,450,926. In 1860 there were 18,181 farms in the state, valued at $27,505,022; in 1892 there were 123,171 farms, valued at $258,659,100. In 1860 there was raised 2,186,995 bushels of wheat, 2,941,952 bushels of corn and 2,176,002 bushels of oats; in 1892 there was raised 41,210,000 bushels of wheat, 24,192,000 bushels of corn and 43,573,000 bushels of oats.

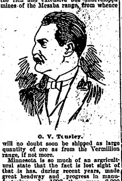


S. M. Owen.

But Minnesota is not wholly a grain producing state. In 1892 there were 283 creameries and 50,000,000 pounds of butter made in the state; and in the same year there were 160 cheese factories and 10,500,000 pounds of cheese made. The aggregate value of these dairy products, at a low estimate, was over $7,500,000.

Nor is agriculture the only substantial resource. There are in the northern and central parts of the state vast forests of pine and oak, much of them still in a virgin state. Lumbering is an extensive, and for years to come will be a permanent, industry. The value of the lumber product of 1890 was $15,015,420, and of 1893 is not less than $17,898,780.

The mineral resources of the state, especially in iron ore, are of a rich, varied and extensive character, scarcely second to that of any other state in the Union. The development of the mines is still in its infancy, although considerable progress has been made since 1884. In 1892 1,255,465 tons of iron ore were mined and shipped from the state. This was all taken from the Vermillion range mines. Since then a railroad has been built to the rich and extensive but undeveloped mines of the Mesaba range, from whence will no doubt soon be shipped as large quantity of ore as from the Vermillion range, if not more.

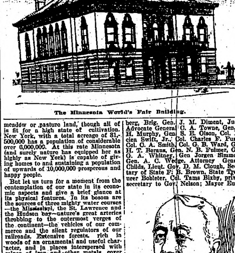


O. V. Tousley.

Minnesota is so much of an agricultural state that the fact is lost sight of that is has, during recent years, made great headway and progress in manufacturing. In 1892 there were 6,000 manufacturing establishments of various kinds in the state, employing $75,000,000 capital and 45,000 hands, with a pay roll of $18,000,000 and an output or product of $150,000,000 in value per year. During the year ending Sept. 1, 1893, there was manufactured in our midst, from the wheat of Minnesota and of adjoining states, upwards of 20,000,000 barrels of flour, of the value of not less than $55,000,000.

Our transportation facilitites are extensive and fast expanding. We have 5,741 miles of railroads in successful day presents of her own people—of the none so instructive as the exhibit she to-operation, and our railroad system is directly connected within our own borders at Duluth with the best system of inland water transportation in North America. And let us hope that the day is not far away when vessels crossing the Atlantic will break bulk in the harbors of our own state.

The estimated total area of the state, exclusive of lakes and water courses, is 50,000,000 acres, of which upwards of 8,000,000 acres are still owned by the state and federal governments and are, or soon will be, subject to sale, settlement and entry. Much of this land is valuable for timber or agricultural purposes, and some of it is valuable for mineral purposes. In addition to these lands there are nearly 4,000,000 acres still owned by the various railroad companies. Of the lands in private ownership more than one-third, or upwards of 15,000,000 acres are still wholly undeveloped and in a state of nature, and of the residue, the far greater proportion is used in its natural state as meadow or pasture land, though all of is fit for a high state of cultivation. New York, with a total acreage of 31,500,000 has a population of considerable over 6,000,000. At this rate Minnesota (and surely nature has equipped her as highly as New York) is capable of giving homes to and sustaining a population of upwards of 10,000,000 prosperous and happy people.



The Minnesota World's Fair Building.

But let us turn for a moment from the contemplation of our state in its economic aspects and give a brief glance at its physical features. In its bosom are the sources of three mighty water courses —the Mississippi, the St. Lawrence and the Hudson bay—nature's great arteries throbbing to the outermost verges of the continent—the vehicles of our commerce and the silent regulators of our railroads. Extensive forests, rich in woods of an ornamental and useful character, and in places interspersed with mines of iron and other metals, cover the northeastern part—a full third of the state. The residue of our vast domain is an ocean of billowy prairie, besprinkled with numerous islands and peninsulas of undulating woodlands, all as fertile as any the hand of man ever tilled. And all this broad expanse of forest, prairie and woodland is jeweled with ten thousand lakes, sparkling, alive and translucent.

And to make this earthly Paradise complete and the fit home of a thrifty and hardy race, it is possessed and surrounded with an atmosphere pure, health-breeding and work-inspiring, such as necessarily appertains to a country and people like ours. Fortunately, the soil and the climate have come into possession of a people worthy of it. Minnesota has entered many fine and important exhibits at this fair, but of all her exhibits none are so typical, none so interesting and men and women who have wrought her into being as one of the great states of the federal Union. Yankee and Anglo-Saxon, Teuton and Northman, Frank and Celt, foreigner and native, have here, under liberal laws and on a footing of equality, labored hand in hand, in a patriotic spirit of emulation, and have evolved out of nature's chaos the substantial beginnings of a mighty empire. And when these different elements, which constitute our ethnological make-up, have become fully assimilated into one people, of one language and of one spirit, intensely and truly American, then will the complement of the great destiny of Minnesota be wholly filled, and then will she exhibit to the world a nation complete in physical, moral and intellectual equipment. That day, when it comes—and it is near and approaching with swift and irresistible strides—will be the great Minnesota day of the future. We have in our midst to-day men, venerable and full of years—the patriarchs who have led our people into the promised land. Minnesota day is beyond all question their day, for to none else is the state so near and dear as to those who cared for it and nourished it in its infancy. They are entitled to our gratitude, and to our blessings. Their lives and their presence are an inspiration to us, who are younger and to those who are to take our places, and may this inspiration abide with our people through all the coming ages.

But I must pause. Minnesota—feebly and faintly—I have described her to you, the young giantess of the upper Mississippi, in all her youthful vigor, proud of the past and hopeful of the future, meets here her sister states and the nations of other countries; comes here with her sons and daughters, and with all her manifold exhibits, to make manifest to the world the potentiality of her soil, her climate, her institutions and her people.

Good friends, Minnesota salutes and greets you all on this occasion.

Other Addresses.

Hon. S. M. Owen delivered an interesting address on "Minnesota, Her Agricultural Resources."

President Cyrus Northrop, of the University of Minnesota, followed Mr. Owen in an address, "Minnesota, Her Educational Advantages."

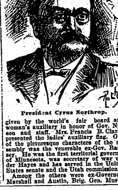
"The Columbian Exposition" was the appropriate subject of National Commissioner O. V. Tousley, who said that the Columbian exposition was one of the pivotal points in history, considered in relation to history, architecture and the development of our national life.

Hon. H. F. Stevens of St. Paul, in speaking of the municipalities of Minnesota, briefly traced the settlement of the state in general from the explorations of Duluth and Father Hennepin.

The last speaker was C. A. Towne of Duluth, on "Minnesota, Her Mines and Forests."

Fitting Finale.

The exercises concluded at 2:30, and from there the governor and his party proceeded to the new liberty bell, which he rang, as all the other governors have. The reception following at the state building was literally a jam, the people of the state, regardless of personal invitation, and, indeed, of the whole world, participating, and the guests joined in the spirit in its tones which proclaim liberty throughout the land. The reception was given by the world's fair board and woman's auxiliary in honor of Gov. Nelson and staff. Mrs. Francis B. Clarke presented the ladies' auxiliary flag. One of the picturesque characters of the assembly was the venerable ex-Gov. Ramsey. He was the first territorial governor of Minnesota, was secretary of war under Hayes and has served in the United States senate and the Utah commission.



President Cyrus Northrop.

Among the others were ex-Governors Marshall and Austin, Brig. Gen. Muehlberg, Brig. Gen. J. M. Diment, Judge Advocate General C. A. Towne, Gen. J. H. Murphy, Gen. S. E. Olson, Col. Lucien Swift, Jr., Col. Charles F. Pusch, Col. C. A. Smith, Col. G. B. Ward, Gen. H. T. Berans, Gen. N. B. Fulmer, Gen. G. A. Whitney, Gen Jorgen Simmons, Gen. A. C. Wedge, Attorney General Childs, Lieut. Gov. D. M. Clough, Secretary of State F. B. Brown, State Treasurer Bobleter, Col. Tams Bixby, private secretary to Gov. Nelson; Mayor Eustis of Minneapolis and P. H. Kelly of St. Paul.

An Object in New Zealand Which Turns From Animal to Plant.

The most curious of all objects in New Zealand is that which the Maoris call "aweto," says Chambers' Journal. One is uncertain whether to call it an animal or a plant. In the first stages of its existence it is simply a caterpillar, about three or four inches in length, and always found in connection with the rata tree, a kind of flowering myrtle. It appears that when it reaches full growth it buries itself two or three inches under ground, where, instead of undergoing the ordinary chrysalis process, it becomes gradually transformed into a plant, which exactly fills the body and shoots up at the neck to a height of eight or ten inches. This plant resembles in appearance a diminutive bulrush, and the two, animal and plant, are always found inseparable. One is apt to relegate it to the domain of imagination, among dragons and mermaids; but then its existence and nature have been accepted by the late Frank Buckland. How it propagates its species is a mystery. One traveler, after describing its dual nature, calmly states that it is the grub of the night butterfly. If so, then the grub must also become a butterfly, or what becomes of the species? One would be ready to suppose that the grub does really so, and that some fungus finds the cast-off slough congenial quarters for its growth. But as far as present observation goes the grub never becomes a butterfly, but is changed in every case into a plant.

FIFTY THIRD CONGRESS.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SPECIAL SESSION OF CONGRESS.

Condensed Record of the Business Being Transacted by our National Law-makers—Routine Report Day by Day.

Washington, Oct. 11.—The Tucker bill to repeal all existing federal election laws was passed by the house by a vote of 200 to 101, party lines being strictly drawn for and against. Senator Hill of New York, who is the author of a similar bill in the senate, was on the floor while the vote was being taken. Quite a jubilant demonstration was made by the Democrats when the result was announced. The Republicans finding that the Democrats had their own quorum present were stopped from filibustering by the iron-clad order under which the house was operating beyond demanding an aye and nay vote on the Burrows and Lacey amendments. The Democrats admitted that the bill was defective in that it failed to repeal statute 5528, which inferentially permits troops at the polls, but the modification could not be made under the order, and the correction will have to be made in the senate.

The affairs in the senate have reached a crisis, and within the next twentyfour hours the same decisive action will be taken on the repeal bill. The senate to-day began its continuous session, which will last until a vote is taken. This may occur early in the evening, or might not be reached until to-morrow morning. Repeal men are confident, while the friends of silver expect to force a compromise.

Washington, Oct. 12.—The usual methods by which controversies over legislation are settled by an agreement to come to a vote have failed to carry and the world is now watching the decision of a great financial question by a test of physical endurance not unlike the games of the Romans. Like the ancient athletic feats, the multitude fills the seats of the amphitheater and waits the outcome. It may end to-day or it may continue for days. All day yesterday there were evidences of preparation for the fight. Few senators were in the chamber, but a glance into the cloak rooms and a peep into the committee rooms showed many of them sleeping on the couches and sofas husbanding their strength for a siege which they appreciated would test most severely every energy which they could muster. The forces on both sides of the battle were divided so as to be able to give each other relief by taking the defense of their position in turn. The great number of employes of the senate were likewise separated into relays in anticipation of a continuous work. The sergeant-at-arms, Col Bright, has every man on his pay roll within call. Relays of doorkeepers are provided for the galleries and a reserve force is ready to guard the doors oft he senate floor. Four men are ready and waiting to hunt up senators and request their attendance. The address of every senator has been carefully revised up to date, and the sergeant-at-arms has compiled a mass of interesting information as to the usual haunts of senators in order that those who drift away may be tracked to their lairs. In the committee rooms couches and blankets had been prepared and many of the members spent the night there. The galleries were filled, but toward morning the speeches became tiresome and many of the spectators left. Both sides are firm

The house began the consideration of the McCreary bill to extend the provisions of the Geary act for six months under a special order providing that it shall be considered until disposed of. Only two speeches were made—by Mr. McCreary, chairman of the foreign affairs committee, in support, and by Mr. Geary, the author of the old law, in antagonism.

Washington, Oct. 13.—The senate adjourned at 1:45 a. m., and it is thought a compromise bill will be adopted on the line of an amendment presented by Mr. Harris of Tennessee. It provides, first, for the coinage of all the silver bullion in the treasury representing the government seignorage into full legal tender dollars at the rate of $3,000,000 per month; second, when this seignorage shall have been coined the secretary of the treasury shall purchase each month bullion sufficient to coin blank dollars and to coin the bullion into legal tender dollars; third, that all paper notes or certificates of less denomination that $10 shall be redeemed and not reissued, and that national bank notes of less denomination than $10 shall be redeemed and the national banks required to substitute notes of that denomination; fourth, that the $2.50 and $5 gold pieces shall no longer be coined, but when received at the treasury shall be recoined as eagles and double eagles; fifth, that the holders of standard silver dollars shall be able to exchange such dollars on presentation for notes of the same legal tender qualities as such silver dollars, which shall be held for their redemption. Late yesterday afternoon a vote to lay Mr. Peffer's free coinage amendment on the table resulted:

Yeas—Messrs. Caffery, Camden, Carey, Cullom, Davis, Dixon, Dolph, Faulkner, Frye, Gallinger, Gordon, Gray, Hale, Hawley, Hill, Hoard, Lindsay, McMillan, McPherson, Mills, Mitchell (Wis.), Murphy, Platt, Proctor, Quay, Ransom, Sherman, Smith, Squire, Voorhees, Washburn, White (La.)—33.

Nays—Messrs. Bate, Berry, Blackburn, Butler, Call, Cameron, Coke, Daniel, George, Hunton, Irby, Martin, Morgan, Pasco, Peffer, Vest, Walthall—17.

In the house a fight came up on the bill to protect forest reservations, reported from the committee on public lands. When the house went into committee the bill was rather vigorously attacked. Pickler of South Dakota said he was in favor of protecting the timber, but this bill meant the stripping of timber off the reservations. He objected to section 7 of the bill, which provides for the sale of timber on public lands. Hermann of Oregon also spoke in opposition, and Simpson of Kansas followed in a denunciatory speech. In this bill was an instance where public interests were neglected for private interests. The reservations contained great coal fields, and private interests were sure to get hold of them. Doolittle of Washington said if this bill passed the lumbermen would strip the timber off the lands. Before any vote could be reached the morning hour expired and the bill went over.

Washington, Oct. 14.—At the cabinet meeting yesterday after complete discussion of all the phases of the senate situation a compromise proposition was agreed on to be offered by one of the repeal senators. It includes, as did the Harris amendment, provisions for the coinage of the silver seignorage in the treasury amounting to $53,000,000 and thereafter the purchase of 3,000,000 ounces a month until 90,000,000 ounces have been purchased. This will carry the purchase of silver over the expiration of Mr. Cleveland's term, a condition the silver men insist upon, and relieve the treasury during the coinage of the seignorage, eighteen months of further purchase of bullion besides making the bullion so coined an available treasury asset. To meet the demands of the East. A proposition for the issue of a $100,000,000 of 3 per cent bonds is included. There is still a question whether a provision for the repeal of the tax on state banks and the redemption of notes of all classes below $5 shall be added. This is the administration's compromise proposition.

An agreement was reached in the house to take a vote on the Chinese bill Monday and the banking bill, which was crowded out, will be called up immediately after. The house then resumed discussion of the Chinese bill.

SHOT WIFE AND SELF.

Minneapolis, Oct. 16.—Passers-by and residents in the neighborhood of Fourth street and Third avenue south Saturday afternoon were startled by several shots which rang out in quick succession, the result of which was an attempted murder and probable suicide. Emma F. Tyler, a seamstress in the employ of the Smith Costume company, and who rooms in the Meyers block on Fifth street south, was shot and seriously, if not fatally, wounded by her husband, Vincent F. Tyler, with whom she has not been living for some months. Tyler has since died. His wife is getting along nicely.

BEVINGTON ALL RIGHT.

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 16.—Judge Gaynor to-day exonerated the board of supervisors and County Attorney Bevington of the charge of converting county funds to the extent of about $10,000, preferred by John M. McDonald, ex-county sheriff, by dismissing McDonald's petition for an injunction restraining the treasurer from paying the warrants. It was charged that the money was appropriated for trial expenses, never incurred, and for office rent and clerk hire that Bevington never had. Judge Gaynor found that the money was all paid as claimed by the defendants.

N. P. RECEIVERS FAVORED.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 16.—An order has been issued by Judge Jenkins granting the application of the Northern Pacific receivers for authority to ratify the lease made Dec. 14, 1892, by the Northern Pacific Terminal Company of Oregon to the Northern Pacific Railroad company, the Oregon Railway and Navigation company and the Oregon & California Railroad company. The receivers are also authorized to ratify the agreement entered into June 3, 1890, between the terminal company, the Northern Pacific, the Oregon Short Line, the Utah Northern and the Southern Pacific.

ONE CLERK LET OUT.

Chamberlain, S. D., Oct. 16.—O. C. Stuart, clerk in the Chamberlain land office since the office was first opened for business, has been notified by the department that his services are no longer required. This is in line with the recommendation of Land Office Inspector Andrews, who recently visited the land offices of South Dakota, the inspector being of the opinion that a clerk was not needed in the land office here for the present. Several other land offices in the state will also be affected in a similar manner.

WEEKS IS SAFE.

New York, Oct. 16.—A special from San Jose, Costa Rica, says: It seems safe to assume now that Francis H. Weeks will not be delivered to the United States. His lawyers have been in almost constant communication with the president and ministers during the past few days. It is said that representatives of foreign governments hold that Weeks' extradition would be a bad precedent and indicate fear of the United States.

POSTAL CURRENCY.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Mr. Wilson of Washington intends to introduce a bill which will establish a postal currency of denominations less than $1 and which will take the place of the present postal note system of transmitting small amounts of money. He has consulted with the postoffice officials as to the best method to be adopted, and as soon as a feasible plan is formulated he will put in the bill.

FATAL WRECK.

Topeka, Kan., Oct. 16. — Early this morning the regular Denver Rock Island passenger train collided with a freight train near Paxico, twenty miles west of here. It is a miracle that this head-end collision did not cause the loss of many lives. Only two persons were killed. They were colored tramps who were stealing a ride on the platform of the baggage car. Two trainmen were injured.

WEDS A LORD.

Paris, Oct. 16.—The civil marriage of Lord Terence Blackwood, son of the marquis of Dufferin, British ambassador, and Miss Nora Davis of New York, was celebrated yesterday at the Mairie, in the Rue d'Anjou, near the British embassy. As the ambassador's family is in mourning for his cousin, Sir S. A. Blackwood, who died on Oct. 2, only a few relatives were invited.

FROST IN DIXIE.

Vicksburg, Miss., Oct. 16.—Cotton and other tender vegetation in the low land was nipped by frost this morning in this portion of Mississippi, and a heavy frost is also reported in North Carolina, where a much lower temperature is recorded owing to drouth and other causes. The damage, except to late cotton, will be small.

WANT A RECEIVER.

Louisville, Oct. 16. — A petition has been filed in the Floyd circuit court at New Albany by Paul Reising, E. N. Hallen, A. Joseph, Gertrude Strobel, Jacob Cutter, Ben S. Bull and others praying that a receiver be appointed for the New Albany Steam Forge and Rolling Mill company.

TRAMPS KILLED.

Washington, Oct. 16.—An incoming train on the Pennsylvania railroad struck three men near Richmond to-day who had stepped from another track to avoid another train. Two were instantly killed and the other fatally injured. They were apparently tramps.

DO NOT MISS THE WORLD'S FAIR,

From the century Magazine for Oct. 1893. * * * Some weeks still remain in which those who have not seen the World's Fair may yet enjoy that never-to-be renewed privilege. In the general astonishment at the beauty of the housing of the exhibition perhaps not enough has been said concerning the the contents. That these are well worthy the attention of the student of every or any department of human enterprise goes without the saying—though in some departments much more than in others the truly instructional method has been observed.

It still remains true that the greatest feature of the exhibition is the architecture and the landscape gardening including in these all their sculptured and painted decoration and adjuncts In these the deepest pleasure and the deepest instruction are to be found, as well as the largest and longest benefit to the country.

If the visitor can only be a single day at the Fair or a single night, it is worth any sacrafice to enjoy this alone. And if it were to be a question between the daytime or the illumination at night we would advise the latter; for surely no eyes now opened on this world are likely ever again to behold any sight so nobly beautiful. * * *

A Washington dispatch says that Congressman Boen has introduced his bill appropriating $900.000 for the improvement of the Red River of the North and its tributaries, All the improvements are above Fergus Falls and Crookston and about Big Stone Lake in Minnesota and South Dakota. They include dams and locks in the following locations: In Red Lake River near the outlet of Red Lake; near Thief River Boise de Sioux; below Rabbit river; a canal between Otter Tail river and Rabbit river; a dam across Otter Tail river between Dayton and Breckenridge; a dam at the foot of Big Stone lake; a canal between Big Stone Lake and Lake Traverse. The money is to be expended under the direction of the secretary of war and the supervision of the chief of engineers. The bill does not include the idea of connecting the Red river and the Minnesota for the purpose of navigation, but only to drain the water from the source of the Red river into the Minnesota to prevent the overflow in the spring.

Congressman McCleary has begun an investigation of the subject as affecting the Minnesota river valley but he has not decided upon any course.—Crookston Times.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, Oct 13 — The special committee recently appointed to consider the question of keeping the fair open after this month has practically decided in favored of doing so as long as the weather will permit and as long as the people come in sufficient numbers to make it profitable. The plan is to continue charging the present admission fees and to induce as many foreign and American exhibitors to keep their displays intact as possible. Many foreign exhibitors have already agree to do so, and every one who has an exhibit has been given a permit for its removal from the fair upon applications. The department of admissions and the executive officers of the fair are making their arrangements for November as if the plan had been formerly adopted.

A BALLAD OF DREARY FALL.

The autumn time has come again. The dude's broad buzz-saw brim
Swings idly in the chilly breeze, no longer in the swim.
It hangs within the closet in a drear desuetude,
For beavers and the derby hat adorn the multitude.

The merry iceman's happy smile hath largely disappeared.
The man who runs the mountain house in gloom doth stroke his beard
And groans to find, deducting his expenses and his rent,
His season's dividend's not more than ninety-eight per cent.

The bonifaces who have kept those caravansaries
Down by the ocean's vast expanse stand weeping, while the breeze
Blows coldly o'er the sodden sands, to think their summer's gain
Is hardly larger than the wealth of all the state of Maine.

The man who likes to be well dressed is feeling [illegible]
Because just now it's no time, and he knows not what to do.
It's quite too late for summer clothes, but rather early yet
To blossom forth in autumn styles on which his mind is set.

The summer girl is likewise drear. Her reign is over now.
Her tears flow down her cheeks, and frowns do furrow up her brow
As she observes, when counting up her trinkets and such things,
The season's yielded only forty-nine engagement rings.

Indeed all seem unhappy when the autumn comes around.
'Tis rarely that an optimist at this time will be found.
The poet only smiles with glee these dreadful, dreary times,
Who sells remodeled verse of spring as brand new autumn rhymes.

—Harper's Bazar.

Only to Arrive.

The corridor of the Grand Pacific hotel was crowded with arrivals anxious to register. Men wiped their wet faces, while the satchels beside them almost perspired from the tedious journey.

The clerk wore his happy "how do do" smile and was apparently unaware of the heat, for he looked cool and calm.

During the rush some little diversion was created by the appearance of a soiled and ruffled individual who trickled through the throng at the desk and fought his way toward the clerk.

He was a typical "tramp," not the tramp that Mark Twain portrays, "but the real, alive, everyday, Clark street, corner of Adams street, tramp," a tramp with a record, a tramp that might have been a millionaire, but wasn't.

The ragged, [illegible], dirty fellow elbowed his way until he arrived in the presence of the room magnate, and taking the pen from the potato which held its point signed.

He signed a name that would do credit to a society swell—Donald Harold Bedrock.

Every one stood aghast at the audacity of the fellow. The clerk polished the headlight that adorned his shirt front and asked in a third floor voice:

"Dinner?"

"No."

"Supper?"

"No."

"You want a room, of course?"

"No."

"What on earth do you want, then?"

"I just want to arrive, that's all. I've been trying to arrive for three years, and I've got there at last!"

The impatient crowd "dissembled" while the clerk reached into the safe for a six shooter, but the tramp, Mr. Donald Harold Bedrock, took the potato which had held the quill. As he separated himself from the office his teeth played a tattoo on the Murphy, and with the ink dressing he seemingly enjoyed it.—Chicago Times.

"Are the souvenir spoons gone?" asked Mr. H., with bated breath.

"Yes, every one of them."

"Thank heaven!" and with this pious adjuration Mr. H. resumed his slumbers.—Detroit Free Press.

BILL WON.

Nothing Short of a Stove Lid Could Phase Him.

A jolly crowd of jokers were swapping stories at Frank Sell's the other night when the conversation turned on appetites. Every one had something to tell about feats of gormandizing.

"Did you fellows ever hear how Appetite Bill won a big pot of money in a pie eating contest?" spoke up Walter Davis.

No one ever had.

"Well, you all know that Bill is a power when it comes to feed. When John Usher used to serve a boiled dinner on Mondays, Bill thought nothing of assimilating three heads of cabbage and the appropriate accompaniment of salt meat, while he helped digestion along with a peck of potatoes and a couple of loaves of bread. Bill was great on boiled dinners, but when it came to pie he was a marvel.

"He wasn't so strong on the quantity of pies he could eat as he was on the number he could bite through when they were placed one on top of the other. He had a record of making his teeth meet through a layer of six pies, and sweet potato pies at that, but he wouldn't bet on more than five.

"Of course a man who can bite through three pies can make a fortune if he only has a stake, so you can imagine how Bill would clean up the gilt of a new town when he would begin on three and then play progression.

"Well, sirs, when Bill first struck Rum Row and began pie biting he kept the boys broke, so it was concluded that a job should be put up on him. One day a fellow wanted to bet him that he couldn't bite through four lemon pies. Bill looked at him mournfully and pulled out his roll.

"'Bring on your pies,' he said as he put up his stuff. The fellow went out and pretty soon back he came with the pies. He had had 'em baked to order, and in one of 'em he had made the baker put in a pie plate. Everybody on the row knew of the joke except Bill, and Usher's place was filled. Men burned themselves with their cigars to keep from laughing as Bill picked up the pies. He opened his mouth and inserted the edges of the pies. Then he bit.

"When his teeth met against the pie plate, the most surprised look you ever saw in life spread over his face. Then he grew red behind the ears, and he drew himself together. He just gave one mighty bite and then put down the pies, while he spat out a lot of crust and filling and took a semicircular piece of tin plate out of his mouth.

"The crowd nearly fainted as Bill gathered in the stakes and remarked:

"'Boys, you orter hed put in a stove lid; tin don't phase me.'"—Washington News.

The Grand Central Railroad Station Chicago.

Is being fitted up for hotel purposes during the world's fair. This magnificent fire-proof structure, located at the corner of Harrison street and 5th avenue, in the very heart of the city, will devote the 3rd; 4th and 6th floors to this purpose. It will be run on the European plan. Each room will have hot and cold water, electric lights and be steam heated. The office and ladies parlors etc. will be located on the 3rd floor and the building will be supplied with all modern conveniences. There will be from 100 to 200 rooms for guests.

This acquisition to the hotel facilities of Chicago will be appreciated by those who wish to be safely housed in a fire-proof building, conveniently located in the city.

Those desiring accommodations can secure them by addressing Mr. T. C. Clifford, the manager, at Chicago Ill. The hotel will be opened May 15th 1893.

The Grand Central Station is the Chicago depot of the Northern Pacific railroad, [Wisconsin Central division] and by taking this through car line to the world's fair city, visitors will avoid the discomfort of transfer through the city.

From this station trains run direct to the world's fair grounds at intervals during [illegible]

VISITORS TO THE TWIN CITIES.

No one should visit the Twin Cities this summer without running out to Minnetonka Beach and Hotel Lafayette, the largest and best located resort house in the west. The lake is one of the most picturesque in the country and is well supplied with steamers and sailing, rowing and fishing craft. A number of regattas will be given. The Great Northern has a double track line to the lake and runs frequent trains.

MINNESOTA STATE NORMAL SCHOOLS

WINONA, MANKATO, ST. CLOUD AND MOORHEAD.

These schools are organized for the training of teachers for the common schools of the state.

ORGANIZATION.—Each school comprises two departments—the normal department and the training department or Model School.

The Normal department embraces;

(a) An elementary course for teachers of rural districts and elementary grades.

(b) An advanced course for teachers of advanced grades.

(c) A Professional course for teachers who have completed the required academic work elsewhere.

(d) A kindergarten training course (at Winona and St. Cloud.

ADMISSION.—Graduates of high schools and colleges and teachers holding county superintendents' first and second grade certificates are admitted without examination. All others are required to pass an entrance examination.

EXPENSES.—Tuition is free to all who pledge themselves to teach in Minnesota.

Text books are furnished at a rental of three dollars per year. Provision is made in each school for economical living. The average cost of furnished rooms with board is $3.00 per week. The Ladies' Home at St. Cloud offers furnished room, heat and light at $3.50 per week.

The new dormitory at Moorhead will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall term.

DIPLOMAS.—By a recent act of the legislature a diploma becomes a state teachers certificate of the first grade.

The next school year opens at Winona, Sept. 12th; at Mankato, Sept. 4th; at St. Cloud, Aug. 29th; and at Moorhead, Oct. 3rd.

DEVILS LAKE CHAUTAUQUA.

The first summer Assembly of the North Dakota Chautauqua comes off June 28th to July 17th. An extensive program has been arranged, including many noted speakers, singers, etc., and the occasion promises to be most interesting and instructive. Devils Lake is a summer resort point. The Great Northern Railway gives reduced rates. Address J. B. Fancher, Secretary, Devils Lake, N D for programs and other inform. A trip to the lake and assembly will make an enjoyable outing.

A LARGE DROP IN RATES TO THE WEST

The Great Northern inaugurated its new train service to the Pacific Coast on the 6th inst. With sweeping reductions in rates, amounting to 40 percent in many cases. The rate From St. Paul and Minneapolis to Puget Sound was reduced First class from $60.00 to [illegible] to Spokane from $25 to $20; and to Helena and Butte from $40 to $25, with corresponding reductions on second-class tickets both through rates applying proportionately to intermediate points. It is the purpose of the Great Northern to make rates to help the development of its territory. It is much the shortest line across the continent, was built on business principles and at a cost of about one half of that of the older transcontinental lines and is therefore prepared to correspondingly well by its territory and stations in rates and accommodations.

FROM FIVE MILLIONS TO A HOMELESS EXISTENCE.

The Equitable Life of New York suggests that men of affairs—men who have "many irons in the fire"—men who handle large sums of money—supposed to be rich—that these men provide for their families, in the event of their sudden taking off, by a life policy. And this suggestion is emphasized in our mind by a statement made only a few days ago in regard to the condition of the family of a well-known and successful business man of Minneapolis. Less than two years ago he was in good health, at the head of large business interests—owned railroad stocks, elevators, sold wheat in Europe by cable in shipload lots to arrive, controlled banks, influenced boards of trade, ran a fancy stock farm in Kentucky as a recreation from business cares. One day this man, full of life, noted for his charities and kind ways—one day he suddenly died—in the midst of all these worldly affairs. Five million dollars was supposed to be a moderate estimate put on his estate. A careful showing made later gave his family three million dollars. Unexpected financial troubles of recent date caused his friend only the other day, in speaking of the man, to remark, "I doubt if the widow will be able to retain the homestead." There was not a moment ten years prior to his death, that this man could not have drawn his check for the premiums on a paid-up policy in a company like the Equitable Life for $100,000, and never missed the amount from his bank account. This is an actual bona fide illustration of what could have been done. Many people who read this will be unable to carry large policies, but it is the duty of every one who can to take a policy, if for only $1,000, in some good life company, to provide his family with immediate funds in case of his death. Life insurance money is not subject to courts of law, or any of the delays ordinarily interposed by death, provided you insure in a stable company and properly name the beneficiary.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

Rattlesnake Weed.

In Monterey, as well as Santa Clara county, there grows a weed called the rattlesnake weed. It is so named from the story that when rattlesnakes get to fighting and bite each other, this weed, if eaten by them, will prevent death. It grows about six inches tall, has a red stalk and slender leaves. On the top of the stalk comes a head of flowers, and the seeds of these flowers are said to be very annoying to one in passing through a mass of them, as they are furnished with sharp barbs commonly called stickers. The early settlers who had herds of sheep always made their herdsmen keep with them a bottle of strong tea made of rattlesnake weed, and when any of the sheep were bitten they were drenched with the tea, which always saved them.—Pacific Tree and Vine.

Can anything else be "just as good" for you to buy?

Convert Wheat Into Pork.

The low price of wheat and the high price of hogs should cause wheat holding farmers to turn their wheat into hog products. Wheat is about 10 per cent better than corn for feeding to pigs when fed separately, but a mixture of wheat and corn will probably do better by 20 per cent than either fed separately. Fifteen pounds of pork can be made from a bushel of wheat with shoats that have run on good pasture and are lank, but with good frames and hearty digestion. After six weeks' feeding probably not over twelve pounds can be made, as the last portion of a long fattening period costs more heavily for feed.

On Aug. 8 wheat was quoted in Chicago at 61 3-4c per bushel for September raising. The farmer on his farm would realize much less than this figure on account of transportation charges. Hogs on the same day were quoted at $5.80 per cwt., which is a fair price. By fattening hogs on wheat, the wheat may be sold by the grower in the form of hog at $1 or more per bushel. Wheat is low, and prices are not strong, while in the hog markets the opposite seems to be the case. The largest car load of wheat (1,000 bushels) in Chicago is worth $617, while a car load of hogs of the same weight (60,000 pounds) would be worth $3,480. A farmer in Central Illinois, thinking that 35 cents was too low a price to sell his wheat, put this experiment into operation and converted his wheat into pork. He had $2,000 worth of hogs, which were matured in from six to nine months. His method was to soak the wheat in warm water twenty-four hours before feeding. In cold weather he let the water come to a boil in the kettle and then poured in the wheat and put out the fire. When it cooled it was soaked enough and ready to feed, which he did immediately. He weighed the hogs before beginning to feed, and kept a strict account of the weights of all grain fed, also figured the corn at 35 cents and the fat hogs at 4 1-2 cents. The wheat brough just $1.01 per bushel. From this statement it would seem that wheat is worth $1 per bushel to feed when hogs are worth 4 1-2 cents per pound. The present price of hogs in Chicago market is 6 cents, which on the above basis would make wheat worth $1.35 per bushel.—National Provisioner.

(Editor's Comment.—Farmers in the wheat belt will do well to heed the above; however, barley fed the same as wheat is as good or better. Either is as good as corn when properly fed. Care should be exercised in selecting good breeds—the Poland China for our climate is perhaps the best as it matures and is fit for the market in from eight to ten months.

A REMARKABLE SESSION.

SENATE IN CONTINUOUS SESSION FOR THIRTY-EIGHT HOURS.

Senator Allen Breaks the Record, Speaking Continuously for Fourteen Hours—Foreshadowings of a Compromise.

Washington, Oct. 13.—The usual methods by which controversies over legislation are settled, by an agreement to come to a vote, had failed to carry, and the decision of a great financial question resolved into a test of physical endurance not unlike the games of the Romans

This peculiar condition is a necessity under the rules by which the senate operates. There is no manner in which a vote can be forced except by the tiring out of those whose speech-making obstructs a natural and parliamentary settlement. The method is not a new one, as it has heretofore been resorted to on numerous occasions.

After some routine business, Mr. Allen (Pop., Neb.) took the floor to continue his speech.

Continuous Session.

Mr. Allen was still speaking when, at 6:05 o'clock, Mr. Dubois (Rep., Idaho) rose and Mr. Allen yielded to him, he observed that it was 6 o'clock, the hour when the senate usually adjourned. He asked the senator from Indiana (Voorhees) whether he was going to make the motion this evening.

"I feel it to be my highest duty," said Mr. Voorhees, "not to make that motion this evening, but on the contrary to ask the senate to stay together in continuous session until the pending measure is disposed of."

Mr. Dubois said that the statement of the senator from Indiana meant that the senate was to be held in continuous session until the pending bill was brought to a vote or until it was demonstrated that it could not be brought to a vote.

Mr. Voorhees said it had been suggested to him frequently by letter and the press to go outside of the rules and appeal to the presiding officer of the senate to sustain him in a motion not provided for in the rules to proceed to a vote. "I would as soon," said he, "think of committing open high treason or private murder as to commit such a crime."

Mr. Allen then resumed his speech, and from 7 o'clock until 11 the debate continued without any unusual features.

Gradually the senators commenced to vanish, and as midnight approached less than a dozen senators were in their seats. But the thunderous voice of the big Populist from Nebraska showed no signs of weakening. Of the twenty-nine books which he had stacked up on his desk only three had been opened. The remaining twenty-six represented so much stored up ability to talk against time. Occasionally he would relieve himself by having the clerk read extracts, and at such breathing spells mysterious whispered consultation were held with Senator Teller.

At 12 o'clock Mr. Dubois arose and remarked as he looked about the chamber: "Mr. President, I believe that a quorum is not present."

The vice president directed the clerk to call the roll. From the cloak rooms and entrances the senators crowded into the chamber. When the roll call had been completed Mr. Stevenson announced that fifty-five senators were present—a quorum—and directed Senator Allen to proceed. The Nebraskan promptly took the floor again, and the quorum as promptly disappeared through the cloak room doors.

Mr. Allen began reading from Chadwick's political economy. Now and then he would pause to make a comment on a striking passage or take a sip from the dilapidated, overworked lemon that lay on his desk.

At 12:45 a. m. Senator Dubois again called the attention of the vice president to the fact that no quorum was present, and in obedience to the electric signal the occupants of the cloak rooms again filed hastily into the chamber. The vice president announced that 53 senators—a quorum—was present.

Mr. Allen resumed, and at 1 a. m. Mr. Hoar wearily interrupted to ask if he was not reading to show that there was not an overproduction of agricultural products. He wanted to know candidly whether the Nebraskan did not think his speech was an overproduction.

Mr. Allen hotly asked Mr. Hoar if he wanted to insult him, whereupon the senator from Massachusetts purged himself, apologized humbly and equilibrium was restored.

Breaks the Record.

All night long Senator Allen held the floor, interrupted by an occasional ill-tempered colloquy or a roll call, which dragged the sleepy senators to their posts.

The gray dawn found Mr. Allen holding the fort in the great struggle against unconditional repeal as he had been when darkness fell from the wings of night twelve hours before. He had broken all previous records. For twelve hours and forty-five minutes he had held the floor continuously. The longest time a senator had previously occupied the floor was on the occasion of the force bill fight in 1891, when Senator Falkner remained on guard for twelve hours. The West Virginian, however, had a two hours' breathing spell during the absence of a quorum.

Mr. Allen seemed almost as fresh as when he began. His voice was still loud and strong, and the great strain seemed not to have affected his physical or mental vigor. The floor about him was strewn and littered with paper. A few belated spectators in the galleries dozed. Senator Voorhees sat in his seat reading. Senator Mitchell was writing industriously at his desk. Senator Dubois, alert and very much awake, occupied the sentinel tower for the silverites, while to the right and left of him Mr. Caffrey of Louisiana and Gen. Hawley of Connecticut were fast asleep in their chairs. In the rear of the chamber Senators Quay, Higgins, Lindsey and Lodge were stretched out on the lounges. Suddenly Mr. Turple of Indiana came into the chamber and sought to make the point of order that Mr. Allen was transgressing the rules of the senate in reading a newspaper extract which reflected on the house of representatives. This aroused some of his slumbering colleagues, but Mr. Blackburn, who was in the chair, promptly overruled the point of order. The senators sank back again to repose and Mr. Allen proceeded.

Sleepy Senators Disturbed.

At 6:30 a. m. Mr. Wolcott rounded up the senate again, forty-eight senators answering to their names. An effort was made between 6 and 7 o'clock to reach an agreement to take a recess from that hour until 10 o'clock. The proposition was made to the silver men, who took it under advisement and fully decided to reject it. They said that the repeal senators had forced the continuous session, and would be obliged to suffer the consequences, and the silver men would not aid in any effort to take a recess or adjourn until some settlement of the question had been reached. Senator Allen's powers of endurance were absolutely amazing. His wonderful staying qualities made every one who had watched him go on for hour after hour tireless and undaunted, admire his abilities and his indomitable energies. About 7 o'clock Mr. Palmer interrupted him while speaking of the poverty and distress of the people, to remark rather sneeringly that the Nebraskan seemed able to give only words; he wanted to give them actual relief. Mr. Allen turned savagely upon Mr. Palmer and declared that he had given to the poor of his means, given until he had kept himself poor, and he did not want to be chided on that score.

Fifteen minutes later Mr. Shoup made the point of "no quorum," only forty senators appeared, three short of a quorum. The quorum had broken down for the first time. On motion of Mr. Faulkner Sergeant-at-Arms Bright was directed to bring in absentees. Within two minutes three more senators came in, completing the quorum.

At 8:15 Mr. Allen concluded his long speech by saying that he yielded the floor to Mr. Martin of Kansas. To this proceeding Mr. Voorhees took exception, and asked Mr. Allen if he proposed to farm out the floor. Mr. Allen declared he had no such intention. Instead of permitting Mr. Martin to go on, Mr. Voorhees moved to lay the Peffer free coinage amendment to the repeal bill on the table, and thus suddenly precipitate his era of business.

Senator Aldrich called for the ayes and nays. Mr. Peffer asked to be permitted to explain the amendment, but this privilege was denied and the roll call proceeded with on the vote to lay on the table.

The vote in detail was as follows:

Yeas—Messrs. Caffrey, Camden, Carey, Cullom, Davis, Dixon Dolph, Faulkner, Frye, Gallinger, Gordon, Gray, Hale, Hawley, Hill, Hoar, Lindsay, McMillan, McPherson, Mills, Mitchell (Wis.), Murphy, Platt, Proctor, Quay, Ransom, Sherman, Smith, Squire, Voorhees, Washburn, White (La.)—33.

Nays—Messrs. Bate, Berry, Blackburn, Butler, Call, Cameron, Coke, Daniel, George, Hunton, Irby, Martin, Morgan, Pasco, Peffer, Vest, Walthal—17.

When the chair had announced the vote and stated that the Peffer amendment had been laid upon the table, Mr. Voorhees was recognized. He stated that the Peffer amendment to the Voorhees bill was the only one pending, except that offered by the committee on finance, which is the Wilson bill, or House Bill No. 1. He said, however, there were other amendments which had been proposed by senators, but had not as yet been offered, but these would be in order when offered by their authors. He said the finance committee's amendment was now before the senate, and asked that Mr. Martin of Kansas be recognized to discuss the question.

At noon there was no perceptible change in the senate. As the steam whistles and huge bells scattered over the city announced the hour of midday, Senator Martin still had the floor, and of the forty-seven senators who responded to the call at 11:30 but eight were present. In the galleries the night audience had disappeared, and fresh faces greeted the senators. The chamber bore evidence of the struggle in its disordered state, and instead of the spick and span condition which confronts senators ordinarily at this hour of the day the floor was literally covered with paper and senatorial desks presented an untidy appearance.

There was an other call of the senate at ten minutes to 1 o'clock, and, forty-four senators responding, Mr. Martin resumed his speech. After the lapse of exactly thirty minutes Mr. Power (Rep., Mont.) rose, and, apparently tiring of suggesting the absence of a quorum, simply said, "Call the roll."

The result was announced, forty-three senators having answered to their names.

Mr. Martin then resumed his speech.

Another call of the senate was had at 3:05 p. m., forty-eight senators answering, and Mr. Martin said he would close his speech for the present, with the hope that he night continue the discussion at some future time, as there were many important phases of the question to which he had not alluded.

Morgan Would Amend.

Mr. Morgan (Dem., Ala.) gave notice of an amendment to the repeal bill, prepared, he said, by Representative Turpin of his state. The amendment provides for the coinage or silver dollars of 412 1-2 grains, which, together with all silver dollars of like weight and fineness, are made legal tender, except where otherwise expressly stipulated. The secretary of the treasury is directed to purchase silver bullion at the market price (to be paid for in silver dollars) and to have it coined into standard dollars to an equal amount monthly and yearly with the gold dollars coined.

Mr. Teller (Rep., Col.) then took the floor and resumed his speech against the bill begun last week. At 6:20 Mr. Teller said he had an important appointment which he was desirous of keeping, and if agreeable to the senate he would now yield the floor with the understanding that he could resume to-morrow. To this there was no objection and Stewart of Nevada was recognized.

A Compromise Feeler.

At 9:45 Mr. Dubois blandly suggested that only seventeen senators were present. Forty-six senators appeared. Before Mr. Stewart proceeded, Mr. Harris of Tennessee presented an amendment, which he said he would offer in due time. The amendment provided first, for the coinage of all the silver bullion in the treasury representing the government seigniorage into full legal tender dollars at the rate of three million per month; second, when this seigniorage shall have been coined the secretary of the treasury shall purchase each month bullion sufficient to coin blank dollars and to coin the bullion into legal tender dollars; third, that all paper notes or certificates of less denominations than $10 shall be redeemed and not reissued, and that national banks required to substitute notes of that denomination; fourth, that the two and a half and five dollar gold pieces shall no longer be coined, but when received at the treasury shall be recoined as eagles and double eagles; fifth, that the holders of standard silver dollars shall be able to exchange such dollars on presentation for notes of the same legal tender qualities as such silver dollars, which shall be held for their redemption.

This amendment created much interest, it being naturally assumed that it furnished perhaps the first concrete and specific compromise proposition growing out of the continuous session.

Idle Land—Sell Every Foot of It.

If there is any land upon the farm which is not earning anything, it is a direct menace to the prosperity of the rest of the farm. The taxes and the interest on its cost go on just the same as if it were earning something, and this detracts from the profit of the whole. Often these idle and waste places are but a harbor for vermin and weeds, or if they do not become so, it is because there is a constant expenditure of labor to keep it clean, and this labor might far better be expended in the cultivation of some crop. It will pay better to clean such places up once for all and put them to some use. Most of them are capable of some good. Not infrequently they would serve admirably for a timber tract.

BONES OF A DEPARTED RACE.

Found in Two Large Burial Places in Nebraska—Men of Great Stature.

A farmer plowing near Calhoun, Neb., recently turned up a human skull, and search revealed a large number of other skulls, besides bones. These relics were those of a powerful race, and who they were is unknown. The skulls are large, but the forehead is extremely low. A World-Herald reporter visited the place, and a measurement was taken of one of the lower jaws found and compared with the dimensions taken of one of the men on the field. The relic's jaw was found to be an inch larger each way, in proportion, than that of the person whose measurement had been taken, although he was six feet three inches in height, weighed nearly 200 pounds, and had unusually large jaws. The measurement of the lower maxillary found is as follows: Depth, 4 inches; width of the upper extremities, 5 1-2 inches; width inside measure from wisdom tooth to wisdom tooth, 2 1-4 inches; total length of jaw, 5 1-4 inches. The upper was fully as large, while the teeth resembled those of a cow more than those of a human being. They were badly worn, and would go to show that the owner ate meat, presumably buffalo, a great deal. A dentist when shown the teeth said that they were much larger than any of those of a white person living in this age.

A theory advanced is that these are the remains of some Mandan Indians, who were the earliest settlers of this part of the country, but were ultimately exterminated by the Sioux. The size of these bones would explode this theory, however, as the Mandans were not a large race. Another theory is that they are perhaps the remains of Northwestern Indians who were killed by another tribe. This tribe were large in stature, according to tradition, many being six feet and more in height.

The reporter found about fifty feet from the location of this trench another in which were buried the remains of five grown persons and one infant. A spade plied to the earth soon brought to view the remains of six human beings. The skulls were smaller and not of such extraordinary thickness as those exhumed from the first trench. They also bore the appearance of having lain in the ground for a longer period, as they would crumble apart of their own weight, while those first discovered were in a fair state of preservation. The cavities of the skulls had become filled with dirt, and it was only with great care in handling that a fair specimen was preserved. The trench was only three feet square and about two feet deep. In order to place a human body into so small a grave it must have been fearfully mutilated. When found the arms were over the head, while the tibia and fibia were found under all. The skulls were also found in different positions, some being straight up and down, while others were lying face up and some with face down.

No pottery, metal or the like was found by which they could be classed with the mound builders.

ADVENTURES OF A PHYSICIAN.

Why He Found Himself Regarded as a Pariah on a Street Car.

"I had rather a grewsome adventure the other day," said a well known Washington physician to a writer for the Washington Star. "I had been up all night with a patient on whom I had performed a critical surgical operation. It was a question whether he would recover from the shock. In fact it was touch and go, so that I could not take a minute's sleep. About 5 a. m. I got away and started for home, so exhausted that it never occurred to me to think of my appearance.

"The horse car I boarded quickly filled up with laborers on their way to work. Though very sleepy, I was somewhat surprised to notice that some of them eyed me strangely. Those of them who sat down near me quickly moved away, and one man who took a seat next to me—I was in one of the front corners—looked at me, got up hastily, and held on to the strap. Nobody else took the vacant place, though the vehicle by that time was crowded.

"Not being used to being regarded as a pariah, I was considerably puzzled. I observed the faces of two or three men who sat opposite to me, and I thought that they gazed at me with an expression of horror and disgust. What could it mean? I began to feel alarmed.

"Just then I chanced to look down at one of my cuffs. It was saturated with blood. The other cuff I noticed for the first time was bloody also. My trousers were spotted with blood, and there were fresh stains of it on my coat sleeves. My anxiety about the patient and subsequent exhaustion had prevented me from thinking of the matter, and I had not done more than wash my hands before starting for home. At once I saw what the trouble was. The people in the car could find no other way of accounting for my condition than to suppose that I had just killed somebody. They sized me up for a murderer. Unshaven as I was, and wearing an old hat, I must have looked rather tough. Not a word was said as I got off the car and made a sprint for my house, glad to get back safe, and to remove the traces of imagined crime from my person."

What We Don't Do.

"Shure," remarked an Irish gardener, looking up admiringly at his employer, a great scholar, "your honor must know a terrible lot."

"Thank you, Pat," returned the professor. "I ought to know a great deal, for my entire life has been given up to study."

"It has," echoed the admiring gardener; "and is there anything your honor doesn't know?"

"Oh, yes," was the answer, "plenty of things."

"Shure," came the unexpected reply, "and if there's anything yer know yer don't know I'd like yer to tell me what it is."

Now to be asked to state exactly what one does not know is rather difficult in many ways, because if we knew what we didn't know there would be something wrong somewheres. The more you think over this problem of Pat's the more involved it becomes. It is interesting, however, to look at the question in a different light, and then we discover how ignorant we really are. There are plenty of things we know of, but are unable to explain. A school-boy might instruct an ancient philosopher in many things to-day, but that school-boy could nuzzle the greatest scholar or scientist alive with his questions. We have advanced greatly in knowledge, it is very true, but if, like Pat you want to know what no one knows, a few simple questions will be enough to start with. The simpler the question the better, for they are the hardest to answer. For instance, what is electricity?—and there at once you have something with which every one is familiar, and nobody knows.—Harper's Young People.

Whistling Fireworks.

The people of London are very much interested in the whistling fireworks which have long ceased to be regarded over here as a pyrotechnic marvel. The popular notion among the Britons is that gas generated by the combustion of the fiery composition actually blows a whistle, but this supposition is erroneous. So far as can be determined by the protechnists themselves, the screaming noise is due to the violent combustion to the picrate of potash with which the little tubes of the fireworks are stuffed. Experiments have been made with other materials, but picrate of potash is the only combustible substance discoverable that will give anything more than a faint imitation of a whistle.

Cost of British Defenses.

The British Empire spends as a rule upon defense from $250,000,000 to $280,000,000 a year, of which the military expenditure of India on mobile land forces at home, forms the largest item. Almost the whole of this vast sum is expended out of British loans or taxes under the control of the parliament of the United Kingdom, and out of Indian taxes under the indirect control of the house of commons through the secretary of state, who is a member of the government of the day. This expenditure, although vast, although open to the reproach that it does not do more than maintain a fleet slightly superior to that of France, and an army of very small numbers—is a fleabite as compared (in its ill effect upon the wealth of the nation) with the military expenditure of Italy, or, in a less degree, with that of other continental powers. The evidences of the overpressure of taxation in India itself, many as they are, are slight in comparison with those which are present in the case of Italy; and it may be assumed, therefore, that, while the taxpayers of the United Kingdom and of India may make their voices heard in insisting upon better value for their money, the expenditure will not in itself be brought to an end by bankruptcy.—Sir C. W. Dilke in the North American Review.

The fire brick works at Mexico, Mo., have suspended. A large number of workmen are thrown out of employment. The factory is one of the largest of the kind in the country.

H. D. Hatch and William French came to blows on the floor of the New York stock exchange. Neither of the men sustained any serious injuries, but for a time the incident created considerable excitement.

AROUND A GREAT STATE.

INTERESTING EVENTS OF THE WEEK IN MINNESOTA

Important Occurrences in the North Star State Day by Day—A General Resume of the Week's Doings Arranged for Rapid Reading.

Monday, Oct. 16.

The school board has adopted the free text book system in the Faribault public schools. The total enrollment of pupils during the past year was 1,282.

William Quade, living on the banks of Cedar lake, in Meeker county, and his brother, August Quade, and son, got into a dispute over money matters. William shot at his brother, tearing his scalp into shreds. The shooter was arrested.

Charles Holquist has commenced action against Simon Clark and Clark's assignee, Robert Fitzgerald, for $3,855, on a judgment secured before the assignment.

The two-story dwelling of A. F. Stone in Nininger, a mile and a half west of the fair grounds, was burned with all its contents, taking fire from the chimney. Insurance, $1,000 on building and $450 on the contents in the Niagara.

Andrew Peterson, a prominent farmer living three miles north of Cokato, was kicked by one of his horses and died in a few minutes. The deceased was about forty-five years of age, and leaves a widow.

In the United States district court at Duluth Harry Vanderof, deputy postmaster at Brown's Valley, was held under six indictments for robbing the mails. He pleaded guilty to one indictment and the other five were dismissed, and he was sentenced to one year and seven days in the state reformatory.

Tuesday, Oct. 17.

Clara Giels sues the Duluth Street Railway company for $5,000, alleging that the sudden starting of a car threw her to the ground, breaking her ankle.

Richard Brown, an old resident of Lake City, died. He had just returned exhausted from the world's fair, and his death occurred in a few hours. Deceased was a widower, and leaves one daughter, Mrs. J. W. Wood, to mourn his demise.

Burglars effected an entrance to the First National bank at Glencoe. The vault was forced open, a small amount of currency and $1,200 worth of postage stamps, deposited by Postmaster Simons, taken. The safe was tampered with, but not opened. It was evidently the work of professionals.

Wednesday, Oct. 18.

The clothing store known as the Model, owned by Stern & Hirsch, at Winona, was burglarized and a few articles of clothing stolen.

Forest fires are causing heavy losses to farmers all over Morrison county. The Minnesota Brick company lost 300 cords of wood and other yard property.

Ethel Sherry, arrested a fortnight ago at Duluth, charged with forging an indorsement to a check, was discharged after a hearing in the municipal court. The prosecution failed to show she had not authority to make the indorsement.

One of the drivers of an engine which was pulling a work train on the Hutchinson branch near Glencoe broke and struck the cab, nearly demolishing it. The engineer and fireman escaped injury. One of the workmen jumped from a car and was badly shaken.

Henry Merritt, who stole a lumber wagon from M. Maseman, residing near Winona, and put off across the country with it, was captured by Maseman's father-in-law near Lewiston and turned over to the authorities. The authorities also believe he stole the horse, and will investigate.

O. L. Laublin, janitor of the First National bank at Duluth, was stabbed in the back last night by Frank Dahlgren. Laublin attempted to defend two ladies who had been frightened by Dahlgren and a companion. The wound was made with a jackknife and is dangerously near the kidneys.

Thursday, Oct. 19.

Three boys at the state reform school at Red Wing picked the lock of their sleeping compartment and escaped. Before leaving they stole a revolver and about $50 from their teacher, Mr. North.

Sheriff Gunderson, of Norman county, has captured three men, supposed to be the robbers of the bank in Halstad. Two of them he caught at Scandinavia, Wis., and the third one at Georgetown.

A disastrous prairie fire swept the country southwest of Round Lake station. Hay to the amount of several thousand dollars was destroyed, also grain, farm machinery and barns belonging to a farmer named Erskine.

The Mesabi road did its greatest business to date last week. Ore shipments from Duluth were 39,179 tons. The road has so far this year handled 235,000 tons, making total Mesabi range shipments 380,000 tons.

The barn and granary of Peter Weldon, one-half mile south of Belle Plaine, were burned, together with 1,500 bushels of wheat, 1,000 bushels of oats, four horses and all his farm machinery. Loss, $3,000; insurance, $700. Origin of fire unknown.

John Herman and John McBride, the McLean store burglars, were found guilty at Anoka, and Judge Russell sentenced them to eight years hard labor at Stillwater. This makes one of the quickest cases of punishment on record at that place. The three boys, Cutter, Harman and Libby, were found guilty of riot by a jury and will be sentenced to between one and five years. These cases end all the important court business.

Friday, Oct. 20.

Three prisoners at Benson overpower the jailor and make their escape.

A threshing outfit and 500 bushels of barley were burned on the farm of Charles Whipple near Zumbrota. The loss is about $600.

Burglars picked the lock in the office door of the Winona and Dakota Grain company's elevator at Sanborn. A note for $125, a razor and a revolver were taken. The robbery was probably committed by tramps.

Charles Taggart, an employe of the Hill mill at Biwabik, committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart. He is thought to have been insane through despondency over illness. His mother lives at Elba, Mich.

Martin Keller, believed to be insane, was arrested at Stillwater after starting five fires in the business part of the city. He could give no explanation other than that he had been instructed to set the fires by telegram. None of the fires did serious damage.

While Charles Gottfrier was going to his home in the town of Warsaw, Faribault county, a few evenings since, he claims he was assaulted by footpads and badly pounded and robbed of what little money he had, which was about $1 and a pair of horse blankets which were in his wagon. He has a broken jaw bone and is otherwise injured about the head.

Saturday, Oct. 21.

William Haenggi, actuated by jealousy, kills his wife at St. Paul.

Burglars entered the store of Erickson & Newhouse at Mabel and secured six gold watches and twelve gold rings.

Gust Dohling of Eagan, an inmate of the poor farm over a year, was taken to the Rochester asylum. He is about twenty years of age.

The Mississippi mill contractors at Winona have been officially notified that all government work must close for the year at the end of the present month.

Forest fires are doing a great amount of damage near Aitkin. Already one hay press and about 200 tons of hay have been destroyed. If rain does not speedily come to the rescue the damage will be fearful.

S. A. Bergendahl, a music dealer at Duluth, was convicted of forging a check and sent to jail for thirty days, defaulting a fine of $30. Bergendahl protests his innocence, but must stand trial on two more allegations of forgery.

Sunday, Oct. 22.

William Vickerman of Amherst was accidentally shot while out hunting by one of Mr. Sidney's boys of Canton.

Will Smith of Hastings had his arm broken in four places and was otherwise bruised by coming in contact with the belt of a steam threshing machine.

The grand jury at St. Paul returned an indictment for murder in the first degree against William Haenggi, the Swiss carpenter, who killed his wife.

Charles A. Hawks and W. B. Evans, cashier and assistant cashier, respectively, of the Seven Corners bank at St. Paul, have been jointly indicted by the grand jury for the embezzlement of $60,000 of the bank's funds.

An obstruction was discovered on the railway track one mile east of Beaver Creek last night. Whether it was an attempt to wreck the accommodation train or was placed there by mischievous boys remains a mystery.

H. C. Kinder, aged 65, janitor of the First Congregational church at Northfield, was killed in the basement of the church by taking hold of a live electric light wire which was not insulated. He was accompanied by a boy who saw the accident.

Assistant State Dairy Commissioner and Inspector Hokemeier has returned to St. Paul from Duluth, where he seized fifty tubs of butter alleged to be adulterated with oleomargarine. It is the intention of the department to prosecute persons selling such stuff and to publish a list of the dealers, hotels and boarding houses where it is sold or used.

A SNAKE FARM.

Two Persons Who Made a Success at It.

Forty miles southwest of Springfield, Mo., says an exchange, Don Allen and his wife, Laura Lio, a Mexican snake charmer, have their snake farm. Every season Allen and his wife visit Arkansas and Texas and gather the snakes. They will not tell how they capture them, but never fail to return to the farm with a goodly collection. This summer they went up the Arkansas river with 250 live fellows.

The snakes are of the most venomous kind and of various species and sizes, from the tiny adder to the biggest rattlesnake. In the last lot are a copper-jawed python, a very rare specimen, which is destined for the Smithsonian institution, and a cannibal snake, which is almost as rare. The king of the lot, however, is a pet black fellow, whose mission is to hunt rattlesnakes and run them out of their dens. This snake is named Dan, and is as docile as a dog. The serpents are put to various uses after being taken to the farm. Many are sold to museums, others boiled down for oil, and a large profit is also made from the venom of the moccasins and rattlesnakes, which is used in making a poison, for which there is a large sale in Mexico.

The serpent queen, who handles the reptiles, is frequently bitten, but uses a remedy of her own making, which kills the poison almost instantly. Allen and his wife have shipped several cargoes to the farm, and one lot of 125 was recently lost by the sinking of their boat in the Arkansas river.

Seeding Rich Soil.

As an almost invariable rule, the richest soil needs the heaviest seeding. We have been told that the small grains are an exception to this, as on rich soil the plant tillers, so that a light seeding will produce a large number of stalks. But the exception is not so real as it seems. The thin seeding may grow so vigorously as to send up a large number of shoots and fairly cover the ground. But this more vigorous grown is accompanied by excess of leaf and weakness of straw, which prevent the grain from filling as it should.

We can see this occasionally where single grains of oats are dropped in cultivating corn or potatoes. The crop is sure to rust and be worth very little either for straw or grain. On the other hand, a too heavy seeding of small grain on poor land cannot fill out large, plump heads of grain. The crowding, which is a benefit on rich soil, is there most injurious. Even in planting potatoes, a rich soil requires that the hills be close enough together so that the potatoes shall not be overgrown, while in poor soil single eyes with hills three feet apart will give more marketable tubers than will a heavy seeding.—American Cultivator.

FIFTY THIRD CONGRESS.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SPECIAL SESSION OF CONGRESS.

Condensed Record of the Business Being Transacted by our National Law-makers—Routine Report Day by Day.

Washington, Oct. 18.—Senators Washburn of Minnesota and Morgan of Alabama engaged in a lively debate in the senate and the incident further increased the bad blood that has resulted from the fight on silver. Senator Hill of New York took a hand in the debate, and what he said did not tend to mend matters. The passage of words between the Minnesota senator and the gentleman from Alabama was exceedingly bitter, and the Southern senator wound up by declaring that he was able to take care of himself in and out of the senate chamber, evidently intimating that he would not hesitate to engage in a personal conflict. The trouble arose over a discussion regarding filibustering. Both sides are now about as mad as they can get, and it would not be at all surprising if a closure rule was finally adopted.

The Cox banking bill has passed the house. A substitute was offered by Mr. Cox, including directors with salaried officers of national banks within the operation of the act. Mr. Dingley's amendment to strike out "directors" was lost—50 to 60. The substitute was agreed to—78 to 45. The bill was then passed. The house devoted the remainder of the afternoon to the consideration of the printing bill. Mr. Harter of Ohio has introduced a bill to reduce the tax on state bank notes to 1 per cent per annum when upon all such notes there shall be a plainly printed and clearly stated agreement of the state in which the bank issuing the notes is located to redeem such notes in legal tender money of the United States upon presentation to the proper authorities of the state.

Washington, Oct. 19.—The Democratic steering committee of the senate was in session a great part of the day trying to devise a scheme for the settlement of the differences existing on the financial question on that side of the chamber, and appearances at the close of the day indicated that progress had been made. The detail of the work was left to Senators Cockrell and Gray, the one a representative of the free silver element, and the other of the repeal element. They remained together during the entire afternoon and long after the adjournment of the senate were in consultation with other members of the Democratic faith who were from time to time during the afternoon mysteriously brought into the chamber by Mr. Cockrell and drawn away into his and Mr. Gray's hiding place. Here they were asked their views as to the propriety of compromise and also requested to indicate how far they would respectively go in making concessions to the opposite side. It is asserted that the committee having the matter in charge progressed far enough to prepare the rough draft of the bill which is to be submitted to the senate as soon as a majority of the senators can be consulted upon its merits. The tiresome discussion was continued in the senate and no progress was made.

The remainder of the week in the house promises to be exceedingly dull. It was decided to postpone consideration of the bankruptcy bill until next week, and to-day after the disposal of the regular morning business the house went ahead with the consideration of the printing bill. During the first morning hour Mr. Wolverton, from the committee on judiciary, called up the bill to reduce and regulate the fees and work of United States district and circuit courts and terms made by district attorneys, marshals and commissioners. It was passed.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The Democrats of the senate are again devoting their time almost exclusively to the effort to reach an understanding among themselves, and consider that they are in a fair way to agree upon a bill to be brought into the senate at the beginning of next week. They have, indeed, been devoting their attention so exclusively to the compromise question that but very few of them remained in the senate during the session. There were, however, no suggestions upon the part of the silver men for the want of a quorum, for the reason that they understood the situation, and were willing to permit the compromise work to go on uninterrupted. Some of the repeal Democratic senators are still holding out for absolute repeal, and it is with this class that the committee are now laboring. The opinion is expressed that if the majority fail in bringing these objectors over, the vote necessary to put the bill through will be found among the silver men on the Republican side. The bill which will be brought in, as now contemplated, will be a very simple measure. It will extend the provisions of the present silver purchase law until the 1st of January, 1895, with a reduction of the monthly purchase to $2,500,000 of silver per month. It will also provide for the coinage immediately of the seignorage of the silver at present in the treasury. It is asserted that it will not include any provision for bonds, but that point is not yet determined definitely. The day in the senate was devoted again to speech-making, and no radical move was made by either side.

The house did nothing except to agree to a vote on the bankruptcy bill some day next week.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Senator Voorhees gave notice of an amendment to the rules when the senate convened. It provides that when a bill or resolution pending in the senate as unfinished business shall have been debated thirty days, any senator may move to fix a time for taking a vote thereon. Such motion shall not be amendable nor debatable, and if passed, the pending bill or resolution shall be voted upon at the time fixed. This is considered to mean that the fight of the repeal men will be continued and that by a closure rule will secure the passage of the repeal bill. The compromise men are said to be at sea, being unable to agree upon the bond question and when the Sherman act is to be dispensed with. A bill was to have been fixed up last night, but it failed to materialize. The most of the day was spent by the senate in secret session. The nomination of Van Alen as ambassador to Italy was confirmed.

Seven or eight Democratic senators visited Secretary Carlisle and submitted to him a proposition to take the place of the repeal measure now before the senate, which they thought practically all of the Democratic senators would support. Secretary Carlisle dissented from some of the terms of the proposition and showed wherein they would in practical operation be objectionable. There is excellent reason for saying, however, that before the middle of next week the repeal bill will pass to take effect not later than Oct. 1, 1894, probably with a provision authorizing the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds not exceeding $200,000,000 and coin the seigniorage now in the treasury. This, it is said, would not be considered a surrender by the administration, and it is stated on reliable authority that the bill passed in this shape would not be objectionable to the president.

Nothing of importance was transacted in the house.

Washington, Oct. 23.—The silver question will probably again this week occupy the attention of the senate to the exclusion of every other subject, unless it be some minor matter like the confirmation of presidential appointments. Even though the compromise bill be brought in there is little prospect of concluding the consideration of the question before a week has passed. There is a possibility that the compromise may fail, though all the probabilities are in favor of its success. If it should fail the throttle will be thrown wide open again, and no one can foretell what the week might bring forth. Such a state of affairs would be almost certain to force the senate into a fierce fight over the rules. It is probable that Senator Voorhees will make a summing-up speech during the week if the compromise amendment is introduced.

The course of events in the house will hinge upon the result of the effort to put through the compromise at the other end of the capitol. If the compromise should reach the house before the consideration of the bankruptcy bill, which is made a continuing order beginning to-day, is disposed of, that order will be vacated to the end that prompt action may be had on the financial measures. It is not expected, however, that the compromise bill will reach the house under the most favorable circumstances until the latter end of the week. Unless it becomes apparent that there might be unreasonable delay in the committee the bill will be referred under the rule to the coinage, weights and measures committee. If there is a disposition to hold it there a motion will be made to concur in the senate amendments when the bill is taken from the speaker's table. The attitude of the Republicans toward the bill will be governed by the course of the Republican senators. The silver Democrats, too, except perhaps a few extremists will follow the lead of their political brethren of the senate. In fact, no sort of doubt seems to exist about the house. It will pass and pass with expedition any compromise that goes through the senate.

ONE MORE DEATH.

Battle Creek, Mich., Oct. 23.—Albert H. Bradley of Toronto, Ont., another of the injured in the Grand Trunk wreck, died here last night. He was cashier in the Bank of Commerce in that city, and his demise swells the number of deaths to twenty-eight. Friends have identified one of the burned bodies as that of the widow of Dr. Aldrich of Edwardsburg, Mich. She had left New York on the ill-fated train but did not reach Edwardsburg although her baggage got through safely. Her friends did not know that she took the ill-fated train, but inquiry proved that she had done so, and after an almost fruitless search her remains were picked out and sent home. Of the twenty-seven bodies lying in the morgue here only thirteen have been identified.

WITH NEW OFFICERS.

St. Paul, Oct. 23.—The affairs of the National German-American bank have been entirely settled up. The culmination was the election of a new board of directors and new officers. The new board is Joseph Lockey, G. Willius, J. H. Weed, Channing Seabury, J. W. Lusk, F. Weyerhaeuser, P. H. Kelly, A. H. Lindeke and J. A. Humbird. The board of directors elected the following officers: J. W. Lusk, president; G. Willius, vice president; Joseph Lockey, cashier, and Theodore Drax, assistant cashier. The bank will resume business on the 30th.

CHINAMEN CONVICTED.

Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 23.—The jury in the case of Hum Wing Sing and Lee Chung, charged with murdering another Chinaman, after being out twenty-four hours returned a verdict of murder in the third degree. The case has attracted widespread attention throughout this part of the state. Attorney McClenahan made a motion for arrest of judgment and will endeavor to quash the indictment on the ground that it is irregularly drawn.

DRIVEN TO THE DEED.

Red Wing, Minn., Oct. 23.—At Cannon Falls two men found a coat and hat at the mill pond. They commenced dragging and to their horror found the body of John Gustafson. Before jumping into the pond he had cut his throat. Gustafson married a young girl, Miss Hilma Hawkinson, three weeks ago. She soon after heard that her husband had another wife. She left him and commenced action for divorce, which was coming up in the district court here next week.

GIVE UP WEEKS.

Washington, Oct. 23. — Francis H. Weeks, the absconding New York lawyer, who sought an asylum in Costa Rica, has been surrendered by that government to the United States authorities. The state department received a message to this effect from the United States consul at San Jose. The dispatch further says that Weeks will leave for New Orleans in charge of an officer this week on board the steamer Foxhall.

OUTWIT THE SHERIFF.

West Superior, Wis., Oct. 23.—Joseph McNut eloped with a daughter of Mrs. Jane Strader, and a warrant was issued for the arrest of the runaway couple and put in the hands of the sheriff to serve. He chased the couple about the docks and elevators in the lower part of the city for about three hours, when they escaped him. The happy couple went to Duluth and were married there.

CITIZENS INDIGNANT.

Montevideo, Minn., Oct. 23.—Considerable indignation is manifest among business men here at the action of the insurance companies in making an advance of 20 per cent on former rates. This makes insurance rates higher than they were in the early days of the village when we had no fire apparatus. Some will not continue their policies after expiration.

HE CONFESSED HIS CRIME

MYSTERY SURROUNDING A SEXTUPLE MURDER IS CLEARED.

A Prisoner Arrested on Suspicion Makes a Confession and Implicates Six Other Men in the Terrible Butchery.

Washington, Ind., Oct. 23.—At last the guilty murderers of the Wrattan family are in the toils of the law. Five of the suspects arrested and taken to Jeffersonville two weeks ago were rightly suspected, but it was not through them that the heinous criminals were exposed. Last Saturday the grand jury ordered the arrest of James Stone, the man who came to the Wrattan house early Tuesday morning and first discovered the terrible tragedy. As soon as stone was brought to town the grand jury went to work to obtain a confession from him. At first he strenuously denied everything, but being assured that clemency would be guaranteed him if he made a confession, he, at midnight, yielded to their overtures. He told his story about as follows:

Knowing that Mrs. Wrattan kept a great deal of money about the house, Grandison Crosby, a notorious character in this county, planned the robbery. A gang of seven persons that formed a sort of society for robberies and general hellishness, was notified of his plan. Their names are Grandison Crosby, Lon Williams, Martin Yarber, of this city; William Kas of Pike county; John W. White, Gipp Clark and James Stone. Their plan was that Yarber and Clark should get into the house and commit the robbery while the others were to stand guard. At the time when the robbery was to be committed Crosby and Stone had not yet arrived. Crosby was in the city Monday evening and was so drunk that he got past going and did not reach the house at all, but Stone arrived after the murder had been committed, and because he was late the other conspirators wallowed him in the blood of the victims, and in that condition permitted him to go home, and that was the nail that fastened down the lid of their coffins. They could not find a cent of the money as stone did not arrive until the six murders were committed. He does not know why they killed the Wrattan family. All the criminals were arrested and taken to Jeffersonville last night. Williams and Kas were already in jail. Brown, another suspect who was taken to Jeffersonville, had no connection with the tragedy and he will be released. The excitement is more intense than ever. Woe to the murderers if a Davies county delegation can lay hands on them.

DIED IN DENVER.

San Francisco, Oct 23.—An aged brother of Patrick Berry came hither from Black Pool, England, a few weeks ago in search of a fortune of several millions of dollars which he had been informed his brother possessed when he died. The old gentleman and his attorneys had about abandoned the search in California and the disappointed searchers were about to return to England, when he received a letter from a Denver attorney that his wealthy brother died there a year ago. He will go to Denver.

MURDERER CAUGHT.

Santa Fe, N. Mex., Oct. 23.—Alonzo Fresquez of Dona Ana county in 1888 threw his lariat while on horseback and caught a man around the waist and dragged him half a mile, inflicting injuries which proved fatal in a few days. Fresquez then fled to Mexico. He has just been captured and is in jail at Chihuahua. Gov. Thornton has authorized Sheriff Martin Lohman to proceed and bring the murderer back to Las Cruces.

SHOT EACH OTHER.

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 23.—A shooting occurred here about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon between Policeman George James and Lloyd Cole of this town, in which the former was killed and the latter dangerously wounded. James, while on duty, reported to the chief that Cole and others were engaged in a game of craps, which Cole denied, and on meeting yesterday afternoon, after a few words both drew their pistols and began shooting.

FIRE ON A FARM.

Sedalia, Mo., Oct. 23.—Sparks from a locomotive set fire to the farm of Mrs. Kentry near here, yesterday. The fire burned furiously for several hours, and before it could be extinguished burned over 150 acres of timothy and destroyed a quantity of hay and several miles of fencing, as well as burned up 200 head of sheep.

MOORS SLAUGHTERED.

Madrid, Oct. 23.—An official dispatch from Melilla says that the forts there opened fire on the Moors in their trenches and that the Spanish warship Venadito is shelling the coast. Shortly after the firing began the Moors fled into their own territory. They sustained heavy loss.

KILLED WHILE DRUNK.

Nevada, Mo., Oct. 23.—The dead body of John Henry, aged forty-five, a prominent farmer of this vicinity, was found in the roadway near here. Henry's neck was broken, and it is surmised he fell from his wagon while intoxicated, having last been seen in that condition going home from town.

AGAINST CAPRIVI.

London, Oct. 23.—The Berlin correspondent of the Times says that the agricultural Conservers are carrying on an unprecedentedly campaign against Chancellor von Caprivi, and are striving to produce an imposing demonstration of Russian opinion inimical to him in the hope of overawing the emperor in his capacity as king of Prussia.

INSANE.

Hastings, Minn., Oct. 23.—Gust Dahling of Egan, an inmate of the poor farm for a year, was taken to the Rochester asylum by T. E. Redican, overseer, having been adjudged insane, the examining physicians being Dr. J. P. Caldwell of Farmington and Dr. J. C. Fitch of this city. He is about fifty years of age.

BURNED.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 23.—Sections H and G, of the Providence warehouse building, with 3,000 bales of cotton, were destroyed by fire caused by the explosion of a lamp. Loss, $100,000.

A cold wave struck us last Monday and with it came about three inches of the "beautiful snow" that we read about. Part of it is still with us but we have hopes of having a few days of good weather before the final freeze up.

Marshall & Johnson are feeling good over the fact that their Red Lake Falls mill received a medal at the World's Fair for their excellent flour, Considering the fact that all the big mills in the world was competitors, it was something well worth feeling good about.

The leading spring wheat states are made by the government report for October to produce 9.1 bushels of wheat per acre for Minnesota; 8.6 for South Dakota and 9.5 for North Dakota. Allowing for full acreage to equal that of 1892, the yeald of Minnesota would upon that basis, be; 82,328,893 bushels South Dakota, 21,855,592 bushels, and North Dakota, 29,252,925 bushels, making the total yeald for the three states 81,437,313 bushels.

Latest reports from Washington indicates that the repeal bill will pass the senate in a short time, President Cleveland has succeeded in whipping the southern democrats into line. In a very short time now we may expect the prosperous times the Republicans and Democrats have been telling would immediately appear as soon as the Sherman silver law was repealed. Wheat will bring at least a dollar and all kinds of products will bring a good price and find a ready sale. Money will be so plentiful that you can get all you want for taking care of it. This is of course as the old parties tell of it: Now watch for this wonderful wave of prosperity.

The repeal of the Sherman act without any supplementary legislation favorable to the white metal, means that the doors of the government mints are forever barred to silver, that silver will be used only as a subsidiary coin; that nearly one half the circulating medium of the country is debased and by degrees will be driven from the channels of trade. This is what Wall street wants, The less money in the country the greater the power of the Goulds and Vanderbilts. Demonitize silver, establish a gold monometallic standard and the Shylocks can precipitate a panic at their will, and in times of panics the rich vampires grow fat fatter while the poor—God have mercy on them!

The gold bugs and their servile tools scattered throughout the country have raised a great hue and cry over the Sherman act, wildly clamoring for its repeal and attributing to it the disaster and ruin and misery that has overtaken the country. Sensible people all over the land are beginning to open their eyes and do a little thinking for themselves, and they have reached the conclusion that the Sherman act had nothing to do with bringing on the panic, except as it was used by the Wall street gamblers to hoodoo the people.

We should like to see Senator Davis and Washburn break away from the plutocratic grasp of the Twin cities, put their ears to the ground and boldly come out as champions of silver. Let them join with that noble and patriotic band of western senators in refusing to consummate the closing act in a most infamous conspiracy, a conspiracy to demonetize silver, conceived in fraud 20 years ago and carried on in corruption and dishonor to the present day. Place silver on with gold, and open the mints to its coinage at least to a limited extent. Unless this is done the men who voted for the unconditional repeal of the Sherman act and failed to pass any subsequent legislation on the subject—those men will hear something drop.—Fairmont Sentinel.

DO NOT MISS THE WORLD'S FAIR.

From the century Magazine for Oct. 1893. * * * Some weeks still remain in which those who have not seen the World's Fair may yet enjoy that never-to-be-renewed privilege. In the general astonishment at the beauty of the housing of the exhibition perhaps not enough has been said concerning the the contents. That these are well worthy the attention of the student of every or any department of human enterprise goes without the saying—though in some departments much more than in others the truly instructional method has been observed.

It still remains true that the greatest feature of the exhibition is the architecture and the landscape gardening including in these all their sculptured and painted decoration and adjuncts. In these the deepest pleasure and the deepest instruction are to be found, as well as the largest and longest benefit to the country.

If the visitor can only be a single day at the Fair or a single night, it is worth any sacrafice to enjoy this alone. And if it were to be a question between the daytime or the illumination at night we would advise the latter; for surely no eyes now opened on this world are likely ever again to behold any sight so nobly beautiful. * * *

POOR LITTLE WOMAN.

Worried Terribly, She Scarcely Slept a Wink All Night.

There had been a fearful storm!

Not merely the usual mild gale which occurs on almost every trip across the Atlantic ferry, and which the captain assures the awestruck passengers is "the worst blow he has experienced in 40 years."

No, it had been one of those merciless tempests which seem to tear the very bottom out of the ocean and make short work of the stoutest and stanchest steamers.

All through the long night the gigantic waves had beat and thundered against the sides of the good old Northumbria, crashing heavily over her decks and sending their foam crested tops even higher than the flying bridge, until it seemed as if the steamer would be overwhelmed.

As she rolled and twisted and pitched, while her very ribs cracked beneath the vigorous embrace of the sea, nearly all of the passengers had given up their most cherished inward convictions and now lay fearfully awaiting the final moment when the ship should succumb to the force of the storm and sink slowly downward into the dark green depths.

As the cold, gray light of the approaching dawn stole into the stateroom through the porthole Douglass Skyflats turned to look at his wife.

As she stared up at him from her pillow with wide open tearless eyes, there was an expression of agonized fear and abject terror on her whitened face, such an expression as he had never seen there before.

"Poor little woman!" he thought. "How she must have suffered during that fearful night!" And he had imagined she was sleeping through it all. Decidedly he must try to cheer her up.

"Don't be afraid, Madge," he said gently. "The storm is over. The waves are going down. They are not so violent. Thank heaven, little girl, the worst of the danger has passed."

She stirred uneasily.

"Oh, Charlie, I'm afraid"—she moaned.

"But don't be afraid, my dear," he said as he leaned over and kissed her tenderly. "The steamer is all right now."

"Oh, I don't care about the old steamer," groaned Mrs. Skyflats despairingly; "but, Charlie, do you know, I'm so afraid I forgot to lock the door of the dumbwaiter shaft before we left the flat!"—Brooklyn Life.

A Trifle Mixed.

Mrs. Jason came home the other evening with her face "wreathed in smiles," as the novelists have it.

"Well, what are you grinning at?" was the cordial greeting of her lord and master.

"I heard something funny down town," she answered.

"Well, what was it?"

"Oh, nothing much. I happened to meet little Johnny Fig, who used to keep the apple stand across the way, you know, and he's got a better one down town now. I asked him how he was getting along, and he says to me, 'Oh, I'm still keeping a stand, you see.' I thought it was the cutest thing I had heard for a good while."

"Oh, you did, did you, Maria? If ever I see where the laugh comes in, I'll try and smile, even if I have to get up in the middle of the night to do so," was his crushing reply, to which she deigned no answer.

About 3 o'clock in the morning Mr. Jason was awakened from a dream of being stabbed by a masked assassin, to find his wife energetically nudging him below the fifth rib.

"Oh, Jehiel, I had that wrong," she twittered in a tone of one who has made a great discovery. "Johnny said his business was at a standstill. You see the point now, don't you?"—Tit-Bits.

Now Different.

The old gentleman in the hotel where the fast young man who came in late was stopping met the f. y. m. one morning on his way to the tennis court.

"What's that you've got in your hand?" asked the innocent old gentleman.

"That's a racket," replied the f. y. m. superciliously.

"Ah," and the old gentleman took it in his hand. "It's noiseless, isn't it?"

"Of course. You didn't think it was an explosive, did you?"

"Oh, no," sighed the old gentleman. "I was only thinking how different it was from the kind you have with you at night."—Detroit Free Press.

He Put Them Back.

Father—See here! Why don't you put things where you find 'em? The saw is gone, the nails are nowhere, and I can't find the hammer. Your mother says you had them all today.

Son—I left them right where I found them.

"You did, eh? Where did you find them? Just tell me that."

"Out in the back yard where you had them fixing a box last week."—Good News.

Improved Methods.

Father (to the 7-year-old miss beside him, cutting the whip sharply through the air)—See, Mary, how I make the horse go faster without striking him at all.

Mary (in an eager tone of happy discovery)—Papa, why don't you spank us children in that way?—Life.

Both Reminded.

The Incorrigible Narrator—That reminds me of a good story.

His Intended Victim (vanishing through a door)—That reminds me of an engagement.—Chicago Record.

His Object.

"What on earth did Van Pelt go into the fur business for?"

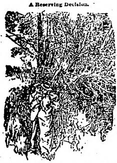
A Reserving Decision.



Miss Zimmerman (coyly)—You think, then, that two heads are better than one?

Mr. Zimmerman—Yes, if they happen to be on one shoulder.—Truth.

THEIR FIRST DINNER PARTY.

But They Waited In Vain For the Guests to Come.

They had only been married a month and it was their first dinner party, consequently they were both a little flurried when the time came for the guests to arrive.

She had superintended the arranging of the table herself, and now stood surveying its obviously new silver, glass and linen with housewifely pride.

"Do you really think everything will go well, Edward?" she asked for the twentieth time.

And for the twentieth time he answered: "Of course it will all go well. I only pity the poor fellows who have no little wife and no home of their own."

"Oh, Edward, how nice!" she gurgled, "and how I do pity the poor girls who have no nice, kind husbands. There is Edith. She is such a sweet girl, she really ought to know how nice it is to be married."

"Yes, indeed. And then there is George. He has no idea of what happiness he is missing."

She walked into the parlor, and standing before the mirror rearranged the rose in her hair. "Do you like it so?" she asked.

"It is lovely. Poor George, how he must envy me!"

"And, oh, Edward, I do feel sorry for Edith. Hark, is that a carriage?"

They both fell into easy attitudes of expectancy, but the carriage rolled on. He took out his watch and looked at it. It was 7.

"Oh, dear," she moaned, "I'm afraid they will not be prompt, and my notes said 7 sharp."

"Perhaps my watch is fast," he said soothingly.

She moved her lace pin a little, then replaced it, regarding herself in the glass with a critical air. He walked up and down with his hands in his pockets.

"Oh, dear," she wailed, "they are late already, and the cook will be so cross. She looks perfectly colossal when she is cross, Edward."

"And the women will have to chatter half an hour in the dressing room after they do come," he groaned.

"Why, Edward, how unkind—as if the men did not like to stay just as long with their horrid cigars!"

"Listen, here they come!"

They fell again into position, but the wheels passed on.

"It is odd," she said, "people never kept mamma waiting in this way. They were always anxious to come to her house."

"Perhaps they have gone there now."

"Why, Edward! But I do wish they would come. I'm afraid the dinner is ruined. I don't dare to go to see. I wonder if I might call down the tube?"

"Of course," was the airy response. "I say this is an awful bore. I envy George. Nobody expects him to give dinner parties."

"And I envy Edith. She has no one to talk unkindly to her."

The clock chimed the half hour.

"You are sure you said 7 sharp?"

"Of course I am. I am not quite an imbecile yet if I have married you."

"Who is talking unkindly now?"

"Oh, I never thought that you would treat me so when you begged me to marry you."

"I only asked you once and you said yes quick enough."

"I never thought you would be a brute."

"And I never thought you would be a virago."

"Nobody will accept my invitations now, just because I have married you—mamma said I was making a mistake."

"People were always glad enough to accept my invitations before I was married."

"Very well, if you want to be free I will go home."

"If you want to go, pray don't allow me to detain you."

The clock chimed out eight strokes, carriages kept rolling by, but none of them stopped. She swept into the bedroom and began opening drawers and boxes and taking out their contents, which she could not see for her tears. He tried to hum "After the Ball," watching her movements furtively through the open door. Would she really leave him? And what would the boys say if she did?

She tumbled the costly things about in a careless fashion. What did their beauty matter now when she was going home with a broken heart to die!

"But why did everybody stay away?" he muttered between his teeth.

"Haven't we a friend in the world?" she asked herself.

Then she gave a cry. Her eye had fallen on a white heap in the corner of a drawer.

"Edward!" she cried in tragic tones, "here are all my invitations now—I had forgotten to mail them!"

They looked at each other a moment—those two who were about to part forever. Then a smile curled the corners of her mouth. In an instant she was clasped in his arms. Then a shrill whistle sounded from the tube, and an offended voice called.

"Would yez be havin any dinner tonight?"

"Oh, Edward!" she whispered, "how shall I ever tell the cook?"—Chicago Tribune.

A Serenade.

One was an old, old Thomas,
The other, a feline she,
And the way that they sang together
Was cloying to me.

The song that they sang was a serenade—
Though you never would think it to be—
For the old, old, old, old Tom cat
Was sparkling the feline she.

They sang the song on the old back fence,
And the hour it was half past three,
Which suited the old, old Thomas,
But was tough on my wife and me.

They sang with a rapt expression,
In a curious minor key.
One warbled basso profundo;
The other, way up in C.

"Oh, come, my love, to the trysting,"
He sang in a baritone "G."
"I come, oh, my love, by moonlight,"
In a tremolo voice sang she.

Then I chipped in with the bootjack,
My wife the alarm clock, she;
"Never touched," yeowled the old, old Tom cat,
"Just missed," screeched the female C.!

Two streaks shot over the back yard fence
And scoot up my neighbor's tree.
One was the old, old Thomas,
The other a feline she.

The Grand Central Railroad Station Chicago.

Is being fitted up for hotel purposes during the World's fair. This magnificent fire-proof structure, located at the corner of Harrison street and 5th avenue, in the very heart of the city, will devote the 3rd, 4th and 5th floors to this purpose. It will be run on the European plan. Each room will have hot and cold water, electric lights and be steam heated. The [illegible] and [illegible] rations [illegible] will be [illegible] on the 3rd floor and the building will be supplied with all [illegible] elevators. [illegible] There will be from 100 to 200 rooms for pursose.

This acquisition to the hotel facilities of Chicago will be appreciated by those who wish to be safely housed in a fire-proof building, conveniently located in the city.

Those desiring accommodations can secure them by addressing Mr. T. C. Clifford, the manager, at Chicago Ill. The hotel will be opened May 15th 1893.

The Grand Central Station is the Chicago depot of the Northern Pacific railroad [Wisconsin Central division] and by taking this through car line to the world's fair city, visitors will avoid the discomfort of a transfer through the city.

From this station trains run direct to the world's fair grounds at intervals during the day.

VISITORS TO THE TWIN CITIES.

No one should visit the Twin Cities this summer without running out to Minnetonka Beach and Hotel Lafayette the largest and best located resort house in the west. The lake is one of the most picturesque in the country and is well supplied with steamers and sailing, rowing and fishing craft. A number of regattas will be given. The Great Northern has a double track-line to the lake and runs frequent trains.

MINNESOTA STATE NORMAL SCHOOLS

DEVILS LAKE CHAUTAUQUA.

The first summer Assembly of the North Dakota Chautauqua comes off June 29th to July 17th. An extensive program has been arranged. Including many noted speakers, singers, etc., and the occasion promises to be most interesting and instructive Devils Lake is a summer resort point, The Great, Northern Railway gives reduced rates Address F. B. Fancher, Secretary, Devils Lake N D for programs and other inform A trip to the lake and assembly will make an enjoyable outing

A LARGE DROP IN RATES TO THE WEST

The Great Northern inaugurated its new train service to the Pacific Coast on the 6th inst. With sweeping reductions in rates, amounting to 40 percent in many cases. The rate From St. Paul and Minneapolis to Puget Sound was reduced First class from $60.00 to [illegible]; to Spokane from $56 to $30; and to Helena and Butte from $40 to $25, with corresponding reductions on second-class tickets both through rates applying proportionately to intermediate points. It is the purpose of the Great Northern to make rates to help the development of its territory. It is much the shortest line across the continent, was built on business principles, and at a cost of about one half of that of the older trans-continental lines, and is therefore prepared to correspondingly well by its territory and patrons in rates and accommodations.

Last summer I was attacked with a bad case of flux, and after taking four doses of Beggs' Diarrhoea Balsam was immediately relieved and cured I have sold it for the past six months and may say that it gives general satisfaction. W. Smith, M. D. Puxico, Mo.—For sale by J. L. Johnson, Druggest.

A Wonderful. Time-Keeping Automaton.

One of the most wonderful timekeepers known to the horologist was made in London about 100 years ago and sent by the president of the East India company as a gift to the emperor of China. The case was made in the form of a chariot, in which was seated the figure of a woman. This figure was of pure ivory and gold, and sat with her right hand resting upon a tiny clock fastened to the side of the vehicle. A part of the wheels which kept track of the flight of time were hidden in the body of a tiny bird, which had seemingly just alighted upon the lady's finger. Above was a canopy so arranged as to conceal a silver bell. This bell was fitted with a miniature hammer of the same metal, and, although it appeared to have no connection with the clock, regularly struck the hours, and could be made to repeat by touching a diamond button on the lady's bodice. In the chariot at the ivory lady's feet there was a golden figure of a dog, and above and in front were two birds, apparently flying before the chariot. This beautiful ornament was made almost entirely of gold, and was elaborately decorated with precious stones.—St. Louis Republic.

Fortyfy Weak Nerves.

This can easily be done. First, use the finest nervine and tonic in existence, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Next, give up opiates and mineral sedatives, which ruin the stomach, and soon cease to have an effect, except in dangerously large doses. Dyspepsia is the parent of insomnia and nerve weakness. The Bitters remedies indigestion and the two symptoms named. It also cures malarial, liver and kidney complaints.

WHY HE DID NOT "POP."

Predicament of a Swain With but $1.50 in His Pocket.

"Did you hear the latest on C. A. Keith of Salisbury?" asked Lenox Morgan as he was cracking jokes with a party of bosom friends at the Laclede, says the St. Louis Republican.

"No; what is it?" they asked simultaneously.

"I'll tell you if you promise not to give it away.

"Mr. Keith has a sweetheart in this city upon whose very smile he lingers, and the words that fell from her lips were treasured in his mind with the same tenacity with which a miser hoards his gold.

"Of late his dreams have been troubled with spectral phantoms in which he sees his darling torn from his arms by the other fellow, who glided with with his beautiful burden to a safe retreat, where, unmolested, he can feast his eyes upon the charming beauty.

"The young lady made an engagement to visit friends in a suburban village and asked her lover if he would see her to the depot. This meant a carriage ride at his expense. Certainly he would with the greatest pleasure, and, stepping into the nearest drug store, he telephoned to a hackman to send a carriage to —— street that evening at 6:30 sharp. He also ascertained that the rate charged was to be $1.50 for a one-way fare. He intended to dismiss the carriage at the depot.

"When the young man arrived at the young lady's residence in the evening, to his dismay two of his sweetheart's lady friends were present to see her off. Of course this was not relished by Keith, but he hoped to part company with the crowd when the carriage was announced. At the appointed time the carriage appeared, and his girl insisted that the young ladies should accompany them to the depot. They at first declined, but afterward assented.

"To say that Keith was mad would be using a mild term; because his mind was fully made up to propose in true romantic style as the steel-clad hoofs of the mettlesome steeds rang merrily in the gloaming. Not only this, but he had just $1.50 in his pocket and there was an extra fare to pay for the return trip. The party entered the carriage, but Keith was in no mood for cheerful conversation. He forgot his love in cogitations of how he could settle with the driver. Happy thought! He could put up his watch for $1.50 until he reached the hotel. The plan worked perfectly; but until the lady reads this story she will never know that her invitation to those young ladies prevented a proposal last Sunday evening, nor to what desperate straits her lover had been pushed."

China Also Had a Columbus.

The belief in a Chinese Columbus was first allowed by scholars only about fifty years ago. The claim is that a Buddhist priest in the fifth century crossed the Pacific to this continent and returned, making a written report of his discovery. The report still exists. It was translated into French in 1791 by M. de Guignes. It gave a narrative of a voyage eastward by a priest for 20,000 li, where he found a country which he named Fusang. People similar to the Indians were described, as well as American plants. The only doubt about the matter is as to the distance meant by 20,000 li. The priest may have reached only some island in the Pacific ocean.—Atlanta Constitution.

AWFUL RAILROAD WRECK

COLLISION ON THE GRAND TRUNK IN MICHIGAN.

Special Excursion Train and a Regular Passenger Collide—Twenty-Six People Killed—Twenty of the Bodies Burnel Beyond Recognition.

Battle Creek, Mich., Oct. 21.—The error of one human being—of a man who crouches affrighted like a hunted animal in a prison cell—led to the greatest railroad holocaust in the history of Michigan, and twenty-six human lives have paid the penalty of the moment's negligence. Two trains, both laden with passengers, met in a direct head-on collision on the Grand Trunk railroad in the suburbs of this city, and twenty-six charred, disfigured and unrecognizable bodies lie in the morgue and twenty-seven marred and bleeding victims are groaning in agony in the Charity hospital. How many of those wounded may be in the death list to-morrow no one can tell. The two trains which met face to face while going at a rapid rate of speed were both regular trains, although each was considerably behind time. One was a Raymond and Whitcomb special train returning from the world's fair and bound for New York and Boston, and the other was the regular Pacific express westbound train. The Raymond & Whitcomb was running as an extra section of a regular train and was therefore a regular in the phraseology of the railroad men. The engineer of the latter train had positive orders to sidetrack for the express at a siding a mile east of this city. He ignored these orders and 600 feet beyond this siding he met the east-bound train full on. Both trains were wrecked and half the train of the Pacific express was demolished and burned. The Raymond & Whitcomb express being composed almost entirely of heavy sleepers, escaped serious injury and none of the excursionists lost their lives. The engineers and firemen of both trains jumped in time to save their lives, but twenty-six passengers of the Pacific express met almost instant death. The day coaches in the front part of this train were telescoped and burned and of the twenty-six human remains at the morgue conjectures can only be made as to the identity of six. Twenty remain entirely unidentified. Those identified by letters or articles in their clothing or by other means are as follows:

C. C. Van Dusen, Sprout Brook, N. Y., died at the hospital. Mrs. C. C. Van Dusen; burned to death after the wreck and before she could be extricated. W. W. Henry, Woonsocket, R. I.; burned to a crisp. Mrs. F. R. McKenzie, Middleton, Conn.; burned to a crisp. T. A. McGarvey, Ontario, Can.; mangled and burned to death. J. W. Beardsley, Watkins, N. Y.; burned and mangled.

After the accident the maimed and injured were conveyed to the Nicholas Memorial hospital in this city. The following is the complete list of the injured now at the hospital: Charles Beardsley, Springfield, Mass.; S. H. Baldwin, Milford, Conn.; J. H. Smith, Ingersoll, Ont.; H. W. Williams, Toronto; W. A. Ryerse, Port Dover, Ont.; William Henry Bushnell, Brockport, N. Y.; J. H. Smith, Fort Plain, N. Y.; S. H. Smith, Fort Plain, N. Y.; Perry Smith, Fort Plain, N. Y.; Isree' Smith, Fort Plain, N. WORK OF WHITE CAPS.

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 21.—A cotton gin belonging to J. H. Medlock, five miles south of Stephens, Ark., together with a small quantity of cotton, was burned to the ground last night. The fire is supposed to be the work of White Caps. Although the gin had not been "posted" word has been sent throughout the country that if ginners persisted in running their gins before cotton reached 10 cents per pound, the torch would be applied. Ginners in the vicinity of Stephens are greatly excited and most of the gins will close down for the present. A White Cap notice has been posted on the gin of J. K. Munn of Podeaw, Ark., warning him to shut down under penalty of the torch.

IN A DISSECTING ROOM.

Kansas City, Oct. 21.—The negro population of Kansas City, Kan., has been wrought up to a high state of excitement by the finding of the bodies of James Miller and Richard Barnett, colored boys of that city who were killed in a wreck near Pavico, Kan., in the dissecting room of the Kansas medical college at Topeka. They threaten to take legal action against the college. The bodies had been secured by medical students soon after the wreck occurred and were taken to their college where they were found by the boys' relatives and officers only after a protracted search.

EXPECT TROUBLE.

Buenos Ayres, Oct. 21.—Advices received here from Santos say that the Brazilian government is fortifying the coast against the attack of the insurgent warships, which is anticipated in the near future.

NIHILISTS.

Berlin, Oct. 21.—A special dispatch received here to-day says that fifty medical students have been arrested charged with belonging to a nihilist conspiracy.

CHOLERA.

London, Oct. 21.—In Palermo yesterday there were twenty-four new cases of cholera and eight deaths, and in Leghorn five new cases and two deaths. Six new cases of cholera were reported at Stettin yesterday.

TRAMPS KILLED.

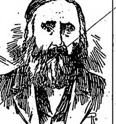
New York, Oct. 21.—Five men were killed in a freight wreck on the Pennsylvania to-day. The collision occurred between the Center junction and Yardley bridge. A number of box cars and one of the engines were badly wrecked but the men who were killed were tramps.

INTOXICATION AMONG INDIANS.

Washington, Special.—The Indian agent at Puyallup, Wash., has submitted his report to the interior department. He says intoxication is the predominant evil among the Indians. The evil will grow, he thinks, because of the decision of the courts that an Indian holding a patent to land is a citizen. He recommended on account of this that a law be passed holding that when a patent is given it shall not confer citizenship upon an Indian.

HANGED FOR HIS CRIME

De Smet, S. D., Oct. 21.—All preparations having been made, at 1:25 o'clock Sheriff Richardson adjusted the black cap and Nathaniel R. Thompson swung into eternity. He remained firm to the last, running lightly up the steps to the gallows and accepting spiritual consolation from the minister present. After twenty-one minutes the physician declared life extinct and the body was cut down. There was not a movement of a muscle after the drop fell. A large crowd of people was in town, but no manifestations of disorder were made. None but the privileged few allowed by law were admitted, until the drop fell. Thompson's final words were: "Pray for me. I am ready; drop me quick." But fifteen minutes were taken for the trip from the jail and the execution. There was not a hitch in the entire proceedings. Sheriff Richardson was assisted by Sheriff Collins of Clark county. Great praise is heard for such an orderly and prompt execution.



N. R. Thompson.

Thompson killed Mrs. John Britton on the morning of July 4, 1892. Mrs. Thompson had secured a divorce and was staying with Mrs. Britton. Thompson wanted her to go home with him and tried to kill her when Mrs. Britton stepped between them and was stabbed to death.

ROBBER OF THE DEAD.

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 21.—Jessie Williams, a notorious shoplifter and pickpocket, has been arrested at Randolph, Neb., at the instance of the Sioux City police for robbing dead bodies after the Pomeroy cyclone of July 6. She went there and tendered her services as a nurse and served several days. After she was gone much jewelry was missing by relatives of the dead and from houses where she was employed. Watches, diamonds and other articles, identified as property stolen, were recovered by the local police at places where she is said to have disposed of them, and one watch and a diamond ring, taken from a body near Storm Lake, were found in her possession when she was arrested.

HAD A DREAM.

Alton, Ill., Oct. 21.—A Minneapolis man whose name cannot be learned was the victim of a peculiar accident last night on a Burlington train near East Alton. He was asleep in the chair car and dreamed he was in a burning building which was falling on his wife and children. Thinking he was saving them he broke the car window and jumped. The terrible shock he received more than awoke him, and he found himself alone on a prairie and the train dashing away. Luckily some passengers saw the strange performance and notified the conductor, who backed the train and got the unfortunate man. He was badly though not fatally injured.

MAY FIGHT IN LONDON.

London, Oct. 21.—Mr. Fleming, of the National Sporting club, received a cablegram last night asking what purse he would give for the fight between Corbett and Mitchell if it should be decided at the National club. The dispatch said: "Mitchell and Corbett cannot possibly box here. What offer will you make? Both men are anxious to meet in England." The dispatch was signed "Dave Holland." A meeting of the National Sporting club will be held as early as possible and there is no doubt that every effort would be made to have the fight settled in London.

SUICIDE BY HANGING.

Osage, Iowa, Oct. 21.—Samuel Smith, while passing a barn at noon yesterday, was horrified to see a woman's body hanging by a rope from the ceiling. The body was that of Miss Lizzie Davis, unmarried and about sixty years old. She was a sister of Mrs. John Wing and Morgan Davis of Osage. The rope was fastened to a broom handle which had been laid across a hole in the ceiling. The woman was dead when found.

DEFALCATION.

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 21.—A special from Salisbury tells of the defalcation of Cashier I. H. Faust, of the First National Bank of Salisbury, to the amount of $16,000. He acknowledged his shortage and made it good by turning over to the bank all his property.

HANGED.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 21.—William Dutton was hanged to-day at Cartersville, Ga., for the murder of Mrs. Sallie Mobley. The sensation of his trial was a declaration by the prisoner that a Mrs. Massey, for whom he worked, murdered Mrs. Mobley through jealousy. Mrs. Massey proved an alibi.

BENEFACTOR.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 20.—It has just become known that the anonymous benefactor who donated the Zarnoke library of 13,000 volumes to Cornell college is Mr. William Sage, one of the trustees of the university, and the son of Hon. Henry W. Sage, chairman of the board of trustees.

LIBERALS ELECTED.

Berlin, Oct. 21. — A dispatch from Mannheim says that 190 Liberal electors and 107 socialists have been returned for the Baden diet. At Dresden the result of the elections for a renewal of a portion of the Saxon diet shows that the National Liberals have made a gain of five members.

TEXAS TRAGEDY.

Palestine, Tex., Oct. 21.—Family troubles caused a quarrel between Nat Blackshear and Peyton S. Graves in which Graves was killed and Blackshear fatally wounded.

ROBBERS KILLED.

McAlester, I. T., Special.—The battle with the outlaws which took place on the 11th inst. near Fifty-two Springs terminated more fatally than was at first reported. Lou Thompson and Joe Sofsky were both found dead on the prairie next day. The officers knew that the outlaws were wounded, but their wounds were not considered serious as they managed to escape on foot. Sam Woodward, the only survivor of the gang of desperadoes is still at large, but it is probable that he will soon be brought to justice.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

"There is no mistake about Hood's Sarsaparilla. I want to tell how quickly it cured me of sour stomach, which had troubled me for over a year. I could not even take a swallow of water but what I suffered from distress and acidity. When I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla I could see good effects from the first three doses. I continued until I had taken three bottles and have been entirely cured. I give this state-

HE TOUCHED A CHORD.

The Old Man Was an Artist In More Than One Line.

He was whitewashing a board fence on Beaubien street when a woman stopped and asked him how much he would charge to whitewash a kitchen ceiling, says the Free Press. He replied that his figures were 75 cents, when she indignantly exclaimed:

"Why I have had three different men offer to do it for 50 cents, and one said he'd make a good job of it for 40!"

"Doan' doubt it, mum—doan' doubt it 'tall," he calmly observed, "but who was dem pussons? Was dey scrubs or artists? Was dey gwine to mop dat ceilin' or put on de whitewash wid de han' ob a born decorator?"

"They guaranteed to do the work first-class!"

"'Zactly, mum, but how yo' gwine to tell 'bout it? When dey goes away de ceilin' am all wet. Nobody kin dun tell under fo' hours wheder it was de work ob an artist or a scrub."

"Seventy-five is too much."

"It am too much fur de whitewash, mum, but dar's udder considerashuns. I'ze a purfectly 'sponsible pusson. I knows my bizness. I doan' call yo' in from de parlor whar' yo' am playin' on a $600 planer to ax queshuns. I doan' spill no whitewash on yo'r valuable ile paintin's an' statuary. I doan' damage yo'r moquette carpets or break yo'r $300 mirrors."

"Can't you say fifty?" she asked.

"An' 'spos'n an agent cums along when I'm at work dar?" he went on without heeding her. "He wants to see de lady ob de house to sell her a rug on de instalment plan. Does he see yo'? Not much! I inform dat pusson dat when we wants rugs we buys de best an' pays cash down, and he goes away wid a flea in his ear."

"Make it sixty, then."

"If I'm dar in de house yo' doan' hev to go 'round an' pick up yo'r diamonds an' hide yo'r bank books an' yo'r purse. If a lady calls fur yo' wid a kerridge to go callin' you leave me in de house wid a feelin' ob s-curity. If yo' wants to go down to the dressmaker's to see 'bout dat $70 dress, why"——

"Well, I'll give you seventy-five. When will you come?"

"Fust thing in the mawnin', mum—thanks. Jest go right along now an' doan' bodder yo'r purty head no mo'. Yo' has s'cured an artist an' a 'sponsible pusson combined, an' when I gets frew wid dat ceilin' de naybers will be so jealous ob yo' dat you'll hev to shet up de house an' go off to Saratoga two weeks ahead of time!"

Made Love by Lightning.

The late Prof. Morse made love by lightning, as it were. He met his first wife during an evening call at the house of her father and proposed marriage to her before he went away that night. After some happy years she died, leaving him with several children. He remained a widower until the age of 57 he attended the wedding of his eldest son. One of the younger ones was what the Scotch tenderly call an "innocent," and it was the kindness of a relative of the bride to this boy that attracted his father's attention. He invited the lady to drive with him on the following day. When they returned from the expedition they were engaged to be married.

ELECTRIC HARNESS ON A RIVER.

A Massachusetts Scheme Which Is Expected to Build a Manufacturing Town.

Conway village, in Massachusetts, three miles and a half from the well known summer resort of Ashfield, is to be converted into a bustling manufacturing town and market center, if an ambitious water-power scheme described by the New York Evening Post now on foot is ever consummated. It involves the harnessing up of South river by the electricians. Conway, it is true, already has cotton and woolen mills, but they are not large enough to give it distinction as a factory town. In the four miles of its course from Conway Center to the Deerfield river, South river falls several hundred feet, rushing down over rocks and ledges, and then out over a sandy bed, but always confined between high hills, which in places become almost inaccessible cliffs. This valuable water power has hitherto been lost to manufacturers. Some distance before the Deerfield river is reached a ledge of rock rises sixty to one hundred feet above the bed of the stream, extends at right angles from the north wall of the river gorge to within ninety-five feet of the opposite wall, and forms almost a perfect dam. It is proposed to complete this dam, by which means the water could be made to flow back three-fourths of a mile and a capacity of 125,000,000 gallons could be obtained. The depth of the water just above the dam would be nearly sixty feet; 1,200 feet from the dam it would measure forty-five feet, and one-half a mile back twenty-two and one-half feet. The proposed power house for the generation of electricity will be located 450 feet below the dam, and the fall from the top of the dam to the water wheels will be 108 feet. It is estimated that with two fifteen-inch wheels on a horizontal shaft over 600 horse power can be developed. The electricity generated will be used chiefly to operate an electric railroad for freight and passengers between Conway Center and the steam railroad in the valley. The result would be to bring Conway into touch with the outer world and to make of it the railroad town for pastoral Ashfield. Another prospective use for the electricity is the transmission of the current to neighboring towns or cities for lighting purposes. Northampton is only fifteen miles distant, and electricians say that a current could be sent to that place sufficiently strong to light the whole city.

Sulphur Mountain in Iceland.

Three miles from the village of Krisuvik, in the great volcanic district of Iceland, there is a whole mountain composed of eruptive clays and pure white sulphur. Although this sulphur mountain is a wonder in itself, interest centers to that spot on account of a beautiful grotto which penetrates the western slope to an unknown depth. The main entrance is a fissure-like chasm about sixty feet in height and only eight or ten feet wide. The floor inclines for the first fifty or sixty yards, and then suddenly pitches downward, seemingly into the very bowels of the earth. Here the fissure widens into a considerable cavern, with walls, roof, floor, stalactites and stalagmites, all composed of pure crystallized sulphur.—St. Louis Republic.

FIFTY THIRD CONGRESS.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SPECIAL SESSION OF CONGRESS.

Condensed Record of the Business Being Transacted by our National Law-makers—Routine Report Day by Day.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Silver compromise is dead. This fact was shown in the senate when the men who had been engineering the compromise deal failed to offer their measure as expected, and all that is now left to do is to continue the fight on the old lines and wait until a vote can be had on the repeal bill now before the senate. This, it is thought, will be the latter part of the week. Those who were expecting to see the Democratic compromise bill introduced into the senate and speedily passed through that body found, when the senate met at 10 o'clock, that they were more than likely to be doomed to disappointment, and as the day wore on the indications became still more marked. The compromise bill, over which senators were so sanguine Saturday, will never be introduced in the senate. The reason for this change in the situation is found in the fact that the compromisers have been unable to get a sufficient number of pledges to guarantee the passage of the bill in case it should be introduced, and they have said from the beginning that they would bring in no bill unless its passage could be assured before its introduction. Statements differ as to the exact number of Democratic senators who have signed the agreement, but the best authority obtainable places the number at thirty-nine, or four less than a majority. These four they have thus far found it impossible to obtain on the Democratic side of the chamber, and all overtures to the Republicans have so far been repelled without exception. Senators Jones and Stewart continued their speeches, which were listened to by less than a quorum.

In the house the bankruptcy bill was taken up and discussed. Several speeches were made attacking the measure, and it is doubtful if it passes.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Senator Harris, acting for the silver Democrats, informed the silver Republicans that the Democrats had concluded that after taking all the circumstances into consideration that their best course was to drop the fight against the repeal bill and allow it to come to a vote. The end of the present fight will soon be reached and the result will be in accordance with the wishes of the president and the repeal forces in the senate. The silver Republicans will not undertake to prolong the fight beyond the time necessary to complete their speeches, and will after that permit the voting to begin upon the amendments to the bill. It is generally believed that this will take place before the close of the present week. Following is the full text of the Voorhees bill, which will be substituted in the senate for the house bill:

"That so much of the act approved July 14, 1890, entitled 'An act directing the purchase of silver bullion and issue of treasury notes thereon, and for other purposes,' as directs the secretary of the treasury to purchase from time to time silver bullion to the aggregate amount of 4,500,000 ounces or so much thereof as may be offered in each month at the market price thereof, not exceeding one dollar for 371.25 grains of pure silver, and to issue in payment for such purchases treasury notes of the United States, be and the same is hereby repealed, and it is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States to continue the use of both gold and silver as standard money, and to coin both gold and silver into money of equal intrinsic exchangeable value, such equality to be secured through international agreement or by such safeguards of legislation as will insure the maintenance of the parity in value of the coins of the two metals and the equal power of every dollar at all times in the markets and in the payment of debts. And it is hereby further declared that the efforts of the government should be steadily directed to the establishment of such a safe system of bimetallism as will maintain at all times the equal power of every dollar coined or issued by the United States in the markets and in the payment of debts."

The time in the senate was consumed by speeches on the silver bill.

In the house the bankruptcy bill came up and a lively discussion occurred on the silver question. No action was taken.

Washington, Oct. 26.—There was the usual lack of a quorum in the senate when that body met, but for the first time for a month there was no call or suspension of proceedings to await the attendance of the necessary forty-three members. There was noticeable among those in their seats a general air of relief that the long silver struggle was approaching an end. Even the silver men looked brighter and in better spirits than for several weeks. Some doubts are expressed as to whether the final vote upon the repeal bill will be reached so early as the managers of the bill thought possible. The exact time at which this vote will be taken will depend not entirely upon the length of the prepared speeches, but partially upon the time consumed in considering the amendments. Investigation reveals the fact that more of these will be offered than had been at first supposed, and the result of the inquiries indicate that there will be considerable speechmaking upon several of these. Probably most of these speeches will be confined to five minutes in length, but even if the five-minute rule is adopted the limit is liable at any time to be greatly overstepped as it is usual, under such circumstances, that the much-vaunted courtesy of the senate grants an extension of time to those who desire more. The silver men count upon getting more votes upon some of these amendments than against the bill itself, but it does not seem probable that any of them will carry. The consideration of the bill to repeal the purchasing clause of the Sherman act was taken up and Mr. Stewart of Nevada, who was entitled to the floor, yielded to Mr. Pugh (Dem. Ala.), who proceeded to address the senate against the bill. When Mr. Pugh concluded Mr. Stewart resumed his speech, which he had not concluded when the senate adjourned.

Discussion on the bankruptcy bill was continued in the house.

Washington, Oct. 27.—The repeal of the silver purchase clause of the Sherman law will be accomplished between now and Monday. This is the programme mapped out to-day. An agreement to this effect has practically been reached between leaders of the different factions in the senate. Senator Wolcott said this morning that the silver men would not attempt to delay things from this time forward. Allen, Morgan, Wolcott and Sherman will make speeches yet, but they will nearly all be brief. Sherman has decided not to offer his amendment for a bond issue. He told Wolcott so to-day. He will make a ringing speech, however, favoring the issue of bonds, claiming that this action is necessary to permit this Democratic administration to run the business for the country properly. He propose to postpone his plan of introducing his bond issue measure until the regular session in December. To present it now would jeopardize the passage of the repeal act. Wolcott's opinion is that there will be brief speeches upon certain of the amendments offered to the present bill. He thinks now that voting may begin to-morrow. Indications to-day all point strongly to an early settlement and adjournment or a recess. Mr. Jones continued his speech to-day and was followed by Mr. Wolcott.

In the house the bankruptcy bill was taken up. Mr. Kilgore of Texas, who led the filibuster against the bill in the last congress, made a strong speech against the measure. He analyzed the bill section by section, giving many practical illustrations of its effects. Pending further debate the house adjourned.

Washington, Oct. 28.—The Peffer free coinage amendment to the silver bill has been defeated—28 to 39. The detailed vote was as follows:

Ayes—Allen, Bate, Berry, Blackburn, Butler, Call, Coke, Daniel, George, Harris, Irby, Jones (Ark.), Jones (Nev.), Kyle, Martin, Pasco, Peffer, Power, Pugh, Roach, Shoup, Stewart, Teller, Vance, Vest, Walthall, Wolcott—28.

Noes—Aldrich, Caffery, Camden, Carey, Cullom, Davis, Dixon, Dolph, Faulkner, Frye, Gallinger, Gibson, Gorman, Gray, Hale, Higgins, Hill, Hoar, Lindsay, Lodge, McMillan, McPherson, Manderson, Mitchell (Wis.), Morrill, Murphy, Palmer, Perkins, Proctor, Quay, Ransom, Sherman, Smith, Stockbridge, Turpie, Vilas, Voorhees, Washburn, White (La.)—39.

The following pairs were announced, first named being affirmative: Cockrell and Allison, Cameron and Bruce, White (Cal.) and Chandler, Cloquitt and Wilson, Pettigrew and Gordon, Hansbrough and Mills, Morgan and Hawley, Hunton and Platt, Mitchell (Or.) and Squire.

Mr. Voorhees then moved that the substitute reported by the finance committee for the house bill be adopted and asked unanimous consent that after its adoption it might be treated as open to amendment as the original bill would be. To the latter request there was no objection. On his motion the ayes and nays were taken and by a vote of 58 to 9 the substitute reported by the finance committee was agreed to. Those who voted against the substitute were Senators Allen, Bate, Call, Coke, Irby, Kyle, Peffer, Roach and Vance.

Mr. Perkins, (Rep. Cal.) then offered the amendment of which he had given notice on Oct. 14. It provides for the coinage of American silver at the existing ratio with a seigniorage charge of 20 per cent. The vote on this amendment was not reached when the senate adjourned.

The senate passed the bill providing for the assistance of schools of mines by the general government in certain states to the amount of $12,000 from the proceeds of the sale of mineral lands. The bill includes South Dakota, Montana and other Northwestern states, and Senator Washburn succeeded in having Minnesota added.

Nothing was done in the house.

WHY RAISE THE RATES.

Pierre, S. D., Oct. 28.—The action of the Minnesota and Dakota fire underwriters in raising their rates of insurance 20 per cent over South Dakota on all kinds of property except dwelling houses, is causing a big roar, especially in the larger towns and cities. From the state auditor's report of the business done by fire insurance companies in the state in 1892, it appears that the total premiums received were $462,142.80; total losses paid, $141,821.49. Take from the premiums received 15 per cent for commissions and $40,000 for taxes paid to auditor and fees for publishing statements, and it will be seen the companies last year cleared over $200,000 in this state after all expenses had been paid.

ROBBED HIS FATHER.

Hokah, Minn., Oct. 28.—Frank Younglove, a notorious character in this part of the country, and who has been a fugitive from justice for two years, having then broke jail at La Crosse, Wis., suddenly made his appearance at his father's home west of here and, after getting something to eat, he asked his father to loan him a few dollars, but was refused. He then knocked his father down and robbed him of several dollars and made good his escape. Frank is a tough character and has served two terms in state prison, one in Waupun, Wis., and one at Stillwater.

AGAIN ARRESTED.

Ellendale, N. D., Oct. 28.—A dispatch from Moorhead, Minn., states that H. O. Barrett, who was released from jail here on his own bond Wednesday, had reached that point on his way to Canada and had been arrested on authority of the sheriff of this county, who is now on his way to that place to get the prisoner. Bribery is charged in connection with his release, and his return here is expected to result in some startling developments.

BEATS THE RECORD.

Bombay, Oct. 28.—The steamship Himalaya has made the passage between this port and Brindisi in ten days and twenty-three hours, which beats all previous records.

OLD SETTLER DEAD.

Owatonna, Minn., Oct. 28.—Mrs. Daniel Potter died very suddenly of apoplexy. She was one of the oldest settlers of the county, coming here in 1856.

BOUND AND ROBBED.

Cozad, Neb., Oct. 28.—This morning two armed masked men entered the depot here and while one covered the night operator, James S. Dingman, with a gun, the other went through the safe and cash drawer securing $200, after which they bound and gagged the operator and left.

HUNTER'S FATAL MISTAKE.

Barnum, Minn., Oct. 28—Frank Anderson was instantly killed by a hunter named Stromberg a few miles north of here. Stromberg mistook Anderson for game and fired with fatal results.

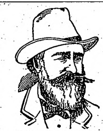
KILLED BY A CRANK

MAYOR CARTER HARRISON OF CHICAGO ASSASSINATED.

While in His Own House the Mayor Is Shot by a Crank and Dies in Twenty Minutes—His Assassin Now in Jail.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Carter H. Harrison, five times mayor of Chicago, and one of the best known men in the West, lies dead in his own home, 821 South Ashland boulevard. Three bullets entered his body, two of them making wounds sufficient to cause death. The murder was committed by Eugene Patrick Prendergast, a paper carrier, who declared that Mayor Harrison had promised to make him corporation counsel and had not kept his word. This, he said, was his only reason for committing the crime. The only persons in the house at the time beside Mr. Harrison were his son, William Preston Harrison, twenty-five years of age, and the servants.

Shortly before 8 o'clock Saturday evening the door bell rang, and when Mary Hansen, the domestic, opened the door she was confronted by a man about five feet five inches tall and smooth shaven, his rather clean cut features lit up by a pair of dark eyes.

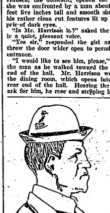


The Late Carter Harrison.

"Is Mr. Harrison in?" asked the man in a quiet, pleasant voice.

"Yes sir," responded the girl as she threw the door wider open to permit his entrance.

"I would like to see him, please," said the man as he walked toward the back end of the hall. Mr. Harrison was in the dining room, which opens into the rear end of the hall. Hearing the man ask for him, he rose and stepping in the hall walked toward Prendergast, who, by the time he caught sight of Mr. Harrison, had advanced about ten feet from the doorway. Without saying a word Prendergaast drew a revolver and commenced to fire.



Prendergast, the Assassin.

He pulled the trigger but three times, and every bullet hit the mark. One ball shattered Mr. Harrison's left hand. Another passed into the lower right side of the abdomen, making a wound that would have been mortal within a few days. The third bullet entered the chest slightly above the heart. This bullet was the immediate cause of death. He died in twenty minutes, and was conscious until the last. The murderer escaped, but at once went to a police station and gave himself up. He is no doubt insane. The news of the assassination created the wildest excitement throughout the city. In the various pulpits yesterday Mr. Harrison's tragic death was feelingly alluded to. The funeral will take place one day this week and will be a public one. Mr. Harrison was to have been married in a few days to Miss Annie Howard, who was in the house at the time of the murder. He was born in Lexington, Ky., Feb. 15, 1825. He had been married twice before, both his wives having died, the last one in 1887. He leaves two sons and a daughter, all grown.

An inquest was held yesterday and a verdict rendered in accordance with the above. It recommended that Prendergast be held to the grand jury.

CALL IT FARCICAL.

Park Rapids, Minn., Oct. 30.—A good deal of excitement was created here last night by the appearance of a deputy United States marshal with a warrant for the arrest of one of our most straightforward and honorable business men, who never touches or offers liquor to others, for selling whisky to Indians. A collision between these deputy marshals and citizens will surely come if this farce of entering complaints against innocent parties and taking them to Moorhead or St. Paul for examination is continued.

DIED IN DUBUQUE.

Dubuque, Iowa, Oct. 30. — Yesterday occurred the death of J. A. Rhomberg, who was a prominent liquor dealer here for twenty-five years.

PERHAPS A FATAL BLOW.

Redwood Falls, Minn., Oct. 30.—A blow was struck, which may prove fatal, by John Spopper with a sledge hammer in an altercation with Charles Ripke. The men had been sworn enemies for years. Ripke drove to Spopper's house to settle with him regarding an alleged trespass. While engaged in an angry altercation, Spopper knocked him from the buggy.

SOLDIERS' HOME.

Minneapolis, Oct. 30.—The trustees of the Minnesota Soldiers' home took out a permit for the $20,000 addition to the hospital that was built this year.

THE NEW YORK BULLS.

St. Paul, Oct. 30.—Labor Commissioner Powers, now in the East investigating and collecting data regarding the exportation of Northwestern wheat, has written from New York stating that nearly all the wheat is now sent forward to New York and is being stored there this fall, waiting for an advance in price. The present price is too low to warrant its exportation. He states that the Philadelphia and Baltimore men say the New Yorkers have bid up the price of wheat until there is no money in handling it and in this way they account for the fact that at present there is little or no Northwestern wheat to mix with the soft winter wheat in those two cities. The millers in the East who heretofore have been buying Northwestern wheat to mix with the soft winter wheat and make the high grades of flour, are now buying Minnesota flour for the blending purpose, saying the latter has advanced less than wheat, making it cheaper to buy the flour than the wheat.

MOORS DEFEATED.

Madrid, Oct. 30.—Minister of War Gen. Mayallo received a telegraphic message from Mellilla saying that the Moors opened fire in great force upon the Spanish who were working upon the fort now in course of erection. The dispatches from Mellilla add that the fire of the Moors was so well directed that the Spaniards were obliged to retreat. Later advices are to the effect that the troops under Gen. Oxtega have engaged the Moors in a sharp fight and have succeeded in driving the latter from the trenches. The loss on both sides was very heavy, many Spanish officers being killed, among them Gen. Margallo, the commander of the garrison. Gen. Oxtega has demanded reinforcements, and two regiments are now to be dispatched to Mellilla.

SEWER PIPE COMBINE.

Bellaire, Ohio, Oct. 30.—All the sewer pipe manufacturing companies are to unite in a joint stock company, to be incorporated under the laws of Ohio. The capital will be $1,000,000. It is claimed that the combination of the Ohio potteries is a necessity to compete with the Akron combine. The latter threatens to dissolve and break down prices.

FOR MAIL ROBBERS.

Huron, S. D., Oct. 30.—Frank Wade, deputy United States marshal, brought before Commissioner Grant here James Moore, Frank Williams and Nelson Morton, arrested at Miller for the robbery of the postoffice at Orient on the 21st inst. Bail was fixed at $1,000 each, in default of which they will remain in jail here until the United States court convenes in Sioux Falls in November.

INCENDIARISM.

Eureka, S. D., Oct. 30.—Fire last night started in Walker's two-story building and threatened the total destruction of the town, but it was extinguished by a vigorous fight of the water brigade. On investigation excelsior saturated with kerosene was found in a corner on the second floor where the fire started, and P. H. O'Leary and Johnson are under arrest on the charge of setting the fire.

LEFT HER HUSBAND.

New York, Oct. 30.—Countess Pappenheim, formerly Miss Wheeler of Philadelphia, arrived here yesterday from England on the American line steamer New York. She was accompanied by Mrs. A. F. Wheeler. This is the first time she has been in this country since her separation from Count Maximillian Pappenheim, her husband.

FAST TIME.

New York, Oct. 30.—The steamer Bovic, which arrived to-day from Liverpool, made the passage in nine days two hours and one minute, breaking all previous records of freight steamers between these two points.

SOUTH DAKOTA SNOW.

Chamberlain, S. D., Oct. 30.—The first general snow storm of the season commenced here, falling very freely, and from all appearances will continue some time.

AN OLD CHURCH.

London, Oct. 30.—The Fifield church, near Abingdon, which was built in the thirteenth century, and which was considered an important historical monument, has been destroyed by fire.

ONE LAND OFFICE LESS.

Mitchell, S. D., Oct. 30.—The land office at Yankton has been ordered discontinued and all the records and effects of the office shipped to Mitchell. The transfer will be made about Dec. 1.

DENIES IT.

West Superior, Wis., Oct. 30.—W. V. Noad, sued for breach of promise by Miss Florence Byrne of Chicago has filed his answer, denying all the charges. The case will come up Nov. 6.

MANGLED.

Elbow Lake, Minn., Oct. 30.—Nicholas Nelson, a threshing engineer from Minneapolis, fell in the gearing while moving the engine. His right arm was horribly mangled and was amputated above the elbow.

WANTS THE MONEY.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 30.—The school board has passed a resolution instructing its attorney to lodge formal complaint with Attorney General Coe I. Crawford against the proper officers if the interest fund due this city July 1 is not paid in a few days.

FIGHT NEARLY ENDED

LAST WEEK OF THE CONTEST IN THE SENATE.

In a Day or Two the Repeal Bill Will Have Passed the Senate and Sent to the House—Several More Amendments Rejected.

Washington, Oct. 30.—The silver fight in the senate is rapidly drawing to a close, and by the middle of the present week the repeal bill will have passed the senate and have been sent to the house, where it will be passed after a short debate. Mr. Perkins' amendment was rejected by a vote of 30 to 41. Mr. Berry offered an amendment providing for the revival of the Bland-Allison act, and spoke in its support. Mr. Voorhees said: "At this late hour, however much I might approve any proposition, I would not feel at liberty to support it in connection with this bill."

Mr. Berry's amendment was rejected by a vote of 33 to 37—the highest vote any amendment received. Mr. Allen's amendment for the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 was rejected—31 to 41. Mr. Blackburn's amendment was rejected—28 to 42. Mr. Stewart's amendment inviting the republics of Central South America to join the United States in a convention was rejected—32 to 43. The first section of Mr. Squires' amendment was rejected—20 to 42. The second section was withdrawn. Mr. Butler did not offer as he had proposed to do his amendment for the repeal of the state bank tax. Mr. Peffer offered an amendment which was voted down without resorting to a roll call. Mr. Harris did not offer to ask a vote on his amendment. Mr. Pasco offered an amendment, which was not read, but was ordered printed, with the understanding that it could be offered later.

The senate then went into executive session, at the expiration of which a recess was taken.

The bankruptcy bill still occupies the attention of the house and there will be a bitter fight against its passage.

TWO MISSING.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 30.—About a month ago there came to Sioux Falls two dashing young men who established an office, upon the door of which was printed in letters of gilt, "Order of Unity." Robert Barton was one and A. Gorman the other. The young men were organizing their company, which was a sort of accident and sickness insurance affair, with a secret society attachment. Saturday night was set for the initiation of members, but those who called at the rooms to be sworn in could not find the organizers. Diligent search through the city fails to develop any information as to their whereabouts. They left behind unpaid bills amounting to about $200, of which $70 was for two new suits of clothes for which they had secured credit. A circular issued by the young men names Carl W. Kimpton, of 515 Minor street, Philadelphia, as supreme secretary and treasurer of the order.

ON THE INCREASE.

Yankton, S. D., Oct. 30.—When the legislature extended the time for acquiring residence in the state preparatory to commencing divorce proceedings it was thought that the effect would be to decrease the number of divorces. But this is not the case. On the contrary, in the Yankton and Sioux Falls districts there are a greater number of cases pending than ever before. There are forty-four divorce cases on the calendar in the First judicial district alone.

STOCKHOLDERS ASSESSED.

Indianapolis, Oct. 30.—By direction of Controller Eckels Edward Hawkins, receiver of the Indianapolis National bank, which failed several weeks ago, has given notice that he would enforce the individual liability law of stockholders of that bank. Each stockholder will be assessed $100 on each share he holds. The total assessment will reach $300,000.

GROWING IN HIS EAR.

Red Wing, Oct. 30.—About five weeks ago a laborer from this city returned from the Dakotas, where he had been threshing. Since returning he has felt a pain in one ear, and yesterday was extracted therefrom a kernel of barley which had sprouted and grown over an inch long.

MILLE LACS SETTLERS.

Washington, Oct. 30.—The house committee on public lands decided on a favorable report on the bill for the relief of the settlers on the Mille Lac Indian reservation. This is the bill which passed the senate the last session, but was lost in the house.

KYLE'S SECRETARY.

Aberdeen, S. D., Oct. 30.—Hon. Duncan McFarlane of Day county, private secretary to United Senator Kyle, has arrived to attend to some matters of business. He will remain a week or more before setting out on his return to Washington.

A HEARTLESS FATHER.

Pittsburg, Oct. 30.—August Summerfelt, who beat his ten-year-old son for playing truant until the little fellow sprang from a third story window and was killed, was held for murder by the coroner's jury.

LOSES HER SUIT.

Renville, Minn., Oct. 30.—The jury in the slander suit brought by Mrs. Lillie O'Connor vs. Christina Henning, returned a verdict finding no cause for action.

BIG CUT.

Stillwater, Oct. 30.—The cut of the Schulenburg-Boeckeler mill for the season was a little over 22,000,000 feet.

OFF FOR A HUNT.

Dickinson, N. D., Oct. 30.—Gov. Shortridge left with a party of citizens yesterday for a week's hunt in the Bad Lands.

MAJ. NEWSON'S SUCCESSOR.

Washington, Oct. 30.—The president sent the following nominations of consuls to the senate: Herman Schoenfeld, Maryland, at Riga, Russia; Robert P. Pooley, New York, at Sierra Leone, Africa; David N. Burke, New York, at Malaga, Spain.

MINES SOLD.

Deadwood, S. D., Oct. 30.—The Welcome mine and Lucille group have been sold to the Golden Sand company. A new company, known as the Englehardt Gold Extraction company, has been formed with a capital of $2,000,000.

The repeal bill has passed the senate and gold is king, and wheat has gone down four cents a bushel, Hurrah for Grover Clevelaud and his allies the republicans.

Reports from Washington indicate that the Red Lake timber estimators will be look over by a special agent. It is now rumored that several of them already know a pine tree from a basswood but the rumor is not authentic.

Wheat has been coming in in a lively manner the past week and our elevator men have been as busy as bees. As usual our excellent market is drawing wheat here which could find a market much nearer home.

The World's Fair closed last Monday The paid attendance during the six months was 21,458,910 and admissions on passes nearly six millions more Financially it did fairly well paying up all indebtedness and will leave about 20 per cent to the stock holders who expected to get no thing.

Major R. H. The entertainment will be an interesting one and all who care should attend.

ONLY A DREAM.

We were sitting in our office reading in the St. Paul Pioneer Press, Globe and Minneapolis Tribune of the wonderful good times that were to come as the senate passed the repeal bill. It was wonderful the good times we were going to have. Wheat would raise in price as never before known; all factories would immediately start up and starving laborers looking for work would be a thing of the past. Banks would stop calling in loans and commence to look for borrowers. In fact an era of prosperity such as was never known would sweep over this country just as soon as the repeal bill passed. A noise on the street seemed to attract our attention. It was Agent Freeman telling a crowd that the repeal bill had passed and that wheat had gone up five cents a bushel, In a very short time came another telegram "wheat has gone up ten cents a bushel, great excitement, look for dollar wheat." Everybody was happy. Farmers with tears of joy in their eyes, saw prospects of paying their debts and having food enough for the coming winter, while others even figured on warm clothing and lumber for a warm house. Charley Rapp was telling a crowd that he always knew that the cussed silver bill was the only cause of the hard times and low price of wheat and now that it was repealed times would be better than ever before. If it hadn't been for those People's party senators we would have had these good times two months ago, said Emil Helmes and Sam Dainard sarcastically ramarked "you silver men must feel sick," Telegrams came that banks and loan companies would extend all good paper on reasonable terms, and that any amount of money could be borrowed on good security. Wake up, old man, what are you dreaming about?" said Agent Freeman we rubbed our eyes and looked around No crowds, no excitement. "What's the news?" we asked. "The repeal bill has passed and wheat has gone down four cents a bushel" said he,

It will pay you to make a special trip to A. Chobot Crookston Minn. to make your fall purchases of dress goods, flannels, clothing and boots and shoes,

During the past two week over thirty papers in Minnesota have been obliged to suspend publication on account of lack of money to carry on the business Many of these papers had more than enough due them from subscribers to carry them through nicely but owing to the scarcety of money and slow collections they were obliged to suspend and lose the fruits of their labor. The omission of one week's issue causes the paper to lose its legality for one year and bars it from publishing any legal notice until it has published 52 issues in succession. This causes a loss of hundreds of dollars to the average weekly, if it resumes publication within a few weeks after suspension. All those who are in arrears with their local or county papers should make special effort to pay the few dollars due the paper as the lack of $2.00 from one-fourth of their subscribers may force the papers to suspend and cause the loss of hundreds of dollars to the editor Stand by and assist your papers; they need your help.—Ex.

Once upon a time two frogs who had been living in comfort and ease in a pool of clear water were accidently scooped up by a pious milkman in a bucket of water which he poured into his can in order to give his milk more body and thereby increase his revenue The frogs were astonished to find themselves in an unknown element in which it was not possible to support life, and they had to kick vigerously in order to keep their heads above the milk One of them being disheartened by being shut up in the dark in an element entirely new to him, said: "Let's give it up and go to the bottom, it's no use kicking any longer." The other said: "Oh no, lets keep on kicking as long as we can and see what the outcome will be. Maybe things will change presently.', So one frog gave up and went to the bottom The other kept kicking and when the pious milkman got to town and opened his can, behold the frog had kicked out a lump of butter large enough to float him, and he was sitting on it very comfortably.

Moral in hard times never give up. but keep kicking,—AEsop—Revised.—Ex.

What He Thought.

"Yes, this is a new hat," said Little Diggs last evening at the Platypus club. "It is the second one I have bought already this fall, and the tale has quite a tale.

"It chanced that I dropped in at the theater one night last week. As I sat down in the fifth row of the orchestra I noticed that directly behind me was an awfully pretty girl, whom I had never seen before. It was about the middle of the second act, I think, when I chanced to put my legs under my chair, and I touched what was evidently her feet.

Presently the same thing occurred again. I noticed that she did not withdraw her feet, and finding the sensation agreeable I repeated it. To my gratification I observed a gentle resistance on her part, which showed that she did not object to the contact. I glanced around and thought that she smiled slightly.

"As I have said, she was decidedly pretty, and I said to myself, 'Diggs, old boy, you have made a squash.' Of course I was bound to follow it up. Renewing the contact as before, I experienced the same result. I exerted a harder pressure, which was received with the same gentle resistance. I looked around once more, and again I thought that she smiled slightly, though I could not be sure. I tried with the other foot. It was quite delightful. I forgot all about the play in the excitement of the sport.

"Various plans I revolved in my brain for establishing some better mode of communication with the fair damsel in order that I might find out who she was with a view of establishing the flirtation on a more satisfactory basis in the future. I thought of writing a small note in the shape of a cocked hat and sticking it in the back of my collar, from which it would be easy enough for her to abstract it, but I was afraid somebody else would observe it—particularly an old lady who was her companion and evidently her chaperon.

"On reflection I decided to try to communicate with her in some way as we were leaving the theater. So I waited patiently, still renewing the contact occasionally as before. I was perfectly satisfied that I had made a mash of the largest size—in fact, I was not in the least mistaken, for when the curtain went down at the end of the play I looked for my new silk hat and found it under my seat crushed into a shapeless mass. It was that which I had been kicking all the evening instead of the young lady's foot, and I had demolished it so completely that it was utterly beyond repair. I purchased this one next day."—Washington Star.

Only One Occasion.

"How are you and your wife coming on? Do you quarrel as much as ever?" asked a mutual friend of a Texas husband.

"Just about the same."

"Tell me, candidly, did you and your wife ever agree about anything? Were you ever a unit on any subject?"

"Yes, once."

"When was that?"

"About three years ago the house caught fire, and we were unanimous on getting out of the house as soon as possible, but we have never harmonized since."—Texas Siftings.

Natural Light.

Shingiss—How's trade, Dinwiddie?

Dinwiddie—Light, decidedly light.

Shingiss (with malice aforethought)—But I thought you were in the heavy casting business?

Dinwiddie—No, quit that two months ago. I'm in the feather trade now.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

A Formidable Job.

"James," said Mrs. Swizzles sternly, "James, why did you come home at 2 o'clock this morning?"

"I was figuring totals on your dressmaker's bills, my love," said Mr. Swizzles with emphasis, while the sweet calm of home became accentuated by a deeper silence.—Chicago Tribune.

Getting at the Cost.

Wheeler—Doctor, I wish you'd make out my bill.

Doctor—I thought you weren't ready to pay it now.

Wheeler—I'm not, but a fellow just asked me what my new bicycle cost me, and I can't tell him until I hear from you.—Truth.

A Good One.

Teacher—Tommy Figg, you may give a definition of a gentleman as the word is understood nowadays.

Tommy—A gentleman is a feller that is so dead sure that he is better than all the other fellers that he does not ever have to say so.—Indianapolis Journal.

Considerate.

He—Spriggs is always very thoughtful of his wife's comfort.

Him—What has he been doing lately?

He—Yesterday he bought two of the smallest coal scuttles he could find so as to make it easy for her to carry in the coal.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Gentle Reminder.

Gun Dealer (who has just sold fancy sportsman some cartridges)—You'll remember th' place, sur, when you come back, sur, fer we sells all kind o' fresh game.—Harlem Life.

A Surprise.

He—Why, I never have any sense when I'm in the company of a pretty girl.

She—What a queer way of paying me a compliment, Mr. Sappy!—Truth.

The Grand Central Railroad Station Chicago.

Is being fitted up for hotel purposes during the World's fair. This magnificent fire-proof structure, located at the corner of Harrison street and 5th avenue, in the very heart of the city, will devote the 3rd; 4th and 5th floors to this purpose. It will be run on the European plan. Each room will have hot and cold water, electric lights and be steam heated. The office and ladies parlors etc. will be located on the 3rd floor and the building will be supplied with all modern conveniances. There will be from 100 to 200 rooms for guests.

This acquisition to the hotel facilities of Chicago will be appreciated by those who wish to be safely housed in a fire-proof building, conveniently located in the city elt.

Those desiring accommodations can secure them by addressing Mr. T. C. Clifford, the manager, at Chicago Ill. The hotel will be opened May 15th 1893.

The Grand Central Station is the Chicago depot of the Northern Pacific railroad, (Wisconsin Central division) and by taking this through car line to the world's fair city, visitors will avoid the discomfort of transfer through the city.

From this station trains run direct to the world's fair grounds at intervals during the day.

VISITORS TO THE TWIN CITIES.

No one should visit the Twin Cities this summer without running out to Minnetonka Beach and Hotel Lafayette the largest and best located resort house in the west. The lake is one of the most picturesque in the country and is well supplied with steamers and sailing, rowing and fishing craft. A number of regattas will be given. The Great Northern has a double track line to the lake and runs frequent trains.

MINNESOTA STATE NORMAL SCHOOLS

WINONA, MANKATO, ST. CLOUD AND MOORHEAD.

These schools are organized for the training of teachers for the common schools of the state.

ORGANIZATION.—Each school comprises two departments —the normal department and the training department or Model School

The Normal department embraces:

(a) An elementary course for teachers of rural districts and elementary grades

(b) An advanced course for teachers of advanced grades.

(c) A Professional course for teachers who have completed the required academic work elsewhere.

(d) A kindergarten training course (at Winona and St. Cloud.

ADMISSION.—Graduates of high schools and college and teachers holding county superintendents' first and second grade certificate are admitted without examination. All others are required to pass an entrance examination.

EXPENSES.—Tuition is free to all who pledge themselves to teach in Minnesota.

Text books are furnished at a rental of three dollars per year. Provision is made in each school for economical living. The average cost of furnished rooms with board is $3.00 per week The Ladies' Home at St. Cloud offers board, furnished room, heat and light at $3.00 per week.

The new dormitory at Moorhead will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall term.

DIPLOMAS.—By a recent act of the legislature a diploma becomes a state teachers certificate of the first grade.

The next school year opens at Winona, Sept. 1st; at Mankato, Sept. 4th; at St. Cloud, Aug. 28th; and at Moorhead, Oct. 3rd.

For free catalogues and circulars giving all information, address the presidents as follows.

IRWIN SHEPARD, Winona.

DEVILS LAKE CHAUTAUQUA.

The first summer Assembly of the North Dakota Chautauqua comes off June 28th to July 17th. An extensive program has been arranged, including many noted speakers, singers, etc., and the occasion promises to be most interesting and instructive. Devils Lake is a summer resort point. The Great Northern Railway gives reduced rates. Address J. B. Fancher, Secretary, Devils Lake, N. D for programs and other inform. A trip to the lake and assembly will make an enjoyable outing.

A LARGE DROP IN RATES TO THE WEST

The Great Northern inaugurated its new train service to the Pacific Coast on the 6th inst. With sweeping reductions in rates, amounting to 40 percent in many cases. The rate from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Puget Sound was reduced First class from $60.00 to …; to Spokane from $[illegible] to $[illegible]; and to Helena and Butte from $[illegible] to $25, with corresponding reductions on second-class tickets both through rates applying proportionately to intermediate points. It is the purpose of the Great Northern to make rates to help the development of its territory. It is much the shortest line across the continent, was built on business principles and at a cost of about one half of that of the other trans-continental lines, and is therefore prepared to correspondingly well by its territory and patrons in rates and accommodations.

Last summer I was attacked with a bad case of flux, and after taking four doses of Boggs' Diarrhoea Balsam was immediately relieved and cured. I have sold it for the past six months and can say that it gives general satisfaction. … W. Smith, M. D Puxico, Mo. For sale by J. L. Johnson. Druggest.

A New Enamel for Metals.

The protection of metals from rust and other atmospheric influences has been the subject of many recent patents, and of those the newest is for an enamel for gas apparatus and decorative work of all kinds. For decorative effect the capabilities of this enamel are great. All colors, the most delicate tints in any number, either dead or bright, and both gold and silver, also either dull or polished, are obtainable in the same casting, and all alike are unchangeable, being affected neither by exposure to the air nor to any heat up to a bright red. The film of enamel is so thin that the most microscopic details of the metal are unchanged. Castings protected in this manner are not only capable of fine artistic treatment, but they are also claimed to be absolutely permanent and proof against dirt and smoke, which disfigure other work so rapidly.

A Fire That Has Been Burning for Centuries.

It may surprise our readers to learn that the above is the case. According to the testimony of the duchess of Cleveland, the great hearth fire in the hall of Raby Castle has never been suffered to expire.

This castle is, perhaps, the oldest and most perfect specimen of feudal architecture in England.

It was in the large banqueting hall of this famous mansion that, ages ago, 700 knights are said to have paid suit and service to the earls of Westmorland, one of the many titles borne by the princely families of the Nevilles.—Tid-Bits.

Eating Five Neckties.

The Munich correspondent of the Paris Siecle sends a curious story of a student who, in order to win a bet, swallowed five silk neckties. The event took place in a beer house in Schwanberg. The conditions were that the neckties should be cut into pieces and dressed as a salad with oil, salt, vinegar and pepper, and this original mixture should be swallowed within six minutes. The student performed this difficult operation in five and one-half minutes, and washed down the "salad" with no less than ten litres of beer. He therefore won the bet.

"Sweet Charity."

In the Artists' Exhibition of 1893 at the New York Academy of Design, there was exhibited an oil painting by J. L. Ferris, entitled "Sweet Charity." Its richness of coloring commanded instant attention, while the lesson it taught was so impressive that one naturally returned to it for a second view.

Its subject is a young lady of colonial times who is on an errand to one of the poorer families of the town. She has a sensible, charming face, which expresses with remarkable fidelity the sentiment of her errand. There is not a home that this charming picture will not ornament. It must be seen to be appreciated.

"Sweet Charity" was purchased by the publishers of the Youth's Companion, and has been reproduced in colors in large size, 14x21.

It will be sent to all new subscribers to The Companion who send $1.75 for a year's subscription, and the paper will also be sent Free from the time the subscription is received, to January, 1894, and for a full year from that date, to January, 1895. This offer includes the Double Souvenir Numbers published at Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years. Address,

A SENSIBLE WOMAN.

She Fixed Up Her Mind for Table Conversation.

"I do study up for a dinner," admitted an ingenuous woman, to a New York Times reporter, "and I don't know that I am ashamed to tell of it. When my invitation comes, as it always does, of course, some days, or even weeks, beforehand, I usually know what persons will comprise the company, and I make a note of the place, date, and possible guests in a little book I have for the purpose. As the interval of time passes, in my reading of the newspapers or books and magazines, and in my talk with anybody, I keep in mind any bit of interesting comment, incident, or a good story, putting them down in outline for my dinner conversation.

"Then, just before I start for the feast, I look the list over, fixing the range of topics in my mind. Where's the harm? I spend as much, if not more, time over the study of the gown I shall wear and the way I shall do my hair, in order to contribute the best of my appearance at my hostess's table; why shouldn't I fix up my mind a little, as well?"

TO LESSEN IRON'S COST.

Edison, the Wizard, Has a Problem in Hand.

One of the objects of the visit of Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, to Allentown, Pa., a day or two ago was getting ideas for use in his new magnetic ore concentrator, which he expects will work a revolution in the iron business. He was also studying the working of the furnaces with a view of perfecting another invention which he has on hand for the charging of furnaces by machinery, by which he hopes to greatly cheapen the production of iron.

He has already introduced similar machinery in his ore mines in New Jersey, whereby the ore is brought to the surface at a small expense. In talking of his inventions for the treatment of ores and the operation of furnaces, he said he expected soon to be able to place northern furnaces once more in a position to compete successfully with those in the South. By means of his magnetic concentrator, he will take 25 per cent of ore, and, by removing the foreign matter, convert it into bricks that contain sixty per cent of iron.—Philadelphia Ledger.

After a Dinner.

A man who had just finished a comfortable meal at a restaurant the other day suddenly rose from his chair, grabbed his hat and umbrella that stood against the wall, and rushed out of the building.

"Stop him!" exclaimed the cashier. "That fellow went away without paying!"

"I'll stop him," said a determined-looking man, who rose up hastily from a table near where the other had sat. "He took my gold-handled umbrella! I'll stop him, and I'll bring him back with a policeman! The scoundrel!"

Without a moment's pause he dashed out of the house in hot pursuit of the conscienceless villain. And the cashier, a cold, hard, unsympathetic kind of man, has begun to suspect that neither of them will come back.—Tid-Bits.

A WOMAN'S TREACHERY.

A girl with a laughing face, deep-blue eyes, grown serious now, and clustering waves of nut-brown hair and at her feet a wealth of wild flowers, that had fallen from her slim, white hands at her lover's approach.

Her lover! Yes, you would have known him to be that by the light in his eyes, even before he caught her to his heart, called her his darling and kissed her smiling lips.

"I have come to ask a favor, sweetheart," he said. "I am going to plead with you to let me tell your guardian our love story and make public our engagement before you go to this new life that lies smiling before you."

Malda Gray looked up with laughing eyes, but made no answer.

"I do not believe in secrecy, Malda," Roy Carlisle continued. "No good ever comes of it. Will you let me speak, my darling?"

"No. Oh, Roy, I do not wish to go there as an engaged girl and hear their comments upon it. I know my aunt Helene does not believe in youthful engagements. Is it not sufficient that I love you and will be true to you? I could trust you, Roy"—the last a little reproachfully.

He drew her to him and looked into the lovely violet eyes.

"Can I trust you, sweetheart?"

The laughing eyes grew grave.

"Yes, Roy, you can trust me, for I love you," she said; then resuming her usual manner:

"Perhaps it is I who should not trust you, when I am gone and time hangs heavy on your hands. I have a suspicion, at any rate, that you were once in love with Leah, or she with you. Which was it, Roy?"

"That is not a very generous remark, Malda. I never gave Leah reason to dream I loved her; and she—— Well, she is too sweet and womanly to show favor unsought."

They had left the trysting-place, and were wandering down beneath the shadow of the trees, toward the beach, where the waves lapped the stretch of yellow sand that lay golden in the sunlight.

Then out from the shadow of the trees they had left came a girl—a girl who at first glance seemed little more than a child—a slim little beauty, with hair as yellow as ripe corn, and eyes like the edelweiss, with a dainty, curving baby mouth, and skin like lilies and wild blush roses.

Now, however, the blue eyes held the green light of the beryl, and the pretty face was contorted with passion.

"So she can mock at me—laugh at my folly, while she triumphs in the love I would have given my very life for. And he—he never gave me cause to dream he loved me! Too sweet and womanly! Ha, ha! Then if he did not, why did he smile in my eyes and linger by my side, before she came here?"

Suddenly Malda's laugh came to her ears, carried back by the light sea breeze, and the pretty face grew more bitter, the green light in the blue eyes more intense.

"I would risk my soul's salvation to part them!" she cried. "I would stop at nothing to take the laugh from her lips, the light from her eyes. Fate has always been kind to me, and my time may come. Their secret engagement is one card played into my hand, or at least, the knowledge of it."

A few days later Malda Gray went away, to the new life opened before her, with her lover's passionate kisses on her lips, his tender voice ringing in her ears.

"Oh! my darling, it is like death to part with you," he had said. "A year! Think what changes it may make. Malda, let my claim be known before you go and I will try to be satisfied."

She had laughed lightly. At seventeen nothing seems very serious, and then it would spoil this year of brightness her Aunt Helene had promised her—the year in which she was to see the world and its ways.

Looking into her lover's pale, handsome face, she had been almost tempted to forego the promised pleasure, but then —. Well, surely Roy would not be selfish enough to wish her to forego it.

If he loved her he could trust her. Poor, pretty child, she little dreamed of the bitter pain her willfulness would bring to the heart of him she really loved with all the depth of her heart.

When Malda was gone, Roy and Leah were thrown more than ever together, and then Leah was always ready to speak of his darling, and that was some consolation to Roy. To hear her very name was something.

One day he came upon her painting a panel of water lilies, a faint smile curving her red lips.

"Don't you think my task is a pleasant one?" she said, glancing at him from under her heavy lashes, the greenish light that boded danger flickering in her eyes.

"Why so pleasant in this instance?" he asked, with a smile.

Again her eyes swept his face, under the shade of their lashes.

"It is a wedding present for Malda," she said. "Isn't it pretty?"

He turned pale beneath his bronze.

"Malda? Do you mean your cousin—Malda Gray?"

"Why, certainly. Who else? There are the wedding cards. They came in a letter to-day."

"Did—did she speak—did she mention me in any way, Leah—in her letter, I mean?"

Leah looked at him in apparent surprise.

"Why, what is the matter, Roy? What a funny question!"

She spoke calmly, but her heart was raging inwardly. Ah, heaven! how he must love her to look like that!

"Do you mean, Leah," he said, "that Malda Gray is going to be married?"

"Exactly. Look at the cards. Why, how strangely you are acting, Roy. She is going to be married and coming here for a while after her honeymoon. Her mother came here when she was a bride, I believe."

How Roy Carlisle lived through the next week he could never tell. It seemed to him he was going mad with his misery.

There must have been some mistake. His darling, his. Going to wed another. His love, his own! Oh, God, it could not be! The girl whose lips he had kissed as his promised wife, whose dainty head had rested on his breast. He would go to her. She could not be false, and yet——. Ah, kind heaven! there lay the wedding cards, with their dainty, white satin bows. Sleeping or waking the names stared him in the face—"Malda Gray—Dene Castleton."

He wrote one long, passionate, pleading letter. Its answer was silence.

Poor fool, he never dreamed of the bribery that gave that letter and more than one with his own address, into Leah's possession.

The leaven worked as Leah desired, for in his passion and pain he turned to her for sympathy. She had built better even than she knew.

He turned to her but never dreamed of the ending.

How it happened he could never tell, only he had spoken of love and woman's faithlessness—of love cast back on itself like a worthless weed.

But how had Leah taken it to herself? What had he said to make her dream that she was beloved?

How had she misunderstood him?

Only this he knew—that she was sobbing in his arms, her pretty, tear-stained face hidden on his shoulder.

"I always loved you, Roy," she sobbed; "how could you so misjudge me?"

Good heavens! misjudged her! Always loved him! What could he say; what could he do?

Tell this pretty, loving child he had not been speaking of her, that he never dreamed his words could be so misconstrued?

A sudden, overmastering temptation swept him.

Fate had taken the case in hand and thrown this yellow-haired young girl into his very arms, and so they closed around her, while he bent his head and kissed her.

When Malda came in bridal beauty she would find she had not wrecked his life.

The world held other women fair as she, with smiles as sweet, and so blue-eyed Leah became his promised wife while he cursed himself for his folly.

He had gone so far, however, he would go farther.

When Malda came his bride would greet her, and no one would ever dream of his passionate love, or the falsity of the woman to whom it had been given.

He bore it bravely, though more than one noticed the shadow in his handsome eyes, the tense expression of his mouth, and a general look of haggardness, engendered by sleepless nights.

To Leah the days were a mixture of fear and triumph.

What if her plan should miscarry and all end in defeat?

She little dreamed, however, what would be the cause of her downfall—a leaf from her diary, the sole confidant she ever trusted with her thoughts.

Which was it, the leaf itself, or the breeze that wafted it to Roy's feet, that was most to blame, or the foolish hand that penned it?

These thoughts ran riot in her mind through all the passionate misery and despair surging in her heart, when Roy stood before her, the paper in his hand.

"So there are two Malda Grays," he said, "and you let me believe the girl who was my promised wife was to wed another. You have intercepted letters by your own confession, a crime punishable by law."

The white, startled pallor of her face appealed to him, and as the words "I did it because I loved you" fell from her lips, his face softened.

"That is not love that sacrifices its object. Leah, you are near and dear to Malda Gray, and for her sake we will let the dead past rest."

She made no answer, but gazed out over the blue waves that lay before them.

"You are sorry for your sin, Leah?" he said.

"Sorry for it being discovered, you mean," she answered scornfully; then he turned and left her standing there.

Three days later, down in a glade below her uncle's home, Malda Gray was thinking about her lover, wondering what his silence meant, though no shadow of fear for his faith and honor crossed his mind.

Suddenly a step at her side, a tender voice in her ears.

"Malda, darling!" and with a low, glad cry, she was clasped in her lover's arms.

She listened in silence while he told her the whole story, sparing Leah as much as possible.

"I think I went mad, my darling," he said; "mad with passionate pain and utter despair."

She smiled softly.

"I promised to be true, and I have been true," she said, and of course he kissed her again.

High Art.

In a decorative age all sorts of things become decorative. The Detroit Free Press reports that a colored man went into a grocery in that city not long ago, and asked the proprietor if he had any burlap lying about the shop.

"Yes," said the grocer, "I've got a few coffee sacks, but they are old and in pretty bad shape."

"Dat's all de better, sah. I want 'bout four of 'em."

The grocer brought them out, and the negro looked around the shop.

"Has you any pieces of rope to spare?" he asked. "I want about fifty feet."

A tangled lot of old rope and cord was handed to him.

"Going to pack something for moving?" asked the grocer.

"No, sah. My wife was workin' fer a lady on High street de odder day, an' she cotched on to a new idea. She's gwine to use dis stuff, 'long wid a few suspender buckles an' shoe-strings to make a planer-kiver."

"Land! but what a cover that will make!"

"Dat's what I done tole her, but she brung home all de perticklers in her mind, an' she's boun' to turn one out. If you h'ar of anybody as wants a twenty-five-dollar planer-kiver, home-made an' chuck full of art, jes' le' me know."

Two Miles a Minute by Rail.

Alexander, seeking new worlds to conquer. Engineers are always like the great

Mr. F. B. Behr, associate of the Institution of Civil Engineers, finds steam locomotion on the surface of the planet too slow at a more or less dangerous maximum of sixty miles an hour, and he proposes to whirl the man of the twentieth century at the rate of two miles per minute. Under the title of "Lightning Express Railway Service," he publishes a full statement of his plans, with all the necessary technical details. The motive power proposed is electricity, and the method that which is known as the Lartigue single-rail system, which, in a rudimentary form, is now at work on a short line of nine miles and a half from Listowel to Ballybunion, in Ireland, and from Feurs to Panissieres, in the department of the Loire, France. There are many advantages claimed for this idea, including the absolute impossibility of a train's leaving the metals; its cheapness of construction, as well as a speed that brings Edinburgh within three hours of London. The king of the Belgians has accepted the dedication of Mr. Behr's interesting little work.—London Telegraph.

Subduing a Polar Bear.

Settling family quarrels in a household like that of Bidel, the French lion tamer, was no trifling matter. One day, in the midst of an exercise by the wild animals, the polar bear became angry, and attacked an inoffensive elephant.

The elephant showed no surprise, but prepared to destroy his assailant. Bidel, however, hastened to interpose. The bear released the elephant, and hugging Bidel in his long arms, began to strangle him. But for his wonderful self-possession Bidel would have been lost.

He had stout, solid fists, and he pounded them on the bear's nostrils until the animal relaxed his grip. Then he wrenched himself free, and gave the bear a vigorous beating with a stout stick. In a few moments all was quiet again.

LOUDEST NOISE ON RECORD.

It Was Heard at a Distance of 1,700 Miles.

No thunder from the skies was ever accompanied with a roar of such vehemence as that which issued from the throat of the great volcano in Krakatoa, an islet lying in the Straits of Sunda, between Sumatra and Java, at 10 o'clock on Monday morning, Aug. 27, 1883. As that dreadful Sunday night wore on the noise increased in intensity and frequency. The explosions succeeded each other so rapidly that a continuous roar seemed to issue from the island. The critical moment was now approaching, and the outbreak was preparing for a majestic culmination. The people of Batavia did not sleep that night. Their windows quivered with the thunders from Krakatoa, which resounded like the discharge of artillery in their streets. Finally at 10 o'clock on Monday morning a stupendous convulsion took place which far transcended any of the shocks which had preceded it. This supreme effort it was which raised the mightiest noise ever heard on this globe. Batavia is ninety-five miles distant from Krakatoa. At Carimon, Java, 355 miles away, reports were heard on that Sunday morning which led to the belief that there must be some vessel in the distance which was discharging its guns as signals of distress. The authorities sent out boats to make a search; they presently returned, as nothing could be found in want of succor. The reports were sounds which had come all the way from Krakatoa. At Macassar, in Celebes, loud explosions attracted the notice of everybody. Two steamers were hastily sent out to find what was the matter. The sounds had traveled from the straits of Sunda, a distance of 969 miles. But mere hundreds of miles will not suffice to illustrate the extraordinary distance to which the greatest noise that ever was heard was able to penetrate. The figures have to be expressed in thousands. This seems almost incredible, but it is certainly true. In the Victoria plains, in West Australia, the shepherds were startled by noises like heavy canonading. It was some time afterward before they learned that their tranquility had been disturbed by the grand events then proceeding at Krakatoa, 1,700 miles away.—Youth's Companion.

COLLISIONS NEVER COME SINGLY.

A Common Superstition Among English Engineers and Other Railway men.

Of the superstition of sailors, fisher-folk and others we have all heard, but that such a distinguished characteristic should have attached itself to railway men would not appear to be generally known. It savors somewhat of the anomalous that such a pre-eminently practical class of men should be the victims of credulity regarding the supernatural. Such, however, is the case, says a writer in London Tit Bits.

I recently had occasion to interview a prominent railway official, and in the course of the conversation that ensued that gentleman incidentally alluded to two collisions which had lately occurred in the neighborhood, following up his remarks with the announcement that the local men would be in a state of subdued excitement and "flurry" till a third mishap took place. Such is the superstition of the railway man. Upon expressing considerable astonishment I was assured that this kind of thing was notorious among railway men in general, and in this particular instance of the two previous accidents were the chief topics among the workmen in all departments, who were also counting on the possibilities of a third disaster. Curiously enough a touch of realism was lent to the information just imparted by the explanation that the second of the two collisions referred to was due to the driver of one of the engines—a reliable servant, noted for his alertness and precision, with an honorable record with some forty years' service—who being, it was believed, so disturbed over the "omens" of the first occurrence and so engrossed with what he felt would be two other catastrophes that he committed the slight error of judgment which caused his locomotive to crash into another coming in an opposite direction. The statement is given as the conviction of one who spent upward of a quarter of a century among railroad men of all classes, and who has known the driver alluded to for a long period of years. So came about a second collision. Surely superstition could go no further than this. But here is a tragic sequel—a sequel which, unfortunately, will in all probability do much to strengthen the reprehensible beliefs of these men. Two days after the interview above mentioned, within fifteen minutes' drive from the scene of the second collision, an express mail failed to take the points, a portion of the train with the tender of the engine was violently thrown across the rails and one stoker killed. This is what the railway men will term their "third mishap." "There is the third," they say, and now perhaps they will breathe freely for a season.

"Begone About Your Business."

A sun dial in Cheshire, England, constantly gives a good advice to all who pause to read its inscription, and the way it came to do so is told in this story, taken from Notes and Queries:

It seems the dial was removed many years since from the Inner Temple; and when it was put up in that place there was some discussion among the Benchers as to what motto it should bear. The Benchers agreed to hold a meeting to take into consideration what the motto should be; and the artist was to send at a certain hour to the library to inquire on what they had determined. The Benchers forgot all about the matter, and when a messenger came he found in the library only a cross old gentleman poring over an old book. "Please, sir," said the messenger, "I am come for the motto for the sun dial." "What?" said the testy old gentleman; "why do you disturb me? Begone about your business!" Away went the messenger, and gave this word to his master; and he, either by design or mistake, engraved it in large letters under the dial, "Begone about your business." The Benchers, when they saw it, determined that no motto could be more appropriate—that chance had done their work for them even better, perhaps, than if their memory had served to enable them to do it for themselves, and so there it remains.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

"German Syrup"

Mr. Albert Hartley of Hudson, N. C., was taken with Pneumonia. His brother had just died from it. When he found his doctor could not rally him he took one bottle of German Syrup and came out sound and well. Mr. S. B. Gardiner, Clerk with Druggist J. E. Barr, Aurora, Texas, prevented a bad attack of pneumonia by taking German Syrup in time. He was in the business and knew the danger. He used the great remedy—Boschee's German Syrup—for lung diseases.

MERCURIAL

Mr. J. C. Jones, of Fulton, Arkansas, says of S.S.S.

"About ten years ago I contracted a severe case of blood poison. Leading physicians prescribed medicine after medicine, which I took without any relief. I also tried mercurial and potash remedies, with unsuccessful results, but which brought on an attack of mercurial rheumatism that made my life one of agony. RHEUMATISM After suffering four years I gave up all remedies and began using S. S. S. After taking several bottles I was entirely cured and able to resume work. S.S.S. Is the greatest medicine for blood poisoning to-day on the market."

THE WORK OF CNGRESS.

WHAT WAS ACCOMPLISHED BY THE SPECIAL SESSION.

Silver Repeal and the Chinese Bill the Only Measures of Prime Importance Which Become Laws—Digest of Results in Each House.

Washington, Nov. 3.—The session of the senate will be long memorable for the contest over the bill providing for the repeal of the silver purchasing clause of the act of 1890 known as the Sherman law. The extraordinary session was called for the purpose of accomplishing this repeal, and the other work accomplished was merely incidental. That bill reached the senate after passing the house on Aug. 28, and was not passed by the senate until Oct. 30. How for these two months the senate contended over the issue involved, but at last brought the bill through and passed it by a safe majority, is familiar to the public. The bill provides in effect for the cessation of the purchase and coinage of silver, and may be said to mark a revolution in the financial history of the country. While the records show that it was the house bill which became a law, that is only technically true, as the senate substituted a measure of its own and the house accepted the substitute.

The bill of next greatest importance to the repeal bill which has passed both houses of congress is the bill extending the time in which Chinese laborers can register under the Chinese act, known as the Geary law. Much interest attached to the bill providing for a bridge across the Hudson at New York. This bill passed both houses. Of the 1,152 bills introduced in the senate during the session which closed to-day only twelve passed that body, and of these, only three passed the house, received the president's signature and became laws. Of the three new laws originating in the senate one is in aid of the mid-winter international exposition to be held in San Francisco; another grants certain settlers in Oklahoma Territory the right to commute their homestead entries, and the third relates to clerks in the office of the commissioners of the District of Columbia.

These Also Passed.

The other bills which passed the senate are as follows: Making appropriations for the purchase of ground in Washington for a building to be used as a hall of records; granting to California 5 per cent of the net proceeds of the cash sales of public lands in that state; to extend the time for making final payments on entries under the desert land act; authorizing certain Cherokee allottees or claimants to purchase certain tracts held and claimed by them; to donate to the county of Laramie, Wyo., certain bridges on the abandoned Fort Laramie military reservation; to authorize the Chattanooga Western Railway company to construct a bridge across the Tennessee river near Chattanooga; to grant the right of way to the Kansas, Oklahoma Central & Southwestern Railway company through the Indian Territory and Oklahoma Territory; to aid the States of California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, Wyoming, Colorado and South Dakota to support schools of mines; for the relief of W. H. Ward.

The senate has in addition to those bills of its own passed fourteen house bills, the most important of these being house bill No. 1, for the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act. The others relate to lands in the Sioux Indian reservation in Nebraska and South Dakota, to the United States courts in Idaho and Wyoming and South Dakota; to the New York & New Jersey bridge; to steam revenue cutters for the great lakes and for the New England coast; to the annual work on unpatented mining claims; to the increase of officers of the army detailed at colleges and to the amendment of the Chinese exclusion act, the rest being bills of a private character. The senate also passed four which originated in that body and twelve which originated in the house. The only one of the senate joint resolutions of importance is the one which provides for the construction of a hall of records in Washington, which also passed the house. Of the house resolutions which passed the senate, those worthy of note are: Relating to the Mormon church property in Salt Lake City; providing for the publication of 50,000 additional copies of the compendium of the eleventh census; for the removal of ocean derelicts, and conferring diplomas upon world's fair artisans through the board of lady managers. The total of the senate bills and joint resolutions, and of house bills and joint resolutions, all told, is only forty-two.

The senate will not be without material to work upon when it reconvenes in December. The calendar issued to-day shows sixty-five bills and resolutions reported by committee and ready for the attention of the senate. A large proportion of these bills and resolutions relates to private claims, and there are also several relating to the finances which had connection with the repeal bill and which are not now pertinent. Probably the most important bill upon the senate calendar now is that for the repeal of the federal election laws. A similar bill has passed the house. Senator Voorhees has a bill concerning national bank note circulation. Mr. Morgan's resolution for a joint committee of the two houses to consider questions of finance, has a place on the calendar, as has Mr. Stewart's resolution concerning the co-ordinate branch of the government, and also Mr. Peffer's relating to interstate commerce. Senator Palmer's bill concerning invalid pensions paid to non-residents is in shape for consideration at any time. There are on the table resolutions by Senators Hoar and Martin relative to the election of senators by the direct vote of the people, and a resolution by Senator Call dispensing with the civil service commission.

Results in the House.

The chief bill that failed in the extra session of the house was that providing for urgent deficiencies. The most important item in this measure was that which provided for the janitors and custodians of public buildings. There was an item of $200,000 to pay clerks to members, but that can be passed later without causing any hindrance to public business like the first-named appropriation. A house joint resolution passed the house providing for a reduction of 50 per cent of the duty on all goods sold at the world's fair. It was amended so as to admit duty free such goods as might be used for the Chicago museum to be established in the art building on the world's fair grounds, but the 50 per cent reduction for goods was stricken out. There have been introduced in the house at this session session 4,390 bills and 87 joint resolutions. Of this entire number 106 have been reported from committees and 56 have passed the house. Most of those which passed are of special interest to the sections where they apply, and have been pressed to meet some necessity which existed. Some of these have become laws. Others are yet in committee or on the calendar of the senate.

Of those that have become laws the act next in importance originating in the house after the silver repeal is the Chinese bill. An important joint resolution which became a law provides for an international agreement for the marking and removal of derelicts and wrecks in the ocean. One of the number of joint resolutions passed tenders the acknowledgments of the United States to the foreign governments which participated in the world's fair; another restores to the Mormon church in Utah money and property that have been in the hands of a receiver since 1887; another fixes the qualification of voters on the Cherokee strip, Oklahoma; another authorizes the State of Wisconsin to place in the capitol a statue of Pere Marquette; another authorizes the board of commissioners of to allow states and associations building monuments on the battle-field to use materials in the park. One of the acts passed extends the time for completing the work of the eleventh census until Dec. 31, 1893, and authorizes the president to direct the work performed by the commissioner of labor. Others provided for certain urgent deficiencies; the coinage of subsidiary coins; to pay clerks to members of the house; and repairs to the Ford's theater building in Washington.

A joint resolution making former laws in Oklahoma relating to town sites applicable to the Cherokee strip town sites was passed. A joint resolution provided for the payment of mileage to the senators and members and others made available the appropriations of the last congress for the regular session at the extra session. An act passed making the law repealing the timber culture laws applicable to a litte strip of the Sioux reservation in Nebraska.

Laws were passed providing for the time and place of holding courts in South Dakota and Idaho and Wyoming. Two acts passed provide for revenue cutters, one on the Great Lakes and the other on the New England coast. The last act signed by the president was the joint resolution relating to the Chicago museum and allowing the articles presented to it to be disposed of free of duty. All legislation that is pending between the houses will be considered in the next regular session, the same as if this session had continued. The pending measure in the house is the bankruptcy bill.

Summed Up by Voorhees.

"The adjournment of this long-to-be-remembered session of congress brings with it a great sense of relief."

Senator Voorhees had been asked by an Associated Press representative for an interview and it was with the above statement he began. Continuing he said: "We met amidst the crash of business disasters, bank failures, and all the distressful incidents of one of the worst financial panics ever known in this or any other country; we adjorn with quiet business circles, and a fair degree of restored confidence prevails in all parts of the country. It will, of course, take time for the various business pursuits to fully recover from the overwhelming financial shock and depression which have afflicted the country for the last six months, but the signs of healthy improvement are now visible on every hand and good omens for the employment of labor cheer us from all quarters."

When requested to state his views about future legislation, the senator only consented to say: "With a careful, fair and honest revision of the tariff taxation now to follow at the regular session, only thirty days distant, I predict that we will enter upon a solid and lasting career of prosperity for the laboring and producing masses of every section of our beloved Union."

Reviewing the events of the session he said: "In looking back over the incidents and scenes which marked the session just closed, I have nothing but pleasant and kindly feelings toward all. I attribute my success in the management of my bill to the fact that while firm and uncompromising in pushing it forward, I aimed at all times to be patient, liberal and fair towards every member of the senate, and I am now thoroughly convinced that a contrary course would have Resulted in Defeat.

I believe such is the opinion also of every senator; very many of them have personally so assured me."

Asked whether he ever felt any doubt of the success of repeal, Mr. Voorhees said: "The darkest hour for the bill was when Senator Sherman's famous interview came out a month ago, in which he encouraged its enemies and discouraged its friends by declaring in the strongest terms that unconditional repeal could never pass the senate. I felt that blow more than any other in the long contest, and in my judgment it prolonged the fight at least two weeks more than it would otherwise have done. Mr. Sherman was very anxious for a compromise embracing the issue of bonds, and that was the meaning and purpose of his strong speech in the senate when he arraigned the Democratic side of the chamber for having so long delayed an effort to compromise. All these utterances and dismal predictions on the part of the acknowledged leader of the Republican party could have but one effect. They encouraged Mr. Teller, Mr. Dubois and their allies to fight on, and they chilled and dampened the hope and zeal of many staunch supporters of the bill. I have very great respect for Mr. Sherman's high ability and for him personally, but I have never believed, and do not now that he had any real liking for the bill, or that he desired its enactment into law unless it carried an amendment providing for the issuance of a goodly supply of government bonds. I do not, however, desire to indulge in a word of criticism of any one, and I gladly bear testimony to the kind, untiring, faithful support which the bill received from the large body of Republican senators who finally gave it their votes."

Said Mr. Voorhees in reply to a question: "On the Democratic side of the chamber, while there were strong differences of opinion, I do not know of a single unfriendly feeling left by the protracted discussion. Neither party organization nor friendly relations have been disturbed. We will take up our work on the tariff and other great questions when we meet here in December as if nothing had happened to mar our peace with one another or to impair our strength for the public good. Our faith in the present able and thoroughly patriotic administration has never ben stronger than now, and, to my mind, the future wears a bright and promising aspect.

New Use for Photography.

Photography played an important part in a suit at Cincinnati. The suit is one of local standing, involving the title to 1,500 acres of valuable farm lands. It is based on a deed made nearly seventy-five years ago by the owners of the land, and turns on the point whether the deed had five signatures or only four. In order to test this question it was decided to have the deed photographed, and the clerk of the court was ordered to give the matter his personal supervision. For that purpose it was taken to Washington and submitted to an expert photographer of that city. The original deed, discolored and yellow with age, showed traces of four signatures and a space where there might have been the fifth, but no trace of it. The photographing was done in the presence of the clerk of the court, who refused to let the deed go out of his sight. The negative revealed traces of the missing signature, and when it was enlarged ten times the entire name became as plain as when first written. The court pronounced the evidence conclusive, and the result will be the reversal of a former decision and a change in the ownership of the land.—Indianapolis Journal.

WILL ERECT A MONUMENT.

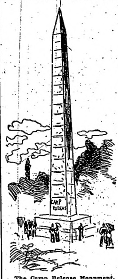
AN OBELISK TO BE ERECTED AT CAMP RELEASE.

The Design by A. Critchfield Is Selected by the Commission and the Contract Awarded to the N. P. Peterson Granite Company.

The last legislature passed a bill, introduced by Mr. Jacobson, providing for the appointment of a commission, and the appropriation of $5,000 for the edection of a suitable monument in commemoration of the release of the white and half-breed captives from the Indians in the uprising of 1862.

The commission met in St. Paul recently to select a design and examine bids. More than thirty designs were before the body to select from and it was a somewhat difficult task. It finally sifted down to two or three, and then the unanimous choice was the design of the column presented for inspection by the N. P. Peterson Granite company of St. Paul. There were ten competitors, including the successful firm, namely, the Ortonville Granite company, P. H. Foote & Co. of Ortonville, J. M. Sullivan & Co. of Minneapolis, G. H. Mitchell of Chicago, H. D. Bell of Fargo, Grono & Felg of Litchfield, George Griggs of St. Paul, and the Mount Vernon Granite company of Massachusetts.

The obelisk design chosen by the commission attracted much attention during the two days' sitting of the commission. There were many callers to the rooms of Gen. Andrews of old settlers and others who felt a lively interest in the project, and they all expressed their admiration for the design.



The Camp Release Monument.

The granite men who came before the committee favored the native granite, which, being acclimated, is equal if not really superior to foreign stone, especially for large and heavy structures, and it was consequently decided to have it built of Minnesota red granite.

The design chosen is a monument representative of classic art rather than of allegorical character. The shaft will stand fifty feet high upon a pedestal nine feet wide.

The monument is to be erected at Camp Release, as it is designated, on a sightly point on the bank of the Minnesota river, in Lac qui Parle county.

As the cut above will show, it will be elegant in every way. The spire and the sides upon which the inscription is to be chiseled, will be highly polished. The inscription will read:

Erected by the State of Minnesota
To Commemorate
The Surrender Here, Sept. 26, 1862, of a Large Body of Sioux Indians and the Release of 91 White
Captives Women and Children.
And of 107 Half-Breed Captives;
The Result Mainly of the Victory Over the Hostile Sioux at Wood
Lake Gained Three Days Previously by Minnesota Troops Under Command of
Gen. Henry H. Sibley,
All Being Incidents of the Great Sioux
Outbreak and Massacre of 1862.

On another side of the monument will appear:

Battles: Redwood, Aug. 18, (1862). Fort Ridgley, Aug. 20-22. New Ulm, Aug. 23-24, Birch Coulee, Sept. 2. Wood Lake, Sept. 23.

A. Critchfield, the designer of this elegant structure, has achieved a high reputation, and this, the last of his many works, will add to his laurels.

The Intrinsic Cash Value of a Man.

We have it on the authority of Thackeray that you have to wait until forty years before you know the worth of a lass. The knowledge would not then appear to have much value; and it is fortunate that science now presents an exact means of determining the worth of a lad at any age. The last census the archives of the National Museum officials, or some other infallible authority, have had his constituent ingredients weighed, appraised and filed away as a permanent standard of value in at Washington—much as the Smithsonian Institution or other grave authority preserves the standard yardstick or the standard quart. It is somewhat of a relief thus to find the value of an every-day 154-pound young man placed by the government as high as $18,300. We had not deemed they took so exalted a view of human nature at Washington. But they give us chapter and verse for the same, or, rather, weight and measure; for they have the body of such a man neatly decomposed and put up in jars or bottles on the shelf.—From "The Point of View," in "Scribner's Magazine.

WANTED TO BE OUTLAWS

Eau Claire, Wis., Nov. 6—Judge Bailey sentenced Nelson Delaine of Neillsville, Clark county, aged fifteen, to the Waukesha reform school till he is twenty-one. Delain and Elmer Glass, a boy of the same age, were leaders of a gang of Neillsville lads who had been reading novels about Jesse James. Young Glass is the son of the police justice of Neillsville. The boys built a cabin about three miles from Neillsville. Starting in the center of the cabin they dug a tunnel and widened it into a cave, in which a man could stand upright. On the outside of the cabin they put up a sign which read: "E. G. & N. D., Outlaws." In spite of this nobody suspected these boys when a Neillsville grocery store was burglarized recently, and fourteen chickens were missed by an old lady in the neighborhood. Finally a lot of material was missed from the Clark county fair grounds, and one of the custodians sent Capt. Hemmel, the marshal of Neillsville, to examine the outlaws' cabin. He entered the cabin and saw a trap door in the middle. He lifted the door but the entrance below to the tunnel had been so cunningly concealed by boards on which was piled six inches of earth and leaves that he went no further. He concluded, however, to arrest Delain and Glass. Delain was captured but Glass had disappeared. Delain confessed and showed the officers into the tunnel cave in which were found a large quantity of tea, coffee, chocolate and groceries. Delain said they meant no harm, but supposed they were obliged to rob if they were going to be outlaws. Glass returned to Neillsville yesterday and will stand trial as his father claims he can prove the boy was at home the night the store was burglarized. Delain is regarded by the rest of the boys as a traitor and they vow vengeance upon him. Other arrests may follow.

SIX KILLED.

Reno, Cal., Nov. 6.—One of the worst railroad wrecks that ever happened on the Western division of the Central Pacific occurred this morning between freight trains No. 10, west-bound and No. 7 east-bound, about a mile west of Salvia, eighteen miles east of Reno, resulting in the death of Fred Leach, brakeman on the west-bound, and Charles Givens, fireman of the same train, and four tramps not yet identified, and the serious, perhaps fatal injuring of three others: James Bird, engineer of No. 7; Tom Morsehead, his fireman, and a tramp named William E. Vos, who says he is from Chicago and has a wife living there.

FLEECED AT CARDS.

Minneapolis, Nov. 6.—Le Vin Peterson, eighteen years old, living at Blanchard, N. D., got into a game of cards in a saloon and claims to have been "done up" for $76. The game was poker, and Peterson was led on by a "capper," who pretended to be a countryman and stranger to the saloonkeeper. Peterson's brother has stopped the payment of the $76, which was in the form of a check, and, it is said, the saloon man is to be prosecuted for keeping a gambling house and selling liquor to a minor.

TO SEE CLEVELAND.

Kansas City, Nov. 6.—Elmer E. Raub, a young farmer from Finney, Henry county, Mo., Was arrested on his arrival in this city, a dispatch having been received to the effect that he was crazy and had announced his intention of going to Washington to see President Cleveland. A police officer remarked to Raub: "There have been a good many men like you running around of late," and the fellow replied: "Yes, and one of them shot Mayor Harrison in Chicago the other day."

A TAX SALE TAX CASE.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Nov. 6—The Johnson County Agricultural and Mechanical society has just commenced suit in the district court at Iowa City to establish its title to the lands adjoining Iowa City upon which it holds its annual exhibitions. This has been made necessary by a claim made to these lands by Frank H. Novak, who claims the land came into his possession at a tax sale made in December, 1887.

BRAZILIAN FLEET.

New York, Nov. 6.—Dr. Salvadore de Mendonca, the Brazilian minister, arrived at the Hotel Brunswick from Washington yesterday. He received many visitors during the day, including the representative of a big Western iron house, who is desirous of fitting out the fleet which is being organized here to fight the rebels.

IN THE SHERIFF'S CARE.

Milwaukee, Nov. 6.—The establishment of James Morgan & Co., one of the largest retail dry goods firms in the West, is in the hands of the sheriff on an execution issued in favor of the receiver of the Wisconsin Marine and Fire Insurance Company bank for $30,000.

HUNDREDS WERE KILLED

TERRIBLE CALAMITY IN THE HARBOR AT SANT ANDER, SPAIN.

A Vessel Laden With Dynamite Takes Fire and Explodes, Killing a Large Number of People and Injuring Many Others.

Madrid, Nov. 6.—A most shocking calamity has befallen Sant Ander. A large amount of dynamite exploded at the quay and hundreds of people are killed. The Cabo Machichaco, a Spanish steamship belonging to Bilbao, caught fire at about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon while the steamer was alongside the quay discharging 2,000 tons of merchandise, though the main part of this cargo was iron ore and a number of sacks of flour, barrels of wine, many cases of petroleum and over 500 cases of dynamite, of which only twenty cases were declared on the steamer's manifest. The remaining 480 cases of dynamite were contraband, and to the shame of the shippers of this contraband dynamite it has caused immense loss of life and vast damage to property. The scene following the blowing up of the steamer is almost indescribable, and the effect of the explosion of these 480 cases of dynamite will hardly be believed. The powerful explosive shot tons of iron into the air, where it mingled with the burning fragments of the steamship, tug and wooden quay, as well as with the mangled bodies of hundreds of the unfortunate people who were hurled upwrad at the same time, and the falling of this horrible mass can be better imagined than described. Over the adjoining buildings tottering with wreckage, fell a shower of iron, followed by huge pieces of wood and the remains of human bodies, and above all dropped flaming splinters which set fire to hundreds of buildings, causing a scene of panic similar, one would imagine, to the one which would have succeeded the bursting forth of volcano at the water's edge. The force of the exploding dynamite caused such a concussion that in addition to shaking hundreds of buildings off their foundations, it actually sank a hundred small craft in the harbor in addition to setting fire to a large number of other vessels and starting conflagrations upon several of the larger ships, including the Alfonso XII., which vessel caught fire so suddenly and burned so fiercely that forty of her crew lost their lives on board of her. Many of those who were thrown into the water by the explosion were carried away by the tide and drowned amid the despairing lament of the few who had managed to struggle out of that horrible swirl of blackened corpses and partly or entirely dismembered bodies. No correct estimate can yet be formed of the loss of life, some officials claiming that thousands lost their lives, while others hold that the loss of life will not be over 500, and may be lower.

TOO MUCH MORPHINE.

Cincinnati, Nov. 6.—Louis T. Lutz, one of the faculty of the Cincinnati art school and a widely known artist, died last night from an overdose of morphine taken to relieve a headache. Mr. Lutz was troubled with spinal disease and was subject to severe headaches from which he found relief in morphia. His heavy breathing was heard by his fiancee, Mrs. McNamara, whom he had asked to visit him. The door of his room was broken in and he was discovered unconscious on the bed. He died a few hours later.

HUNG TO ONE TREE.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 6.—On the farm of Jack Daniels, near Lynchburg, Ned Waggoner, his son Will and daughter Mary and his son-in-law, Motlow, were found hanging to one tree. All the parties are colored, and the only cause assigned for their fate is that they were suspected of having been implicated in the numerous barn burnings which have taken place in Moore and Lincoln counties recently. There is no clue to the perpetrators of the deed.

DYNAMITE.

Sedalia, Mo., Nov. 6.—Dynamite was exploded under one of the gates of the dam at the water works, three miles south of the city, last night. Two of the large gates were blown out of position and then took fire, but the prompt arrival of the employes at the pump house prevented a spread of the flames and the destruction of all the gates. It is believed the attempt to wreck the dam was made by men whose fields are flooded on account of it when the creek is high.

WILL DISSOLVE.

Pittsburg, Nov. 6.—It is stated in window glass manufacturing circles that the national glass manufacturers' association, embracing 80 per cent of the trade, will be dissolved at the next meeting in Chicago, Dec. 6. The members posted a forfeit to maintain prices and the recent break among the manufacturers on the wage question having resulted in the removal of the restrictions on rates, the members are no longer being benefited by the arrangement, want their forfeits back again. The amounts posted vary from $800 to $2,800.

SWIPED A BURGLAR.

Wausau, Wis., Nov. 6.—A thief entered a house at Wausau a few nights ago and at the point of a pistol demanded money of Mrs. G. Strobridge. The lady was not at all frightened. Quick as a flash she knocked the dark lantern out of the burglar's hand, and in the darkness he beat a hasty retreat.

A LONG SLEEP.

Bloomer, Wis., Nov. 6.—John Branville, a farmer, has been asleep since Friday evening, Oct. 27, physicians having been unable to arouse him. He has been kept alive by liquid food.

SMALLPOX.

Red Wing, Minn., Nov. 6. — Elmer Rogers, living at Featherstone, was taken sick with smallpox. Dr. Hewitt has taken the matter in hand and hopes to prevent its spreading.

WANTS $5,000 DAMAGES.

Red Wing, Minn., Nov. 6.—Alfred H. Perkins has sued the La Grange flour mills for $5,000 for injuries sustained by falling down through an opening that had been left unguarded.

FATAL RUNAWAY.

Nashau, Iowa, Nov. 6.—M. Hill, a prosperous farmer, was killed in a runway.

RECAPTURED.

Pipestone, Minn., Nov. 6.—Three Indian students escaped but were recaptured at Jackson.

Christ Bjerk went up to his home in Excel yesterday,

Andrew Sture, of Crookston, was in town a short time today,

Felix Fournet, of Crookston, was in town on business a short time last Monday.

Last Sunday was one of those perfect fall days that we read about and was enjoyed by all.

Our tri-weekly apology is getting worse rapidly. Do you think it could get here at all if it happened to snow?

Miss Annie Cliffgard returned last Monday from Thief River Falls, where she had been visiting friends.

Gen. Supt. Case and Div. Supt. Ponsonby, of the Great Northern, went over the line today in a special train.

Miss. Carrie Gigstad of Manitowoc Wis. arrived today and will make her future home with her brother K. O. Gigstad.

The St. Hilaire Ladies Sewing Society will give a social with an oyster supper at the Luthedan church on Friday evening Nov. 17th. All are cordialy invited to attend.

Republican and Democratic bankers and merchants don't seem to take much stock in the prosperous times that were to come as the repeal bill was passed, We notice they still talk about hard times.

Speaking of artists' it takes a rich man to draw a check, a pretty girl to draw attention, a horse to draw a cart a porous plaster to draw the skin, a toper to draw a cork a free lunch to draw a crowd and Charley Brink to draw a flush.

Yesterday was election day in many states. In Ohio, Iowa, Virginia. New York, Kansas and Nebraska the battle was a warm one. The Republican will probably carry Ohio, the Democrats New York and Iowa, and the People's Party will carry Kansas anb Nebraska with a good prospect of adding told Virginia the old democratic stronghold,

We will have a public hall in a short time and a good one a good one at that M. E. Bjerk has decided to fit up the second story of his building for a hall and work will be commenced at once and will be done in a first class manner This is something that is badly needed and due credit should be given to Mr. Bjerk.

The price of wheat has gone down another cent this week. Money seems to be getting scarcer, everything the farmer has to sell is getting cheaper, and still the repeal bill passed some time ago. Wall street has been saved however, even if the country has been ruined, Again, everybody yell, "Hurrah for King Cleveland and his Republican allies!"

Dr. Grundy, of Thief River Falls, was in town last Friday and was justly indignant over a rumor that the doctor from Thief River Falls had been called in a case west of here and was unable to tell what was the matter with his patient. It seems the case in question was attended by a druggist of that place who pretends to be a physician and gets the genial doctor in trouble.

Returns from yesterday's elections are meager but we have received the following: New York; Republican state ticket elected and legislature Republican,

Ohio: McKinley and entire state republican ticket elected by a plurality estimated at 60,000,

Iowa: Republicans elect entire state ticket by 20,000 plurality also the legislature.

Massachusetts: Republican state ticket elected by 26,000 plurality.

Twenty-one years ago tomorrow Polk county held its first election. At that time the county consisted of the present county, all of Norman and a large part of Marshall county.

At the election held at that time President Grant was re-elected, There were 177 votes in the county at the time, and two thirds of the number were citizens of Crookston.

What a differance now! One of the most prosperous cities in the state. the county less than half as large as then, and has a population of almost 35,000 In the past twenty years Polk county and Crookston have made long strides in the matter of population, and in another score of years will no doubt more than double the present population.—Crookston Times.

The conspirators win and the people be d——. The Sherman silver law was unconditionally repealed on Oct. 30th, by a vote in the senate of 43 to 32, and wheat immediately dropped four cents! When the conspiracy is perfected and there is no money except gold—which is the ultimate aim of the conspirators there will be no market price for wheat or any other farm produce, This state of things is coming right along. It is on the program. Falsehood, treason, and bribery have carried out every feature of the program so far and will perfect it unless the people confront them in solid phalanx.—Marshall County Leader.

The Benson Times calmly tells of an old English farmer living over the Pope county line, who has a large family of children with the following names: Very, Myrtle, Pails, Ever Notso, Olive, Bottle, Pea, Rather and Awful. When the fact is added that the farmer's name is Green the humor becomes more pronounced, except to the unfortunate offspring.

An unknown man was found dead near the outskirts of a small North Dakota town a few days ago. A search disclosed $100 in cash and a revolver. It was a case of suicide for he left a short obituary notice with a request that it be published in a local newspaper, The coroner held an inquest and took $75 to defray expenses and bury the body. The police judge heard of it and fined the corpse $25 for carrying concealed weapons and confiscated the gun. The local newspaper as usual gets nothing for publishing the obituar —Moorhead News.

The pine land investigation will prove beyond the shadow of doubt—beyond a probable, reasonable shadow of doubt—that there never was any pine timber stolen in Minnesota. There may have been a few trees swiped off by hunters and farmers, but the so-called lumber kings have never stolen so much as a cedar post. If you want to completely exonerate public men from the imputatation of theft and rascality, just order an investigation; that does it every time. By the way since some of these Minneapolis highmuckamucks are clensing their public garments in the pond of investigtion would it not be well for them to ask the next legislature to order an investigation into the affairs of the Northwestern Guarantee Loan Company? It would be a consolation to thousands of people to know there never was a cent stolen there; but the chances are that nothing but a legislative investigation can demonstrate it.—Midway News,

LEARNING TO RIDE.

Millie and Tillie Have a Little Seance With the Wheel.

Millie—Oh, dear! I'm sure I shall never learn to ride this horrid old thing.

Tillie—Pshaw! It's easy enough. Just watch me.

She starts off with a great flourish, but half way around the track collides with another rider.

Millie (with the faintest suspicion of satisfaction in her tones)—Why, I could do as well as that myself.

Tillie (rather testily)—Well, you needn't act as if you were glad that I fell.

She goes off with a defiant toss of the head.

Enter riding master.

Professor Spokes—Now, Miss Giddy, I'll show you how to mount.

He jumps on machine in true mannish fashion.

Millie—Oh, professor, I don't have to get on that way, do I?

Professor S. (who recollects that he isn't teaching a man)—Of course there is another way you may mount, like this.

And on he jumps in the only way that young girls should.

Millie—I think I could do it now. Let me try, please.

She does try, with the result that the professor is obliged to hold her on with one hand, while he steers the machine with the other. Millie retires gracefully and makes a firm resolution "never to try again."

Enter Tillie once more.

Tillie—You are not angry with me, are you, Millie?

Millie—Of course not. Let's go out and have some ice cream.

Tillie—All right. But say, Millie, you did take an awful tumble that time, didn't you?

Millie—I do wish, dear, that you wouldn't refer to that again. Besides, you know that you were as clumsy as I.

Tillie—I was no such thing. How can you talk that way? The professor says that of all the girls in the school I learn most quickly——

Millie—To fall. I know that.

Tillie—Oh, you mean thing, I don't see how I could ever have liked you! You're just as——

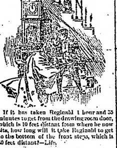
Millie—As good as you are any day. I'll not walk another——

Tillie—Step with me. I'll not let you! So there, you——

Millie and Tillie—Horrid thing, you!

And they part, only to meet next day at the riding school, and after a few falls become convinced that each is as poor a rider as the other.—Truth.

A Problem.



If it has taken Reginald 1 hour and 35 minutes to get from the drawing room door, which is 10 feet distant from where he now sits, how long will it take Reginald to get to the bottom of the front steps, which is 50 feet distant?—Life.

Johnny's Idea of It.

The celebrated Signora Howlinski was in the middle of her solo when little Johnny Fizzletop, referring to the conductor of the orchestra, asked, "Why does that man hit at the woman with his stick?"

"He is not hitting at her. Keep quiet."

"Well, then, what does she holler so for?"—Yankee Blade.

Rough on Mrs. Vanasstorbilk.

Mrs. Shoddy (to servant)—How could you be so careless as to spill the soup all over Mrs. Vanasstorbilk's dress at dinner yesterday?

Servant—Nobody was saying anything mum, and I thought I'd try to start the conversation.—Texas Siftings.

Knew All About It.

Willis—You have my sympathy, Wallace.

Wallace—What's up now?

Willis—I saw your wife go into an auction room today.—Truth.

Not His Fault.

"I gave you 10 cents before I stepped into that store."

Blind Beggar—Well, you see, your new hat changes you so I didn't know you.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

An Account of a Wedding.

(With Comments.)

"The bride was a vision of loveliness."
Stuff and nonsense! They mean her dress—
That was a dream of rare old lace—
But, Julius Cæsar—her form and face!

"She looked like a queen!" I'll concede her that,
For it's true that most of our queens are fat.
"Accomplished and gifted!" What twaddle! what talk!
She can thrum a few bars, but her singing's a shock.

"The groom was a Lochinvar, gallant to see!"
Poor dude! and to think he was scared as could be!
"His deep adoration shone forth from his eyes!"
Tut! tut! tut! tut! what a bundle of lies!

Why, every one knows, and the bride does herself,
He married her just for her surplus of pelf.
And, as far as love is concerned, we're aware
He was desperately "gone" on her sweet cousin Clare.

But Clare had no coupons to cut, and her health
And her beauty and brilliancy were all of her wealth.
So her swain impecunious beat a retreat
And hurried to kneel at the golden calf's feet!

"The ladies were all in most ravishing gowns!"
Well, some of them were, but the Burtons and Browns,
The old fashioned cousins and aunts of the bride,
Looked so queer that I thought they would surely be guyed!

"The presents were endless. No bride of the season Received half as many!" A very good reason,
Dozens of articles there were just hired
To grace the occasion! Such frauds make me tired!

Here's a list of the guests, "the favored four hundred!"
That wretched reporter! Just see how he blundered!
He's forgotten completely to mention my name.
The account of the wedding is awfully tame!
—Susie M. Best in Chicago Tribune.

Some Difference.

Even doctors must have recreation, and perhaps a certain physician at a summer resort, whose servant recently made a somewhat queer response to a caller, was humanly right in the orders he had given her. Some one called at the doctor's cottage in the evening and began a speech to the servant:

"I want the doctor to come over right off"——

"He can't do it!" the servant answered. "He left orders that he was so busy that unless it was absolutely a matter of life and death he couldn't go out at all this evening."

"But," said the caller, "it isn't sickness at all."

"What?"

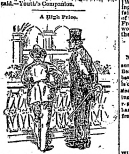
"We want him to come over and take a hand in a game of whist."

"Oh, that's different. You're Mr. Brown, ain't you?"

The servant disappeared and reappeared a moment later.

"The doctor says he'll be right over," she said.—Youth's Companion.

A High Price.



Grane Pitt—This is the Stock Exchange, uncle. The seats here sometimes sell for as high as $20,000.

Uncle Silas—Twenty thousand dollars fer a seat! Phew! Them fellers down there 'pears to have some sense. Most of 'em are standing up.—Puck.

Where She Lived.

A lady and gentleman who were "doing" the fair sat down to luncheon in the Swedish cafe, where the waiters are supposed to be direct importations from the land of the Swedish nightingale. At least they are dressed in the costume of the peasant of that country.

Rye bread and cheese and beer was the order given, for these two people were doing the fair as they found it. They were waiting for their luncheon, and the woman talked of the beauty of the girl who had gone for it. She wondered if that girl ever saw or ever heard Christine Nilsson and a lot of other things. The man suggested that his companion might ask the girl and thereby pick up a story.

"But she probably cannot speak English. She is not long from her fatherland, poor thing, and I don't like to embarrass a waiter."

"You might try," said the man.

So when the order was served the lady, looking at the waiter, who, by the way, was a brunette, said: "I thought Swedish girls were blond. Is it not so?"

"Most of them are," was the quick reply in good English.

Encouraged, the lady continued, "Tell me, my good girl, how long have you been away from your native country?"

"About nine years."

The lady, somewhat cooled, "Nine years from Sweden?"

"Sweden? Who said I was from Sweden?"

"Then where is your home?"

"Milwaukee avenue. Sixty cents, please" (to the gentleman).

And the lady vowed that she would not indulge in any more musings over the foreigners at the fair.—Chicago Tribune.

A Nice Distinction.

Tourist—I notice you charge different prices for seats in your omnibus. How is that?

Omnibus Driver—It's this way. When we get to a hill, the first class passengers may keep their seats, the second class passengers must get out, and the third class passengers must shove behind.—Fliegende Blaetter.

Must Have Looked Bad.

"What's the matter with your dog?"

"He was in a fight last week and doesn't seem to recover from the chawing up he got. He looks bad, doesn't he?"

"Bad! Why, you would think somebody had been trying a new comic opera on him."—New York Press.

Worth Just Double.

Young Midway (who has been to see Galla-Galla in Cairo street)—Oh, I say, old man, I know a good trick! Have you got a half dollar?

Old Plaisance (interrupting)—Bah! I know a trick worth two of that. Have you a dollar?—Figaro.

And Trouble Eventually Followed.

Neighbor's Boy—Your mamma must be mighty strong.

The Other Boy—How'd you know whether she is or not?

Neighbor's Boy—I heard my mamma say she b'lieved she was a shoplifter.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Poetic Soul.

"Beautiful!" answered the fair Pittsburg girl when asked whether the World's fair was attractive. "Beautiful! Well, I should say it is. The buildings look as if they were carved out of solid ice cream."—Chicago Record.

Didn't Disturb Him.

Figg—I was at your church last Sunday. There was a very small congregation.

Fogg—Yes, but Mr. Boreas doesn't mind it a particle. He finds it so easy to fill the house with his voice, you know.—Exchange.

Not Left In Doubt.

Neighbor—I hear your father intends to put up a new house. Who is his builder?

Boy—What's that?

"Why, the—er—one who bosses the job."

"Oh! Why, ma, of course."—Good News.

Great Luck.

Sellem Hucahn—You say he is lucky at poker, eh?

Arizona Abe—Lucky! Why, pardner, he held five aces once and only got shot in the leg!—Truth.

Not Very Hard.

He (indignantly)—I hope I know my own mind!

She (sweetly)—Yes, you surely ought to know as much as that.—Boston Transcript.

A Slight Delay.

Mrs. von Blumer—Dear, can I order me a new gown today?

Von Blumer—I'll let you know this afternoon.

Mrs. von Blumer—You said you wouldn't be home this afternoon.

Von Blumer—No. But I'll telegraph you from the race track.—Cloak Review.

He Did His Best.

Mother—Horrors! How did you tear your clothes so?

Small Boy—Tryin to get over a barbed wire fence without tearin 'em.—Good News.

The Grand Central Railroad Station Chicago.

Is being fitted up for hotel purposes during the world's fair. This magnificent fire-proof structure, located at the corner of Harrison street and 5th avenue, in the very heart of the city, will devote the 3rd, 4th and 5th floors to this purpose. It will be run on the European plan. Each room will have hot and cold water, electric lights and be steam heated. The office and ladies parlors etc. will be located on the 3rd floor and the building will be supplied with all modern conveniences. There will be from 100 to 200 rooms for guests.

This acquisition to the hotel facilities of Chicago will be appreciated by those who wish to be safely housed in a fire-proof building, conveniently located in the city elf.

Those desiring accommodations can secure them by addressing Mr. T. C. Clifford, the manager, at Chicago Ill. The hotel will be opened May 15th 1893.

The Grand Central Station is the Chicago depot of the Northern Pacific railroad, [Wisconsin Central division] and by taking this through car line to the world's fair city, visitors will avoid the discomfort of transfer through the city.

From this station trains run direct to the world's fair grounds at intervals during the day.

VISITORS TO THE TWIN CITIES.

No one should visit the Twin Cities this summer without running out to Minnetonka Beach and Hotel Lafayette, the largest and best located resort house in the west. The lake is one of the most picturesque in the country and is well supplied with steamers and sailing rowing and fishing craft. A number of regattas will be given. The Great Northern has a double track line to the lake and runs frequent trains.

MINNESOTA STATE NORMAL SCHOOLS

WINONA, MANKATO, ST. CLOUD AND MOORHEAD.

These schools are organized for the training of teachers for the common schools of the state.

ORGANIZATION.—Each school comprises two departments—the normal department and the training department or Model School

The Normal department embraces;

A LARGE DROP IN RATES TO THE WEST

The Great Northern inaugurated its new train service to the Pacific Coast on the 6th inst. With sweeping reductions in rates, amounting to 40 percent in many cases. The rate From St. Paul and Minneapolis to Puget Sound was reduced First class from $60.00 to to Spokane from $56 to $30; and to Helena and Butte from $40 to $25, with corresponding reductions on second-class tickets both through rates applying proportionately to intermediate points. It is the purpose of the Great Northern to make rates to help the development of its territory. It is much the shortest line across the continent, was built on business principles, and at a cost of about one half of that of the older trans-continental lines, and is therefore prepared to correspondingly well by its territory and patrons in rates and accommodations.

Last summer I was attacked with a bad case of flux, and after taking four doses of Beggs' Diarrhoea Balsam was immediately relieved and cured. I have sold it for the past six months and must say that it gives general satisfaction.— W. Smith, M. D. Puxico, Mo. For sale by J. L. Johnson, Druggest.

27 Per Cent. Stronger.

The amusing advertisement of a rival Baking Powder, claiming that "it is 27 per cent. stronger than any other," must refer to its smell (as it is a well known ammonia powder).

Its superiority over every other can be clearly shown by any fairly conducted competitive test, whether made in the laboratory or kitchen.

ONE ON THE DRUMMER.

He Made a Bet With the Baggageman and Had to Weaken.

"We had some fun last wee," said the drummer to the hotel clerk Saturday night, after he had taken his supper and his week's work was done, says the Free Press.

"Go on," suggested the clerk, encouragingly.

"It was up at a station on the Flint & Pere Marquette railroad, where there is a saw mill and a store or two, and timber is plenty. There were three or four of us, one of the party, a young Chicago drummer, who was as fresh as Lake Michigan. He was jollying everybody, as we were waiting for a delayed train, and at last he tackled the man who checked the baggage.

"'I say,' he said to him, with a wink at the rest of us, 'can I get a trunk checked here for Detroit?'

"'Certainly, if you've got a ticket.'

"'That's all right; I've got the ticket; but checking the trunk is what bothers me.'

"'Don't worry about that, mister,' said the simple-minded baggageman. 'I can check any sort of trunk you've got.'

"'This is such a trunk as I never saw checked,' explained the Chicago fresh.

"'Bring on your trunk; I'll fix it,' insisted the baggageman.

"'I'll bet you $5 you won't do it,' bluffed the Chicago man.

"The baggageman replied by taking out a fiver and putting it in my hands, and Chicago came up smiling and put his there, too.

"'Wait,' he said to the baggageman, with another wink at me, 'till I go back to the hotel and get it.'

"Then he disappeared, and in about ten minutes he pulled up alongside of the platform with a team of cattle dragging the trunk of a tree about twenty-five feet long and two feet in diameter at its smallest girth.

"'Here you are,' shouted the Chicago man, with a big laugh of triumph; 'bring on your check. This is my trunk.'

"I thought, and so did the rest of us, that Chicago had the countryman, and he looked at himself at first, for there was no use talking, he could never get that thing into the car; but he got his second wind in a moment.

"'All right,' he said, smiling at the drummer. Then to the man with the team: 'Haul it over onto them hay scales, Bill, and weigh it.'

"'What's that for?' asked the drummer, without a wink at any of us.

"'Got to see how much it weighs,' said the baggageman quietly. 'Lowin' you your 150 pounds, I should say there was about 3,000 pounds extra baggage in that trunk, and it'll cost you something over $500 to git it to Detroit. Hurry up, Bill,' he called to the driver, 'the train'll be along in ten minutes.'

"But Bill didn't hurry. The Chicago man paid him half a dollar for his trouble, yielded up his V to the green and guileless baggageman, and didn't have anything more to say to anybody."

A Difficult Question.

"They say a giraffe sells for $5,000.

"That's a good deal of money for a giraffe. How much is that a yard on the average?"

ABOVE ALL OTHERS, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the medicine for the blood. You'll be willing to believe this, perhaps, if you think of the way it's sold to you. On trial—that' what it amounts to. In any case where it fails to benefit or cure, your money is returned. With any doubtful or ordinary medicine, this couldn't be done. And it isn't done, except with the "Discovery."

In every disease caused by a torpid liver or impure blood, this medicine will certainly cure. For the most stubborn Skin and Scalp Diseases; the worst forms of Scrofula, even Consumption (or Lung-scrofula) in its earlier stages; and for Dyspepsia, "Liver Complaint," and every kindred ailment, nothing approaches it as a remedy.

Nothing else, at any price, is really as cheap. You pay only for the good you get.

It's more than mere relief—it's a perfect and permanent cure, that you get with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. The proprietors offer $500 reward for any incurable case of Catarrh.

How an English Railway Company Treats Its Employes.

In a description of the Stratford works of the Great Eastern Railway company, England, some interesting details are given of the solicitude extended towards the employes of the company. There is an accident fund, to which all the employes subscribe; a pension fund, a savings bank (optional), and a contagious disease fund. The institution of the three first funds is due to the chairman of the company; the last is a workmen's movement entirely, and an excellent one, as it only prevents the deprivation of the members' means of support when most needed, but by removing the risk involved by attending their duties when disease is in their homes, prevents the spread of infection among their shopmates. The company generously covers every subscription to the accident fund and pension fund with an equal amount, allows 4 per cent interest on savings bank deposits, and supports a science and art institute and technical school near the works, which has a library upward of 7,000 volumes. Other privileges are granted by the company to their employes, every one of whom, besides having the right to travel once a week, with any members of his family residing with and dependent upon him, to any point on the system at a fare of 1-2c a mile, has three days' holiday per annum, with pay and free passes anywhere on the company's lines for himself, wife and members of his family under the age of fourteen.

The Best Hospitality.

Hospitality shares what it has. It does not attempt to give what it has not. The finest hospitality, it has been said, is that which welcomes you to the fireside and permits you to look upon the picture of a home life so little disturbed by your coming that you are at once made to feel yourself a part of the little symphony—the rare bit of color just needed to complete the harmonic combination. With this flattering fact impressed upon your memory you will hardly be able to recall the material adjuncts of the occasion. It is a sign of a gross nature to measure hospitality by the loaves and fishes, forgetting the miracle that goes with them. And it is equally a mistake for a host to be afraid to offer humble entertainments when richer offers are beyond his means. To a refined perception, "the life is more than the meat," and the personality of the host, not the condition of the larder, decides whether or not it is an honor to be his guest. Delightful though it be to be able to afford one's guest a rare and beautiful entertainment, one must dismiss the idea that a graceful and acceptable hospitality depends on material things. Sir Launfal, sharing his crust with the beggar at the gate, was still Sir Launfal. The impoverished hostess may preside at her frugal board with the spirit and the manner of a queen, whereas the coarse-fibered vulgarian vainly heaps his platters with choicest game and rarest fruit, the while he serves the banquet like the churl that he is.—Philadelphia Times.

Why a Wife Changes Her Name.

It is said that the practice of the wife assuming the husband's name at marriage originated from a Roman custom and became the common custom after the Roman occupation. Thus Julia and Octavia, married to Pompey and Cicero, were called by the Romans Julia of Pompey and Octavia of Cicero, and in later times married women in most European countries signed their names in the same manner, but omitted the "of." Against this view may be mentioned that during the sixteenth and even the beginning of the seventeenth century the usage seems doubtful, since we find Catherine Parr so signing herself after she had been twice married, and we always hear of Lady Jane Grey (not Dudley) and Arabella Stuart (not Seymour). Some persons think that the custom originated from the Scriptural teaching that husband and wife are one. It was decided in the case of Bon vs. Smith, in the reign of Elizabeth, that a woman by marriage loses her former name and legally receives the name of her husband.—Philadelphia Times.

Female Consistency.

"I consider it a burning shame," remarked a lady, "that the over-worked shopmen of this city are not allowed a half holiday on Saturday."

"I see that Cutts & Co., the drapers, close at noon," said another lady.

"I know they do. I went down there last Saturday afternoon and found the place closed. I was too provoked for anything."

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

THE STOLEN BRIDE

"The kirk was lit at even-tide;
The taper glimmered fayre;
And groom and priest await the bride,
And dame and knight were there.
They sought her baith in ha' and tower;
The ladye was not seen;
She's o'er the border and awa'
Wi' Jock o' Hazeldean."

Everything was ready for Erminie Yorke's bridal.

There on the dainty bed in her pretty chamber, was the dress of glistening white satin, the long, wide veil of snowy tulle, as fine as cobweb, the orange wreath and bouquet and all the details of a perfect toilet.

In the parlor below the guests had assembled, the clergyman had arrived and the groom was waiting with unconcealed impatience for the coming of his bride.

"Let some one go and hurry her up a bit," said her father.

It was the mother who went to her chamber.

The maid-of-honor, pale with fear, met her at the door. Inside, the bride's maids were huddled together like frightened doves.

The bride was not there, and none of them knew where she was.

An hour before, when they first came to the house, she had started down to the conservatory, and they had been waiting expectantly for her ever since.

One of them had been down to the conservatory, but she was not there.

Where, then, was the loved, the loving, the happy bride?

They searched the house from cellar to garret, but no trace of the lost one was discovered.

There was no great carved chest she could have hidden herself like Lord Lovel's fated bride.

It was not likely she had left the house, for the rain had been pouring down in floods for the last forty minutes, with flashes of blinding lightning, and with deafening thunder peals.

Where, then, could their darling be?

Moment after moment elapsed, but there was no answer to that agonized question.

Had the earth opened and swallowed her up in its deepest depths, she could not have vanished more utterly.

One by one the guests departed; the clergyman went home, and the bridemaids followed the others.

The groom, Duncan Trevlyn, remained the long night through with the stricken parents.

Three days passed by, and still the mystery was unsolved.

There were plenty of guesses and suppositions, as there always are in such or similar cases.

And one of these was that she had fled with another and a more recent lover.

Somebody had heard that somebody else had seen her in the company of such a young fellow the evening after she so strangely disappeared.

It was only a rumor, emanating no doubt from some person who had been an enemy of the lovely girl; but there were enough ready to believe it.

So many people are always ready to believe evil of another, and not a few had rather believe bad than good!

But this cruel rumor was totally discredited among those who had known Erminie Yorke best, and who had loved her most.

And it would have scarcely been safe for anybody to repeat it in the presence of Duncan Trevlyn.

He was far too noble himself, and too loyal-hearted, to ever imagine ill of the fair girl whom he had chosen as his wife.

"My darling is dead," was what he said, and what he thought.

The dead and the missing are soon forgotten.

At the end of three days the unknown fate of the missing bride was no longer discussed in the club rooms and at the afternoon teas. She was hardly remembered more, except by those who had been her nearest and dearest.

Later sensations had crowded her from the memory and the gossip of the villagers.

The newest topic of engrossing interest was a supernatural apparition which haunted a certain deserted mansion of the place.

It is clothed in a long, white garment like a shroud. Its face is ghostly pale; and its hair is like the yellow shimmer of a harvest moon. It sings and shrieks, and laughs and sobs, and raves and prays, all the night through," was the description of it written by the poetic reporter of the local paper.

"Nonsense!" exclaimed one of the villagers. "Somebody always starts a blood-curdling ghost story about every house which has been unoccupied for a few years, more especially if the last tenant has been an eccentric and miserly recluse, as old Nate Camerole was."

"You're about right there," said Duncan Trevlyn. "And there have already been a dozen tales of the kind told about the Camerole house during the half a dozen years since old Nate's death."

"Trevlyn doesn't believe anything he hears, and only half he sees," sneered another—a big, angular, ungainly young man, with the lean, hungry visage and the little, closely-set eyes of a fox.

He had been a scorned, but importunate suitor of beautiful Erminie Yorke, and it was he who originated the report of her flight with the new lover. His knowing smiles, and meaning shrugs, and cunning insinuations, had proclaimed far more than any distinct assertion of his coward lips.

Duncan Trevlyn knew this—or, at least, he suspected it very strongly.

"There would be no occasion for unbelief if there were no evil-minded persons to coin and circulate falsehoods," Trevlyn retorted hotly.

A malicious smile glittered in Horace Vincent's crafty, fox-like eyes.

"Oh, we all understand that," he drawled with an insolent shrug. "Of course it's pleasanter to accuse somebody of falsehood than it is to believe anything which hurts one's vanity. A fellow would rather say almost anything than admit that his sweetheart has jilted him and run off with another."

The insulting words had scarcely passed his lips before Duncan Trevlyn had seized him by the collar and was shaking him as a terrier shakes a rat.

"You currish wretch! if you ever dare utter such a foul lie again of my darling I will kill you!" the indignant young fellow cried in a terrible voice.

"I—I—was only joking. Don't be so hard on me, Duncan—I didn't mean anything," the coward stammered.

Trevlyn released him.

But as he slunk away the young man detected a menacing glare in his crafty eyes and a clinched hand threatening vengeance.

"He's a villain, quite capable of an assassin's midnight stab in the back, and I will be on my guard against him," Duncan thought as he started homeward.

During those last few days of torture the bereaved lover had even sought the places which were most associated with the sweet love-dream now over and done forever—the pleasant paths where he had walked with his lost one—the bower by the river where his darling had promised to be his bride—the long bridle-road along the shadowy bank where they had often ridden together.

How well he remembered one wild gallop in the early days of their love, when he and his darling had raced for kisses.

He won the race, and his saucy goddess gave him the kisses—but they were manufactured by the confectioner, composed of sugar colored green and spiced with cayenne pepper.

How hurt and angry he was!—what a ridiculous quarrel they had!—and how sweet was the making up!

Alas! those happy days were over.

And where was she, his idol, his pride, the dearer half of his own soul?

Busy with his own sad thoughts, Trevlyn unconsciously turned into the road which passed the old Camerole mansion, while less than a stone's throw beyond the pretty Yorke cottage loomed through its surrounding elms and maples.

It was late in the evening.

The sky was black with lowering clouds, and a faint, chill wind made a sort of Aeolian music to the night.

In the black obscurity of the old Camerole mansion looked peculiarly forbidding and unread; like a spectral shadow rather than an actual building of solid stone!

It was a square structure of two stories, with a steep gable roof which had a tall chimney at each end.

Its eaves projected in a quaint fashion, and its ancient-looking windows were set with small diamond-shaped panes of glass.

The sides of the building were not alike in height; and the lower side fronted the road with a large and many columned porch in the center.

Trevlyn was passing the old mansion without a glance when he was startled by the most unearthly and diabolical yell he ever heard.

He could compare it to nothing but that of an infuriated hyena.

As he stopped and stared at the building, he saw it appeared to be filled with a wierd, dull light like that caused by the flickering of blue flame.

At the instant he was too much amazed to wonder what might have produced such an extraordinary manifestation.

Before he could collect his thoughts, a white-shrouded shape appeared at the quaint double window above the porch.

But it was no girlish figure with a lovely spiritual face and floating hair like netted moonshine, as the poetical paragraph of the local paper had described it.

It was of more than man's ordinary stature; while the broad shoulders and the length of the extended arm were distinctly masculine. Its face was hidden.

Trevlyn had barely noted this, when the mysterious dull light suddenly glowed with a brilliancy which almost blinded his sight. The dazzling, bluish glow seemed to concentrate itself around the ghostly shape, and in that blinding and fiery glare the figure seemed to rise and float away.

As it disappeared there was a second diabolical scream, louder and more unearthly than the first. Then the entire building echoed with moans and laughter, with strange gibberings, and with singular noises like the clanking of chains, with rumbling and groans and rattlings, making altogether a demoniacal discord more deafening and grewsome than anything evr described or imagined.

Duncan Trevlyn stared and listened, fascinated, yet hardly crediting his own senses.

But all at once the discord ended in a hoarse outcry as if of mortal affright. The strange, dazzling blue light was abruptly extinguished. The silence and darkness of a sepulcher settled upon everything.

Young Trevlyn felt none of the terror which a superstitious person would have experienced. But he was mystified as any one would have been.

"Perhaps the old house is used as a place of deposit for stolen goods," he thought; "and these ghostly noises and lights, and the phantom figure, were devised so people would shun the premises. I have heard of such things being done for that purpose."

The thought had scarcely flitted through his brain when the front door within the porch was suddenly opened with precipitate violence, and a man bounded forth as if pursued by demons.

At every headlong leap he glanced fearfully behind him, shouting in terror and gesticulating like a frenzied maniac. Behind him trailed a large white sheet, which had become entangled in some way with his clothing.

As he neared the gate, Trevlyn beheld the ungainly figure and crafty visage of Horace Vincent.

"They are chasing me with ropes to hang me! They say I killed her. Fools! I loved her. I shut her up because she would have been stolen from me had I left her with my foes," he mumbled.

A fearful thought darted through Trevlyn's brain.

"Who did you shut up? Who is dead? What's the matter with you, Vincent?" he demanded as he seized the other by one shoulder.

With a howl of terror Vincent wrenched himself loose and fled, and Trevlyn knew then that the man was actually a maniac.

"It was my darling he loved," the young fellow thought. "Can it be possible that my Erminie has been his captive in this house? And dead—oh, heaven! is my beloved dead?"

In a few seconds he reached the pretty cottage among the elms and maples, and aroused Erminie's parents. And in a few more moments the excited party were exploring the old Camerole mansion with the lights they had brought with them.

The lost bride was found in a garret room, which had been transformed into the securest kind of a prison by the mad captor of the unhappy girl. It had no doubt been arranged for many days before she had been locked within its walls.

She was not dead, she had only swooned, but the swoon was so like death, that it was no wonder the mad Vincent really believed her spirit had departed.

When she recovered her senses she was in her lover's tender arms, and tears wrung from a strong man by the might of his love and gratitude, were dropping warm on her pale, beloved face.

"My greatest anxiety was for you, dear," she said to him. "I dreaded what you would think of my strange disappearance."

"I knew you never went from me willingly, beloved," he replied, with passionate intensity. "I knew that only death could keep you from me if you were free. I believed in your loyalty, my sweetest, as I believed in my own existence. There is no change possible to true love like ours."

On that fateful day, when the stolen bride went down to the conservatory, she had desired a few moments reflection by herself.

Some one approached the conservatory, and then she slipped outside and went down the path to the little grove which separated her home from the Camerole mansion.

A cry, like that of some person in distress, lured her to the edge of the grove, when her mad suitor caught her in his arms and carried her bodily to the prison he had ready for her.

He had supplied her with food, and had treated her kindly, only he would not release her unless she became his wife.

He had acted the ghost in his crazy cunning to frighten people away from the place.

He was afterward placed in an asylum for the insane, a hopeless, dangerous maniac.

Duncan Trevlyn and his recovered bride were happily wedded shortly after the events just recorded.

AN EXACTING CRITIC.

She Knew the Kind of a Picture She Wanted.

"Appearances are often deceptive," said Theophilus Greathead as he settled himself comfortably in his chair and lighted a fresh cigar. "I have lived much as other men have, and pride myself on being an exceedingly keen observer. I must admit, however, that there are times when I make most serious errors in judging persons and things," says the New York Tribune.

"I was in a large art room the other day, when a young woman of most distinguished appearance entered. She had come to the place in a handsome equipage, and a footman had accompanied her as far as the door of the establishment.

"Her maid followed at a respectful distance. There was such an air of noblesse oblige, admixed even with hauteur, about the young woman that I at once felt that I was in the presence of a person of most aristocratic pretensions.

"Involuntarily I rearranged my necktie, adjusted my coat, and took a survey of myself in a convenient mirror.

"The majestic creature seemed greatly interested in the works of art about her, which she surveyed through her lorgnette in the most critical manner. There was a frown upon her aristocratic features.

"'Ah,' I said to myself, 'here is a young woman who has so high an ideal of the great in art that the splendid paintings here seem to her to be but mere tawdry.'

"The superb woman turned, and, stamping her foot petulantly, said to the proprietor:

"'Them's all very fine, but I wants a oblong picture!'"

LORD DUNRAVEN.

His Political Life as Shown by Parliamentary Record.

Lord Dunraven took his seat in the house of lords as a supporter of Mr. Gladstone, who subsequently offered him a minor post in the government. But at that time the young traveler took but little part in politics, and so declined the flattering invitation. His real entry into public life and, in fact, the foundation of his subsequent career as a politician are due to a newspaper article which he wrote on Mr. Gladstone's famous attack on Lord Beaconsfield. The article obtained much attention at the time and attracted the notice of the Conservative chief, who was much struck at the clever criticism of the young Liberal peer. An acquaintance sprang up between Lord Beaconsfield and the writer which later on ripened into friendship, and probably had something to do with Lord Dunraven joining the Conservative party.

His early speeches were chiefly on foreign policy and the intimate knowledge he showed respecting treaties of all kinds was an additional link between him and the leader of his new party. His favorite theme was Egypt, and he rarely missed an opportunity of condemning Mr. Gladstone's policy in respect to that country. Later on he interested himself more especially in colonial affairs. Here his personal acquaintance with the North American colonies stood him in good stead, and gained him the ear of the house of lords. Thus it was scarcely surprising that when Lord Salisbury came into office he chose him as under secretary of state for the colonies, a post he again filled on the return of the Conservatives in power in 1886.—McClure's Magazine.

Excellence of American Horses.

Probably more and better horses are owned in America per thousand of population than in any other country, and the farmer or corner groceryman, at least in the North and West, can and does afford to keep as good a roadster as the city nabob—often a better one. While the average horse lacks the distinctive characteristics of race, he has exceptionally good qualities. American horses are, as a rule, sure-footed. There are more broken-kneed nags in cabs and livery stables in England fourfold than here. Smooth roads and level meadows uniformly breed horses less careful how they tread than rough roads and stony pastures. The Eastern granite soil produces safer steppers than the clay of the South.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Debarred.

The daughter of the forest wept.

She was civilized and wore shoes that made her back ache, and yet she was not happy.

"After all," she murmured, "I cannot move in the best society."

A big tear welled from her eye and splashed off the end of her nose.

"To be sure——"

She clasped her hands and gazed bitterly into space.

"I am as good as the other girls in many ways. I smoke cigarettes and drink champagne, but——"

A look of settled despair invested her countenance.

"I can't trace my family history further back than my grandmother."

Her heart was sore and the burden of life seemed terribly heavy.—Detroit Tribune.

Oratory Is Out of Date in England.

Oratory is no doubt a tradition of the house of commons. What are we to say about it? In America you seem still to love talk for its own sake. I told that in the States grown men and women really enjoy sitting still and being talked to in a loud voice. You love to hear the rolling sentence and the lofty and familiar sentiment. We don't. It cannot be denied that even common juries dislike what a few decades ago would have been considered very passable eloquence. It is daily growing upon us, this dislike of being talked to in a lofty vein—or, indeed, in any vein.—From "The House of Commons," by Augustine Birrell, in Scribner's Magazine.

Modjeska's Little Trick.

Mme. Modjeska, the actress, is a bright woman who doesn't hesitate to play practical jokes in an innocent and justifiable way. She was recently a visitor at a mansion, says the Louisville Times, and was asked for a brief recitation. But, though she racked her brain, nothing apropos recurred to her, and finally she begged to be let off with a short selection in her native language. The suggestion was applauded, and madame began. Although her listeners could not understand her words, her gestures and some thrilling tones held them enchanted until the final syllable, when she was overwhelmed with plaudits. As she was preparing to depart her hostess asked her for the title of the selection she had given, and much to her surprise madame went into a small-sized paroxysm of laughter. "I am sorry to deceive you," she said, smilingly, "but my recitation hasn't any name. My memory failed so badly that as a last resort I recited the numbers from one to two hundred and thirty in Polish."

The East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia railroad strike has been settled, the road agreeing to restore wages Feb. 1.

After long discussion the Methodist committee on church extension voted $7,000 to the Japanese mission in San Francisco.

Refused One-Half Million.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—The makers of No-To-Bac, the guaranteed tobacco habit cure, lately refused a syndicate offer of one-half million for their business. No-To-Bac is an absolute guaranteed cure for chewing, snuff-dipping and cigarette smoking. It is sold by nearly all the druggists in this country and Canada. Made by the Sterling Remedy company, box 15, Indiana Mineral Springs, Ind. Chicago office, 45 Randolph street. They print a book called "Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away." Every tobacco user should read it, and they mail it for the asking.

AROUND A GREAT STATE

INTERESTING EVENTS OF THE WEEK IN MINNESOTA.

Important Occurrences in the North Star State Day by Day—A General Resume of the Week's Doings Arranged for Rapid Reading.

Monday, Nov. 6.

Julia Uhlmeier, a domestic, commits suicide at St. Paul.

A report from Lester Prairie says that a farmer living in Carver county killed two burglars and wounded another with a shotgun.

Miller's saw mill, located sixteen miles up the Mississippi river from Brainerd, and owned by A. W. Miller and M. Hagberg, burned. Loss, $5,000; no insurance.

A case of smallpox has just developed in Featherstone. A boy named Elmer Rogers was taken down with the disease. He had just returned from the East, and was probably exposed en route.

Frank Porter, a well known quarterbreed was in Tower, and stated he had found coal near Lake Kaboogama. "I do not mean float," he said, "but a well defined vein, which I have traced a distance of 200 feet, and which, even near the surface, has a width of about eight feet. I have taken steps to acquire title and I claim the distinction of being the first to locate a coal vein in the Rainy river country."

Tuesday, Nov. 7.

The Minnesota Iron company's mines at Tower have resumed operations.

Le Vin Peterson, eighteen years old, living at Blanchard, N. D., got into a game of cards in a saloon at Minneapolis and claims to have been "done up" for $76.

The Van Dusen elevator at Redwood Falls burned to the ground. Indications point to incendiaryism. The loss on the building is $4,000. The elevator contained near 15,000 bushels of wheat, 4,000 bushels of flax, 1,000 bushels of oats and 250 tons of hard and soft coal on which there is but little salvage.

Frank E. Burns, a brakeman on the Eastern Minnesota, walked off a car in the Rice's Point yards at Duluth and had his head severed completely from his body. He was twenty-three years of age and single. His parents live at Green Bay, Wis.

Wednesday, Nov. 8.

Joseph White and Charles Fisher are identified by Mathias Valck as the murderers of Josef Herda at St. Paul.

Burglars entered J. P. Brandenbourger's clothing store at Hastings and carried off goods and jewelry to the value of $75.

Andrew Shook, residing at Grand Rapids, was killed while hunting near Black's ranch, by Ed Nott, a companion.

The grocery store of Stromberg & Morley at Red Wing was burglarized. The cash in the drawer, cigars, canned fish and other articles were stolen.

A young child of E. H. Klock of Windom died from the effects of a pin which it swallowed about three months ago, and which, in some manner, got into the child's lung, causing an abscess.

The barn and stock sheds of O. J. Taylor at Albert Lea burned by the tipping over of a lantern. It is a total loss. Taylor had his hands and face severely burned. Considerable amount of stock was burned.

Fire at Morristown consumed the large new barn, house and outbuildings of John Neusbaum, together with a large number of fat hogs, two horses and grain. The loss is total. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Deputy Sheriff Armstron of Duluth arrived home with J. M. Aitkin, who was arrested at Moorhead, charged by the American Express company with obtaining $71 on a money order through false pretenses. Aitkin claims the wrong man has been arrested.

William Klein of Mountain Lake started out hunting in a buggy with a loaded gun. One of the boards in the bottom of the buggy was out and the jolting of the buggy caused the gun to fall through the bottom of the buggy. Klein jumped and grabbed the gun, and, in pulling it toward him, in some manner it was discharged, the charge striking him in the breast. He lived about ten minutes.

Thursday, Nov. 9.

Gov. Nelson issues a Thanksgiving day proclamation.

The barn and granary of Fred Hampel of Elgin were destroyed by fire. The loss is about $1,000 and fully covered by insurance, carried in the Farmers' Mutual company of this place.

The barn of B. C. Huffer of Sauk Rapids burned, with three horses, two cows and the farm machinery. Loss, $1,500; no insurance. The fire is thought to have been set.

Alfred Weston, a lad eighteen years of age, son of Charles Weston of Walcott, shot and killed himself accidentally while watching for an owl that had been stealing chickens from his father's barn yard.

While on his way to market with a load of wheat Swen Swensen, one of the prominent and well-to-do farmers of Eastern township, near Fergus Falls, was thrown from his wagon and killed. He leaves a wife and one son.

A timber fire destroyed St. John's Catholic church at Foley Station near St. Cloud. Loss, $2,700, with no insurance. The fire spread rapidly over a large section of country southeast, and destroyed 50 tons of hay belonging to G. W. Williamson, 40 tons belonging to John Williams, 40 cords of maple wood belonging to M. E. Peake, 100 tons of hay owned by John Pulaski and about that much more of Foley Bros. Total loss about $5,000, with no insurance.

Friday, Nov. 10.

Adolph Gloeser, a well known labor leader, committed suicide at St. Paul.

The trial of Father Connolly, charged with criminally assaulting a girl, begins at Duluth.

George Dixon, a farmer, committed suicide by hanging while temporarily insane over a few small debts. He leaves a wife and four small children.

Mayor Bruckart of St. Cloud has signed ordinance 123, and has instructed Chief of Police Robertson to drive out or arrest all occupants of houses of ill-repute, and rid the city of their presence.

The case of A. H. Perkins vs. the La Grange Mill company of Red Wing, for $5,000 damages for injuries sustained by falling through a hole in the floor of the mill, was decided in favor of plaintiff, giving him $2,500. The case will be appealed.

Albert Nystueson, late justice of the peace at Cyrus, has departed for parts unknown. Financial difficulties were first thought to be the cause of his French leave, but it now develops that it is owing to his unhappy domestic relations. His bride of six months is now deploring his unceremonious departure.

At a special election of the Moorhead independent school district it was unanimously voted to apply to the state for a loan of $18,000 with which to pay off bonds for that amount which are now due. The bonds which will be issued to the state will bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum, which will be a saving to the district in all of about $7,000 or $8,000, as the money could not be procured from an individual for less than 7 per cent and a bonus.

Saturday, Nov. 11.

The State bank of Morgan opened with a capital stock of $25,000. Hans Mo of Sleepy Eye is president and H. M. Ball cashier.

The body of an embryo child was found buried in a field near St. Peter. Coroner Skinner found no evidence of violence to show any criminal act. It is supposed to belong to some poor family who buried it in that way to save expenses.

Fire caught at the draw piers of the Northern Pacific bridge, connecting Duluth and Superior, probably from a tug. It was extinguished with difficulty. As nearly 200 freight trains daily pass this bridge, any accident would have been serious.

Elias Gummerson, an oiler employed at the Atwood sawmill at Stillwater, was instantly killed. He was oiling the shafts underneath the band saw and in some manner became entangled in the machinery. His head was crushed. A coroner's inquest is being held.

Deputy Internal Revenue Collector Gullickson made a seizure of 250 pounds of oleomargarine that was being sold for butter at the store of Pierce & Pennoyer at Winona. Assistant Dairy Commissioner Graham had also found the material and confiscated all that had not been sold. It was offered in violation of the state law.

The results of the oleomargarine decision handed down by Judge Collins recently are already apparent. Two hundred tubs of oleomargarine shipped into the state by the Armour company were received in St. Paul. The company's agent inquired of the dairy commission what he could do with it and was advised to ship it all back, which he agreed to do.

George Dixon, a prominent farmer, was found hanging from one of the cross beams in his barn loft at Little Falls by a young boy named Reynolds, who was in the employ of Mr. Dixon. No cause has been discovered for the deed, as Dixon was in good circumstances and no domestic troubles have ever disturbed his household. He leaves a wife and four children.

Sunday, Oct. 12.

A woman and her little child were burned to death at Stanchfield.

Three examiners of Minnesota pine lands are removed by the secretary of the interior for improper conduct.

An unknown man was struck by a Great Northern passenger train seven miles south of Moorhead, and instantly killed.

Fire destroyed the barn on the farm of Rollin George, north of Pipestone. A threshing machine, four head of horses, 200 bushels of wheat and 400 bushels of oats were also destroyed.

Two men giving the names of Peter Wallace and P. J. McChristie were arrested on the charge of passing counterfeit $10 bills. They are now being held and District Attorney Hay notified.

A gang of horse thieves at Kirkhoven took one horse from J. Gransell, one from J. P. Segerstrom, a heavy lumber wagon and set of working harness from A. Djonne, and a few other articles of less importance from other parties.

Fire at Anoka destroyed the lumber yard of Hage Bros., entailing a loss of $70,000, partially covered by insurance. The fire department worked like fiends, but were only successful in confining the fire to the lumber yard. The origin is unknown.

Jonathan Pierson and Will Thannas were arrested at Anoka on the charge of abducting a little child of Eugene Herrick Burns. The child was returning from school when she was taken from her sisters. When the men arrived at Anoka they were without the child, but are to be held until it is found.

STAND ON THEIR HEAD.

Tadpoles That Have Many Wonderful Peculiarities.

The tadpole is not, perhaps, a creature which commands universal admiration; but a London paper says there is a healthy brood at the London Zoo, which are, for many reasons, deserving of notice. To begin with, they have not the black and forbidding aspect of the tadpole which is one of the common objects of a country walk in March. These tadpoles are largely colorless, and have an engaging way of balancing themselves on their heads, instead of wriggling up to each other like our familiar acquaintances. Their chief merit, however, is that they are the offspring of their parents. They come from eggs deposited by an African frog, which has the rather doubtful distinction of being more like a newt than any other frog; this frog, known technically as Xenopus levis, has never before condescended to breed at the Zoo, or in captivity, so its young were very imperfectly known.

As the frog itself is one of those links in creation which are fortunately not missing, a good of interest attaches to the tadpole, which might be fairly expected to go one better than its parents. It does, as a matter of fact, realize these expectations, for it has a pair of long feelers on its chin, which are exactly like the barbels of fishes. The frog has resemblances to animals lower in the scale, and the tadpole has affinities to animals a stage lower again.

THERE MAY BE BLOOD SHED

TROUBLE MAY OCCUR IN THE SANDWICH ISLANDS.

Hawaiians Will Not Give Up the Provisional Government and Restore the Monarchy Without Being Compelled to do so.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Unless he has met with some delay, United States Minister Willis has now been in Honolulu a week, and it is not improbable that he has carried into effect the instructions he took with which have been so well kept a secret on this side of the Pacific. If he has done so, the steamer which left Honolulu yesterday will bring the news of the consequent events and will reach an outlet to the rest of the world with it on next Saturday. Whatever recourse the administration may have determined upon to secure the restoration of Queen Liliuokalani, it is very evident that Secretary Gresham does not expect that extreme measures will have to be resorted to. The course proposed to be pursued seems to be to request the present government in the name of the United States to give way quietly to the restoration of the queen. The Hawaiians in this city are very firm in their conviction that the government will refuse to yield to any such gentle persuasion as that. They assert their earnest belief that it will require at least a show of force to induce them to resign the reins of authority.

Congressman O'Neill of Massachusetts has laid before Secretary Gresham an appeal from a Boston house having large interests in the islands, which shows that all those acquainted with the conditions have not so hopeful a belief as to the outcome of the effort to restore the queen. The dispatch reads as follows:

"Boston, Nov. 11.—Please call on proper officials and request on behalf of your constituents holding property in Honolulu and throughout the kingdom that instructions be sent to the United States minister there to protect the same. We believe there is great danger of bloodshed and destruction to property. Have telegraphed Senator Hoar these facts.

—"Charles Brewer Co."

HIS OWN EXECUTIONER

Grantsburg, Wis Nov. 13.—Andrew Johnson, who was recently committed to the county jail on a charge of murdering William Sullivan near Shell Lake on the 4th inst., hanged himself last evening and was cold when discovered. The coroner was called, and after viewing the remains declared that an inquest was not necessary. Johnson had fastened a pillow case to a broom handle and put the handle up through the ventilator in the center of the ceiling. To the other end he fastened a small cord, and to this the noose which he had made out of wire from the bail of a pail. A thorough search of the jail failed to disclose a written statement from the deceased, as was hoped might be found exonerating Freeman Durrell, who is also charged with the crime.

HE WAS EVICTED.

Minneapolis, Nov. 13.—The household goods of Henry Schumacker, a laborer living at 2318 1-2 Washington avenue north, were put into the street by his landlord because he could not pay the rent. Shumacker has been out of work for some time, and the landlord would not carry him longer. The poor fellow went down town in the morning to look for employment and when he returned found his goods piled up in the street. The poor department has furnished him with temporary quarters at the old Bethany home property, Dupont avenue, between Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth streets.

PROBABLY KILLED.

Bardstown, Ky., Nov. 13.—Phil Evans' home was burned to the ground and his family either perished therein or were run away by an infuriated crowd. Who committed the act is unknown. All that remains to tell the tale was a part of a chimney and a few burned logs where the house stood. Ed Hall's house, the father of Evans' wife, which is only a short distance from where Evans' house stood, is being guarded through fear that the negroes would attack him and his helpless children. All is excitement, and there is no telling what may yet occur.

RAN AGAINST A ROCK.

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 13.—The steamer State of Idaho, plying between Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, and Kaslobie, connecting with the Great Northern at the former point, was sunk near Ainsworth, B. C. The passengers were saved. The State of Idaho cost $23,000. She was owned by Capt. S. B. Shaw, who was in command, and Capt. H. F. Dupuy, C. S. Rutter of Spokane and the Great Northern railroad. The accident was caused by collision with a rock in the darkness.

TWO MEN ASPHIXIATED.

St. Louis, Nov. 11.—At the St. James hotel here, James Salmon of New York and B. Perry Collins of Washington, D. C., occupying the same room, and here as advertising agents for a new cigarette recently put on the market, were found dead in bed, having been asphyxiated. The cause was a defective gas cock upon which there was no check to indicate the proper closing point.

ONE WIFE TOO MANY.

St. Louis, Nov. 13.—A Michigan bigamist was caught here. Arthur L. Evans was arrested for having two wives, one formerly Miss Ella Emerson of Beradt, Mich., and the other Pauline E. Porter of this city. It has not yet been determined which is the first wife, and upon that will depend the place of trial.

NO ROOM FOR NEGROES.

Guthrie, Okla., Nov. 13.—The chief of the Osages and his executive council have issued an edict ordering all negroes to leave the reservation within thirty days, and stating that after that time any negro found in the country will be given fifty lashes.

SUNK IN LAKE MICHIGAN.

Milwaukee, Nov. 13.—The steam barge Thomas H. Smith was sunk by the steamer Arthur Orr near Racine. The crew was rescued. The Smith was owned by Messrs. Leathom & Smith of Sturgeon Bay, and was bound for Menominee, Mich., for lumber.

TRICHINOSIS.

Milwaukee, Nov. 13.—Seven cases of trichinosis are reported from the town of Granville. The wife of a farmer named George Buchner died. Buchner bought a smoked ham in Milwaukee about two weeks ago.

SPEECHES OF ANARCAISTS

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Services in commemoration of the anniversary of the death of the five anarchists, Spies, Parsons, Lingg Fischer and Engel, were held yesterday at the monument erected to their memory in Waldheim cemetery. In spite of a leaden sky from which a cold rain fell steadily throughout the day, the services at the graves were attended by nearly 2,500 persons. The occasion was made notable by the fact that Samuel Fielden, Michael Schwab and Oscar Neebe, the comrades of the executed anarchists who were sentenced to Joliet, but pardoned out recently by Gov. Altgeld, were present at the graves, two of them, Fielden and Schwab, being the orators of the day. When Fielden, Neebe and Schwab were pardoned it was said to be a condition of their release that they should make no more anarchistic speeches, but they made them to-day, nevertheless. The ceremonies at the cemetery were preceded by a procession which marched through some of the down town streets. No red flags were carried, but each organization participating in the parade carried a floral emblem adorned profusely with red ribbon upon the streamers of which were the usual anarchistic inscriptions in German. Immediately following the band at the head of the procession and just in front of the Women's Lassalle society, were six little girls, dressed in red and black. One of them carried a large black shield bordered with red, upon which was the following inscription in silver letters: "Nov. 11—Tyranny—No God, no Lord, no slave." Each of the five other girls wore a red dress and a wide black sash upon which was inscribed in silver letters the name of one of the five anarchists whose bodies lie under the monument at Waldheim.

KILLED HIS FATHER.

Wausau, Wis., Nov. 13.—William Habeck's mysterious disappearance from his home near Edgar was cleared up yesterday by the neighbors finding his body about eighty rods from his home in a newly made grave with a fallen tree across it and the brush piled over it. His son Herman, aged nineteen, confessed to killing him with an axe, and was assisted by his brother Otto, aged seventeen, in secreting the body. Both were arrested and brought to this city today.

CONFESSION OF A FIREBUG.

Milwaukee, Nov. 13.—Franz Falk, a former employe of the Beck Planing Mill company, has been arrested, charged with incendiarism. He has furnished the police a written confession, in which he admits that he set the mill on fire Oct. 10, causing a loss of $12,000. He also confesses to burning the store of Frank Ziemen Nov. 10, and the barn and horses of John Just Nov. 1. Faulk says he had no particular reason for committing the crimes.

BUNCOED AN EGYPTIAN.

New York, Nov. 13.—Meno Mordac of Cairo, Egypt, who says he was the manager of the recent Cairo village on the Midway Plaisance at the Chicago fair, was a complainant at police headquarters, claiming he had been buncoed. According to the story he told, he is out $750 in English money and 2,000 francs in French coin. Mordac was to have sailed to-day for Europe. The thieves have not been captured.

ACCUSED OF STEALING.

Anoka, Minn., Nov. 13.—John Fitzgibbons was arrested in Minneapolis by two city detectives and was brought to Anoka by Sheriff Tierney. He is wanted here on the charge of a theft of a set of harness from John Durn of Coon Creek. A gang has infested this county for some time, preying upon the farmers. Other arrests are likely.

INDIAN GIRLS DROWNED.

Winnipeg, Nov. 13.—At the Birtle Indian school yesterday three girl pupils, ranging from seven to thirteen were drowned while crossing a creek in the school grounds. A fourth pupil and the teacher, Miss McLeod, narrowly escaped drowning while attempting to save the others.

ROLLING MILL BURNED.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 13.—The entire rolling mill plant of the Whitaker Iron and Steel company of this city was destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated to be from $85,000 to $100,000. The insurance is $72,000. Four hundred men are thrown out of employment. The mill will be rebuilt.

PROF. SHOUPE DEAD.

Dubuque, Iowa, Nov. 13.—Prof. W. J. Shoupe, brother of Senator Shoupe of Idaho, and for twenty years prominent in the public school affairs of this city and state, is dead. He was the author of several text books.

SHOPLIFTER.

Minneapolis, Nov. 13. — Mary Keiser was arrested in Donaldson's Glass block charged with shoplifting. She was arraigned and given $25 or thirty days.

SHOT HIS BROTHERS.

Springfield, S. D., Nov. 13.—Arrie and Willie Burggriff were accidentally shot by their brother, Peter, aged sixteen. Arrie died.

WANTED TO DIE.

Dubuque, Iowa, Nov. 13.—Mrs. Brown of Epworth was deserted by her husband and tried to starve herself to death.

GAINS FOR REPUBLICANS

FURTHER RETURNS FROM THE ELECTIONS HELD TUESDAY.

Plurality for the Republican Tickets in New York, Massachusetts, Ohio and Iowa—Judge Maynard Badly Defeated.

New York, Nov. 9.—The election in this state was a clean and complete sweep for the Republicans, and every hour only adds to the thoroughness of the defeat suffered by the Democrats. Bartlett is elected to the court of appeals probably by over 65,000 plurality, and the rest of the Republican ticket wins by 20,000. The state senate, now Democratic, will have a Republican majority of 6; the assembly of 7. In the constitutional convention there will be 105 Republicans to 70 Democrats.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 9.—At Democratic headquarters they concede the result to be such as to give them no cause to be looking after returns. Chairman Dick, of the state Republican headquarters, has later unofficial returns indicating that McKinley's plurality is between 70,000 and 80,000, the largest in the history of the state except in 1863. At that time Brough had over 100,000, his opponent being Vallandigham, who was then an exile in Canada. Chillicothe, the home of Neal, Democratic candidate for governor, went Republican for the first time.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 9.—Frank D. Jackson, Republican candidate for governor, is elected by a plurality of about 30,000, or 8,000 more than President Harrison received in 1892. Only about one-third of the voting precincts have been heard from, but the returns from scattered precincts all over the state show such a steady average gain for Jackson that there is no doubt of the result. The balance of the Republican ticket is elected by a large plurality. The legislature will be Republican. Out of twenty-four senators to be elected the Republicans elected seventeen. Out of 100 members of the house the Republicans will have about sixty-five. The Populist vote in the state will hardly exceed 25,000, and the Prohibition vote not more than 14,000.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—The election seems to be about a stand-off. The returns indicate that the Republicans have elected the entire judicial ticket and that the Democrats have secured the county commissioners inside the city. The judicial ticket has heretofore been on a nonpartisan basis, but this year the Democrats broke away and nominated a ticket of their own, and the Republicans seem to have elected every judicial candidate. The great fight has been over the election of Judge Gary, who presided at the trial of the anarchists. He heads the republican ticket.

Kansas City, Nov. 8.—Meager returns from Kansas indicate a great falling off in the Populist vote. Cherokee county, which gave 1,700 majority for the Populists in 1892, and Sumner county, another Populist stronghold, have been carried by the Republicans. Crowley county has also gone Republican. Republicans will probably have a plurality of all the votes cast in Kansas. They have carried Miami, Harvey and Montgomery counties. The Democrats carried Leavenworth county.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 9—Revised figures of the election returns show that the Democrats have carried Virginia by a majority of not less than 25,000, and that O'Ferrall runs behind his ticket several thousand votes. In the senate the Democrats will have at least thirty-five of the forty composing that body, and eighty-five of the hundred members in the house. The Prohibition ticket got the largest vote it ever received in the state.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 8.—Returns from the state are coming in slowly. The scattering reports received indicate Republican losses on the head of the ticket and Populist gains. The race between Harrison (Rep) and Holcomb (Pop) will be very close. The result in this county will determine the outcome in the state.

Huron, S. D., Nov. 9.—Returns show that South Dakota Republicans elected everything from supreme court judges down to and including county commissioners.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 9.—Later returns received from Kentucky counties by the Post to-day indicate a falling off in the Democratic vote throughout the state.

Philadelphia, Nov. 9. — Pennsylvania elected a Republican supreme court justice by probably 8,000 majority.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 9.—The state is almost entirely Republican in the county elections. Equal suffrage is carried.

Boston, Nov. 9.—Returns received indicate that Greenhalge's plurality will be 32,350. All of the Republican state ticket seems to have won.

Camden, N. J., Nov. 8.—New Jersey goes Republican and the anti-race track element will control the legislature.

ENGLAND AND ITALY.

London, Nov. 9.—The correspondent of the Times at Rome says: The Italian government desires complete accord with Great Britain in the Mediterranean. Were this secured by treaty Italy would, if England wished it, withdraw from the triple alliance, but it is quite understood that England does not desire that Italy should take such a step. Italy will, therefore, never have need of Russian intervention as the Hamburger Nachrichten suggested, and she does not care to conceal the fact that she is ready to support Great Britain in any Mediterranean question, no matter what other power is involved. The above is apparently stated upon high authority.

FAMOUS CASE SETTLED.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 9.—The famous Timmons case, involving real estate in the aristocratic residence portion of this city, to the amount of $2,000,000, was finally disposed of yesterday in favor of the Elyton Land company by Judge Toulmin in the United States circuit court.

TEN YEARS FOR WEEKS.

New York, Nov. 9—Francis H. Weeks has been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment in Sing Sing prison. He pleaded guilty on arraignment, and the entire proceedings did not occupy five minutes.

BREVITIES.

C. G. Rapp went down to Crookston today on business.

Martin Williams went down to Crookston on business last Monday.

Carl Johnson came back from Crookston last Saturday on the stage.

Wm. Eickhoff went down to Crookston this afternoon on a short business trip,

George Williams was in town last Monday, He has quit his position at Thief River Falls.

C. S. Easton arrived last week from North Dakota and will assist agent Ewing in the elevator,

August Swenson is at work on Bjerks new hall this week and will have it ready the last of the week.

C. G. Rapp and E. H. Stranahan have been at Thief River Falls several times the past week looking after collections.

Menage the Minneapolis Guarantee Loan swindler has been located at Guatamala and efforts are being made to bring him back.

W. A. Sorsoleil reports that business is good in the flour line and that he has been selling a large amount of flour and feed this fall.

We have been having a spell of cold weather this week with a slight flurry of snow. It looks as if our winter had arrived for good.

The social next Friday evening in the Lutheran Church promises to be very entertaining and all should make an effort to attend

George Brady who was once the Great Northern agent here is visiting friends here this week. He has been agent at Rollette the past year

Martin Williams has purchased a half interest in a saloon at Wadena Minn. and will go there in a short time to take possession,

Last Monday the train commenced to run to Thief River Falls first and then to Red Lake Falls instead of going there first as heretofore.

Messrs. Holmes, Wishard, Freeman, Rapp, Ives, C. A. Brink and E M. Hoff were at Red Lake Falls last Wednesday evening attending the Hendershot entertainment.

Wheat has been comming in fairly well the past week but the extremly low price keeps many from marketing their wheat at this time. Farmers seem disposed to hold on to their wheat as long as possible and it will come in steadily until after the holiday,

Three of the Red Lake pine estimators have been removed. Their names are Hall, Stacey, and Veiling. Congressman Baldwin has secured the appointed of W. W. Wolf J. C. Smith and Mark Rankin all of this state, They are supposed to be experianced men.

The town was taken completely by surprise today by the train coming in only one-half an hour late. This is not able to happen very soon again, however.

A special school election for this district, no. 1, has been called to meet at the village hall on Thursday evening November 23rd 1893 at 7:30. The meeting has been called for the purpose of voting bonds in the sum of two thousand dollars for the purpose of paying up the old bonds now due. As the election is an important one all should attend.

President Garfield predicted that the pension list never would or could call for more than eighty million a year but Commission Lochrens report just issued shows that the list now contains nearly a million names calling for the actual payment this year of about $157,000,000 and the commission asks for $262,000,000, for next year. The further we recede from the war, the more the pension list seems to increase. The number of names on the roll has increased about one hundred thousand this year, and if the next year's increase shall be only two-thirds of the increase of this year, the total number of pensioners will greatly exceed one million. Commissioner Lochren calculates that 1895 the list of pensionery will decrease, but the veterans are apt to marry young women in their declining years, and there may be hosts of widows to the list by and by. It is the general opinion that the widows of soldiers of Revolutionary war are not yet extinct. Ex.

The English press has given notice that the people of the United States need not expect any silver law enacted under Cleveland's administration, and in the same breath they applaud Cleveland and his policy—so favorable to England, and against the people of this country. The English papers know what they are talking about in this matter, in fact they knew that this would be Cleveland's policy long before he was inaugurated. Cleavland has made a contract with the English in this respect before election, and in return a sufficient amount of money was furnished to buy up New York and other places in favor of Cleveland. —— Exchange.

A family down in Florida lost their child. After failing to find it for two days says an exchange, they put a twenty five cent notice in a paper, and the next morning they were surprised to see an alligator on the steps, where it had disgorged the lost child alive and then died himself. They sold the alligator's hide for $5 and the parents exhibited the child in a dime museum for $50 per week. The story illustrates the value of advertising. It also illustrates the writer as a careful and painstaking liar

The repeal bill was passed in the senate Monday and the price of wheat dropped two cents a bushel Next day it dropped another cent. What now becomes of the promise of the single gold standards organs that wheat would go up as soon as congress passed the repeal bill? Will the Minneapolis Journal answer? —Warren Sheaf.

A gentleman who was in the village last week remarked that he had always noticed that a mild winter followed a poor crop season; when farmers fail to raise sufficient for their famlilies and stock, the winter was short and not severe. It may be the gentleman is right, and if so, there will be nothing but pleasant weather the coming winter. We would not advise taking any chances, however. Better be on the safe side and prepare as best you can, for a genuine ripsnorter, you can stand it Look back a few months, and take no stock in what anybody says about open winters."—Battle Lake Review.

Supt. Ponsonby accompanied by Fred Durand of Crookston were here last Friday. They came up in the Supt's private car and were taking Joseph Smith of Red Lake Falls home. Joe is a good Democrat and was at Crookston when the election returns came in and it was thought inadvisable for him to go home alone.

TOO MUCH FOR HIM.

He Started in Well, but He Couldn't Stand It.

There had already been six agents bothering her since 8 o'clock that morning. She had bought two 5 cent machine embroidered mats for 50 cents from the Persian lad earning his way through college so that he could return to his native land as a missionary, and she had wasted three quarters of an hour in attempting to convince the man with the combination step-ladder, ironing board, washtub bench, card table and piano stool that she did not care for his article. She had bought a fan shaped paper of pins from the blind man, although she had four others exactly similar, and she had listened patiently to all the reasons why she should subscribe for the new art work, delivered in monthly parts, at only half a dollar a part. The baking powder man had induced her to buy a sample can of his new "Up in a Balloon" brand, and when a well dressed man with a smile on his face and a large, square bundle under his arm pushed past her into the little parlor and seated himself she felt it was high time that something was done.

"I have here, madam," began the bland individual, following as closely as he could remember it the printed "Method of Arousing Interest," which came with the agent's outfit, while he opened the book in his hand at the title page, "a book which no mother should be without. It is called 'The Kid's Health; or, The Mother's Guide,' and contains, as you see, important articles on food, sleep, teething"—

"Yes," interrupted the little woman in a determined way; "how important that is! My baby has just cut her fourth tooth, and with every one so far she has had a different experience. The first one came through last May, and it seems to me that she was half sick for two months. Why, I used to sit up half of the night with her—she was worse at night; they always are, I guess—and I"—

"Yes," broke in the agent; "this book gives very concise rules"—

"Rules! We broke all of ours the first week she began teething. She kept us awake all night and fretted all day, and finally on Sunday morning—I remember that it was Sunday morning because we wanted to go to church and couldn't—John says"—

"That is very interesting, madam, but"—

"John was feeling in her mouth, when he yelled out"—

"The book contains an important chapter on teething," began the man, striking a phrase in his regular speech, "and it"—

"Yes; if the first one had been as easy as the second we never would have minded them at all. The second one pricked through only a few days after the first, and perhaps it was because there were two forming at once that made her so sick. I have been told that as soon as the tooth begins to form"—

"The chapter on tooth forming diet," said the book man, "has"—

"Oh, she eats oatmeal now!" continued the little woman calmly. "A bowlful at a time, and she's getting very strong on her feet, and"—

"Not to mention the hints on learning to walk," said the agent, finding another one of his phrases. But the little woman only looked at him pityingly and resumed:

"I intend to try barley water as soon as I think she is getting tired of oatmeal. But I didn't finish telling you about her teeth. I"—

"Really, my dear madam, my time is valuable. Let me show you these drawings of"—

"Certainly, in one moment. Just let me bring my baby in, and you can see for yourself how"—

When she got back, there was only the mud on the carpet to mark the spot where the book agent had been, and the little woman went back to her kitchen with a triumphant look upon her face and began to sing.—Puck.

Overjoyed.

He walked up to the register in the hotel office and wrote his name—"John Smith."

"How are you? I'm mighty glad to see you. I am indeed."

"But," protested the stranger, "you don't know me. I've never been here before."

"That doesn't make any difference," replied the clerk. "If you had wrestled with jit-jats and maharajahs the way I have this year, you'd know what a comfort it is to get a man of your name in the house."—Chicago Mail.

Explained.

Baggage Master—Want $1,000 for your trunk? Why, you said it was an old one, and that there was nothing in it of value.

Complainant—But, my dear man, there were no less than three European express and two foreign steamer labels on that trunk!—Boston Transcript.

After Chicago Day.

Clerk (in hat factory)—I don't know what to do about this order for a hundred dozen hats. Nothing is said about the sizes.

Proprietor—Where is the order from?

"Chicago."

"Send them the largest sizes we've got."—Chicago Tribune.

Excuses Superfluous.

Auntie—You should ask to be excused when you leave the table."

Little Nephew—Should I? I thought from the way you acted about that third piece of pie that you'd be glad to see me go.—Good News.

How He Knew.

Little Fanny—Who came out ahead in the quarrel, ma or pa?

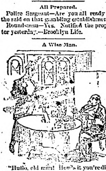
Tommy—Ma, I guess. After it was over I heard pa say he didn't believe it was right to fuss.—Truth.

All Prepared.

Police Sergeant—Are you all ready for the raid on that gambling establishment?

Roundsman—Yes. Notified the proprietor yesterday.—Brooklyn Life.

A Wise Man.



"Hullo, old man! How's it you're dining at the club? Thought your wife told me she had the Browns and Smiths to dinner this evening?"

"No, that was yesterday. This evening she has the odds and ends."—Punch.

AT LAST.

How a Village Attorney Got Even With a Heartless Flirt.

Pale with suppressed emotion, the struggling young village attorney stood before the haughty heiress, hat in hand and ready to go.

"I could have borne your refusal, Verdigris McSerrell," he said brokenly, "although I had hoped for a more favorable answer. But you have chosen to accompany it with words of scorn. You have accused me of fortune hunting. You have twitted me with my poverty, my insignificance and my lack of worldly knowledge. I have not deserved this. I may have been presumptuous, but I am not the sordid, mercenary, soulless wretch you have pictured me to be. And, mark my words, proud beauty, the day will come when your haughty spirit shall be brought low!"

"What will you do, Mr. Bramble?" scornfully asked the young woman. "Will you sue me for damages? Will you publish some dismal verses about me? Or will you crush me by silent contempt?"

"I shall bide my time! Heartless being, farewell!"

* * * * * * *

Long years passed away. In a crowded courtroom in a large city the famous case of Keresmith versus Johenes was on trial, involving the possession of millions. Enos A. Bramble, now one of the most noted and successful lawyers in his native state, leaned forward in his chair to cross examine a witness.

"Your name, madam," he said, "if I understand you rightly, is Mrs. Elimm?"

"Yes, sir," replied the witness.

"Your familiarity with this case grows out of the fact that you have resided all your life in the neighborhood of the property in dispute? Is that correct?"

"Yes, sir."

"It will be necessary, then, to ask you—but, first, how long have you been married?"

"I—I was married several years ago. I am a widow."

"How long have you been a widow?"

"Oh—several years."

"What was your maiden name?"

"McSerrell."

"Full name, please!"

"Verdigris McSerrell."

"Thank you. In order to ascertain all the facts pertaining to this controversy it will be necessary to ask you one more question. Now, then, Mrs. Verdigris McSerrell Elimm," thundered Lawyer Enos A. Bramble, rising to his feet, "please tell the jury your age!"—Chicago Tribune.

A Correction.

The swell hotel clerk felt that he had taken his guest's measure very accurately as the newcomer set down his bag by the counter and reached for the register.

"What are the prices of your rooms?" inquired the stranger.

"Two dollars and upward."

"Two dollars and downward you mean, don't you?" inquired the guest meekly.

"No, sir; it is just as I said. If you want cheaper rooms, you will have to go elsewhere."

The guest was as serene as a May morning.

"On what floor are your $2 rooms?" he asked.

"Top floor."

"Anything on the roof?"

The clerk looked surprised.

"Of course not."

"Where are your high priced rooms?"

"On the lower floor."

"You don't go up from the $2 rooms to get to them, do you?"

"Certainly not."

"You go down from the $2 rooms to get to them, don't you?"

The clerk began to catch on.

"Yes, sir," he said. "If you"—

"That is to say," interrupted the guest, "your prices are $2 and downward. Give me the best you've got in the house," and the clerk bowed so low that his diamond stud was thrown completely into the shadow.—Detroit Free Press.

Salesman—This matches your sample perfectly, madam!

Customer—It certainly does; it couldn't be closer.

Salesman—How many yards do you wish?

Customer—Oh, not any yet. You see, this is the very first shop I've tried.—New York Times.

Felt Everywhere.

I don't suppose this business depression affects you tramps much," said the philanthropist.

"Yes, it does," retorted the tramp. "The quality of the food we get these days is something awful."—Brooklyn Life.

A Slander.

Mrs. Muggs—That horrid Mrs. Frills told Mrs. Nexdoor that I was a regular old cat. What do you think of that?

Mrs. Muggs—I think she never saw you in the same room with a mouse.—New York Weekly.

Had Been a Waiter.

Proprietor of Restaurant—Yes, I want to hire a waiter. Have you had experience?

Applicant—Yes, sir. I used to take my meals here.—Truth.

Still Safe In His Arms.

All dressed in white and gauzy things
The lovely Ann Miranda
No longer in the hammock swings
Out on the side veranda.
No longer trembles in its folds
When evening birds are calling,
While Willie Johnson bravely holds
Her to prevent her falling.

But doth the gentle maiden sigh
While ruminating over
Those pleasant summer nights when high
The moon was sailing over
And Willie Johnson's tenor crooned
The songs most to her liking—
Ecstatic nights on which they spooned
Till twelve o'clock was striking.

Ah, no! Such memories as these Disturb not fair Miranda,
Although she cannot get the breeze
And squeeze on the veranda,
She's well aware that Willie can
Save her, and does it nightly,
From falling off the soft divan
Just every bit as tightly!

The Grand Central Railroad Station, Chicago.

Is being fitted up for hotel purposes during the world's fair. This magnificent fire-proof structure, located at the corner of Harrison street and 5th avenue, in the very heart of the city, will devote the 3rd, 4th and 5th floors to this purpose. It will be run on the European plan. Each room will have hot and cold water, electric lights and be steam heated. The office and ladies parlors etc. will be located on the 3rd floor and the building will be supplied with all modern conveniences. There will be from 100 to 200 rooms for guests.

This acquisition to the hotel facilities of Chicago will be appreciated by those who wish to be safely housed in a fire-proof building, conveniently located in the city itself.

Those desiring accommodations can secure them by addressing Mr. T. C. Clifford, the manager, at Chicago Ill. The hotel will be opened May 15th 1893.

The Grand Central Station is the Chicago depot of the Northern Pacific railroad, [Wisconsin Central division] and by taking this through car line to the world's fair city, visitors will avoid the discomfort of transfer through the city.

From this station trains run direct to the world's fair grounds at intervals during the day.

VISITORS TO THE TWIN CITIES.

No one should visit the Twin Cities this summer without running out to Minnetonka Beach and Hotel Lafayette, the largest and best located resort house in the west. The lake is one of the most picturesque in the country and is well supplied with steamers and sailing, rowing and fishing craft. A number of regattas will be given. The Great Northern has a double track line to the lake and runs frequent trains.

MINNESOTA STATE NORMAL SCHOOLS
WINONA, MANKATO, ST. CLOUD AND MOORHEAD.

These schools are organized for the training of teachers for the common schools of the state.

ORGANIZATION.—Each school comprises two departments—the normal department and the training department or Model School

The Normal department embraces;

(a) An elementary course for teachers of rural districts and elementary grades.

(b) An advanced course for teachers of advanced grades.

(c) A Professional course for teachers who have completed the required academic work elsewhere.

(d) A kindergarten training course (at Winona and St. Cloud.

ADMISSION.—Graduates of high schools and colleges and teachers holding county superintendents' first and second grade certificate are admitted without examination. All others are required to pass an entrance examination.

EXPENSES.—Tuition is free to all who pledge themselves to teach in Minnesota.

Text books are furnished at a rental of three dollars per year. Provision is made in each school for economical living. The average cost of furnished rooms with board is $3.00 per week. The Ladies' Home at St. Cloud offers board, furnished room, heat and light at $3.50 per week.

The new dormitory at Moorhead will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall term.

DIPLOMAS.—By a recent act of the legislature a diploma becomes a state teachers certificate of the first grade.

The next school year opens at Winona, Sept. 1st; at Mankato, Sept. 4th; at St. Cloud, Aug. 29th; and at Moorhead, Oct. 3rd.

For free catalogues and circulars giving all information, address the presidents as follows.

DEVILS LAKE CHAUTAUQUA.

The first summer Assembly of the North Dakota Chautauqua comes off June 28th to July 17th. An extensive program has been arranged, including many noted speakers, singers, etc., and the occasion promises to be most interesting and instructive. Devils Lake is a summer resort point. The Great Northern Railway gives reduced rates. Address J. B. Fancher, Secretary, Devils Lake, N. D. for programs and other inform. A trip to the lake and assembly will make an enjoyable outing.

A LARGE DROP IN RATES TO THE WEST

The Great Northern inaugurated its new train service to the Pacific Coast on the 18th inst. With sweeping reductions in rates, amounting to 40 percent in many cases. The rate from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Puget Sound was reduced First-class from $60.00 to [illegible] to Spokane from $35 to $30; and to Helena and Butte from $40 to $25, with corresponding reductions on second-class tickets both through rates applying proportionately to intermediate points. It is the purpose of the Great Northern to make rates to help the development of its territory. It is much the shortest line across the continent, was built on business principles, and at a cost of about one half of that of the older trans-continental lines, and is therefore prepared to correspondingly well by its territory and patrons in rates and accommodations.

Last summer I was attacked with a bad case of flux, and after taking four doses of Beggs' Diarrhoea Balsam was immediately relieved and cured. I have sold it for the past six months and can say that it gives general satisfaction. J. W. Smith, M. D. Puxico, Mo.—For sale by J. L. Johnson, Druggist.

A BOY'S LETTER.

Written From Boarding School to His Dear Mother.

The London Spectator prints the following genuine letter from a schoolboy to his mother:

"My Dear Ma—I wright to tell you I am very retched and my chilblaines is worse again. I have not made any progress and do not think I shall. I am very sorry to be such an expence, but I do not think this schule is any good. One of the fellows has taken the crown of my best hat for a target. he has now borrowed my watch to make a water wheel with the works, but it wont act. Me and him have tried to put the works back, but we think some wheals are missing as they wont fit. I hope Matilda's cold is better. I am glad she is not at schule. I think I have got consumption. the boys at this place are not gentlemanly, but of course you did not know this when you sent me here. I will try not to get bad habits. The trousers have worn out at the knees. I think the tailor must have cheated you, the buttons have come off and they are loose behind. I dont think the food is good, but I should not mind if I was stronger. The piece of meat I send you is off the beef we had on Sunday, but on other days it is more Stringy. There are black beadles in the kitchen and sometimes they cook them in the dinner, which cant be holesome when you are not strong. Dear Ma, I hope you and Pa are well, and do not mind my being uncomfortable because I do not think I shall last long. Please send me more money as I o 8d. If you cannot spare it I think I can borrow it of a boy who is going to leave at the half quarter and then he wont ask for it back again, but perhaps you wd. not like to be under an obligation to his parents as they are tradespeople. I think you deal at their shop. I did not mention it or I dare say they wd. have put it down in the bill.—Yr. loving but retched son, ———."

Boston Ma—What does baby want? Is it this pencil?

Boston Baby—Ahgoo, agoo!

"Of course that's it. And does baby want paper?"

"Ma! ma! me! ma!"

"Yes, mamma cognizes correctly. I wonder what baby wants of pencil and paper?"

"Me! mo! me! mo! me! mo!"

"Bless his heart! He wants to begin to write his memoirs."—Good News.

Johnny—Yes. Forgot all about being sick.

"That's what I thought, and it wasn't hard to take, was it?"

"I guess so, for it took two of us boys to hold Fido when we gave it to him."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

WHY HE LOOKED SAD.

Kicked His Own Boy Into the Street and Smashed His own Bicycle.

"You look a trifle doleful to-night," said one of a group of gentlemen to another, while all were sitting one Saturday evening before the fire in one of the clubs.

"Well," said the gentleman addressed, "I have as good a right to look doleful to-night as any man I know of."

"What's up?" asked the other members of the group, in chorus.

"It is this way: You know that I am an ardent bicyclist, and I have a boy who has the same passion. This evening, just after dark, as I was coming down the street to the club, walking along thinking of nothing in particular, I was hit in the back by what seemed to be a locomotive, and knocked sprawing into the ditch. It was muddy there, and when I had collected my scattered senses I was all covered with dirt, and also very mad. I looked around to see what hit me, thinking that perhaps in my abstraction I had walked on to a railway line somewhere, and found a young man and a safety bicycle on the pavement, all tangled up. I was mad, as I said before, and, without stopping to think what I did, I took the young man by the coat collar and kicked him off the pavement. Then I jumped on the bicycle, stamped all the spokes out of the wheels, and generally disfigured it."

Here the gentleman stopped. And one of the audience said:

"Well, why should that make you feel as you do? You did just the right thing."

"I suppose I hadn't ought to feel so," said the speaker, "but you see, it was my boy and my bicycle."

NOTHING STANDS AS HIGH, as a remedy for every womanly ailment, as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Here is the proof. It's the only medicine for women so certain in its effects that it can be guaranteed. In every case, if it doesn't benefit or cure, your money is returned. Can anything else, though it may be better for a tricky dealer to sell, be "just as good" for you to buy?

"Favorite Prescription" is an invigorating, restorative tonic, a soothing and strengthening nervine, and a complete cure for all the functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses peculiar to the sex.

For young girls just entering womanhood; for women at the critical "change of life"; for women approaching confinement; nursing mothers; and every woman who is "run-down," tired, or overworked—it is a special, safe, and certain help.

If you have an incurable case of Catarrh, the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will pay you $500 cash. They believe that they can cure you.

Small Pox a Recommendation.

Dr. Lankaster finds in old newspapers advertisements which show that a century ago small pox was so common that people advertised for servants who were "over" it, in much the same way as we now advertise for a dog "over" the distemper. He quotes the following: "Wanted, a man between twenty and thirty years of age, to be a footman and under butler in a great family. He must be of the Church of England, and have had the small pox in the natural way. Also a woman, middle-aged, to wait upon a young lady of great fashion and fortune; the woman must be of the Church of England, have had the small pox in the natural way, very sober, steady, and well behaved, and understand dress, getting up lace and fine linen, and doing all things necessary for a young lady that goes into all public places and keeps the best company. Enquire of the printer of this paper. October 1st, 1774."—Tit-Bits.

The Meaning of Red Hair.

Scientists say that it means that there is a superabundance of iron in the blood. And the analyst says that it is the matter that enters red hair that imparts the vigor, the elasticity, the great vitality, the overflowing, thoroughly healthful animal life which runs through the veins of the ruddy-haired, and this strong sentient animal life is what renders them more intense in their emotions than their more languid fellow creatures. Philosophers notice it as a peculiar fact that red-haired old maids are very rare.

FOR ALL ETERNITY.

Love of my heart,
 Do you e'er think
Of that chill night
 When on the brink
Of "Love's last hope," I stooped to drink—
And deeply, too—of life's despair,
In your cruel words, "To-night we part?"

Love of my heart,
 I often think
Of that dark night
 When "Love's last link"
Was loosened, severed, cast aside,
Upon that fateful eventide,
When caprice bid you break my heart!

Love of my heart,
 I e'er shall think
Of that sad night
 When I did drink,
With trembling hand and quivering lip,
The dregs of woe—thou bad'st me sip;
That cast o'er flower of youth a blight;
Turned life's bright day to death's dark night,
And famished heart to, hopeless, yearn
For its redeemer, "Love's return."

Love of my heart, my senses wane:
I soon shall pass life's last dark brink
To where sad hearts are free from pain—
Where God will bind the broken link
And reunite thy soul with mine,
For all eternity and time.

ADVENTURE WITH FEMALE BURGLARS.

I had just retired to bed after a hard day's work, fagged and weary, wishing that I were almost anything but what I was—a doctor practicing in a densely populated working class neighborhood, where the calls were plentiful, but the fees meagre, the said fees having to be collected in small weekly sums by my agent—an arrangement which seriously lessened the sum total of my annual income.

I was unmarried (though I may say I am now sixty, with sons and daughters in plenty), and therefore had no sympathizing ear into which I could pour my troubles.

I was stretching out my weary limbs, when clang went the night bell. Such was the force used on the bell wire that I was certain it had broken, and therefore lay still, thinking however much the knob of the door was manipulated, I should not be disturbed

In this I was mistaken. A few moments, and I was again disturbed—almost startled—by the savageness of the ring.

I went down stairs, turned up the gas in my surgery, and unbarred the door. It was pushed open impatiently, so impatiently that I was compelled to retreat, or otherwise I should have been bruised. A lady entered, closing the door behind her.

She was tall, well dressed and thickly veiled. I could not discern her features, but I saw through the veil a pair of dark, flashing eyes fixed upon me. Without waiting for me to speak, she said:

"You have been long in coming, doctor. But let that pass; I want you to accompany me at once. Are you ready to go?"

I was struck by the voice—it was certainly that of a lady, but so intensely charged with sorrow or anguish, I knew not which, that its tones seemed to curdle my blood, and a shiver ran down my back, as though some one had poured ice-cold water there

Seeing me pause, startled, she hurriedly continued:

"You must come, sir; make your fee as high as you like, it shall be paid. It is a case of life or death! Good heavens, sir, she may be dying now while you stand there hesitating. Quick!"

Without a word I returned to my bedroom and dressed. I did not like the case. The lady's manner perplexed and not a little terrified me. Yet I felt compelled to obey. Some one was in danger; it was my bounden duty as a doctor to give professional service.

These thoughts flashed through my mind as I quickly dressed. On again reaching the surgery, I noticed the lady's eyes fixed on the door through which I entered. She had evidently never taken them off it since I made my exit.

"I am ready," I said.

"You have got your instruments?"

"No; will they be needed?"

"I—I do not know; better bring them, sir!"

I took my case of instruments from the cupboard in which they were kept, and placed them in my overcoat pocket. "Allow me," I said, but the door was opened before I could reach it, and the lady was standing on the step.

What a terrible night—or rather morning—it was! Neither moon nor stars were visible.

The lady walked on in front—it was more a trot than a walk; I followed, wishing I had refused to come out at all. Turning a corner, I suddenly observed a vehicle. It was not a carriage; it was not a handsom; to this day I don't know what to christen that strange conveyance. It was something on four wheels, with a dark cloth—probably tarpaulin—thrown over it. I noticed that the horse was black, and the driver was muffled up so that his face would not be recognizable even with better light.

The lady opened the door and bade me enter. She sprang in, closed the door, and sat down opposite me without a word. The driver lashed the horse, and away we rattled over the stones.

I was familiar with every street in the district, and nearly every house; I could almost have traversed it blindfold. But soon the district was left behind. On, on, we went, through the heart of the city; on, on, till the wheels of the conveyance no longer rumbled over rough stones, but glided almost noiselessly over the country roads. I became doubly nervous as we rode along. What did it all portend? Where was I being carried? A fear possessed me that all was not as it should be.

I was checked in my agitated musings by the sudden stoppage of the vehicle. Where we were, I did not know any more than the man in the moon, excepting that we were in the country, and must be miles away from my surgery. It was a mercy, at least, that we had arrived at the end of our journey, and I should find out the object for which I had been brought so far from home.

The mystery was deepened, however, when, instead of our alighting, the door of the vehicle was opened from the outside, and in stepped two men, closing the door behind them; then the journey was resumed. A sudden determination possessed me to know what all this mystery meant. I wet my lips with my tongue, for they were dry and hot; then I said, speaking as clearly as I could:

"I have the right to know where I am being conveyed, madam, and why the two men have entered the vehicle without my permission."

I waited for several seconds, but there was no answer. This made me desperate. I rose to my feet, and was about to reach the handle of the door that I might open it and get out, when the two men sprang upon me, forced me back into my seat, and in less time than it takes me to write the words, I felt my hands tied and my eyes blindfolded.

"Villains!" I shouted, "you shall suffer for this indignity! Have you brought me into this lonely place to murder me—or what?"

"Don't be a fool, Dr. S——; no harm is intended you. If you do come to harm, it will be your own fault, not ours."

It was the lady who spoke. She spoke calmly; I thought there was a strain of contempt in her voice.

"It is some villainous plot," I exclaimed, excitedly, "into which an honorable gentleman of my profession has no right to be dragged."

"You will asked to do nothing beyond exercising your professional skill, for which you will be handsomely paid," replied the lady

"Why should you drug me so far—why should you pick me out as your instrument? Could you not engage one of my profession nearer to your own home?"

"That is our affair; we chose you."

"But how did you know me—how get my name?"

"We read the letters in the public prints to which your name was attached, and we have formed a high opinion of your skill."

I called myself an idiot for having written to the newspapers. If this was the sort of notoriety I was to get by making my name widely known, better have continued obscure forever.

Just then the conveyance stopped a second time: I heard the door open, and the two men descended. I was startled by a heavy breathing close to my ear; then the lady whispered—this time, I thought, with less acridness:

"Dr. S——, I beg of you not to make any disturbance. So long as you are quiet and do as requested you have nothing to fear—not a hair of your head shall be injured! Refuse, and I dare not answer for the consequences. You are in desperate hands who will brook no delay or opposition. I again beg of you to ask no questions; do as you are requested, and you will never repent. Remember!"

All this was said rapidly. The lady's mouth was close to my ear; I could feel her hot breath as she spoke. The concluding caution came sharp and clear, and it seemed to me almost tenderly. Then she left the conveyance, and I heard the command:

"Get up, doctor; give me your hand."

I rose and stretched out my bound hands, which were grasped by the hand of some person. I was led along a gravelly path; my nose informed me, by the peculiar musty smell pervading the atmosphere, that there were bushes and trees near.

Presently I was told (and though the voice of the speaker was not the voice of the lady I had seen, yet I felt convinced it was the voice of a woman)—I was told to be careful, as there were steps to mount up. Up we went, until I counted twenty, then I noticed a glimmer of light through the handkerchief fastened over my eyes; I heard a door cautiously closed, and I knew I was a prisoner in some house, or building, and at the mercy of my gaolers. I was now led over a stone floor, and ushered into a carpeted room; again I heard a door close behind me, and a click of a key turned in the lock. Then the hand that had guided me left my own, and I was standing alone.

I was not long left to myself. The bandage was gently loosed from my eyes, my hands were set at liberty. At first I realized only that I was in a large, magnificenty furnished bedroom, dimly lighted; nor was I left to take in more than a rapid glance. Then the veiled lady was once more at my side, and whispered: "Look around!" At that moment lights were turned up. I looked round. My heart almost ceased beating at what I saw. Fully twenty masked figures in men's habiliments stood not ten paces from me, in a half circle, with their right arms stretched out, and grasping in their hands pistols, ready cocked, pointed at my head! Twenty pistols ready to fire at me should I prove refractory.

The lights were suddenly lowered; and only one lamp burned brightly on a round, inlaid table that stood beside a bed.

"You see what you may expect," whispered the veiled lady, "if you refuse to do what you are brought here for. On that bed lies a girl. She has had the misfortune to receive a bullet in her breast. It will be your duty to extract the bullet with as much skill and care as possible. Afterward you will write out full instructions how to proceed with the wound, answer any questions you may be asked, and, your work being done and your fee paid, you will be conducted back to your home. I need not caution you to keep silent forever as to this night's work. Should you ever reveal what you have done, or put the police on our track, we have the means of vengeance, and your life will be the forfeit! Come!"

She led me to the bed. In all my experience up to now, I had never beheld so beautiful a creature as the one before me. She lay on her back, with her arms thrown over her head, her wealth of golden hair lying on the pillow. I cannot describe her features; it would be folly to attempt it. They were perfect as human features can be. Her skin was soft as velvet. Her face was pale; indeed, but for the short, quick breathing, in the soft light thrown from the lamp, she might have been taken for some divine piece of statuary chiselled by a master hand.

She bore the operation quietly, patiently, with scarcely a moan. I verily believe I was the greater sufferer of the two. I had to probe deeply before I discovered the bullet; I felt her lovely form quiver; a slight moan left her lips, nothing more. When I had performed the task, examined the wound, and done what I could, she rewarded me with the sweetest smile that ever illumined the face of fair woman

Pens, ink and paper were brought me by the veiled lady, and I wrote full instructions—indeed by this time I had become deeply interested in my lovely patient—how to treat the wound, what was to be her diet, etc. At the foot of the sheet I put these words: "If any dangerous symptoms appear, do not fail to seek my aid. You are safe with me now and ever.—J. S., M. D"

"You have done your work well, doctor, for which I thank you—nay, I could almost fall on your neck and kiss you. She is my own child, and you may perhaps guess how I love her."

"Madam," I said, "this has been a strange experience for me. I do not know who you are, nor the mode of your life; but I am glad to have rendered a service to that lovely creature whom you call your daughter. One request I should like to make."

"What is it?"

"Let me touch her cheek with my lips!"

The lady paused a moment. I saw her breast heave and swell, as her dark eyes flashed upon me through her veil.

"Granted," she said; "but I beg you will do it quickly and unseen by the others present."

I turned to the bed, apparently to see that all was comfortable. I put my ear to her face as though listening to her breathing. Then, for just one moment, my lips rested on her cheek.

Turning around, I saw the veiled lady with the bandage ready for my eyes.

"Is it necessary?" I asked.

"It must be; I dare do no other," she answered.

Then I submitted to be blindfolded once more, but my hands were left free.

"Here is your fee—a hundred guineas," said the veiled lady.

"A hundred guineas!" I exclaimed; "it is too much—ten would have been sufficient."

"You are welcome. Remember, we have bound you by an oath, but not a word to a living soul of what you have seen and done. I should be sorry to be your enemy."

"Madam, I am silent as the grave!"

I need not prolong my story by relating the return journey. I was taken back alone in the strange conveyance used to convey me thither

* * * * * *

Everybody old enough will remember the startling discovery made by the police, some twenty years ago, of a band of female housebreakers. The whole country was roused to intense excitement by the revelations then made. The newspapers for weeks provided the most thrilling accounts of the depredations the gang had committed, dressed in men's clothing—robbing gentlemen's mansions and the better-class houses. Only three of the gang were captured, an elderly woman and two younger ones; the rest escaped, and nothing could persuade those captured to betray their companions in crime. The elderly woman was said to belong to a Continental family of title, and it was supposed that she was the leader of the gang.

On the day of the trial I went to the court, for a strong suspicion had taken possession of me that my strange episode some years back had a connection with this gang of female burglars. When the prisoners were brought into the dock I at once recognized the form of the veiled lady. Casting her eyes round the court they fell upon me. I saw she recognized me. She gave a faint smile, put her fingers to her lips and wafted me a kiss. So artfully was this done that even the lynx-eyed reporters failed to notice the action, and so missed what might have been a very romantic bit of news for the millions who read an account of the trial next day. She and her two companions were sentenced to long terms of imprisonment, and so ended the great female burglar case.

I have often wondered what became of the fair creature, whose cheek my lips pressed for the first and last time. Did she die of her wound? If living, will she read what I have written? If she reads my narrative, I hope she will pardon my giving to the public what has been locked up in my own breast so many years, the telling of which cannot bring harm to the gang of thieves who practiced their unwomanly calling more than a quarter of a century ago.—Tit-Bits.

A DAMAGED EYE.

Jim Blaisdell Was Too Confounded Sympathetic to Suit the Colonel.

There are some people who have no imagination but cling to the literal with painful assiduity. Jim Blaisdell was one of these, and his happy faculty of taking things seriously lost him an elegant wife, says the Detroit Free Press.

It was this way: Col. Lafitte is a Southerner, and very sensitive, especially about his personal appearance, which is quite distinguished. He rather liked Jim, and Jim doted on the colonel's daughter, and it was a foregone conclusion in the family that Jim would win the girl, as the father was on his side.

One day the colonel took Jim to ride behind his cantankerous Kentucky mare, and she kicked the dashboard of the buggy into smithereens and landed both gentlemen by the roadside.

This wouldn't have been so bad, as neither of them was hurt, and the colonel was doing the driving; but Jim had to discover a fracture in the colonel's right eye, and he at once began to make a fuss about it.

"You're seriously hurt, sir," he said, in his most sympathetic manner.

"Nothing wrong with me," snapped the colonel, who was looking for the mare in a dazed sort of way.

"But your eye, sir, is badly damaged."

"Never mind the eye. Help me to catch the critter."

"I must insist on bandaging your eye first, colonel. Why, it is a blurred mass, and I greatly fear you have lost the sight of it," persisted Jim.

"Look here, you young fool," roared the colonel, "can't you attend to your own affairs. That eye, sir, is glass—do you hear—glass! glass!"

And that is why Jim didn't marry the colonel's daughter.

LATEST IN ENGLISH SLANG.

"Awfully Ghastly" and "Awfully Charming" Among the New Expressions.

There are fashions in speech as well as fashions in clothes, says the Pall Mall Budget. Everything in society just now is either "awfully ghastly" or "awfully charming, don't you know." If your new bonnet isn't awfully ghastly it must be awfully charming, and if Miss Fourstars' singing at the local concert the other evening wasn't awfully charming, then it must have been awfully ghastly. Pretty is no longer pretty, but pooty. Y—, the famous man milliner, has caught the trick from his duchess customers. You hear him talk glibly of pooty gowns and pooty gells. Gorgeous or deadly are the correct adjective to use when speaking of the weather. Nowadays it is quite customary for educated people to talk of the dook. In quite aristocratic circles the final g is dropped in many words. They talk of ridin', shootin', talkin', singin'. I suppose the next thing we shall hear will be, that they have ceased to aspirate their hs for the excellent reason that it has become so common for ordinary folks to do so. But, after all, these examples of affectation, ridiculous though they sound, are not quite so bad as the mincing style of affectation fashionable in days gone by. Mincing is now chiefly confined to old maids or young girls under twenty. Other folks don't seem to get time for it. In these days of push "side" seems to go further than mincing manners.

"And William—what's he doing?"

"He's a-preachin' of the gospel an' splittin' rails for a livin'."

"And what are you doing?"

"Well, I'm a-supportin' of John an' Dick an' William."

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

THE WORK OF DYNAMITERS

RESIDENCE OF A FRENCH MILITARY COMMANDANT WRECKED.

Fortunately the Plot Partially Miscarries and No Lives Are Lost—Forty Anarchists Arrested by the Marseilles Police.

Marseilles, Nov. 17.—A dastardly attempt was made to blow up the residence of Gen. Mathelin, commander of the Fifteenth corps, at about midnight. The house occupied by Gen. Mathelin is surrounded by a high wall into which sentry boxes are built. It is the official residence of the general of division commanding the Fifteenth army corps, which includes in its jurisdiction the lower Alps, the maritime Alps, the Bouches du Rhone, Corsica Gard, Star, Vauckles and Marseilles. Into the small niches of the sentry boxes a number of little cases of dynamite were placed, and in addition one case of dynamite was placed in a room adjoining the apartments occupied by the general and used by the ordilies of the commander of the Fifteenth army corps, where they await his summons. In some way not explained the case of dynamite placed in the orderlies' room exploded at about midnight with a loud report, shattering the walls and hurling a mass of debris into the guard room without, however, injuring the orderlies or hurting any of the soldiers in the guard room. Every pane of glass in the general's house and in adjoining houses was smashed by the force of the concussion, and the girls' school and octroi buildings opposite the general's residence were especially damaged. In addition a bomb was discovered in one of the passages of the general's house, and it is believed that the conspirators were under the impression that the explosion of the first case of dynamite would be sufficient to explode the bomb found in the passage, as well as the cases of dynamite placed in the sentry boxes, which, had these successive explosions taken place, would have reduced the general's residence to a heap of bricks, and would have killed every person beneath its roof, besides destroying the girls' school and its inmates as well as the octroi buildings. Forty anarchists have been arrested.

REVENGE OF AN ITALIAN

Deadwood, S. D., Nov. 17.—One of the most horrible tragedies ever known in the history of the Black Hills occurred at noon to-day in San Pit gulch, two miles west of here. Joseph Tha, an Italian, was married about a year ago to a cousin of Jocco Tametta. A few months after this wife left him and has made her home at her cousin's. Tha, after her repeated refusals to return to him and his failure to have refunded to him the money he sent her to come from Italy, made several attempts to blow up Tametta's house. To-day at noon he went to Tametta's house considerably under the influence of liquor, and shortly after shots were heard by the neighbors. Nothing was thought of it, however, until several hours later, when a peddler rapped at the door, and getting no reply, but hearing groans from within, entered. Lying around the room amid a horrible confusion of broken and scattered furniture lay Mrs. Tha, shot through the mouth; Tametta, with a ball in his breast, and Mrs. Tametta, with a frightful gash in her forehead inflicted with an axe, all cold in death. In the woodshed Tha laid gasping for breath, with a bullet through his head. In the midst of all this bloody horror Mrs. Tametta's two little children, a year and a half and three years old, were playing. There is no doubt but that the fiendish crime was premeditated, as the doors of the house were all locked on the inside, undoubtedly by Tha. Tha lived only a few hours and the others were doubtlessly killed instantly.

TOTAL LOSS.

Oswego, N. Y., Nov. 17.—The schooner Flora Emma, Capt. Fox, of Port Hope, Ont., with 144,000 feet of lumber, broke from her moorings in the outer harbor during the terrible gale last night and went ashore near the end of the east breakwater. The crew was rescued by the life saving crew. The tug Liza J. Redford went out into the storm to save the vessel. She labored heavily, burst a steam pipe and drifted helplessly alongside the schooner. Capt. Featherstonhaugh, of the tug, was washed overboard and drowned. Both tug and vessel are a total loss.

MENAGE ARRESTED.

New York, Nov. 17.—A special from Gautamala says: Acting on the request of the United States the police arrested to-day Louis Menage, the refugee from Minneapolis, where he was the head of the Northwestern Guarantee Loan company and was concerned in gigantic speculations. He fled the country and was supposed to have gone to Chile. Menage was greatly surprised by the arrest. His case resembles that of Weeks, and there is much comment in official circles, as it is known that the prisoner is under serious charges. Menage is cool, but nervous, and will not discuss the case.

ENO'S CASE UP AGAIN.

New York, Nov. 17.—The appeal entered by District Attorney Nicoll in the case of John C. Eno, asking that the decision of the circuit court in the habeas corpus proceedings be reversed and that the defendant be remanded to custody pending his trial upon indictments against him in the court of general sessions, is being argued in the United States circuit court to-day. Eno is making a strong fight for liberty, and it is doubtful if the decision will be reversed.

ROYALTY WEDS.

Munich, Nov. 17.—The marriage of Archduke Joseph Augustin of Austria and Princess Augusta of Bavaria, granddaughter of Emperor Francis Joseph, was solemnized here to-day with all the possible splendor of court ceremony.

HE HAS DISAPPEARED.

Minneapolis, Nov. 17.—The friends of W. D. Burton, a student at Carleton college, Northfield, and secretary of the Y. M. C. A. there, are very much worried over his disappearance. Young Burton's home is at 1510 Fourth street north in this city, and his mother when seen this morning was unable to tell what had become of her boy.

DEATH OF NATHAN WEBB.

Lakota, N. D., Nov. 17.—Nathan F. Webb, ex-county auditor and an old resident, died last Sunday of heart failure.

ST. PAUL GAMBLERS ARRESTED.

St. Paul, Nov. 17.—The gambling ordinance went into effect yesterday. Chief McGinn and several detectives entered Ed Murphy's pool room and watched operations. A young man made a bet and was examining his ticket when the hand of Chief McGinn was laid upon his shoulder and he was under arrest. The crowd caught on in a second. They did not stand upon the order of going, but went at once. They actually tumbled over each other in their hurry to discharge themselves through the narrow door in the rear. Every sport thought his turn would be next, and he disappeared as if his life depended upon his vanishing at once. In three minutes the room was as empty of sports as the day it was made. Nobody stayed but the officers, two betters who were arrested and the proprietor of the place and his satellites. Murphy smiled a weak and sickly sort of grimace and took his medicine. He, with Louis Hamilton, a bookmaker, were added to the list of prisoners, and the party marched to police headquarters. The young man who bought the ticket was released upon $25 bail, while Murphy and Hamilton each secured liberty upon putting up $100. M. E. Edwards, the fourth of the quartet, was taken to the police court on a charge of frequenting and betting at a pool room. Murphy will fight the ordinance in the courts.

The Tremont was not open for business. The saloon was in operation, but the blackboards were bare and the clerks were in the back office smoking their pipes. Frank Shaw could not be found, but from one of the employes it was learned that the place would remain closed until the proprietor had decided what course of action to pursue.

HAS WEAKENED.

Lincoln, Ill., Nov. 17.—The Logan county authorities refused to-day to deliver the Peoria, Decatur & Evansville train robbers to the authorities of Dewitt county, where two are wanted for burglary and larceny. The reason given for the refusal was that the attempted train robbing and assault to commit murders re more serious offenses, with ample proof to effect conviction. Half a dozen passengers have partially identified two of the prisoners, Vanmeter and Howes. The train men are awaiting a chance to look at the prisoners. The latter are nervous and surly. Woodward has weakened and promised to turn state's evidence. Ida Shelles is undergoing an examination in the presence of the sheriff, state's attorney and the railroad company's attorney, and a stenographer confirms the report of a detailed confession, she having previously told her brother-i-law, and he telling the chief of police for half of the reward.

KILLED HIS FATHER.

Morrison, Ill., Nov. 17.—Ernest Swarthout, was found guilty to-day of murdering his father and the punishment fixed at 14 years in the penitentiary. Albert Sarthout was a well-to-do farmer, a widower, who contemplated marriage again. His sons, Earnest and John, opposed the match. One day the remains of the father were found cut to pieces in the ashes of a hay stack on his farm, and a bullet hole in the head showed the manner of death. The sons were arrested. John, who was very sickly, made a dying confession later, in which he declared that he alone did the killing. It was pointed out on trial, however, that the bullet from his revolver was of a large calibre than that which killed the father and the jury evidently did not credit the confession, believing he made it to shield his brother, knowing he himself would never live to stand trial.

ALABAMA WRECK.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 17.—A passenger train on the Eastern Alabama railroad was derailed and wrecked near Lafayette, Ala., this morning. The coaches caught fire and Thomas Driver, a passenger, was burned up in the smoking car. The other passengers were rescued, but many were badly injured. Among the injured people are Judge J. R. Dowdell, arm and jaw broken, injuries fatal; E. J. Mitchell, skull fractured, injuries fatal; J. F. Mitchell, badly cut about the face and chest; W. O. Hunter, internal injuries; J. P. Osborne, arm broken, and a child of Mrs. Roberts, shoulder broken. Several other passengers were slightly bruised. All the wounded people are residents of Alabama.

HE PLUNGED.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 17.—Plunging on the races is the cause of a $15,000 defalcation on the part of Isaac F. Bissell, secretary and general manager of the American Saw company, which has its works here and its offices in New York. The shortage was discovered when the books were gone over upon the works closing down a short time ago. The stealing it is said has been going on for several years. Bissell has been arrested. His friends are endeavoring to raise sums to make good the amount, and if they succeed it is likely that Bissell will not be prosecuted.

LOCKED UP.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—The police have locked up three men thought to be the thieves who murdered James Prunty and shot his son and daughter. The prisoners gave their names as Thomas Burke, Fred Hall and Arthur Murray. From the description given by the Prunty family the officials are convinced the right men are under arrest. The one giving his name as Burke has been recognized it is said as an old time crook whose name is Wilson.

ON SUSPICION.

Chicago, Nov. 17—Three men, Frank Springer, Buck Hearns and Thomas O'Keefe, are under arrest for supposed complicity in the recent destruction by fire of the Chicago City Railway company's car barns. About $100,000 worth of property, including 400 horses, was burned. The charges against the defendants are that they were connected with the cause of the fire and stole a number of horses during the confusion attending the conflagration.

MASKED BURGLARS.

Eureka, Kan., Nov. 17.—The joint 'Frisco and Santa Fe station at Severy, this county, was robbed yesterday evening by two masked burglars, who were armed. They secured $130, compelling the agent to open the safe. After bidding him good bye and expressing the wish of seeing him again, they departed.

GRAND JURY WILL ACT.

Redwood Falls, Minn., Nov. 17.—Judge Webber has charged the grand jury to investigate the charges made by the county commissioners against County Attorney Madigan.

ALL QUIET IN HAWAII

THE PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT STILL IN EXISTENCE.

Affairs on the Islands Remain in Statue Quo—The Hawaiian Minister Steals a March Upon the United States Minister.

San Francisco, Nov. 20.—The Oceanic steamship Australia arrived from Honolulu, bringing a small list of passengers and information that no unusual occurrence had disturbed the course of affairs at the Hawaiian islands. Minister Willis had presented his credentials in due form to the provisional government and had been received as the accredited representative of the United States. He had not made public his instructions from the United States. Secretary Gresham's letter had not been received nor heard from, and so far as known by the public, Hawaiian affairs in the United States were still in statu quo. A passenger on the Australia says: "I went down on the steamer which carried Minister Willis to the island. I found out that the game of the administration had been flushed even before Willis left San Francisco. While he was waiting there for the departure of the steamer he was amazed to learn through sources which, of course, cannot be divulged that Hawaiian Minister Thurston at Washington had obtained full reports of the decision of the cabinet on the Hawaiian policy and had sent long dispatches, which would reach Honolulu at the same time Willis arrived, informing Dole of the decision of the cabinet to restore Liliuokalani. He urged upon him therefore to lose no time in preparing for the emergency. He told Dole of Secretary Gresham's argument lapsed the moment the United States formally declared against annexation, and urged him at once to declare a republic as the only means of saving the government from falling into the hands of the queen's followers. When Willis learned of this he was paralyzed, for it upset all his plans, which were founded on the assumption that Thurston was in ignorance of the decision of the administration. So he wired to Gresham, and it is believed received orders to proceed according to his own discretion and not to bring about an armed conflict if it could possibly be averted."

MR. BLOUNT'S REPORT

New York, Nov. 20.—The Herald this morning prints under a Washington date what purports to be a large portion of the report of Commissioner Blount. It sums up as follows:

"Commissioner Blount's report will show that Minister Stevens landed the troops from the Boston long before there was any valid excuse for their presence on Hawaiian soil; that he declined to remove them when requested to do so by the government and informed that the authorities were willing and fully able to preserve order and to protect American interests; that these troops were stationed across the street from the government building in which Minister Stevens knew the revolutionists were about to read their proclamation and that the revolutionists committee relied upon American troops to protect them in this act of rebellion; that Minister Stevens recognized the provisional government according to a preconceived programme before that government had obtained possession of the departments and military power at Honolulu, and that the military power was surrendered, as the queen surrendered, only through awe of the superior force of the United States. Commissioner Blount did his work with great thoroughness. During the five or six months of his stay in Honolulu he worked with a single purpose to ascertain the truth. He secured statements from members of the committee of safety which brought about the revolution, from officers of the Boston and from other persons, including the queen, herself. Some of these persons were examined by Mr. Blount, a stenographer being present."

SAYS HE IS SANE.

Chicago, Nov. 20. — Prendergast, the slayer of Mayor Harrison, whose trial is set for next week, is not pleased with the defense his attorneys have decided upon. "They propose to enter a plea of insanity," said he. "I shall object to that. I want to acknowledge the commission of the crime and plead and prove justification." "In what way will you prove justification?" "The broken promise to make me corporation attorney. And then there are other things. But it will all come out at the trial. I'm very much displeased with the idea of entering the plea of insanity. I'm not insane. I was justified in the shooting."

INJURES THE POOR.

Liverpool, Nov. 20. — Justice Day in charging the grand jury to-day referred to the case of fifteen men who are charged with rioting at Haydock colliery, and said that anything tending to disturb law and order injured the poor far more than the rich. Justice Day stated that order was essential for the welfare and prosperity of every rank, and that it was absolutely necessary that those guilty of rioting should be brought to justice.

GEN. GRANT OUT.

New York, Nov. 20.—A dispatch to a local paper from Washington says: Secretary Lamont will have an assistant secretary by the middle of next month. He has accepted the resignation of Assistant Secretary Grant, tendered at the time of the president's inauguration, to take effect Dec. 15. Gen. Joseph B. Doe of Janesville, Wis., adjutant general of the Wisconsin National Guard, will occupy the place on that day.

READY TO RESUME.

New York, Nov. 20.—Members of the reorganization committee having in charge the rehabilitation of the National Cordage are out with another statement that the company is almost ready to resume business. They say they have "secured a strong board of directors." The committee, however, is very backward in making public the names of the men who will serve as wet nurses.

SOLD STOLEN TICKETS.

Cincinnati, Nov. 20.—Cleveland I. Salter, claiming to be ticket accountant of the St. Louis, Chicago & St. Paul Railroad company, was arrested here for selling a large quantity of Southern excursion tickets. He had twenty-one skeleton tickets. He said he stole the tickets in Illinois and used a rubber stamp to complete the tickets.

KICKED TO DEATH.

Anoka, Minn., Nov. 20.—John Dwyer, a prominent farmer of Ramsey, was killed. He fell from a load of hay, and the horses kicked him to death.

MANY SAILORS LOST

London, Nov. 20.—Up to Sunday night at least 200 lives are known to have been lost during the gale which has swept over the British coast for forty-eight hours past, and in addition, the crews of several boats are still missing. The news arriving every hour records further fatalities and details the great damage done by the storm. It is generally agreed that the weather which has just visited the coast of England, Scotland and Ireland is the most severe in many years. Dispatches received from Banff say that the seashore for thirty miles is strewn with the wreckage of vessels. Some idea of the force of the gale can be gathered from the fact that two heavy railroad engines were blown off the track near Inverness, blocking all traffic north and necessitating the despatch of two wrecking trains to clear the track. The wreckage trains have not since been heard from, so it is supposed that the work has been impeded by a fall of snow. Tremendous damage has been done at West Hartlepool by the storm, which will cause much loss and consequent suffering to the miners of that locality. Considerable anxiety is expressed for the safety of the crews of a hundred fishing boats which were last seen being driven northward by the force of the gale. From all parts of Ireland, where there is telegraphic communication, come reports of the severity of the gale which has been accompanied there by a heavy snow storm. Several fatalities and numerous cases of injury are reported at Waterford, Carrick Fergus, Belfast, Newry and Skilibreen.

QUEEN OF THE OCEAN.

Boston, Nov. 20.—The Columbia has fairly won her title of queen of the ocean. Faster than ever sped warship or merchant vessel she steamed over the course from Cape Ann to Cape Porpoise on her trial trip, with the United States board of inspection on board. Her average speed for the 88 knots was 22.81 knots. But she steamed 7 3-4 knots of her run at a rate that averaged 25.03 knots an hour. It was a magnificent display of speed. By her little four-hour spin she won for her builders, William Cramp & Sons, the neat bonus of $350,500.

CHOLERA.

Barbadoes, Nov. 20. — The British bark Mendoza, Capt. Martin, bound from Dakar, Senegal, for Barbadoes, in ballast, reported during her voyage, cholera broke out on board and the captain and eleven men died from the disease. Only four of the men were left to navigate the vessel which drifted helplessly ashore on Vahelin reef, southeast coast of Martinique, and become a total wreck.

SHOT HIS WIFE.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 20.—Lewis Roberts one of the employes of the city park, shot his wife to-day, and then pointed his revolver toward his own breast and pulled the trigger twice, but it failed to go off. His wife though mortally wounded ran three blocks to a doctor's residence where police were telephoned and Roberts was arrested. He had been drinking heavily for three days and had threatened her life several times

YELLOW FEVER.

Brunswick, Ga., Nov. 20.—Five new cases of yellow fever to-day of which three were white and two colored. There were five patients discharged, all colored. The weather is still warm, cloudy and drizzling rain at intervals. The thermometer stands at 62 degrees. Reports show no abatement in the disease, and we have no reason to expect any until the arrival of a more decided cold wave.

HOTEL THIEF.

Cincinnati, Nov. 20.—Roxie McKernen, the hotel thief known under a dozen aliases in every large city in the country, was arrested here to-day. He had just came from Chattanooga, to which city he had gone after working the Chicago hotels.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN.

Boone, Iowa, Nov. 20.—The Sterling passenger train going east on the Chicago & Northwestern struck a buggy at the Coal Valley crossing, a mile west of Moingona, killing W. O. Whittaker, his wife and six-year-old child. The bodies were horribly mutilated.

WILLIAM TUTTLE KILLED.

West Superior, Wis., Nov. 20.—William Tuttle, a proprietor of hack and livery business in this city, was killed by a runaway. He fell from the hack and struck on his head on the curbstone. He leaves a wife and two children.

WON'T STEAL ANOTHER RIDE.

Bismarck, Nov. 20.—While riding on top of a box car across the Missouri river bridge near here an unknown man, supposed to be a hobo stealing a ride, was struck on the head by one of the iron bars on the bridge and knocked from the cars. He fell seventy-five feet into the water.

WILL HANG A BOY.

Winnipeg, Nov. 20.—At the Brandon assizes Philip Hill, aged sixteen years, was found guilty of having poisoned his employer, Albert Graves, a farmer, and was sentenced to be hanged in January.

VIKING NOT COMING.

St. Louis, Nov. 16.—The Viking ship which at the close of the world's fair left Chicago for an inland voyage, arrived at Grafton, Ill., yesterday, having been delayed five days on the Illinois river on account of low water, but being pulled through finally by a tug. Owing to reports from different places on the Mississippi showing very little water it will be impossible for the Viking to proceed north to St. Paul. The Viking, therefore, will proceed south. The captain came down yesterday afternoon to obtain a tow boat and pilot.

BAD MISTAKE.

Barnum, Minn., Nov. 16.—This morning while hunting M. Fraley shot and badly wounded J. Willard, thinking he was a deer. Willard was taken to Minneapolis. Both men were from Waseca, Minn. This is the third accidental shooting near here this fall. One man was instantly killed and one made a cripple for life.

WOODCHUCK.

Red Wing, Nov. 16.—There is due on the printing establishment at the state reform school about $1,100, but there seems to be no provisions for paying it. The state auditor has been presented with the bill, but says he has no authority to pay it, as there was no special appropriation voted for this purpose by the last legislature. Developments are awaited with interest.

THE BOOZE LAW.

Huron, S. D., Nov. 16.—William D. Messerschmidt, a German from Roberts county, was committed to jail here yesterday by United States Commissioner F. E. Grant, on default of bail in the sum of $300, to await the action of the United States grand jury at its next sitting, to answer to a charge of violating the government liquor laws.

A CONSUL DEAD.

Marshfield, Ohio, Nov. 16.—A telegram received here to-day from El Paso, Tex., announces the death at that place last night of United States Consul F. A. Johnson while en route to his post at Chihuahua. Mr. Johnson had been in poor health for some time.

EDITOR DEAD.

LIBERATED.

Berlin, Nov. 16.—Herr Ellende, the editor of the Sozialist, has been liberated from prison.

A $10,000 BLAZE.

Watertown, S. D., Nov. 16.—Schutt's tow mill, the largest in the state, together with ten car loads of baled tow, burned. Loss about $10,000; no insurance. The fire caught from an engine, and was the first fire in the city that has not been extinguished since the construction of the water works in 1888.

WAS IT A FAKE?

Washington, Nov. 16.—It was said at the state department that they had no knowledge of the arrest of Menage, the missing Minneapolis financier, who is said to have been traced to Central America.

If the following rules are observed when you find astrayed animals you will be on the right side of the law relating to such matters. If you take up an astray animal, you must within ten days give notice to your township clerk who must make entry of the same: then you advertise the matter in your local paper and sixty days after said advertisement has appeared you apply to the justice of the peace to sell the animal. He issues a warrant to the constable who gives ten days' notice on posters: then he sells it and you get your pay for expenses, The penalty for taking a stray animal and not giving notice is $5; and besides, the owner can come upon you and take it away without paying you anything.

A few farmers are still plowing. There is a certain class of farmers who would plow all winter if they could, Late plowing does not produce nearly the same yield as does early plowing, and while the fact is well known there is a great deal of late plowing done here each season. Many farmers lose sight of the fact that 80 acres of land well tilled will yield more handsomely than 160 acres poorly cultivated, and yet they keep right on biting off more than they can chew. Agricultural colleges or schools should be established at convenient distance throughout the country and God's noblest occupation made worthy of our best men.—East Grand Forks Courier.

Here are some reasons why wheat ought to be much higher than last year instead of cheaper, and are additional evidences that influences other than supply and demand are price-makers of that great staple: The visible supply July 1 to October 14 last year increased 31,000,000 bushel; this year, 3,000,000 bushel; primary receipts same period last year 102,000,000 bushels; this year 59,000,000 bushels, export wheat and flour same period last year, 51,500, bushels: this year, 67,500,000 How vicious, unnatural and brutal must the financial system be for that system is the root of the evil that can neutralize such potent price-makers, and keep the great staples of our farms at prices far below cost of production. —Farm Stock and Home.

The republicans won but it makes no difference with the times. Interest is just as high, money is not to be had, usury is still the rule, the price of coal is out of sight and freight is the same old figure. Rents are increasing, the express companies continue to rob the people, telegraph companies are still amassing fortunes by overcharging their patrons, the Standard Oil Company is doing business at the old stand, —in fact all the old schemes to swindle the people are still in vogue and in consequence the rich are growing richer and the poor poorer, under the existing order of things.

Thirty years of uninterrupted Repo. Dem rule:

Thirty years of the "best banking system the world ever saw;"

Thirty years of "honst money;"

Thirty years of "protection to American labor;"

Thirty years of "unexampled prosperity;"

And this is what we have:

Thirty thousand millionaires;

Thirty hundred thousand unemployed men;

A deficit of a hundred million dollars in the national accounts;

And a demand that the government issue 200,000,000, bonds, interest and principle payable in gold, to meet the ordinary running expenses of the machine.

This is Statesmanship.—Pittsbury Kansan.

The ravages of the fire fiend amounted to $140,000,000 It will probably reach $170,000,000 in 1893. Few people realize that the fire waste of this country, together with the expense of maintaining fire departments and fire insurance companies, absorbs the nations net production one year out of every seven: that the property anually destroyed by fire would maintain the United States pensions, or would build four or five world's fairs, or one-half would maintain the United States army and navy.

Geo. Brunelle returned from the Red Lake Reservation Saturday and has some interesting accounts of the doings on the reservation since the annual payments were made. The census showed two hundred less Indians than the year previous. W. R. Spears, the storekeeper, employed sixteen clerks during the rush which always follows the payments. The first day his cash receipts were $9,000.; the second day, $1,600 and the third $1,800. Enormous prices are obtained, for instance, kerosine oil 60 cents a gallon and flour $5.00 a hundred with other prices in proportion. It is stated that the Indians are dissatisfied with Spears and are becoming very bitter aganst him, threatening to burn his store. Mr. Brunelle has embarked in the trading business on a small scale. TIME TO ADJOURN.

Meeting Broken Up by a Too Truthful Man.

When it had been incidentally learned t the man with the corncob pipe was m Arkansas, the Cincinnati man winked ach one of us in turn and observed: Stranger, they have a species of bird ed a gallinipper down in your state, en't they?"

Yaas, a serter species," replied the old n as he lazily faced around.

I've heard they were monsters in size." Wall, some folks call 'em monsters, I ere."

And I've been told they could bite as d as a dog."

They bite party hard, stranger."

Do you live where the insects are called grown?"

Oh, yes. It is said that the big marsh n my house grows the biggest 'nippers he state."

Now then," continued the buckeye as lrew a long breath and winked at each of us again, "I'd like to know how e a 'nipper you ever saw? I've always ited to meet an honest, truthful man n your state who'd give me honest fig-

'd—I'd druther not tell," replied the n as he hitched around uneasily.

But why? You don't look like a man n to exaggeration, and I for one am ly to take your word for it."

'm afraid you wouldn't. You know ver some awful big 'nippers in Arkan-

I know you have, but I want to know big."

Really, but I dasn't tell."

Oh! Come off! Did you ever see one as as a full sized grasshopper?"

he old chap hitched some more.

As big as a canary bird?"

e ceased hitching to blush and look out e window.

Well, then, as big as a robin?"

Stranger, don't ask me to tell!" pleaded man from canebrake land.

But I do!" persisted the other.

And won't you call me a liar?"

No. I will implicitly believe whatever ement you make."

Wall, then, I'll make affidavy in any t that I've seen an Arkansaw 'nipper rge as—as large as"—

Go on, old man. Don't keep us in sus-se!"

Wall, I reckon the largest one I ever was mighty nigh as big around as a gle nail and mighty nigh as long as a et tack, and I reckon he was that sav-that if he'd bit a baby"—

Gentlemen!" interrupted the Cincinman as a look of deepest sorrow settled his face, "the meeting is adjourned! of you as care to stay and hear about baby can do so, but you will please ex-me! The Omen and What Followed.

"Tell me there's nothing in signs!" said Uncle Allen Sparks, looking meditatively into the fire. "I remember a young friend of mine named Smudgins who once laughed at the idea that anything disastrous was going to happen to him merely because he had seen the new moon over his left shoulder."

"Well, did anything calamitous happen to him?" inquired one of the group.

"Yes," replied Uncle Allen, with a sigh. "He went the same evening and proposed to the present Mrs. Smudgins—and she accepted him!"—Chicago Tribune.

A Hero Brought Low.

It is really surprising at times to find how little men know about the wares they are attempting to sell.

Quite recently an Italian with a basket full of plaster images over his arm entered a downtown business office and attempted to make a sale.

It was a dull afternoon, with no business doing, and the clerks and salesmen were engaged in reading the newspapers and in idle conversation. They turned their attention to the Italian as he entered, and one of the number began to guy him.

The Italian understood little English, and his replies to the crossfire of questions were conducive of laughter. This he took in good part, and finally he began to exhibit his merchandise. Among the images was a plaster bust of Mars.

"Mars, Mars," said one of the men to him, as he read the name on the bust, "who in the world was Mars?"

"Oh," replied the vender, not willing to admit his ignorance, "don't you know? Why, Mars is chief of police in Paris."

"Chief of police in Paris? Is he living now?" continued the gentleman.

"Yes," replied the other. "He is a famous man. A great man. As great as your great Byrnes. Won't you buy a bust of Mars, gentlemen? It's an excellent likeness."—New York Herald.

Quite True.

The paintings on the walls never cost less than $10,000, but the love of the sweet girl in the green silk was not less intense than it would be if they were only advertising chromos.

She had repeatedly assured the scion of a noble family, who sat beside her, that she would always feel the same way, and now the conversation had drifted to general topics.

"Of course," he was saying thoughtfully, "we do not learn our most valuable lessons in school."

Without a moment's hesitation she made reply.

"Well," she rejoined positively, "I should say not. Why, papa"—

Involuntarily her eyes turned toward the portrait of a man with a large neck just above the mantel.

—"didn't learn how to make butterine direct from the hog until long after he went into business for himself."

As the evening waned they discussed many things.—Detroit Tribune.

Disqualified.

"Where was your last place?" asked Mrs. Bronson.

"I cooked for Mrs. Smithers, ma'am."

"Oh! I know Mrs. Smithers very well. Did you cook that last dinner they gave to the Rev. Mr. Harkins?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Then you won't do. It was the worst dinner I ever ate."—Harper's Bazar.

A Cool Customer.

"Mr. Slowpay, you owe me three weeks' board. There will have to be a change," said a New York landlady to one of her boarders.

"Have patience, madam. There will be a change. In seven days more I will owe you four weeks' board."—Texas Siftings.

"Well, lend me that, and you'll owe me two!"—Wrinkle.

Proper Directions.

Customer—I'm looking for a tall man with one arm.

Floorwalker—Certainly. The remnant counter is just across the store.—Puck.

Quite Different.

Lulu—I am engaged to Henry Slocum.

Ella—So am I.

Lulu—Yes, but he wants to marry me.—Truth.

Tragic.

There was a pretty girl
And she had a pretty curl,
Which gracefully her forehead did envilgn.
But on one eventful day
She lost it, so they say,
Because she couldn't find her curling iron.
—Washington Star.

Breaking a Set.

She was an April bride and made her first appearance in the West Philadelphia market. Her movements were watched with evident interest by marketers and marketmen. After strolling around the place for a few minutes and getting the lay of the land she walked boldly up to a green grocer's stand.

"Do you keep pigs' feet here?"

"Over to the pork butcher's stand, miss," was the reply.

"I want some pigs' feet," she said, approaching the pork butcher. "I think two will be enough."

"Ah-h, we never like to break a set," exclaimed the butcher.

"A set? How many come in a set?"—Philadelphia Record.

The Grand Central Railroad Station Chicago.

Is being fitted up for hotel purposes during the World's fair. This magnificent fire-proof structure, located at the corner of Harrison street and 5th Avenue, in the very heart of the city, will devote the 3rd, 4th and 5th floors to this purpose. It will be run on the European plan. Each room will have hot and cold water, electric lights and be steam heated. The office and ladies parlors etc. will be located on the 3rd floor and the building will be supplied with all modern conveniences. There will be from 100 to 200 rooms for guests.

This acquisition to the hotel facilities of Chicago will be appreciated by those who wish to be safely housed in a fire-proof building, conveniently located in the city itself.

Those desiring accommodations can secure them by addressing Mr. T. C. Clifford, the manager, at Chicago Ill. The hotel will be opened May 15th 1893.

The Grand Central Station is the Chicago depot of the Northern Pacific railroad, [Wisconsin Central division] and by taking this through car line to the world's fair city, visitors will avoid the discomfort of transfer through the city.

From this station trains run direct to the world's fair grounds at intervals during the day.

VISITORS TO THE TWIN CITIES.

No one should visit the Twin Cities this summer without running out to Minnetonka Beach and Hotel Lafayette, the largest and best located resort house in the west. The lake is one of the most picturesque in the country and is well supplied with steamers and sailing, rowing and fishing craft. A number of regattas will be given. The Great Northern has a double track line to the lake and runs frequent trains.

MINNESOTA
STATE NORMAL SCHOOLS
WINONA, MANKATO, ST. CLOUD AND MOORHEAD.

These schools are organized for the training of teachers for the common schools of the state.

ORGANIZATION.—Each school comprises two departments —the normal department and the training department or MOdel School

The Normal department embraces;

(a) An elementary course for teachers of rural districts and elementary grades.

(b) An advanced course for teachers of advanced grades.

(c) A Professional course for teachers who have completed the required academic work elsewhere.

(d) A kindergarten training course (at Winona and St. Cloud.

ADMISSION.—Graduates of high schools and colleges and teachers holding county superintendents' first and second grade certificate are admitted without examination. All others are required to pass an entrance examination.

EXPENSES.—Tuition is free to all who pledge themselves to teach in Minnesota.

Text books are furnished at a rental of three dollars per year. Provision is made in each school for economical living. The average cost of furnished rooms with board is $3.00 per week The Ladies' Home at St. Cloud offers board, furnished room, heat and light at $3.10 per week.

The new dormitory at Moorhead will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall term.

DEVILS LAKE CHAUTAUQUA.

The first summer Assembly of the North Dakota Chautauqua comes off June 28th to July 17th. An extensive program has been arranged, including many noted speakers, singers, etc, and the occasion promises to be most interesting and instructive. Devils Lake is a summer resort point. The Great Northern Railway gives reduced rates. Address J. B. Fancher, Secretary, Devils Lake, N. D. for programs and other inform. A trip to the lake and assembly will make an enjoyable outing.

A LARGE DROP IN RATES TO THE WEST

The Great Northern inaugurated its new train service to the Pacific Coast on the 18th inst. With sweeping reductions in rates, amounting to 40 percent in many cases. The rate from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Puget Sound was reduced First-class from $60.00 to … to Spokane from $36 to $30; and to Helena and Butte from $40 to $35, with corresponding reductions on second-class tickets both through rates applying proportionately to intermediate points. It is the purpose of the Great Northern to make rates to help the development of its territory. It is much the shortest line across the continent, was built on business principles and at a cost of about one half of that of the other transcontinental lines, and is therefore prepared to correspondingly well by its territory and patrons in rates and accommodations.

Last summer I was attacked with a bad case of flux, and after taking four doses of Beggs' Diarrhoea Balsam was immediately relieved and cured. I have sold it for the past six months and can say that it gives general satisfaction.—J. W. Smith, M. D. Puxico, Mo.—For sale by J. L. Johnson, Druggist.

THEOLOGY AND LOGIC.

The Small Boy Bothers His Big Brother in a Terrible Manner.

One of Avondale's well known young men took his small brother out for a drive with him in his new dog cart the other afternoon and soon began to believe he had an elephant on his hands, for that small boy is of an inquiring turn of mind and can ask more unanswerable questions in a given space of time than any youngster on the heights, says the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette.

"Say, Charlie," he suddenly began, "is God everywhere?"

Rather startled by the sudden query, Charlie stammered: "W-why, yes, I guess so—why, of course— yes, God is everywhere."

"Is he in this dog-cart?"

"Why n-n—y-e-s—er—that is. I suppose —yes—why certainly—yes. He's in the dog-cart," faltered Charlie, doubtfully, as he turned to bow profoundly to two young ladies of his set.

"Well, then, say, Charlie, where is he —under the seat?" persisted the young seeker for the truth.

But the young ladies were just then smiling their prettiest and Charlie's mind was elsewhere—and he absent-mindedly replied hurriedly:

"Oh, yes, I suppose so."

Fairly bursting with indignation, the youngster jammed his pudgy fists into his preoccupied older brother's ribs and cried, in a voice that could be heard a half a block against the wind:

"Why, you impolite old thing! Aint you ashamed of yourself—you settin' there all over the best cushions and keepin' God down under the seat! Fie for shame! Move right over, so God can have room to sit down!"

Charlie nearly fell out of the dog-cart.

BESET BY WILD DOGS.

BY EDMUND COLLINS.

ALONG certain parts of the coast of Newfoundland, as well as of Labrador, are herds of wild dogs, lean, with shaggy hair and shy eyes, and when hungry they are as ferocious as any beast of which I have ever heard, for then they will not spare even man. Very little is known about their history, but it is generally believed that the wild dog is partly Newfoundland breed and part wolf, for it must be remembered that the wolf was once very numerous in Newfoundland and Labrador, hunting in large fierce packs across the wide stretches of barrens or treeless morasses. Many of the native dogs ran wild, and long ago were known to mix among the wolves about the coast and live in apparent friendship with them. The wolves in both these places have now grown scarce, but the dogs are still grouped together in several secluded coves and bays along the coast, living in open in summer and burrowing away in holes or under the ground firs and spruces away from storm and cold in winter. In summer time these animals live mostly by the seashore, where they find dead sculpins, capelan, herring, squids, tomcods and flat fish; often they plunge into the sea and feast upon the shoals of small fish that come near the rocks; when they are tired of fish they scamper away inland and hunt mice, rats, weasels, muskrats, young birds, rabbits and hares. But in winter they are often sore pressed for a morsel to eat, their chief food being almost entirely hares and rabbits, but they have been known to scour the plains for reindeer and to visit open ponds and brooks in search of otter and beaver.

One March morning two boys, Arthur and Fred Haley, the one about 16 and the other 18 years old, were spending a few weeks in a settlement on the northeast coast of Newfoundland, shooting the northern bird known as the great salt water duck. The coast, about twenty miles or so away from the settlement, was said to be haunted by wild dogs; indeed, these animals had sometimes actually dashed through the village in their search for food, frightening the inhabitants old and young. Once they seized a little boy not far from his home and tore him to pieces, so that everyone living there was in mortal dread of the vicious creatures.

The two boys set out early in the morning, their intention being to shoot seal in a cove about ten miles distant. They took with them a heavy gun each a pair of snow-shoes, a pair of skates, and enough provisions for the day. The course lay across a stretch of bleak barrens covered with snow, over which one could not pass without snow-shoes, as the crust was thin and brittle; as a long chain of ponds and lakes stretched along in the same direction for twenty or thirty miles, they brought along their skates. It was a clear, crisp morning, and two hour's travel, now on snow-shoes, again upon skates, brought them to the cove. There were several seals bobbing up and down in the clear water and they shot three or four but the wind having veered so as to blow off land, they could not obtain their prizes, and so left the place and set out across Island Head, about five miles further on, because they knew that in the shelter of this cape there was a bight where they could always find bottle-nose divers and big salt water duck. They used their snow shoes for only a short part of this tramp, as long stretches of smooth steel-blue ice lay across almost to the cove. As they drew near the place they took off their skates, hung them across their shoulders and approached noiselessly, for the ducks are very wary. A thin screen of scrub fir and spruce hid their approach and through this they crept on hands and knees to get full view of the bight; but instead of seeing clusters of seabirds as they expected in the calm water between the ice and the shore, the whole beach seemed to be moving, and Arthur whispered to his younger brother while clutching his arm:

"The wild dogs! I wonder if they have seen us?" But very clearly they had, for the off wind had carried their scent to the keen noses of the pack, and immediately the whole herd turned in the direction of the boys, their noses thrust in the air sniffling. There were probably about sixty of them, all long, lean brutes with shaggy hair, sharp noses, rather short ears and shy, skulking eyes. For a few seconds they ran back and forth on the beach, their heads now turned down but constantly keeping their eyes upon Arthur and Fred, who began to retreat back into the bushes. As they neared this shelter they saw that about a dozen of the dogs, some of which were large, and evidently the leaders, make up the bank, followed by the rest in a compact body. Then from all their throats came sharp, crying noises, somewhat like the barking of a dog and the yelping of a wolf combined; the tumult rose and fell, the leaders commencing the cry and all the rest following.

It was very plain that the pack was famishing with hunger, for the snow in all the region for a hundred square miles about was very deep, and the reindeers, hares and rabbits had gone farther south where they could find food. The brother made sure their guns were ready, and Arthur laying his hands upon Fred's shoulder said:

"Now these brutes are going to attack us; be careful about your aim. Fire when I fire, for we must not let them get too close. We can get four from our two charges; you fire at the right and I will take the left. If we can keep them scared off till we can get up to the ice, we can easily escape on our skates." They both turned, stood and faced the coming pack, but as soon as the ugly animals saw them they stopped coming directly forward and spread out to the right and to the left, then moved onward with the intention of surrounding them. Seeing their move the boys ran as fast as they could up the slope, but they had no sooner started than the most unearthly cries rose everywhere in the air from the pursuing herd, and every dog started in pursuit at a long, loping gallop. They soon got ahead of the fugitives, and there the two stood in the snow, surrounded by creeping half crouching beasts, who seemed afraid to rush upon them directly, but tried to approach them by stealth with their lolling tongues and hungry eyes, whenever their backs were turned.

"They are now within range, Fred," said Arthur, "you take these two big fellows there," pointing in front, "I will take two on this side." Both at once presented, taking sure aim; then there was a simultaneous report, then two other shots, one a little after the other, and four of the mongrels lay sprawled upon the snow. One of them only was dead, for the three others rose, and with piercing howls and yelps went backward to the rear of the pack. The boys immediately threw out the old cartridges and put fresh ones in their double-barreled guns, then dashed onward, for the circle of dogs had widened as the beasts took fright at the report of the guns. They succeeded during the panic in making a headway of a couple of hundred yards and broke through the circle; then they wondered why their pursuers all crowded together about the body of their dead comrade, but they soon saw that the famishing creatures had begun to devour it. Only eight or ten of them, however, could feast at the same time and after much yelping, biting and jumping, those who were not engaged in eating again started off in pursuit.

They are growing bolder and bolder, not galloping away so far ahead as they did at first, but coming directly for the two young hunters, and they approached them somewhat in the manner of a fawning tame dog who is afraid to approach his master, walking in a crouching manner with fore legs thrust far out and muzzle down. They never looked steadily at their victims, but thrust their heads from side to side as if trying to reach them unawares. The cartridges in the boys' guns were loaded with seal shot and would carry effectively sixty yards, so as soon as the more daring ones came within range four more shots rang out over the snow. This time two of the animals lay dead and one of the the others went hobbling and howling away, Fred, having missed with one of his barrels. The whole hungry tribe at once formed in two divisions around their dead comrades and as before began feasting. Then the boys discovered with consternation that they had no more shells loaded with seal shot, so they were obliged to put in those having small duck shot, which would be almost useless fired into the tough hides of these animals. While loading they ran with the speed of deer and they had now reached the top of the slope; here the snow was soft and deep, so they lost a couple of minutes in binding their snow-shoes to their feet. When they were ready to start about two-thirds of the pack had again surrounded them and began to close upon them from every point. They were in terror of letting the dogs get too near to them, and yet did not want to fire with their small shot at too far range, so they waited until five or six of their assailants had reached within twenty or thirty paces, then crack, crack, crack, crack, went the guns again. A couple of the dogs fell, but got to their feet again almost instantly, and limped off from the attack, but the noise of the guns created temporary confusion, and enabled the boys while loading afresh to get out of the deadly circle and on a couple of hundred yards more toward the ice. The whole herd once again joined in full chase, and just as Arthur and Fred got to the edge of the lake and were about putting on their skates the snarling crowd were within fifteen paces. They fired full into the faces of the leaders, emptying four barrels; then hastily finished fastening their skates; but this time the enraged mongrels did not hesitate long after the shots, but bounded forward, and reached the edge of the blue ice just as the boys were ready to strike off. Arthur was first on the ice, but as Fred was sliding down the bank a huge dog bounded forward and fastened its teeth in his shoulder. There was not a minute to loose, for all the rest had reached the brink, crying and howling, so Arthur raised his gun and struck the assailant with the stock a great swinging blow upon the head which sent him stunned and sprawling upon the ice. Away then the two went as if their feet had wings, their trusty steel skates fairly singing over the smooth, hard, blue ice.

After they got well started and had swung fully a hundred yards away from shore they turned and saw some of the disappointed pack tumbling and scrambling along the ice at a safe distance behind them. The remainder raced with might and main along the bank, but they could not keep up with the two expert and muscular young Northern skaters. Their cries were now those of baffled rage, and the sound echoed everywhere among the hills, but the two young sportsmen felt little concern, for a shining stretch of ice fully four miles long lay before them. When they reached the end of it, which did not take them a great many minutes, there was nowhere to be seen any of the wild dogs nor a cry to be heard. Then they fastened on their snow-shoes, ran quickly over the crust till they reached the next chain of lakes, and got home safely. The story of their adventure filled the settlement with wonder for many a day, and the boys were applauded as a pair of true heroes.

DOCTORS SHOULD BE COOKS.

Frying Pan Often Undoes All He Accomplishes for His Patient.

In some parts of Europe the impression prevails that a physican's training is not complete until he has become an expert in cooking, and the idea is not a bad one, says, Dr. Ohman-Dumesnil in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. At one of the colleges in which I studied the policy was much favored, and there were lectures on how to prepare food to suit different constitutions. Every one admits nowadays that cooking, and especially the indiscriminate use of the frying pan, is one of the commonest causes of dyspepsia, and many a time doctors go on prescribing remedies without effect simply because the cook is undoing all the good he effects by calling upon the weak stomach to do what it cannot possibly perform. There are very few articles of food that must be absolutely banished from the invalid's room, the exceptions being chiefly immature meats, and when all doctors learn how to cook as well as how to prescribe, this fact will be generally admitted.

BLUE GRASS GIRLS.

When They Are on Horseback Every Kentuckian Is Proud of Them.

I was in Frankfort the other day and saw a sight that was enough to cure any ordinary case of sore eyes and to make the blood of a Kentuckian dance through his veins like champagne and his eyes sparkle like the "moonstone." It takes a combination to produce this effect on a "native-born," and the blending in this case was most harmonious—a lissome young miss, as graceful as a sapling maple, mounted on a blooded bay thoroughbred, with limbs as keen and swift as the "black tail" of the boundless prairies of the West. She came down one of the shady avenues of elms and water maples that are called streets at Kentuck's capital at a clipping pace, and, halting suddenly before an old-time mansion, dismounted and rang laughing in, leaving her horse modestly to wait for his little mistress to return. I watched the pink face, golden hair and handsome riding-habit until they disappeared within the wide open door, and then turned my attention to the horse. His bridle was as delicate as a silken cord and on his back was a flat, Englishman's saddle with one small stirrup. As I stood looking the young girl came bounding out the gate and mounted, evidently pleased at the harmless admiration of a stranger.

"How do you manage to stick on that saddle?" I asked.

"Oh, it's the easiest thing in the world," she said. "Father is uneasy sometimes, but I always like a man's saddle best," and, bounding lightly to the horse's back, in another moment she was out of sight.

"That's one of the Kentucky girls we like to read about," thought I, and as I turned away I had a feeling akin to sorrow when I remembered how the graceful, healthful habit of horsebacks riding was falling into disuse among the Kentucky girls of the present day. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

Persistent Childhood.

A little girl made a great clamor one night, after she had gone to bed, insisting that a certain doll, named Elizabeth, should be brought up stairs to her. Her mother finally called up to her, after having commanded her two or three times to keep still:

"If I come up, Mary, I shall certainly whip you!"

"A-all right, mamma," said the little girl, choking back a sob, "and when you come up, p-p-lease bring Elizabeth!"

Another child, a boy, behaved so badly that his father said to him:

"My boy, I shall certainly have to buy a whip to punish you with!"

"And after you've whipped me," said the boy, his face lighting up, "may I take the whip to play horse with?"

A CHINESE CRUIKSHANK.

His Fascinating Cartoons Attacking the Opium Traffic.

The Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade has republished, in facsimile, a most curious set of Chinese cartoons on the national vice, which has an almost exact parallel in the famous Cruikshank series, known as "The Bottle," says the London News. The native Cruikshank begins with a picture of a happy home, at any rate of a happy summer house. The native debauchee is taking his first whiff. He reclines on a couch of ebony, inlaid with marble, and all his surroundings are elegant and luxurious.

This is No. 1 of the series. No. 2 represents parental expostulations—the youth on his knees before his father and promising never to do it again; No. 3, relapse, and No. 4, the wife painting scrolls for a livelihood in the miserable home. In No. 5 the smoker is at it again, while the wife and children, with a reckless indifference to perspective which is in itself suggestive of despair, weep by the side of the besotted father's couch, and the old mother does the work of a domestic drudge.

In No. 6 the wife loses her temper and dashes the smoking gear to the ground, while the infuriate debauchee tries to beat her with a bamboo. In No. 7 he is again sucking at the recovered pipe, while compassionate friends vainly offer him the food for which he has lost all appetite. In No. 8 wife and child regard him with horror, but he does not seem to mind. In No. 9 he has been sold up and his lodging is on the cold ground. In No. 10 the dogs are after him as he crawls through the villages. No. 11 is the same as No. 10, "only more so." In No. 12 we see him, or rather the wretched skeleton of him, crawling into a hole in the rocks, in a wintry landscape, to die—still hugging the pipe that has brought him to ruin.

"East, West, Home's Best."

It is a pleasing weakness of human nature to assume that every good thing belongs in a peculiar way to one's own country or to one's own special part of it. A Frenchman who had been spending a considerable time in Germany exclaimed, immediately after crossing the frontier back into his own country:

"There are birds singing in the trees. We are in France again!"

This story is matched by a true one of a New England woman who spent two years in Illinois, and returning to her beloved home, wrote as follows to a friend in the East:

"It is so nice to be back in the East and hear the locusts, katydids and brown thrushes once more."

All these creatures had made the summer air musical in the part of the country which she had been visiting, but during her banishment she had never heard them.

There is no oxygen in the air of the sun.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

A SYNOPSIS EMBRACING THE SALIENT POINTS.

Important Matters Discussed and Recommendations Made—The Wilson Bill Endorsed—The Hawaiian Matter Will Be the Subject of a Special Message.

Washington, Dec. 4.—President Cleveland's annual message, which was read in congress soon after that body convened at noon for its fifty-third regular session, is as follows:

To the Congress of the United States:

The constitutional duty which requires the president from time to time to give the congress information of the state of the Union and recommend to their consideration such matters as he shall judge necessary is fittingly entered upon by commending to the congress a careful examination of the detailed statements and well-supported recommendations contained in the reports of the heads of departments who are chiefly charged with the executive work of the government. In an effort to abridge this communication as much as is consistent with its purpose, I shall supplement a brief reference to the contents of these departmental reports by the mention of such executive business and incidents as are not embraced therein, and by such recommendations as appear to be at this particular time appropriate.

While our foreign relations have not at all times during the past year been entirely free from perplexity, no embarrassing situations remain that will not yield to the spirit of fairness and love which characterize a truly American foreign policy.

Of the outbreak in Brazil the president says: The struggle is between the established government, which controls the machinery of administration, and with which we maintain friendly relations, and certain officers of the navy employing the vessels of their command in an attack upon the national capital and chief seaport, and lacking, as it does, the elements of divided administration, I have failed to see that the insurgents can reasonably claim recognition as belligerents. Thus far the position of our government has been that of an attentive but impartial observer of the unfortunate conflict.

The questions affecting our relations with Great Britain have been treated in a spirit of friendliness. Negotiations are in progress between the two governments with a view to such concurrent action as will make the award and regulations agreed upon by the Bering sea tribunal of arbitration practically effective, and it is not doubted that Great Britain will co-operate freely with this country for the accomplishment of that purpose. The dispute growing out of the documentary tolls imposed in the Welland canal upon cargoes of cereals bound to and from the lake ports of the United States was adjusted by the substitution of a more equitable schedule of charges, and my predecessor thereupon suspended his proclamation imposing discriminating tolls upon British transit through our canals. A request for additions to the list of extraditable offenses covered by the existing treaty between the two countries is under consideration.

A Special Hawaiian Message.

It is hardly necessary for me to state that the questions arising from our relations with Hawaii have caused serious embarrassment.

Just prior to the installment of the present administration the existing government of Hawaii had been suddenly overthrown and a treaty of annexation had been negotiated between the provisional government of the islands and the United States and submitted to the senate for ratification. This treaty I withdrew for examination, and dispatched Hon. James H. Blount of Georgia to Honolulu as a special commissioner to make an impartial investigation of the circumstances attending the change of government and of all the conditions bearing upon the subject of the treaty. After a thorough and exhaustive examination, Mr. Blount submitted to me his report, showing beyond all question that the constitutional government of Hawaii had been subverted with the active aid of our representative to that government and through the intimidation caused by the presence of an armed naval force of the United States, which was landed for that purpose at the instance of our minister. Upon the facts developed, it seemed to me the only honorable course for our government to pursue was to undo the wrong that had been been done by those representing us, and to restore as far as practicable the status existing at the time of our forcible intervention. With a view of accomplishing this result within the constitutional limit of executive power and recognizing all our obligations and responsibilities growing out of any changed condition brought about by our unjustifiable interference, our present minister at Honolulu has received appropriate instructions to that end. Thus far no information of the accomplishment of any definite results has been received. When received they will be promptly sent to congress, together with all other information at hand, accompanied by a special executive message fully detailing all the facts necessary to a complete understanding of the case, and presenting a history of all the material events leading up to the present situation.

The Treasury Department.

The secretary of the treasury reports that the receipts of the government from all sources during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1893, amounted to $461,716,561.94, and its expenditures to $459,374,674.29.

There was collected from customs $205,355,016.73, and from internal revenue $161,027,623.93. Our dutiable imports amounted to $421,856,711, an increase of $52,453,907 over the preceding year, and importations free of duty amounted to $444,544,211, a decrease from the preceding year of $13,455,447. Internal revenue receipts exceeded those of the preceding year by $7,147,445.32. The total tax collected on distilled spirits was $94,720,260.55; on manufactured tobacco $31,889,711.74, and on fermented liquors $32,548,983.07. We exported merchandise during the year, amounting to $847,665,194, a decrease of $182,612,954 from the preceding year. The amount of gold exported was larger than any previous year in the history of the government, amounting to $108,680,844, and exceeding the amount exported during the preceding year by $58,485,517. The sum paid from the treasury for sugar bounty was $9,375,130.88, an increase over the preceding year of $20,335,309.

It is estimated upon the basis of present revenue laws that the receipts of the government for the year ending June 30, 1894, will be $430,121,365.38 and its expenditures $458,121,365.38, resulting in a deficiency of $28,000,000. On the 1st day of November, 1893, the amount of money of all kinds in circulation, included in treasury holdings, was $1,718,544,682, an increase for the year of $112,404,947. Estimating our population at 67,426,000 at the time mentioned, the per capita circulation was $25.49. On the same date was in the treasury gold bullion amounting to $96,657,273, and silver bullion which was purchased at a cost of $126,261,553.

The purchase of silver under the law of July 14, 1890, during the last fiscal year, aggregated 54,008,162.59 fine ounces, which cost $45,531,374.53. The total amount of silver purchased from the time that the law became operative until the repeal of its purchasing clause, on the 1st day of November, 1893, was 168,674,590.46 fine ounces, which cost $155,930,940.84 between the 1st day of March, 1873, and the 1st day of November, 1893, the government purchased under all laws 503,003,717 fine ounces of silver at a cost of $516,622,948. The silver dollars that have been coined under the act of July 14, 1890, number 36,087,285. The seigniorage arising from such coinage was 6,977,098.39 leaving on hand in the mints 140,699,760 fine ounces of silver which cost $126,678,218. Our total coinage of all metals during the last fiscal year consisted of 97,280,875 pieces, valued at $43,685,178.80, of which there was $30,038,140 in gold coin, $5,343,715 in silver dollars, $7,217,220.90 in subsidiary silver coin, and $1,086,102.90 in minor coins. During the calendar year 1892 the production of precious metals in the United States was estimated to be 1,596,375 fine ounces of gold, of the commercial and coinage value of $33,000,00, and 58,000,000 fine ounces of silver of the bullion or market value of $50,750,000, and of the coinage value of $74,989,900.

It is estimated that on the 1st day of July, 1893, the metallic stock of money in the United States, consisting of coin and bullion, amounted to $1,213,559,169, of which $597,697,685 was gold and $615,861,484 was silver. One hundred and nineteen national banks were organized during the year ended Oct. 31, 1893, with a capital of $11,230,000. Forty-six went into voluntary liquidation and 158 suspended. Sixty-five of the suspended banks were insolvent, eighty-six resumed business and seven remained in the hands of bank examiners, with prospects of speedy resumption. Of the new banks organized forty-four were located in the Eastern states, forty-one west of the Mississippi river and thirty-four in the Central and Southern states. The total number of national banks in existence on the 31st day of October, 1893, was 3,796, having an aggregate capital of $695,558,120. The net increase in the circulation of these banks during the year was $36,886,972.

Silver Purchase Repeal.

The recent repeal of the provision of law requiring the purchase of silver bullion by the government as a feature of our monetary scheme has made an entire change in the complexion of our currency affairs, and I do not doubt that the ultimate result of this action will be most salutary and far reaching. In the nature of things, however, it is impossible to know at this time precisely what conditions will be brought about by the change, or what, if any, supplementary legislation may in the light of such conditions, appear to be essential or expedient. Of course, after the recent financial perturbation, time is necessary for the establishment of business confidence. When, however, through this restored confidence the money which has been frightened into hoarding places is returned to trade and enterprise, a survey of the situation will probably disclose a safe path leading to a permanently sound currency, abundantly sufficient to meet every requirement of our increasing population and of business. In the pursuit of this object we should resolutely turn away from alluring and temporary expedients, determined to be content with nothing less than a lasting and comprehensive financial plan. In these circumstances I am convinced that a reasonable delay in dealing with this subject, instead of being injurious, will increase the probabilities of wise action.

Postoffice Department.

The report of the postmaster general contains a detailed statement of the operations of the postoffice department during the last fiscal year, and much interesting information touching this important branch of the public service. That there was a larger discrepancy than usual between the postoffice receipts and expenditures is the expected and unavoidable result of the distressing stringency which has prevailed throughout the country during much of the time covered by the postmaster general's report. At a date when better times were anticipated it was estimated by his predecessors that the deficiency on the 30th day of June, 1893, would be a little over $1,500,000. It amounted, however, to a little over $5,000,000. At the same time, and under the influence of like anticipations, estimates were made for the current fiscal year ending June 30, 1894, which exhibited a surplus of revenue over expenditures of $872,245.71; but now, in view of the actual receipts and expenditures during that part of the current fiscal year already expired, the present postmaster general estimates that, at its close, instead of a surplus of nearly $8,000,000. The postoffice receipts for the last fiscal year amounted to $75,896,933.16 and its expenditures to $81,074,104.90. This postoffice deficiency would disappear, or be immensely decreased if less matter was carried free through the mails, an item of which is upward of 300 tons of seeds and grain from the agricultural department.

There Will Be a Deficiency

The total number of postoffices in the United States on the 30th day of June, 1893, was 68,403, an increase of 1,284 over the preceding year. Of these 3,360 were presidential, an increase in that class of 204 over the preceding year. Forty-two free delivery offices were added during the year to those already existing, making a total of 610 cities June 30, 1893. Ninety-three other cities and towns are now entitled to this service under the law, but it has not yet been accorded them on account of insufficient funds to meet the expense of its establishment.

The railway mail service not only adds to the promptness of mail delivery at all offices, but it is the especial instrumentality which puts the smaller and way places in the service on an equality in that regard with the larger and terminal offices. This branch of the postal service has, therefore, received much attention from the postmaster general, and, though it is gratifying to know that it is in a condition of high efficiency and great usefulness, I am led to agree with the postmaster general that there is room for its further improvement.

The Navy Department.

The report of the secretary of the navy contains a history of the operations of his department during the past year and exhibits a most gratifying condition of the personnel of our navy. He presents a satisfactory account of the progress which had been made in the construction of vessels and makes a number of recommendations to which attention is specially invited. During the past six months the demands for cruising vessels have been many and urgent. There have been revolutions, calling for vessels to protect American interests in Nicaragua, Guatemala, Costa Rica, Honduras, Argentina and Brazil, while the condition of affairs in Honolulu has required the constant presence of one or more ships. With all these calls upon our navy it became necessary, in order to make up a sufficient fleet to patrol the Bering sea under the modus vivendi agreed upon with Great Britain, to detail to that service one vessel from the fish commission and three from the revenue marine.

The following vessels of the new navy have been completed and are now ready for service: The double turreted coast defense monitor Miantonomoh, the double turreted coast defense monitor Monterey, the armored cruiser New York, the protected cruisers Baltimore, Chicago, Philadelphia, Newark, San Francisco, Charleston, Atlanta and Boston, the cruiser Detroit, the gunboats Yorktown, Concord, Bennington, Machias, Castine and Petrel, the dispatch vessel Dolphin, the practice vessel Bancroft and the dynamite gunboat Vesuvius. Of these the Bancroft, Machias, Detroit and Castine have been placed in commission during the current calendar year.

The following vessels are in progress of construction: The second-class battleships Maine and Texas, the cruisers Montgomery and Marble head and the coast defense monitors Terror, Puritan, Amphitrite and Monadnock, all of which will be completed within one year; the harbor defense ram Katahdin and the protected cruisers Columbia, Minneapolis, Olympia, Cincinnati and Raleigh, all of which will be completed prior to July 1, 1895; the first-class battleships Iowa, Indiana, Massachusetts and Oregon, which will be completed Feb. 1, 1896, and the armored cruiser Brooklyn, which will be completed Aug. 1 of that year. It is also expected that the three gunboats authorized by the last congress will be completed in less than two years.

Immigration.

The superintendent of immigration, through the secretary of the treasury, reports that during the last fiscal year there arrived at our ports 440,793 immigrants. Of these 1,063 were not permitted to land under the limitations of the law, and 577 were returned to the countries from which they came by reason of their having become public charges. The total arrivals were 141,034 less than for the previous year.

The admonitions of the last two years touching our public health and the demonstrated danger of the introduction of contagious diseases from foreign ports has invested the subject of national quarantine with increased interest. A more general and harmonious system than now exists, acting promptly and directly everywhere and constantly operating by preventive means to shield our country from the invasion of disease and at the same time having due regard to the rights and duties of local agencies, would, I believe, add greatly to the safety of our people.

Sea Coast Defenses.

It is gratifying to note that we have begun to attain complex results in the comprehensive scheme of sea coast defenses and fortification entered upon eight years ago. A large sum has been expended, but the cost of maintenance will be inconsiderable as compared with the expense of construction and ordnance and at the end of the current calendar year, the war department will have nine 12-inch guns, twenty 10-inch and thirty-four 8-inch guns ready to be mounted on gun lifts and carriages, and seventy-five 12-inch mortars.

The manufacture of heavy ordnance keeps pace with current needs, but to render these guns available for the purposes they are designed to meet emplacements must be prepared for them. Progress has been made in this direction and it is desirable that congress by adequate appropriations should provide for the uninterrupted prosecution of this necessary work.

Abolish the Fee System.

The report of the attorney general contains the usual summary of the affairs and proceedings of the department of justice for the past year, together with certain recommendations as to needed legislation on various subjects. I cannot too heartily indorse the proposition that the fee system, as applicable to the compensation of United States attorneys, marshals, clerks of federal courts and United States commissioners, should be abolished with as little delay as possible. It is clearly in the interest of the community that the business of the courts, both civil and criminal, shall be as small and as inexpensively transacted as the ends of justice will allow. The system is, therefore, thoroughly vicious which makes the compensation of court officials depend upon the volume of such business, and thus creates a conflict between a proper execution of the law and private gain, which cannot fail to be dangerous to the rights and freedom of the citizens, an irresistible temptation to the unjustifiable expenditure of public funds.

I also heartily join the attorney general in recommending legislation fixing degrees of federal jurisdiction, as has been done in many of the states, authorizing writs of error on behalf of the government in cases where final judgment is rendered against the sufficiency of an indictment or against the government upon any other question arising before actual trial; limiting the right of review in cases of felony punishable only by fine and imprisonment to the circuit court of appeals, and making speedy provision for the construction of such prisons and reformatories as may be necessary for the confinement of United States convicts.

Agriculture.

The report of the secretary of agriculture will be found exceedingly interesting, especially to that large part of our citizens intimately concerned in the agricultural occupation. On the 7th day of March, 1893, there was upon its pay rolls 2,430 employes. This number has been reduced to 1,850 persons. In view of a depleted public treasury and the imperative demand of people for economy in the administration of their government, the secretary has entered upon the task of rationally reducing expenditures by the elimination from the pay rolls of all persons not needed for an efficient conduct of the affairs of the department. During the first quarter of the present year the expenses of the department aggregated $345,876.70, as against $402,021.42 for the corresponding period of the fiscal year, ending June 30, 1893. The secretary makes apparent his intention to continue this rate of reduction by submitting estimates for the next fiscal year less by $994,280 than those for the present year.

The amount of the appropriation for the bureau of animal industry for the current fiscal year is $850,000. The estimate for the ensuing year is $700,000. The regulations of 1892 concerning Texas fever have been enforced during the last year, and the large stock yards of the country have been kept free from infection.

The total number of inspections of cattle for export during the past fiscal year was 611,542. The exports show a falling off of about 25 per cent from the preceding year, the decrease occurring entirely in the last half of the year. This suggests that the falling off may have been largely due to an increase in the price of American export cattle during the year ending June 30, 1893. Exports of inspected pork aggregated 20,677,410 pounds, as against 38,152,874 pounds for the preceding year. The falling off in this export was not confined, however, to inspected pork, the total quantity exported in 1892 being 665,490,616 pounds, while in 1893 it was only 527,308,695 pounds.

The exports of agricultural products from the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, attained the enormous figure of $800,000,000 in round numbers, being 78.7 per cent of our total exports. In the last fiscal year this aggregate was greatly reduced, but, nevertheless, reached $615,000,000, being 75.1 per cent of all American commodities exported. A review of our agricultural exports with special reference to their destination, will show that in almost every line the United Kingdom of Great Britian and Ireland absorbs by far the largest proportion. Of cattle, the total exports aggregated in value for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, $26,000,000, of which Great Britian took considerably over $25,000,000. Of beef products of all kinds, our total exports were $28,000,000, of which Great Britian took $24,000,000. Of pork products the total exports were $84,000,000, of which Great Britian took $53,000,000. In bread stuffs, cotton and minor products of like proportions sent to the same destination are shown.

In the year 1839 the congress appropriated $1,000, to be taken from the patent office funds, for the purpose of collecting and distributing rare and improved varieties of seeds and for prosecuting agricultural investigations and procuring agricultural statistics. From this small beginning the seed division of the department of agriculture has grown to its present unwieldy and unjustifiable extravagant proportions. During the last fiscal year the cost of seeds purchased was $66,548.61. The remainder of an appropriation of $135,000 was expended in putting them up and distributing them.

In each state and territory an agricultural experiment station has been established. These stations, by their very character and name, are the proper agencies to experiment with and test new varieties of seeds, and yet this indiscriminate and wasteful distribution by legislation and legislator continues, answering no purpose unless it be to remind constituents that their representatives are willing to remember them with gratuities at public cost.

Civil Service Reform.

The continued intelligent execution of the civil service law and the increasing approval, by the people of its operation are most gratifying. The recent extension of its limitation and regulations to the employes at the free delivery postoffices, which has been honestly and promptly accomplished by the commission by the hearty co-operation of the postmaster general, is an immensely important advance in the usefulness of the system.

I am, if possible, more than ever convinced of the incalculable benefits conferred by the civil service law, not only in its effect upon the public service, but also, what is even more important, in its effect in elevating the tone of political life generally.

—Since 1883 congress has at each session authorized the building of one or more vessels, and the secretary of the navy presents an earnest plea for the continuance of this plan. He recommends the authorization of at least one battleship and six torpedo boats. While I am distinctly in favor of consistently pursuing the policy we have inaugurated in building up a thorough and efficient navy, I can not refrain from the suggestion that the congress should carefully take into account the number of unfinished vessels on our hands and the depleted condition of our treasury in considering the propriety of an appropriation at this time to begin new work.

The Pension Bureau.

On the 30th day of June, 1893, there were on the pension rolls 966,012 names, an increase of 89,944 over the number on the rolls June 30, 1892. Of these there were seventeen widows and daughters of revolutionary soldiers, 86 survivors of the war of 1812, 5,425 widows of soldiers of that war, 21,518 survivors and widows of the Mexican war, 3,882 survivors and widows of Indian wars, 284 army nurses and 475,645 survivors and widows and children of deceased soldiers and sailors of the War of the Rebellion. The latter number represents those pensioned on account of disabilities or death resulting from army and navy service. The number of persons remaining on the rolls June 30, 1893, who were pensioned under the act of June 27, 1890, which include also pensions on account of death and disabilities not chargeable to army service, was 459,555. The number added to the rolls during the year was 123,634, and the number dropped was 33,690. The first payments on pensions allowed during the year amounted to $33,576,540.98. This includes arrears or the accumulation between the time from which the allowance of the pension dates and the time of actually granting the certificate. Although the law of 1890 permits pensions for disabilities now related to military service, yet as a requisite to its benefit a disability must exist in incapacitating applicants "from the performance of manual labor, to such a degree as to render them unable to earn a support." The execution of this law in its early stages does not seem to have been in accord with its true intention, but toward the close of the last administration an authoritative construction was given to the statute, and since that time this construction has been followed. This has had the effect of limiting the operations of the law to its intended purpose. The discovery having been made that many names had been put upon the pension roll by means of wholesale and gigantic frauds, the commission suspended payments upon a number of pensions which seem to be fraudulent or unauthorized pending a complete examination, giving notice to the pensioners in order that they might have an opportunity to establish, if possible, the justice of their claims, notwithstanding apparent invalidity.

I am unable to understand why frauds in the pension rolls should not be exposed and corrected with thoroughness and vigor. Every name fraudulently put upon these rolls is a wicked imposition upon the kindly sentiment in which pensions have their origin.

The Indians.

The condition of the Indians and their ultimate fate are subjects which are related to a sacred duty of the government and which strongly appeal to the sense of justice and the sympathy of our people. Our Indians number about 249,000. Most of them are located on sixteen reservations containing 86,116,531 acres of land. About 10,000 of these Indians have, to a large degree, adopted civilized customs. Lands in severalty have been allotted to many of them. Such allotments have been made to 10,000 individuals during the last fiscal year, embracing about 1,000,000. The number of Indian government schools open during the year was 195, an increase of 12 over the preceding year. Of this total 17 were on reservations, of which 73 were boarding schools and 97 were day schools. Twenty boarding schools and five day schools supported by the government were not located on reservations. The total number of Indian children enrolled during the year as attendants of all schools was 21,138, an increase of 1,231 over the enrollment for the previous year.

The law providing that, except in special cases, army officers shall be detailed as Indian agents it is hoped will prove a successful experiment.

There is danger of great abuses creeping into the prosecution of claims for Indian depredations, and I recommend that every possible safeguard be provided against the enforcement of unjust and fictitious claims of this description.

Tariff Reform.

Economy in public expenditure is a duty that cannot innocently be neglected by those entrusted with the control of money drawn from the people for public uses. It must be confessed that our apparently endless resources, the familiarity of our people with immense accumulations of wealth the growing sentiment among them that the expenditure of public money should in some manner be to their immediate and personal advantage; the indirect and almost stealthy manner in which a large part of our taxes are exacted, and a degenerated sense of official accountability have led to growing extravagance in governmental appropriations.

The duty of public economy is also of immense importance in its intimate and necessary relation to the task now in hand of providing revenue to meet government expenditure and yet reducing the people's burden of crate taxation. After a hard struggle tariff reform is directly before us. Nothing so important claims our attention and nothing so clearly presents itself as both an opportunity and a duty—an opportunity to observe the gratitude of our fellow citizens, a duty imposed upon us by our oft-repeated professions and by the emphatic mandate of the people. After full discussion, our countrymen have spoken in favor of this reform, and they have confided the work of its accomplishment to the hands of those who are solemnly pledged to it.

If there is anything in the theory of a representation in public places of the people and their desires, if public officers are really the servants of the people, and if political promises and professions have any binding force, our failure to give the relief so long awaited will be sheer recreancy. Nothing should interfere to distract our attention or disturb our effort until this reform is accomplished by wise and careful legislation. While we should staunchly adhere to the principle that only the necessity of revenue justifies the imposition of tariff duties and other federal taxation, and that they should be limited by strict economy, we cannot close our eyes to the fact that conditions have grown up among us in which justice and fairness call for discriminating care in the distribution of such duties and taxation as the emergencies of our government actually demand. Manifestly, if we are to aid the people directly through tariff reform one of the most obvious features should be a reduction in present tariff charges upon the necessaries of life. The benefits of such a reduction would be palpable and substantial, seen and felt by the thousands who would be better fed and better clothed and better sheltered. These gifts should be the willing benefactions of a government whose higher function is the promotion of the people. Not less closely related to our people's prosperity and well being is the removal of the restrictions upon the importation of the raw materials necessary to our manufacturers.

The world would be open to our ingenuity and enterprise. This cannot be while federal legislation through the imposition of high tariff forbids to American manufacturers as cheap material as those used by their competitors. It is quite obvious that the enhancement of the price of our manufactured products resulting from this policy not only confines the market for these products within our own borders to the direct disadvantage of our manufacturers, but also increases their cost to our citizens. The interests of labor are certainly, though indirectly, involved in this feature of our tariff system. The sharp competition and active struggle among our manufacturers to supply the limited demand for their goods, soon fill the narrow market to which they are confined. Then follows a suspension of work in mills and factories; a discharge of employes and distress in the homes of our workingmen. Even if the often disproved assertion could be made good, that a lower rate of wages would result from free raw material and low tariff, does the intelligence of our workingmen lead them quickly to discover that their steady employment permitted by free raw material is the most important factor in their relation to tariff legislation.

A measure has been prepared by the appropriate congressional committee embodying tariff reform on the lines herein suggested, which will be promptly submitted for legislative action. It is the result of much patriotic and unselfish work, and I believe it deals with its subject as consistently and thoroughly as existing conditions permit. I am satisfied that he reduced tariff duty provided for in the proposed legislation added to the existing internal revenue taxation, will in the near future, though, perhaps, not immediately, produce sufficient revenue to meet the needs of the government. The committee, after full consideration, and to provide against a temporary deficiency which may exist before the business of the country adjusts itself to the new tariff schedules, have wisely embraced in their plan a few additional internal revenue taxes, including a small tax upon incomes derived from certain corporate investments.

The new assessments are not only absolutely just and easily borne, but they have the furtherment of being such as can be remitted without unfavorable disturbance whenever the necessity of their imposition no longer exists. In my great desire for the success of this measure I cannot restrain the suggestion that if success can only be attained by means of unselfish counsel on the part of the friends of tariff reform, and as a result of their willingness to subordinate personal desires and ambitions to the general good. The local interest affected by the proposed reform are so numerous and so varied that if all are insisted upon the legislation embodying the reform must inevitably fail.

In conclusion my intense feeling of responsibility impels me to invoke for the manifold interests of a generous and confiding people the most scrupulous care and to pledge my willing support to every legislative effort for the advancement of the greatness and prosperity, of our beloved country.

Mules Average Higher in Every State in the Union Except Oregon.

If nobility may be estimated in dollars, the mule is a nobler animal than the horse, says the New York Sun. Yet there are no autumnal mule shows, and even if there were it is hardly probable that flower-adorned young women would make a practice of patting the prize animal. The only way to pat a mule, according to the Texas code, is with a fence rail or a board. The man who collected horse and mule statistics for the census report shows that the average price of a mule is $7 more than the average price of a horse. The ordinary mule in South Carolina, which owns about 53,000 of the long-eared beasts, is worth about $90; the average price of a horse in the same state is about $79. Texas probably has more mules (about 200,000) than any other state. The average price is about $41, or nearly twice the value of a Texas horse. In Missouri mules are worth about $7 more and in Kentucky about $3 more than horses. Only a few states have no mules, or so few that the statistician didn't make a note of them. One of these states is Rhode Island, which the mule driver of Texas doubtless would think is not any too large a pasturage and play ground for a festive mule of Southern birth. Oregon is the only state where horses bring higher prices than mules. The ordinary mule out there is worth $48 and the horse $51. The figures for California are: Mules, $67; horses, $48. In Pennsylvania, where mules, famous for longevity, are much used in the mines, they bring about $86; horses, $67. In this state there are seventy times as many horses as there are mules, which number about 14,000. A New York mule is worth $91 and a horse $79. Mules are prized more in New Jersey than in any other state, the average price being about $106, or $30 more than horses. Illinois has about 140,000 mules, or more than any other Western state.

THE OPENING OF CONGRESS

DETAILS OF HOW THE LONG GRIND WAS BEGUN.

Members of Both Houses Listen Attentively to the Reading of President Cleveland's Message — The Memory of Mr. Neil Respected.

Washington, Dec. 5.—In the midst of regal surroundings, well fitted for most ostentatious ceremonies, the opening of the regular session, Fifty-third congress, was attended with typical American symplicity. From shining dome to gloomy vaults the great, white building has been made ready for this important session, and many changes in the interior arrangements have occurred during the short respite from the labors of the extra session. The hall of the house of representatives, with polished corridors, windows and doors, was resplendent by the presence of beauty and the genius of oratory. More than an hour before Speaker Crisp ascended the rostrum the galleries were thronged with true American womanhood. When at high noon the speaker, without other than the usual every-day formality, called the house to order, the scene was impressive, for this session is fraught with more lasting results than any during the past twenty years. With few exceptions the leaders were all present. Tawney, McCleary, Hall, Kiefer, Fletcher, Baldwin and Boen were at their posts, and each appeared invigorated by the late recess. Rev. Bagby, in his invocation, referred feelingly to the death of "Father" O'Neil and Mr. Lilley. According to the rule at the opening of the session, the speaker then directed the clerk to call the roll in order to officially ascertain the presence of a quorum. The roll showed 240 members present. Gen. Grosvenor of Ohio then escorted H. S. Bundy of Ohio, elected to succeed the late Representative Enochs, to the bar of the house, and the speaker with uplifted hand administered the oath of office to him. Mr. Griffin, the successor of the late Mr. Chipman of Detroit, Mich., was sworn in, and following this various reports of bureau officers were taken from the speaker's table and formally laid before the house. Chairman Sayers, from the committee on appropriations, asked unanimous consent for the consideration of a bill appropriating $50,000 additional to pay the salaries of officials engaged in the enforcement of the Chinese deportation and registration act of last May and the amendment to that act passed at the extra session. Mr. Baker of New York, objected. He afterwards withdrew his objection, however, and the resolution was passed. At 1:35 p. m. Mr. Pruden, the White House executive clerk, appeared with the president's message, and Speaker Crisp immediately laid it before the house. Clerk Kerr read it in a clear, firm voice. The gallaries remained silent, and the members, leaning forward in their chairs, listened attentively to Mr. Cleveland's message. The house then, as a mark of respect to the memory of the late Mr. Neil, adjourned.

The senate lost no time in getting into working order and at once took a recess. Promptly at 1:33 the senate resumed its session, and Mr. McPherson, of the committee to wait upon the president, appeared at the bar of the senate and announced that the president would communicate with the house in writing. Secretary Pruden at once stepped forward and delivered the message and it was laid before the senate by the vice president, who directed its reading. The secretary of the senate, Mr. Cox, then read the message. The senate also adjourned as a mark of respect to the late Mr. Neil.

Dry Goods Ruined.

St. Paul, Dec. 5.—Last evening between the hours of 9 and 9 fire and water caused about $100,000 damage to the stock of the Powers Dry Goods company. The handsome five-story brick building, erected and owned by Noyes Bros. & Cutler, and which is occupied by the Powers Dry Goods company, was damaged to the extent of $5,000 by the fire. The loss on the stock and building is fully covered by insurance, placed on the stock with the insurance firm of Prince & Shandrew and on the building with various local companies.

A Bank Smashup.

Hot Springs, S. D., Dec. 5.—The Minnehaha State bank failed to open its doors this morning. The bank has been in bad shape for some months, and most of the deposits have been withdrawn. The $1,600 belonging to the school district of Hot Springs could not be raised by the bank, and several days ago an order from the district court was served restraining it from paying out money until this claim was satisfied. This was the immediate cause of the closing of the bank. No statement has been made of its condition.

Schoooner Wrecked.

Philadelphia, Dec. 5.—During a heavy blow on the coast yesterday the two-masted schooner M. E. Bayard, Capt. Camp, from New York to Norfolk, Va., while attempting to make the Delaware breakwater for harbor, dashed against the rock-built ice-breaker and was almost rent asunder. The vessel immediately filled with water and her crew of five men narrowly escaped death, but were finally rescued by the life savers.

Lost Cash and Furniture.

Dundas, Minn., Dec. 5.—The residence known as the Strange property, owned by the Building and Loan Association of Faribault, was totally destroyed by fire. The entire furniture of Mr. Searles, valued at $250, was destroyed. Total loss, $1,000; insured for $600. Eighty dollars belonging to Mr. Searles was burned.

Chicago Man Killed.

London, Dec. 5. — Andrew Stoddard Rhodes, a Chicago passenger on the ship Campania, fell from a train while going to Glasgow Saturday evening and was killed.

Death of Jerome B. Potter.

Mauston, Wis., Dec. 5.—Jerome B. Potter, twice assemblyman from this district, died yesterday of consumption at his home, nine miles south of here. He was sixty-seven years old and a farmer. He was a prominent Mason, and that order will have charge of his funeral.

J. J. Hill as a Landlord.

Moorhead, Minn., Dec. 5.—The final decree in the foreclosure of the Grand Pacific hotel was filed to-day by Eller & How, St. Paul attorneys, whereby the absolute title of the property is vested in J. J. Hill.

Georg Osmun has been in town several days this week buying hides.

C. G. Rapp went over to Grand Forks on business last Monday.

E J Holmes was at Crookston on business the first of the week.

Prof. Wishard was at Crookston a couple of days last week.

Prof. Wishard is suffering from a slight attact of the grip and the scholars have a holiday today.

George W. Smith representing Wells Stone Merchantile Co. of Duluth has been in town the past week in the interest of that company.

E. H. Strannahan the local agent for the Mutual Life Ins, Co. informs us that he has written several policies lately. He represents a first class company and any-one in need of life insurance should give a local agent the preferance.

The dance on Thanksgiving night at Bjerk,s Hall was well attended and all seemed to enjoy themselves we now have a good warm hall and they should be more frequent.

The ladies of the M. E. Church are preparing to give an Oyster Supper at that place on Friday evening Dec. 15 They will also have a sale of fancy goods. All are kindly invited.

Conductor Murfy was in charge of the train last Monday and we understand that he will have this run for some time. He is a hustler and we may expect the train more often on time.

We have been having some exceedingly cold weather lately for this time of the year and if the weather continues to get colder, by January we may expect something that will break the record.

District court convened at Crookston last Monday. The term will be a long one as there are seventy four civil cases on the calendar besides a number of criminal cases. It is thought that the time will be continued into January.

OUR COUNTRY DISGRACED.

Chas. A. Dana, in the New York Sun bitterly denounces the president's policy respecting Hawii. He says: "Never before has an American executive undertaken to stamp out republicanism and to set up a monarchy in any part of the World. Never before, we belive, has an American president issued orders for the assassination of a free and succesful government. Never before has an officer of this government undertaken, upon his sole reponsibility and without consulting congress or the people, to decide the destiny of a foreign country in friendly diplomatic relations with ourselves. Never before has a president invited or commanded his cabinet advisers to assist him in the odious business of setting up a rotten and broken throne. Was there no American spirit in the cabinet when this policy of infamy was decreed? Walter Q. Gresham would have done well to tear his commission into pieces and fling the pieces in the face of his master rather than to sign his name to a document which carried to the nation yesterday the announcement of the nation's shame.

CONGRESS MEETS TO-DAY

At high noon the Fifty-third congress assembles in regular session in Washington today. There will come before it more than the usual grist o important measures. The tariff bil and Hawaiian muddle will have the major portion of attention. There are the election and bankruptcy bills left over from the last session to be settled. Chairman Springer, of the currency committee has a new brand of national bank currency to propose. Chairman Bland of the coinage committee, will again go through the form of introducing a free coinage bill. Then there is the important ways and means to provide the government with revenue, that must be looked after. Instead of providing the necesary revenue as it was designed, the proposed tariff bill leave, the government $85,000,000 short. This heavy shortage must be made good by some kind of direct tax. There is abundant field for the party in power herefore, during the ensuing winter to display all its statesmanship in its possession,—Minneapolis Tribune.

The people down in Wisconsin and Michigan so the Pioneer Press says are eating their dogs these days to keep from starving. Here are idle men living under republican laws and democratic administration eating dogs. These democratic days are "dog days" as it were. Well, those men we presume voted, most of them, for either the democratic or republican ticket and should not "growl" if they have to put up with dog fare. We could not make them believe that the times were not alright last fall. They will after about nine days of dog diet get their eyes open.—Crookston Tribune

The largest fish caught in the Columbia River so far this season was a sturgeon measuring 11 feet 8 inches long and weighing 755 pounds, which was landed at Knappton Wash. a week or so ago. The head alone weighed 151 pounds and the fish yielded 427 pounds of edible meat.

Some fellow has given it out that we are now to have the most severe winter since 1888, because the husks on corn are much thicker than usual, the hog's meat runs jagged, instead of smooth, the goose bone taken from May raised fowel shows larger and whiter spots than customary, the crop of nuts of all kind is immense, ducks are flying in U-shaped, instead of V shaped flocks toward the south, and the green frogs are changing their coats. The poor fellow has just found this out, after it has been 30 below and after the geese and ducks have been south for weeks.

FARMERS ALLIANCE MEETING.

THE FOLLOWING COMMUNICATION OF E. E. LOMMEN, PRESIDENT POLK COUNTY ALLIANCE

The Polk County Alliance will meet on the 47th of December and having secured the Hon. S. M. Owen to deliver an address at that time, we hope every alliance in the county will be represented. Call a meeting of your alliance at once and elect delegates to the county meeting. Please send the names of the delegates elected to Hon. John D. Knuteson at McIntosh, Minn., so a list can be prepared thereby saving much valuable time. The question of the Minnesota Alliance joining the secret order of the F. A. & I. U., will come up before the state meeting hence I hope each local alliance will at its meeting discuss the advisadility of taking such a step and send delegates who are prepared to act as you desire.

Never has the necessity of a farmers organization been greater than now. The producers are being ground between the upper and lower millstones. Combinations fix the price of our products so the farmer can barely exist while upon the fruits of his labor colossal fortunes are being built up by the option gamblers, railroad magnates and usurers. New trusts are being formed very dry to destroy competition regulate the output of manufacturies and thus secure to themselves the full benefit of that monster of iniquity the McKinley tariff The great "Financial Conspiracy" has been consummated silver has been stuck down, the debts of the country are vastly increased by the ruinous policy of contraction of the volume of legal tender debt paying money.

The "honest dollar" has now become so valuable that it requires more than two bushels of wheat to buy it, and by the time the Demo-Republic-Voorhees Sherman combine get through with it, it will be "out of sight."

The bi-metalic platform upon which Cleveland was elected has now become too small for him, and his antics in pretending as dictator in giving congress notice beforehand that he would under no circumstances allow silver to be recognized, is a spectacle to make angels weep and the imps of darkness gloat over the train of miseries that must follow. We are fast becoming a homeless people. Already one-fourth of the farmers are tenants, speculation in grain, the usuries of Shylock and class legislation in favor of the rich is doing its deadly work and doing it well Shall we then disband in despair and join in the worship of the golden calf?

Is it not wiser to continue the fight even through the obstacles to be overcome seem insurmountable. Let every alliance man and friend of reform in the county come and hear Hon. S. M. Owen speak and you will not only have a literary treat, but the nuggets of wisdom which fall from the lips of a man who has grown old in the battle for human rights are pearls to be treasured by every lover of freedom.

S M Owen will deliver an adcress at Crookston on Dec. 27th. Mr. Omen as a good speaker and always has something to say that is interesting. All who can should go down and hear him. It is very probable that he be the next Peoples party candidate for govoner, and he will undoubtly be elected.

President Cleaveland's message to congress was delivered on Monnay. He recommends a revision of the tariff, and says the Hawiean situation is embarasing, that the commicioner of pensions is all right, and that civil service goes. On the great question of finance he only says "Dont be in a hurry", and suggests no remedy for the present hard times. The message clearly endicates that the president's policy is to follow the dictates of his English, Wall Streets friends. We wonder how much he will get out of it.

PURELY PRACTICAL.

He Wasn't Half as Much of a Fool as He Looked.

As he shot into the editorial arena he wiped his bald head with his gaudy silk handkerchief.

"I want to be attacked," he said as he winked at the answers to correspondents editor.

"The man who attacks people and who sheds the innocent gore of indignant readers who have had their names spelled wrong in the paper can be found down the passage, second floor on the left," said the mild young man, who was indicting an answer to Julia B.'s request for a recipe to remove freckles from her ear.

"You misunderstood my meaning, young man," said the stranger as he dived into his pocket and produced a 3 by 8 business card, on which was printed:

> B. H. PULKERHAM,
> Dealer in Choice Teas, Unparalleled Coffee, Cheapest Sugars and all kinds of Family Groceries, Domestic and Imported, at the Great Continental Store and Family Supply Emporium, > 63 WASHINGTON AVENUE.

"Well, Mr. Pulkerham, what can we do for you?" said the editor.

"You see, mister, it's just this way," said the grocer as he took a chair. "Business ain't what it orter be and ordinary advertising don't seem to draw worth a cent. Now, ever since Sanford, who keeps the tea store on the corner above, was accused of having two wives living—one in the penitentiary and the other hawking fruit in St. Louis—the women flock to his store to buy their groceries. Now, if you would write a column saying that I had eloped with two beautiful daughters of one of our leading citizens, and my wife, for the sake of the family, had kept the horrid secret to herself, it might draw Sanford's customers to my store. I'll go away for a few days, and the sympathy my wife will get will give my business a boom that will tide us over these dull days."

"You are not half as much of a fool as you look," said the editor.

"Well, that is neither here nor there. You send up one of your young men to get some pointers as to my bad character from the neighbors. Give me a whole column. Don't spare me. Say that I keep my old grandmother chained in the cellar. Pile it on as thick as you have a mind to. I'll pay the bill—full rates. A whole column, remember, on the first page, with a big headline. So long."—Texas Siftings.

They Couldn't Eat In Public.

A tender blade, with a blush on his cheek and down on his lip, drove up to a Lewiston hotel on Tuesday and hitched his horse. Then he helped out a pretty lass in a hat with white feathers, and with a blush on her cheek that defied the setting sun to match. "Ken I hitch my hoss while we eat dinner?" said he. The clerk said they could, or he would send it around to the stable. He signed his name and then scratched something out, and when it finally was completed the better half of it read, "and wife."

In the dining room they attracted universal attention. The head waiter not catching sight of them immediately, he began to edge to the door, but she pulled his sleeve. Their attack on the bill of fare was unique. She was dainty and didn't want anything but lemon pie. He preferred soup, but didn't care for anything else. He was bashful and stammered when he asked for anything, and in getting away from the table he was awkward and knocked over a glass of water on the table. In the office he simply said: "Darn it! They all knew we were jest married. Where is there an all fired good s'loon where we kin get a square meal an nobody lookin?"

They got the right direction, and the restaurant man says that the young bride ate a sirloin and a slab of custard pie, and the groom got away with two oyster stews and an eight inch segment of unadulterated mince.—Lewiston Journal.

GROSS.

A Tall Man Explains His Sentiments and Then Gets to Work.

"What," said the tall man, as he took a seat at a restaurant table, "is so gross as eating? Why cannot we, people modeled in the shape of the gods, live without this vulgar feeding process? Why must we come three or four times a day, seat ourselves at table and devour masses of various sorts in order to keep ourselves alive? In my Utopia I hope there will be no eating or suspicion of eating. I want all food to be tabooed, cast away, annihilated. I want to live without those pangs of hunger which are so unæsthetic, and be able to bask day after day in beautiful sunlight and hear magnificent music, untrammeled by thoughts of breakfasts, dinners and suppers and free from the enslavery of stomach"——

"Will the gentleman order?" broke in the waiter.

"No, no; go away! I can conceive no more beneficent fate than an eternity spent where there are no cooks. I want nothing better hereafter than an eon of life without a meal or a suspicion of a luncheon. I pine for an epoch of existence where there shall be no thought of the grosser side of our anatomies. I long to live without hunger and thirst. I want to be where I can worship art, where I can pay court to beauty in whatever form, where harmonious colors and soothing music shall be my only stimulant"——

"Will the gentleman order?" broke in the waiter again.

——"my only stimulant and whole life shall be one endless succession of day dreams, and there will never be heard the ringing of the breakfast bell or the fanfare of the dinner horn. I"——

"Will the gentleman kindly order?" said the waiter for the third time.

"I want—what's that? Want my order?"

"Yes, sir," said the waiter, "the other gentlemen are waiting."

"Well," said the tall man, glancing hastily over the bill of fare, "you may bring me some pork chops and Bavarian cabbage, a sausage and a schooner of beer."

And he wondered why the waiter snickered.—Buffalo Express.

How She Brought Him to Time.

"I think the way Blanche Biggerstaff brought her young man to time was a little ahead of anything I ever heard before," said Mamie Stivetts to a bevy of girls.

"Oh, has she landed him at last?" said one.

"Tell us about it," demanded the rest.

"You know he's been going to see her for years, and they are dead in love with each other."

"No doubt about that."

"He was too bashful to propose, and at the same time he was crazy to get married."

"Yes; go on with the story."

"Well, the other evening he was at the Biggerstaffs' as usual, when Blanche remarked:

"'The girls are all wearing guards to their engagement rings now.'

"'Indeed?' replied Mr. Linger.

"'Yes, and you have never given me a guard for mine, Charlie,' says Blanche.

"'Why,' stammered Charlie, 'I never gave you an engagement ring, you know.'

"'Yes, I know,' replied Blanche, as meek as Moses."

"Well, what then?" demanded the girls impatiently.

"Why, he took her an engagement ring and a guard, too, the very next evening."—New York Mercury.

Slightly Mixed.

A few years ago, when it was the custom for the groom to kiss the bride at the altar after the marriage ceremony, a young lady made a very laughable remark. It was on the occasion of a cousin's wedding in one of New York's most fashionable churches, and when the happy man kissed his bride, this young lady exclaimed quickly to a neighbor in a shocked voice:

"I didn't know it was kistomary to cuss the bride!"—Harper's Bazar.

Not the South American Kind.

"There," said the Chicago wag, pointing to a round shouldered young fellow in a greasy jacket and overalls, "is a man who has taken part in some of the greatest revolutions of the age."

"That man? Impossible! Who is he?" ejaculated the eastern visitor.

"Oh, he was one of the engineers at the Ferris wheel."—Detroit Tribune.

Still Another.

"There seem to be two classes of people in your country," said the observant foreigner on a tour through the United States, "those that have wealth and those that are struggling frantically to get it."

"There is a third," replied young Asa Spayds, "the sons of rich men. They struggle frantically to spend it."—Chicago Tribune.

KEEP OUT THE FLIES.

They Have a Bad Reputation in Connection With Microbes.

As a result of the modern discovery and investigation of microbes it has been found that next to air in motion flies are the most active agents in the spread of these animalcules that constantly threaten the lives of the human family. There is the authority of the celebrated Russian physician named Sawtsckenko, who has literally been delving into flies, that during a siege of Asiatic cholera no agent is so active in the spread of the dread malady as are flies. This scientist has made many experiments with flies and demonstrated again and again the presence of the comma bacillus of cholera in what are commonly called fly specks. This bacillis he repeatedly found active two or three days after the insects had been fed on cholera cultures. He experimented both with the common house fly and what is known as the blue bottle fly. He first fed them with cholera cultures and then on sterilized bouillon. He found that when the flies were fed on the intestinal contents of victims of the cholera scourge all sorts of bacteria were discovered with the contagious bacilli excretions of these insects, but the cholera germs were found to lose none of their virulence and activity during their passage through the body of the fly. In commenting on these investigations the New York Sun naturally asks the question as to whether or not these common, slimy occupants of almost every dwelling are not also active agents in the spread of such germ diseases as diphtheria, scarlet fever, yellow fever and smallpox.

It is generally conceded that the fly has been responsible for the spread of tuberculosis by feeding upon the sputum of tuberculosis sufferers and carrying the poison into a dwelling where he is often permitted to wallow in the butter, drown himself in the cream pitcher or revel in the sugar bowl and possibly get drunk on the rim of the wine glass. There is no doubt that in times of epidemic a fly in a dwelling house may be the insidious agent of death. The only safety in times of epidemic, whether it be cholera, smallpox, yellow fever or any of the infectious infantile diseases, is to quarantine him, and the way to quarantine him is to put in some kind of fly screens, no matter whether they are wire or the ordinary mosquito netting. It is a poor dwelling, indeed, that cannot afford a little piece of mosquito netting to bar out Mr. Fly. If perchance a fugitive does now and then dodge in when the door is open it is an easy matter to fold up a newspaper and slap the life out of him. Keep out flies and so keep out infections.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Martial Astronomy.

Men may be good soldiers without being scholars, and it is also true that men may be amusing when they are weighed down by the gravest responsibilities.

On the evening before a solar eclipse not long ago the colonel of a regiment of German infantry sent for all his sergeants and said to them:

"There will be an eclipse of the sun to-morrow. The regiment will meet on the parade ground in undress. I will come and explain the eclipse before the drill. If the day is cloudy the men will meet in the drill-shed as usual."

"To-morrow morning, by order of the colonel, there will be an eclipse of the sun. The regiment will assemble on the parade ground, where the colonel will come and superintend the eclipse in person. If the day is cloudy the eclipse will take place in the drill shed."

The soil is exceptionally good, loam and clay subsoil generally, the best meadow land. It will make a fine stock farm and a beautiful home, and before many years will be made very valuable by an electric line to the city. This land is offered at a great sacrifice. It is worth $100 per acre. Address H. S. FAIRCHILD, New York Life B'ld'g, St. Paul, Minn.

New Form of Street Car for Ambulance Work.

A commendable idea has been worked out in the construction of a new form of ambulance car at Lyons, France, which is a military station, and where there is frequent occasion for the conveyance of the sick of the garrison to the great military hospital. For this purpose, and also for the transport of provisions and stores for the military service, it has been the custom to employ the ordinary street cars, but the running of a special car has been inaugurated. The lines belonging to the street lines have been supplemented by additional rails, both at the point of departure, where the car is housed, and at the hospital, where the car can be run into a wash house for the purpose of disinfection. The car has a platform at each end and is divided into two compartments, one of which, lighted by eight casements, with movable glass and blinds, is furnished with two fixed benches to accommodate eight persons, four on either side. The other compartment, lighted by a skylight, which can be opened, is very much like the interior of the French regulation ambulance wagon, and gives accommodation to four patients on stretchers suspended on two lines. When not required for recumbent patients the space can be utilized by sitting patients. The stretchers can be moved in any direction; or, if necessary, placed under the seats. The interior of the car is painted a mahogany color, and as the floor has been treated with boiled linseed oil, the whole can be easily washed and disinfected. A small cupboard is provided for cleaning articles, and in winter the car is heated by steam. The vehicle is painted a bright green, and is further distinguished by flying the flag of the Geneva convention.

HEALTHY CHILDREN come from healthy mothers. And mothers will certainly be healthy if they'll take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Nothing can equal it in building up a woman's strength, in regulating and assisting all her natural functions, and in putting in perfect order every part of the female system. It lessens the pains and burdens of child-bearing, supports and strengthens weak, nursing mothers, and promotes an abundant secretion of nourishment.

It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, a soothing and bracing nervine, and a guaranteed remedy for women's ills and ailments. In every chronic "female complaint" or weakness, if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

Thousands of people, with worse cases of Catarrh than yours probably is, have been permanently cured by Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. That is the reason why its proprietors are willing to promise you $500 if you can't be cured.

A Novel Source of Danger From Lightning.

A singular incident, indicating a hitherto unsuspected danger from lightning has been related by A. A. Voysey in an English technical journal. A fringe, which was nailed to an ornamental table, was found after a thunder storm to be almost entirely burnt on the side furthest from the window, the wood being charred to a depth of one-eighth to one-quarter of an inch where the fringe was burnt. But there was not a mark or sign of any kind that would denote that the lightning had struck the table and passed to the earth. The damage to the table was completely isolated. It was proved beyond question that no one had entered the room with a candle. A close examination of the fringe, which consisted of a fluffy material, probably a mixture of cotton and wool, and surely of an inflammable nature, was made, and here the explanation of the mystery was found. Interspersed among the fluffy material were fine metallic threads, which were acted upon inductively by the lightning discharges taking place near the house. This inductive action was sufficient to cause small sparks to fly between various threads, and the sparks set the inflammable material on fire. If the fire caused in this peculiar manner had not quickly died out the whole house might have been destroyed and no sign would have been left to point to the true cause. It seems not unlikely, after such an incident, that a large percentage of the fires that occur in connection with thunder storms, and that are generally attributed to the direct action of a lightning discharge have been caused by induction. The eminent English electrical authority, Prof. Lodge, in commenting on this "new danger," says: "The note regarding indirect fire from lightning is interesting. It would be difficult to vouch for the occurrence in any particular instance, but I am already convinced that such resonant sparks occur and do cause fires. There is an instance at the Hotel de Ville, Brussels. Gas leaks act as the usual tinder. One would not expect a fringe to catch fire quickly enough."

Narrow Escape.

In Arabic there are two different words to designate an unbeliever. One of them is inoffensive, but the other, which is gafer, corresponding nearly with our word "infidel," is habitually employed by the Mohammedans against Christians, while a Christian is punished with death if he applies it to a follower of Mohammed. Such a fate nearly befell a missionary, who tells the story.

During my residence in Abyssinia, the Arabic language had become less familiar to me, so that inadvertently in conversation I used the offensive word gafer. Instantly the people seized me and dragged me to the judge, crying: "He is worthy of death! He ought to die!"

I perceived that I had committed a fault, and though it was only a fault of grammar, I felt a great repugnance at dying for such an offense, and cried to God to deliver me.

Conversing on the way with my accusers, I caught them giving to a passage in the Koran a sense which I knew to be false. While we were discussing it we saw not far off an old sheik, much venerated for his sanctity, and we agreed to leave the question to him; but for fear my opponents would misrepresent the case, I called to him at a distance, "How do you understand this passage in the Koran?"

He interpreted it as I had done. I then asked him what he would call such persons as understood the passage in the other manner.

"They are gafer," he replied, using the terrible word I had myself employed.

The crowd immediately dispersed in silence, and I was delivered.

THE NAVY DEPARTMENT.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE NAVY.

Secretary Herbert Satisfied With the Progress Made in Naval Construction During the Past Year but Believes That More Should Be Done.

Washington, Nov. 30.—Secretary of the Navy Herbert begins his annual report by stating that during the past year nine war ships have been launched and six more completed. The results of the various speed trials, already familiar to the public, are given. The progress thus far made in our naval development is shown in tables, which give the number and type of effective war vessels which this country will possess when those new building are completed, and also a similar list of vessels of the principal foreign naval powers. The secretary requests authority to devote the $450,000 authorized for the construction of a vessel similar to the Vesuvius to the construction of three torpedo boats; and he also recommends that congress should so increase the limit of cost of the swift torpedo cruiser authorized by the act of June 30, 1890, as to enable the department to have this vessel laid down during the next fiscal year.

"Surveying the whole field, we find much to be proud of in the knowledge that we can furnish the material for, and build, modern ships of war as quickly and, without any doubt, as well as any country in the world. I feel confident that some of our shipyards rival the best in Europe." After a statement showing the progress upon vessels now being built, the secretary details the cost of the twenty-five vessels which have been completed since March 4, 1885, as follows: Cost of construction, $19,823,459.35; armament, $3,107,009.85; outfit under steam engineering, construction and equipment, $1,483,045.95; premiums, $580,910.07; total cost of construction, including armament, equipment and premiums, $25,000,432.12; expended for repairs since completion, $910,008.83."

The amount expended upon the twenty-three uncompleted ships is $20,701,056.65.

Ordnance.

"The production of modern high-power guns at the Washington factory is progressing satisfactorily. The gun plant at this establishment is not surpassed by any in the world, and increased experience has resulted during the past year in still greater economy in all branches of manufacture. Up to the present time there have been completed for service 237 guns, ranging in caliber from 4-inch to 13-inch, all of which have not only proved successful upon trial, but have also given results which show conclusively that the general system of construction employed has no superior in foreign countries."

Emmensite and nitrate high explosives have been experimented with during the year and successfully fired from high-power guns up to and including the 6-inch caliber. A detonating fuse has been used in the shells charged with emmensite, with which excellent results were obtained.

The manufacture of armor-piercing projectiles in this country is now well established. Exhaustive tests of these shells show conclusively that they are equal, if not superior, to any armor-piercing shell manufactured abroad. The advent of Harveyized nickel-steel armor, however, has so changed the conditions of attack as to render the higher development of armor-piercing projectiles absolutely essential.

The tests of armor plates during the past year have been most important, some exceeding in severity any ever attempted either in this country or abroad. The results of these tests have been conclusive in demonstrating the desirability of using the Harvey process for the armor of all the vessels now under construction. In one test, that of a 14-inch nickel-steel Harvey plate, the results were remarkable. Against this plate were fired four 10-inch Holtzer armor-piercing shells, with striking velocities of 1,472, 1,859, 1,950 and 2,059 foot-seconds, respectively. All four of these projectiles were crushed on the plate, the greatest penetration, which did not exceed 11 inches, being that of the last shot which was fired at a fragment of the plate weighing but 4.4 tons, with a striking energy of 14,715 foot-tons, or 3,344 foot-tons per ton of plate attacked. It is believed that such an energy per ton of plate has never been used in any test.

Regarding the Vesuvius

the secretary says: "It is just possible that the experiments with the fifteen-inch pneumatic guns now in course of construction for the war department may not give such results as to convince this department of the value of the guns of the Vesuvius for naval purposes. The vessel has now been in the possession of the government for three and one half years, and in case experiments with pneumatic guns in the near future show these guns to be of little or no value for naval purposes, it would be in the interest of economy to transform her into a vessel available for efficient service with as little delay as possible. With this end in view, I recommend that congress give the department conditional authority to transform this vessel into a torpedo cruiser."

During the past year the available vessels of the navy have been almost constantly employed, and the necessity for their services in different parts of the globe has been so continuous that the department has felt constrained to keep vessels in commission which needed extensive repairs and should have been laid up for that purpose.

Naval Policy.

Under this head Secretary Herbert says: "It was not his (Secretary Whitney's) purpose, nor has it at any time been the intention of congress, to build a navy equal to those of such great naval powers as France and England, but it is certainly sound policy to maintain a navy at least as efficient, when compared with others, as that which our country was in possession of in the days before the era of modern navies, and when our seaports were deemed to be, as they certainly are not now, amply provided with fortifications fully up to the requirements of the age. Our navy has not yet come up to that standard. We have now building only four vessels which can properly be denominated first-class battleships. The cruisers and gunboats we now have built and building constitute an efficient fleet, and will prove sufficient when they shall all be in commission, for cruising purposes in ordinary times, and to look after our commerce abroad. In time of war these cruisers, aided by the Paris, the New York and the other ships being built by Cramp Brothers for the American line, which constitute practically all our auxiliary navy that is valuable, would be of great use as commerce destroyers.

"But unarmored cruisers are not, properly speaking, fighting vessels. They would leave our unfortified seacoast, with all its cities, absolutely without reliance, except upon our four first-class and two second-class battleships, seven coast-defense vessels and two little torpedo boats. These, if they were all concentrated, would scarcely be able to create a diversion of an enemy's fleet, and if scattered would not furnish a battleship or even a torpedo boat for the defense of each city. If we carried out such a programme during a war an enemy with a fleet of battleships could wreck cities while we were robbing schooners.

Must Have War Ships.

"If our government in the future is to have naval strength enough to command the peace and be in condition to enforce the terms dictated by its sense of right and justice it must have more battleships, and must build a reasonable number of torpedo boats. For the defense of ports torpedo boats are, perhaps, more effective according to cost than any other class of vessels. The knowledge of their existence alone will make an enemy chary about approaching within bombarding distance. The value of this boat is recognized by all naval powers, and they are being built abroad in great numbers.

"No one can value economy more highly than I do, and its practice is certainly necessary at this time when the government expenditures are likely to be more than its receipts, but the safety of the country, its honor and its dignity must rise above every other consideration, and it is respectfully submitted that the programme of authorizing the building of at least some vessels at each session of congress ought not to be interrupted now. I recommend that the construction of at least one battleship and six torpedo boats be authorized by congress at the coming session.

"The authorization of these vessels would require the expenditure of very little money during the coming fiscal year. First-class torpedo boats can now be built for $120,000 each, and not more than $300,000 of this sum, estimating the total cost at $720,000, would be expended within the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895. So much time is required to perfect the plans of a battleship, put it under contract, and provide the material, that not more than one-tenth of the cost of such a vessel, if it should be authorized, would need to be appropriated for during the coming session of congress. Every vessel now authorized may be expected to be in commission by the first day of July, 1896, so that unless other ships be provided for now we shall at that date not have a single ship in process of construction. It is not believed that the American people, intent as they are on enforcing economy in government expenditures, are willing that this great work should be stopped short at this time."

The secretary argues at much length in support of his position.

Personnel.

The report maintains that serious results will follow a continuation of the present neglect in the line of improving the personnel of the navy, which suffers from long delay in promotions. Says the secretary: "This most important branch of the public service, which may properly be termed the right arm of the republic for external defense, now suffers from two great evils, viz.: First, a large proportion of the officers of the line of the navy, at a time when mind and body ought to be at the best, are serving in the lower ranks without command and the habit it begets. Second, no method now exists whereby the government can get the very flower of its personnel into those positions where they can be of the greatest service to the country, in consequence of which a dull mechanical movement takes the place of healthy progression led by merit and fitness. I am engaged in the preparation of a plan for the reorganization of the line of the navy which I think will meet the requirements of the service."

It is recommended that the number of enlisted men and boys in the service be increased by 2,000.

Public interest in the naval militia is gradually and steadily increasing. At the date of the last annual report the number of men certified as mustered in and serving in the naval militia of seven states was 1,794. During the present year organizations have been authorized by the legislatures of Pennsylvania and Illinois, and the number of officers and men mustered in and serving at the present time is 2,376.

Speaking of labor at the navy yards, the report says there is no doubt that the system of employing laborers without reference to their politics and making merit the sole test of their retention and advancement is greatly to the benefit of the government.

Estimates and Appropriations.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895, the estimates for the navy and marine corps, including increase of the navy and public works, amount to $27,885,014.02. The estimates for the same purposes for the current fiscal year amounted to $24,471,493.21, or $3,414,415.81 less than those for the next fiscal year. For the current fiscal year the estimates for increase of the navy amounted to $9,703,657, and for the next fiscal year they amount to $12,455,025, the difference being $2,751,368. The estimates for the running expenses of the navy and marine corps, including improvements at navy yards and stations for the next fiscal year, amount to $15,430,889.02, being $603,047.81 in excess of the estimates of the current fiscal year.

The report details all the operations of the navy during the year, and scattered through it is a great deal of information upon various minor branches of the navy department, largely technical in character.

TREES THAT GIVE MILK.

South American Natives Do Their Milking Without Using Their Hands.

Dr. Spruce, the renowned South American traveler, mentions a tree, a member of the dog bane family, the juice of which is used as milk, says Chambers' Journal. On the bark being wounded the milk flows abundantly, and is of the consistency of cow's milk, of the purest white, and sweet to the taste. The Indian mode of taking it is to apply the mouth directly to the wound, and thus receive the milk as it flows. Dr. Spruce says he has often partaken of it without experiencing any ill effects.

In Guiana, the natives employ the milk from a tree belonging to the same family as the last named; in the vernacular it is known as hyahya, and to botanists as Tabernaemontana utilis, (so named after Jacobus Theodorus Tabernaemontanus, a German physician and botanist). The milk has the same flavor as sweet cow's milk, but it is rather sticky on account of its containing some caoutchouc.

In Para, a lofty tree, belonging to the star apple family, attaining a height of 100 feet, is used in a similar manner to the others mentioned. Incisions are made in the bark, and the milky juice flows out copiously, about the consistence of thick cream, and if it were not for its taste, which is somewhat peculiar, could hardly be distinguished from it.

AS OLD AS SHE LOOKS.

A Woman May Dress in Accordance With Her Feelings.

One of the distinct advantages accorded to women in these days is that the period of youth is greatly prolonged, and she virtually may be any age she likes to be—that is, at least any age she looks and feels. Happily for her the time when it was considered an evidence of vanity and bad taste to dress and act youthfully after she had passed an accepted Rubicon has gone by; a woman may follow her feelings in these particulars without exciting censure and ridicule, any latitude being allowable, always providing that she will keep up to a certain standard in youthful spirits and appearance. It certainly seems unreasonable that when a woman is conscious of no decay, either mental or physical; when the joy of living is just as intense, and all pleasures are just as eagerly enjoyed, she should be considered old simply because she has passed her premiere jeunesse. Moreover, in her contest with the "insolent pride of youth," she has her incontestable innings, that more than offset the mere "beaute du diable" of the girl. With her experience and ripened intelligence she far outstrips her bread-and-butter rival, and it is now universally conceded that a fascinating woman may be any age above thirty, but rarely, if ever, can lay claim to the title when she is less mature.—New York Tribune.

Persuasive.

Dr. Morrell Mackenzie, the famous specialist in diseases of the throat, is said to have had extraordinary power over his patients, a power which sometimes appeared almost magnetic.

Once a death occurred in his consulting room—one of those cases which Sir James Paget used to call "calamities of surgery." The brother of the dead patient was furious, and hastened to Dr. Mackenzie's office determined to give him a piece of his mind.

Such was the fascination of Mackenzie's manner, however, that the infuriated man cooled down by degrees, and in a short time found himself conversing quite calmly about the fatal case. The triumph was reached when, before departing, he sat down in the operating chair, and, after allowing Mackenzie to examine his throat, paid him his fee without a murmur.

THE HIGHEST AWARD.

Royal Baking Powder Has All the Honors, in Strength and Value, 20 Per Cent Above Its Nearest Competitor.

The Royal Baking Powder has the enviable record of having received the highest award for articles of its class. Greatest strength, purest ingredients, most perfectly combined, wherever exhibited in competition with others. In the exhibition of former years at the Centennial, at Paris, Vienna and at various state and industrial fairs, where it has been exhibited, judges have invariably awarded the Royal Baking Powder the highest honors. At the recent World's Fair the examinations for the baking powder awards were made by the experts of the chemical division of the agricultural department at Washington. The official report of the tests of the baking powders which were made by this department for the special purpose of ascertaining which was the best, and which has been made public, shows the leavening strength of the Royal to be 160 cubic inches of carbonic gas per ounce of powder. Of the cream of tartar baking powders exhibited the next highest in strength thus tested contained but 133 cubic inches of leavening gas. The other powders gave an average of 111. The Royal, therefore, was found of 20 per cent greater leavening strength than its nearest competitor and 44 per cent above the average of all other tests. Its superiority in other respects, however, in the quality of the food it makes as to fineness, delicacy and wholesomeness could not be measured by figures. It is these high qualities, known and appreciated by the women of the country for so many years, that have caused the sales of the Royal Baking Powder, as shown by statistics, to exceed the sale of all other baking powders combined.

WASTE ON OCEAN LINERS.

Table Ware, Cutlery and Linen Thrown Overboard by Dishonest Employes.

A man who came over on a recent trip of the big Cunarder Campania, being of an inquiring turn of mind, used his eyes and ears to good advantage all the way, and he expressed to a reporter the most unqualified amazement at the constant wholesale waste of valuable material. "I don't think so much of the stewards selling saloon fare to the steerage," he said to a writer for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, "because the food would be thrown overboard anyway, and the stewards, or 'flunkies,' as the seamen call them, may as well make something of it if they can. Their pay is small, so the transaction results in substantial benefit to them. A great many persons come over in the steerage because they don't care what their accommodations are so long as they get good food, and they are pretty sure of being able to buy that from the stewards. Of course, it isn't the square thing to do, but what I wondered the most at was the utter disregard for the ship's outfit.

"For instance, a steward would take down to the steerage a dozen dishes and plates of choice food in a large bucket, carefully covered, so the contents would not be seen. Of course the bucket contained silver forks, spoons, knives and very often silver vegetable and dessert dishes and individual chocolate and coffee pots. When the food was eaten the china and silver went back to the bucket and the whole business was quietly dropped into the refuse chute and down into the sea. I've seen as many as ten buckets taken down by the same number of stewards three or four times a day throughout a trip and in every case the crockery, silverware and bucket went overboard. You may take my word for it that anything a steward carries below never gets back to its proper quarters again—not only because of the risk of detection, but because of the trouble. I doubt, though, if the risk is very great, for some of the officers are themselves exceedingly careless and destructive. I've seen large, brand new, handsome blankets taken into an officer's room for him to use as a rug while taking a bath. When he finished the blankets were rolled up and quietly dropped down the chute, and that happened a number of times during the voyage, too. No, I can't suggest a remedy, and the company wouldn't extend me a vote of thanks if I could, but it seems to me it would pay to have those things looked into a little and a responsible man placed in direct charge of affairs. A steward's pay is very small, ranging from $5 to $30 a month, but never exceeding the latter sum. In many cases they get no pay at all, but instead, not only work without a stipend, but also pay the company for the privilege of serving it."

Clever Sparrows.

As bearing upon the question regarding the use of tools by the lower animals, so called, a correspondence of Science offers a story of three sparrows. If there was no flaw in the observation —the observer was a boy twelve years old—the case must be accounted most extraordinary. Says the boy:

A few days ago, as I was walking along the street, I saw a sparrow lying on the ground. It fluttered its wings, but was unable to rise.

As I was looking, a pair of old birds came along, carrying between them a little bare twig about three inches long. One had hold of one end of it, and its companion had hold of the other. They brought it down to the bird on the ground, and it caught hold of the stick with its beak.

Then they flew into a tree, carrying the third bird hanging to the stick, and by this means brought it to a place of safety.

I am sure that the bird on the ground was a young one; it looked quite large, and may have been wounded or sick. It was not able to fly, anyhow, for I saw it try to do so without success. All the birds were common English sparrows.

Menial Employment.

At a well known women's club lately, the discussion came around to the idea of ladies earning their living by certain sorts of rather menial employment. One woman present, a literary light, asked: "The trouble is, doesn't she put herself in the way of being snubbed?" To which another literary light remarked, with dignity: "My dear Mrs. So-and-So, a Christian gentlewoman never snubs anybody." This broad statement was somewhat weakened by the fact, notorious to the persons present, that the speaker was a woman of great dignity, although also of great kindliness to those who were her friends. Snubbing, however, was not an unknown art to her. Moreover, the unfortunate fact was linked that the woman who tries to do any sort of work has to come in contact with all sorts of people, and cannot limit her clients to "Christian gentlewomen."

A Wire Measurer.

One of the difficulties that large users of wire have constantly to contend with is a sure and simple method of registering the quantity of wire passing daily out of the stock room. A new wire measure that has just been put on the market in Chicago seems to meet this requirement. The wire passes between two rollers, one of which is geared to a counting device that indicates the exact number of feet run out, and the purchaser can thus see at a glance how much wire he has to pay for. The recording dial is similar to a car register, and the entire arrangement is automatic in action.

WAR CLOUDS IN EUROPE

THEY GATHER RAPIDLY AND THE STORM MAY SOON OCCUR.

Indications That Europe Is on the Verge of a Great Conflict That Will Involve All of the Principal Powers of the Old World.

London, Dec. 8.—The important dispatch from Vienna which the Times printed this morning, setting forth that the Russian government had declared it imperative that the Kilia arm of the Danube should be made navigable, the object of which demand was to secure the exemption of the Kilia branch from the control of the Danube commission, has served to attract renewed attention to the serious situation of affairs in Europe, a situation which would need only a spark to kindle a flame. That the various countries are fully alive to the difficulties ahead of them there can be no doubt, and numerous incidents have come to light within the past few days which indicate that all the powers are making preparations to meet any emergency whatever its proportions may be. Mr. Poultney Bigelow, whose intimate relations with the highest officials in Germany are well known, and who has returned to London after a stay of several months in Germany, to-day wrote the following on the situation in Europe:

"Russia wants Constantinople, and is preparing to take it. Russia cannot succeed in accomplishing this desire without first fighting Austria. She cannot fight Austria without fighting Germany at the same time Russia wants the mouth of the Danube, a desire as strange as if France should wish to reoccupy Louisiana. Russia therefore has one enemy particularly in mind; that is Germany. In this hatred of Germany was born the comical friendship between Russia and France, for France means to get back Alsace-Lorraine. The gravity of the present outlook is not so much in the fact that Russia and France individually dislike Germany, but in the fact that they are united in a hatred that absorbs every other passion. That France is thirsting for war admits of scant doubt to those who saw the delirious behavior of the French people in welcoming the Russian sailors at Toulon and Paris. Nor is there any doubt that she is now better fitted for war than she has ever been. Russia sounded France and was well satisfied with the result. When war is declared the two are one, army and navy."

The Russian government has now massed all its active army west of Moscow, and the great bulk in Poland.

Thurston Off For Hawaii.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Minister Thurston, the representative of the provisional government of Hawaii, furnished the surprise in Hawaiian affairs to-day by quietly departing from the city for the West, and it is surmised that he is quite likely to go to Honolulu before returning to Washington. His secret departure excited considerable comment and there was much speculation as to its significance. It can be stated, however, that his departure does not mean any break in the recognition this government heretofore has always accorded him as the accredited representative of the de facto government of Hawaii. Mr. Thurston was not given his passports, nor was there any interruption in the amenities which have been observed in the outer diplomatic relations between the minister and Secretary Gresham. Before leaving Mr. Thurston and Secretary of Legation Hastings were both at the state department. They said that they had been cordially received. Mr. Thurston at this time said nothing of his intention to leave the city to newspaper men who saw him, but went to his apartments and then took the train on the Pennsylvania road for Chicago. Mrs. Thurston, his mother, and his young son, remain in Washington, and the official status of the Hawaiian legation is continued with Mr. Hastings, the secretary, acting as charge d'affaires. From Chicago Mr. Thurston will go to San Francisco, and his ultimate destination may be Honolulu, where he would have an opportunity to orally advise the Hawaiian government. Opinion is freely expressed that the action of the senate in calling on the president for the Hawaiian correspondence has satisfied the minister that the subject will take care of itself in this country and that his energies can be directed with best results in advising and helping the provisional government to hold its ground.

Outlaw Arrested.

New Orleans, Dec. 8.—H. Ray Coy, the noted Mississippi and Arkansas outlaw, has again been captured and is in jail in this city. Coy is wanted for horse stealing, for burning a livery stable and for other crimes, and he has been leading the authorities a long and hard chase. He was captured in Arkansas some weeks ago by Sheriff White and brought to this city. The officer permitted him to go to his sister-in-law's in this city, and while in the house Coy gave the officers the slip and made his escape from the city. Some time ago White learned that Coy was working in Texas. White started for the place and found his man, who was working on a farm under an alias. Coy was arrested and White brought him to this city this morning and locked him up until this evening, when he will be taken to Hattiesburg to stand trial.

Lunn in the Toils.

Minneapolis, Dec. 8.—Louis Lunn, the queer employment agent, has been arrested and is now in custody. He was arraigned in the police court this morning and his examination was set for this afternoon bail being fixed at $300. Lunn was arrested on complaint of Henry Pearson, who says he has been victimized to the extent of $50, which Lunn induced him to put up as security for the position of collector. Monday he restored the money on condition that Pearson would withdraw the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, but this he was not allowed to do by the court.

Thieves Do a Creamery.

Charles City, Iowa, Dec. 8.—The Separator Creamery was entered last night. The thieves forced the back door and loaded a wagon with butter, amounting to $40. The door was left open and much damage was done to pipes by freezing.

Will Investigate.

Kansas City, Dec. 8.—County Prosecutor Brown has decided to investigate the failures of the Security Savings Trust company and of the People's Guarantee Savings bank as a result of the exposures in the Continental Trust company.

Bold Daylight Robbery.

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 8.—The South Bend National bank, one of the largest and most sound banks in Northern Indiana, was robbed of over $15,000. The bold deed was committed in broad daylight, while hundreds of people were on the streets and the robbers succeeded in getting away with their booty without leaving the slightest clue. Chief Benjamin Rose was at once informed and set his officers at work immediately, but up to this hour no clue of any reliance has been obtained. Every train or other means of leaving the city is carefully watched and the officers hope to obtain some tangible clue before to-morrow. Chief Rose believes there were no less than four men in the gang, and possibly more. Cashier Myron Campbell remained at the bank, which is in the heart of the city, until all employes were gone. He then, as he supposed, locked the middle door of the big vault and left everything in the usual shape at the noon recess. It was 12:15 when he left. At 12:50 he returned and found a rear window open, the back door unlocked and the door between the directors' room and the counting room mutilated. A rush was then made for the vault. A glance showed that money had been taken, but they could not tell how much. The police were at once notified. No particular effort was made to determine the exact amount until the day's balances were made up, when it developed that the robbers secured $15,900.

She Is a Flyer.

New London, Conn., Dec. 8.—Another triumph for Yankee ship-builders and designers was scored on Long Island sound when the new cruiser Marblehead crossed the finish line of her official trial trip to-day. The new cruiser had equalled all expectations by making a record of 18.94 knots an hour. The contract for the vessel called for a speed of 17 knots an hour. For every quarter knot over this the builders receive $25,000, and for every quarter-knot below it they would have to forfeit $25,000. By the record made to-day it is estimated the Marblehead has made for her builders $175,000. The official report of the naval board of the variations brought about by the tides may make her record for the seventy-two miles a little less than 18.94 knots, but it is believed that it will not fall below 18.75, and it may be increased to 19 knots.

A Match War.

Oshkosh, Wis., Dec. 8.—The Diamond Match company, Chicago, has brought two actions in equity in the United States court against the Oshkosh Match company for an infringement on a match-making machine and an infringement on a box-making machine. The latter company, which is not in the trust controlled by the Diamond Match company, uses machines claimed to be the secret invention of W. H. Wyman, a member of the firm, and they have been used ever since the new factory started. The defendants claim the action was brought for the purpose of harassing them and to destroy all competition with the Diamond Match company, and to learn the mechanism of the machines used by the Oshkosh concern.

Hanged for a Revolting Crime.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 8.—Sam Tennis was hanged this morning. Tennis' crime was one of the most revolting in the annals of the criminal history of Pennsylvania. His victim was Agnes Cooper Wright, a school girl of nine years, whom he outraged and then choked to death because of her threat to expose him to her mother. The double crime was committed on Sept. 19, 1893, and one week later Tennis was arrested in a corn field near the scene. On his way to the Dauphin county jail he broke down and made a confession to his captors, in which he detailed at length the scenes which culminated in murder.

Killed by a Bartender.

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 8.—Henry Cullinon, aged twenty-four, bookkeeper for J. H. Haalen & Sons, was shot four times and instantly killed at midnight last night in a beer garden in this city by George McNamara, a bartender. The cause of the shooting is somewhat of a mystery, but from the statements of witnesses, it appears to have been a cold-blooded murder. Cullinan's family reside in Portland, Me., to which city the remains were shipped to-day.

Steamer Burned.

Vicksburg, Dec. 8.—The fine steamer Chattahoochee, of the Vicksburg & Greenville main line, while lying at the wharf boat, caught fire last evening and is a total loss. The tug Joe Seay towed the burning steamer across the river to the bar opposite, where she grounded and burned to the hull. The loss to the line will be large, as the vessel was only partly insured. She was valued at $40,000.

Traitor's Deed.

New York, Dec. 8.—The Herald has the following: The Brazilian cruiser America, which sailed from New York for Rio Janeiro on the night of Nov. 26 for the purpose of fighting the rebel admiral Mello's warships, is lying at Bridgetown, Barbadoes, so seriously disabled by the act of an unknown traitor among her crew that she will probably be unable to continue her voyage for several weeks.

Conductor Injured.

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 8.—Conductor Richard Reynolds, in charge of a Great Northern east-bound freight, fell between the rear car and caboose to-day, and after being dragged some distance the caboose passed over him, cutting off his right foot, inflicting an ugly scalp wound and internal injuries from which he may not recover. Reynolds has a family living in Devils Lake.

Bodies Washed Ashore.

Provincetown, Mass., Dec. 8.—Early this morning three dead bodies, presumably members of the crew of the ill-fated Jason, were washed ashore.

Amenable to State Laws.

Topeka, Kan., Dec. 8.—Attorney General Little to-day rendered a decision to the effect that officers of national banks who receive deposits when they know the bank to be insolvent are amenable to state laws in absence of congressional enactment on the subject.

Did He Took a Cow.

Eden Valley, Minn., Dec. 8.—John Cassady was arrested this morning by Deputy Sheriff Ross, upon complaint of John O'Connor, for the alleged theft of O'Connor's cow, which was found in the defendant's barn.

THEY WILL SURELY FIGHT

HAWAIIANS PREPARED TO DEFEND THEIR GOVERNMENT.

Members of the Provisional Government Declare That They Will Resist With Arms the Restoration of Queen Liliuokalani.

Honolulu, Nov. 19, via Schooner Transit to San Francisco, Dec. 8.—From a source almost in touch with the American legation it is learned that the contingency which has caused delay in Hawaiian affairs until Washington is heard from is the fact that the provisional government and resident Americans would openly resist either compromise or restoration. In conversation with the Associated Press reporter yesterday, Minister Willis said he was confident that legislation favorable to the Hawaiian islands would shortly take place in the United States. He thought the duty on sugar would be placed at 1 cent per pound and that the bounty would be repealed. This would make a net difference of about $15 a ton to Hawaiian planters under their present contracts which allow the sugar trust a heavy rebate. An interview with members of the provisional government this afternoon develops a determination to stand on the defensive and take nothing on trust until the United States government is officially heard from either directly or through Minister Willis. In the meantime troops will be kept fully armed and reserve guard ready at a minute's notice. Many Americans assert that no restoration will take place. The provisional government expresses the opinion that the use of force on the part of the United States would be equivalent to a declaration of war. Resident Americans have at least 1,500 rifles and ammunition in private hands which it would be impossible to seize in case of restoration. Those best posted say the throne would not stand an hour after the withdrawal of American troops. The theory of restoration, however, will not be believed here until the last moment. Should it then prove true serious trouble will likely follow. This much is admitted by the clearest heads on both sides. It is understood that President Dole has very clearly informed the minister that the provisional government commanded the situation and would require no aid from the United States unless it was called for.

Bad Wreck.

Helena, Mont., Dec. 9.—A serious railroad accident occurred about midnight on the Northern Pacific track between Boulder and Jefferson City. Since the cave-in of the Wickes tunnel the Montana Central has been using the Northern Pacific line over the Hill between Jefferson and Boulder Junction. Two Montana Central trains, double-header freights, one bound for St. Paul and the other for the south, while on the Northern Pacific track, met on a curve in a head-on collision about four miles this side of Boulder. All four engines were derailed and seriously damaged, and many of the cars of both trains were thrown from the track and piled in a heap. The wreck stopped all railroad communication south for one day.

Revolution in Venezuela.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Dr. Lobo, charge d'affaires of the Venezuelan legation, has not been advised that a revolution is in progress in that republic. An ex-minister from Venezuela, however, received by the steamer which arrived in New York yesterday advices which would seem to indicate that a revolution in Venezuela was imminent. These advices state that President Joaquin Crespo, who is sojourning at Maracy, has written the active president, M. A. Guzman, at Curacao, the capital, that he holds in his hands proofs that a revolution is fomenting. Under the rule of President Crespo the public press, it is said, has been suppressed.

Lost With All Hands.

London, Dec. 9.—The steamer Mangara, which has arrived at Shields, reports that off Ushant she saw a steamer in distress and sinking. A man on board the distressed steamer was burning a flare signal, and the Mangara was asked to stand by the sinking vessel. Several other sailors were seen clinging to different parts of the sinking ship. Suddenly the steamer in distress plunged to the bottom stem foremost, and the Mangara was unable to save her crew. The name of the steamer which was lost with all hands has not been ascertained.

Death of a Murderer.

Topeka, Kan., Dec. 9.—Henry Clay Landers, who on December last murdered his fellow waiter in the Troop hotel in this city as they were coming into supper and who gave himself up to the authorities Dec. 5, died this morning in the county jail. Landers' death is from exposure and suffering during the four days after he stabbed his companion. He concealed himself in a haystack for three days, went without food and froze his hands and feet. Unable to bear the pain and privation longer, and hoping that he had only injured Howard, not killed him, he begged a passing farmer to take him to prison. Had he survived, amputation of both feet would have been necessary.

Died a Pauper.

Denver, Dec. 9.—Rev. Charles Clement, a Catholic priest who was dismissed from St. Anthony's hospital a few weeks ago because he had no funds to pay his way, died this morning in the pauper ward of the county hospital. Father Clement belonged to the archdiocese of Montreal.

Two Killed.

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 9.—Engineer Joseph Schinsky and Fireman Wallace were killed in a head-end collision at Edwall, forty miles west of Spokane on the Great Northern railway, last evening. They were in charge of the west-bound special and collided with an east-bound freight.

Red Wing Feathers.

Red Wing, Minn., Dec. 9.—At the oratorical contest of the high school Henry Pfeiffer and Miss Rebecca Finney were selected to represent the high school at the district contest at Northfield.

Robert Muir was arrested yesterday charged with cruelly beating a horse.

A team went through the ice on the river late yesterday afternoon. It was rescued after much difficulty.

Matters Serious in Buenos Ayres.

Buenos Ayres, Dec. 9.—The state of siege will probably be extended for another sixty days.

No Discourtesy Shown.

St. Paul, Dec. 9.—Some papers have been endeavoring to create a sensation by stating that Gov. Nelson discourteously treated those in charge of the unveiling of the statue of Gen. Shields by not replying to the letter of Mr. Condon inviting him to be present and partisipate. The fact is that Gov. Nelson answered the letter and would have been present had it been possible to leave the state at that time. Following is a copy of his reply to the letter of Mr. Condon: "William H. Condon, Esq., 106 La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill., Nov. 18, 1893.—Dear Sir: I am in receipt of your favor of the 10th inviting me to attend the unveiling of the statue of the late Gen. James Shields at the capitol at Washington, Dec. 6, at 2 p. m., and to participate in the ceremonies connected therewith. I am unable at this moment to give you a more definite answer than this: If it is for me to leave the state at that time I shall try to attend, but cannot at this early day tell with any certainty whether I can get away or not. Yours truly, —Knute Nelson, Governor."

Two Murderers Hanged.

Danville, Ill., Dec. 9.—The two young murderers, Pate and Stires, were executed without a hitch. The crime for which Pate and Stires were executed was committed Aug. 25, 1893. Four young men, Harvey Pate, aged twenty-one, Frank Stires, nineteen, Elias McJunken, eighteen and Charles Smoot, seventeen, were great readers of flashy literature, and Pate was two years among the cowboys of Texas. The four conceived the idea of holding up Henry Helmick, a wealthy farmer. They walked twelve miles from the city and waited for Helmick and his wife, who were in a buggy. Helmick struck his horses when a demand for money was made, and Pate shot him dead. Young Stires confessed to complicity in the deed, and upon arraignment all four pleaded guilty. Pate and Stires were sentenced to hang, and McJunken and Smoot to the penitentiary for life.

After Bond Companies.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—The United States postoffice authorities have determined to suppress the bond and investment companies which are operating all over the country. Postoffice Inspector Stewart received from Washington to-day a list of over fifty concerns operating in much the same manner as the Guarantee Investment Company of Chicago, whose officers were convicted in Judge Grosscup's court. The inspectors are instructed to notify postmasters not to deliver registered letters or money orders to these concerns, and if possible to secure evidence against the companies to prosecute them under the law forbidding lotteries and the act forbidding the use of the mails for swindling purposes. Some of the companies included in the list are the United States Investment company, Bankers' Investment company, Capital Consul company, Columbia Bond Investment company, Minneapolis, and the North American Bond Investment company, St. Paul.

The Viking.

Memphis, Dec. 9.—The Norwegian sea-going craft Viking, Capt. Magnus Anderson, carrying the flag of King Oscar of Sweden and Norway, over eight months out from Christiana, the capital of Norway, arrived at this port yesterday afternoon after a passage of three days from Cairo. The vessel is managed by six men including the captain, and it is about half of her sea going crew. She has the steam tug Edith Kendige by the day to tow her down the river, this tug having been the propelling power all the way down from Chicago by way of the Illinois and Michigan canal and the Illinois and Mississippi rivers. She will leave on her down-river trip to-morrow. At New Orleans the Viking will be placed in charge of a watchman for the winter, and then Capt. Anderson will sail for Christiana, where he owns a daily newspaper.

Suicided.

St. Louis, Dec. 9.—Fearing an examination into his accounts by his employer, Henry Cann, twenty-nine years old, a salesman for W. Wrigly & Co., soap manufacturers of Chicago, took a dose of carbolic acid in his room, No. 164 Pine street, and died shortly afterwards. The deadly dose is supposed to have been taken about 8 o'clock yesterday morning. He was found dying by Benjamin Kahn, an assistant of his, but too late to save him. Kahn had been in the room early in the morning, and while there Cahn received a letter stating that his employer was en route here to examine his accounts. It was immediately after this that the fatal draught was taken.

Wants a Monarchy.

London, Dec. 9.—The Times to-morrow will publish the following:

Rio de Janeiro, Dec. 5, via Montevideo, Dec. 8.—The last few days have been quiet with the exception of desultory artillery firing. A manifesto has been issued by Admiral Gamo, now in command of the insurgent vessels in Rio harbor, declaring for a monarchy.

Wanted in Omaha.

New York, Dec. 9.—Fred E. Luechsey, twenty-three years old, was arrested at the request of the police of Omaha, Neb., who want him on a charge of stealing $900 from the American News company in that place last October. In the Tombs police court he was held to await requisition papers.

Steamer Launched.

Louisville, Dec. 9.—The new Louisville and Cincinnati steamer was launched at Howard's yards in Jeffersonville, yesterday. It is claimed she will be the fastest boat on the river, and will cost between $80,000 and $100,000. She has been named the City of Louisville.

Twelve Bodies Recovered.

Providencetown, Mass., Dec. 9.—Three dead bodies have been picked up on the beach which were washed ashore from the wreck of the Jason, making a total of twelve so far recovered.

Van Leuven's Case.

Dubuque, Iowa, Dec. 9.—The federal grand jury examined twenty-one witnesses in the Van Leuven pension case today. District Attorney O'Connelly declined to say whether any indictments had been found, but he told Senator John Day Smith none would be reported at present. Judge Wells of Minnesota and local attorneys will assist Senator Smith in the defense.

ANOTHER BOMB OUTRAGE.

TERRIBLE WORK OF AN ANARCHIST IN PARIS.

He Throws a Bomb Into the French Chamber of Deputies, Injuring About Eighty People—He Is Captured and Makes a Full Confession.

Paris, Dec. 11.—Late Saturday afternoon a bomb was thrown from the gallery of the chamber of deputies to the floor below, and, exploding, scattered a terrible hail of iron among the deputies and spectators. About eighty persons were injured, but none killed, although several may die of their injuries.

A scene of terrible excitement followed. The crowds in the galleries were seized with panic, and through blinding smoke and dust fought fiercely to escape from the building. The police, however, with great promptness had closed every exit to the streets and instituted at once the most searching investigation for the criminals. Both in the galleries and on the floor of the chamber many persons, including women, were hurt more or less seriously. The deputies displayed great coolness, and their president, M. Dupuy, appealed to his colleagues to continue their discussions with calmness. His remarks were loudly cheered and partial order was restored. The police detained upon suspicion 200 persons, but after a thorough examination discharged all but sixty, who are now held under lock and key.

The bomb-thrower is now in custody. His name is Vailant. He is an anarchist and has made a full confession. Vailant was among the injured persons taken to the Hotel Dieu. He had his nose blown off. He soon fell under the suspicion of the authorities, and, pressed by the police, he decided to make a full confession, and did so, glorying in his dastardly crime. Early in the day M. Lepin, the prefect of police, the public prosecutor and the examining magistrate visited the Hotel Dieu and had a long interview with Vailant, who claimed innocence and was quite indignant at the nature of the questions put to him by the different officials. Finally the public prosecutor said to the suspect: "Your name is Vailant, and not Marchal, as claimed when you came to the hospital." After a moment of hesitation the suspected man admitted his identity and confessed that he had thrown the bomb which in exploding injured a hundred people. When questioned as to his reasons for throwing the bomb Vailant replied defiantly: "I wished to deal a thoroughly dramatic blow at the institutions of the country and wished to cause a great excitement. I endeavored to aim the bomb at M. Dupuy (the president of the chamber of deputies.) I glory in the act, and I only regret that my hand swerved and the bomb did not explode near the mark." Experienced detectives, whose duty it is to devote themselves entirely to watching anarchists and reporting upon their doings and sayings, express the belief that Vailant had a number of accomplices, but Vailant replied to all questions on this subject with the remark: "You need not put yourself to the trouble of searching for accomplices. I alone did the deed." The opinion is expressed, however, that several of those who are now under arrest are accomplices of Vailant. The examining magistrate is known to have obtained at least two important depositions regarding the authors of the crime. Suspicion rests especially on four persons, one of whom is a man named Vincent, who twice gave a false address; the others also gave false addresses and made contradictory statements to the magistrate, who passed the night in examining the suspects. Last night the police made a search of the house of a man suspected and claim to have obtained valuable information. The condition of the injured is satisfactory, and it is now hoped that no lives will be lost through the explosion.

Bounced a Robber.

Bloomington, Ill., Dec. 11.—A curious attempt at robbery of an express car occurred late last night at the crossing of the Lake Erie & Western and the Illinois Central a mile and a half southeast of this city. As the west-bound Lake Erie Express train stopped for the crossing the glass of the south door of the United States express car was smashed and Messenger Weekly looking up saw a man's arm pass into the opening, the hand reaching for the latch. Weekly jumped up and rushed to meet his intruder. The messenger was unarmed, having laid his revolver beside a pile of packages at the other end of the car. As the door of the car opened the men grappled, the intruder grabbing the messenger by the throat. In the struggle which followed the messenger proved the victor, hurling the robber from the train to the ground. None of the other trainmen had noticed the struggle and the train proceeded without further molestation. Messenger Weekly's face and neck were badly scratched and bruised.

A Diver's Horrible Fate.

Ashtabula, Ohio, Dec. 11.—Jerry Gray at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, equipped in a diver's suit, descended to the deck of the schooner Pelican, about thirty-five feet under water, and became entangled in the wire rigging. He answered the signals until about 8 o'clock. At 2 o'clock this morning he was released, dead. Air was pumped to Gray during the whole time, and when taken out water had not penetrated his diving suit. He died of fright.

Cholera in Turkey Terrible.

London, Dec. 11.—A dispatch to the Standard from Athens says cholera has assumed dangerous proportions at Constantinople. The Greek residents there complain bitterly of the inhumanity of the Turkish doctors.

In a Fiery Furnace.

Winnipeg, Dec. 11.—The St. Nicholas hotel and five small stores were destroyed by the fire. The inmates of the hotel were surrounded by fire before the flames were discovered, and had to be rescued through the windows, some of them in an unconscious condition. Loss, $15,000.

Trouble for a Postmaster.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Dec 11.—Michael O'Shea, assistant postmaster of Running Water, was arraigned in the United States court on six indictments. O'Shea's wife is postmistress, and it is charged that he issued six money orders, aggregating $1,000, signed his wife's name and got the money on them. He pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Divorce Unnecessary Now.

Greencastle, Ind., Dec. 11. — Charles Crandall shot and killed his wife and then shot himself dead. She had a divorce suit pending, for which he had repeatedly threatened her life.

The following suggestion as to socials may be worth something to somebody. "Speaking of a social, why not have a hugging bee, such as are becoming so popular in other parts of the country for swelling the church exchequer. We copy the following list of prices from a Missouri paper and respectfully submit same for the serious consideration of the social committee. Girls under 16 15 cents for a hug of two minutes or 10 cts. for a short squeeze; from 16 to 20, 50 cents: from 20 to 25, 75 cents; school ma'ams 40 cents, another man's wife $1 widows according to looks 10 cents to $3; old maids three cents a piece or two for a nickle, no limit to time. Preachers are not charged; editors have first choice and pay in advertising; high school professors must pay in advance, are not allowed to participate until every body else is got through and even then are limited to squeezing anything anything but old maids and school ma'ams.

If the Wilson tariff bill passes the house, and of that there is not much question, there should be little or no debate over it in the senate. "(That is the way the republican advocates of the repeal of the purchasing act reasoned,) The Democrats and silver state Republicans should unite and force the measure through without any unnecessary delay Grover Cleveland and John Bull demand the repeal of the McKinley law—just as they demanded the repeal of the repeal of the Sherman law—and their demands must be complied with. The American farmers, miners and mechanics have no rights that John Bull and Grover Cleveland are bound to respect, —Princeton Union.

The man who secures a note for a given amount, skillfully doubles it by deft penmanship, and then sells it a its new face is a defrauder, and i caught goes to prison. But the man who doubles the value of the note by cutting in two the currency of the country is an honorable gentleman. and is paid a big salery by the government. instead of working for the state for nothing.—Farm Stock & Home.

About a year ago we saw and heard many voters love Cleveland. Why don't they do so now? He is the same fat Grover that he was a year ago, He is the same England's faithful servant now as he was then. He is the identical traitor to the United States, though some of the ugly plans then ready to operate when he got into power had not been executed. The plans were known and published and the voters have no one to blame but themselves for being too suspicious to read and learn. Truly it serves us right. We voted in Cleveland. Now we got him we got the consequent hard times and we'll have them both Cleveland and hard times for three years more. Though he should be impeached, that something a Democratic Congress wont dare to do with a Democratic President. He keeps them quiet with the power of patronage. He can sell the United States body and soul to England, and the Democrats won't dare to make any objection, for fear of loseing their offices. That's the Cleveland loved so well.—McIntosh Tribune.

F. J. Parke, the special agent of the interior department, was in town again last Friday, He has finished his investigation here and has started for Washington to make his report. We learn that he intends to report that it would be extremely advisable for the government to sell the pine on the reservation as fast as it is surveyed and estimated. Mr. Parke seems to have satisfied himself that this country is badly in need of cheap lumber and besides he thinks that the best interests of the Indians and the government will be subserved if the pine is sold as soon as estimated. The people interested in the opening of the reservation should attend to this matter at once. At the present rate the reservation will be opened in about ten years, provided, of course, the administration does not change, then the work will have to be gone all over again, Mr. Parke's report should be supplimented by some work from our citizens, With a little work the report will prevail and the reservation would be opened as far as the pine is concerned which is all that is needed at present. It is this winter or ten years from now and we should make every effort we can. Senators and Congressmen should be written to and the matter agitated as much as possible, and we think there is a good show for success.

SHE WAS TOO SLOW.

While She Thought of Revenge Her Lover Practiced It.

She was a literary young woman, and she had quarreled with her literary lover even more fiercely than was their wont. Her dearest friend, coming in on the morning of the third day to hear all about it for the twentieth time, found her melancholy, but composed.

"Yes, it is all over," she sighed, "and I can never be happy again. Why, I haven't even curled my bangs for two days, and when I found three typographical errors in my poem on 'Sorrow' I didn't even write to the editor about it."

"He never was half good enough for you," said her friend consolingly. "Tom said so only yesterday."

"What else did he say?" demanded the literary young woman. "Not that anything matters to me now."

"He said that you were as pretty as a picture and that you write a great deal better than Dick ever dared to."

"Did he really? By the way, is my hair frightfully out of curl?"

"Not at all, only you look pale."

"Of course. My heart is broken. What else did Tom say?"

"That he saw Dick driving with Laura Briggs the day before."

"He did, did he? Well, Laura Briggs can have him if she wants him. I'm sure I don't," and she burst into tears.

"Of course you don't. And Tom wanted to know when you would publish another of your delightful stories."

"Did he, indeed? I think a great deal of Tom's literary judgment—much more than I do of Dick's. He always criticises my stories. But I'll get even with him."

"How? Do tell me."

"I've a letter here from the editor of The Weekly Lollipop asking for a story, and I intend to take Dick for the hero, and make it so like him that everybody will recognize him and just hold him up to public scorn."

"Oh, what a genius you are!"

"Yes, and I will even make use of his letters."

"How perfectly splendid! Begin right away. Don't mind me."

"I will. By the way, here is the last number of The Lollipop. I haven't read it yet. It may amuse you."

"Thanks. Oh, I see it has one of Dick's stories in it."

"Indeed! I'm surprised that they published it. Nobody cares to read his work, I'm sure. Just let me look at it, will you?"

A few moments later there was a loud cry, and the literary young woman sprang to her feet, upsetting the ink bottle as she did so.

"The wretch, the brute, the monster!" she cried wildly.

"What is it? Oh, what has he done?"

"He has made me the heroine of his story and used every letter that he ever wrote me in it!"—Chicago Tribune.

The Growth of a Milliner's Bill.

Before her showcase drawer she knelt,
And took the from a "shape" of felt
Which cost her half a dollar.
Next she unwound a quarter yard
Of velvet from the dollar card,
And started swing very hard
In quite a fit of choler.

A twenty-five cent flower next
She took, and, still appearing vexed,
She stitched the three together.
To pattern once did she refer,
And then, as if afraid to stir,
She told a girl to bring to her
A forty-five cent feather.

An ornament of jet she got—
Ten cents its value to a jot—
And lace that cost a quarter.
And in a little hour or two
Her work was done, and she was through
Creating that nice bonnet now
For some man's wife or daughter!

And then she smiled a happy smile
To think how milliners beguile
Their sex about a bonnet.

ONCE WAS ENOUGH.

Mr. McSwat Makes an Invasion Into Lower Regions.

"Hark! What's that?"

Mrs. McSwat sat bolt upright in bed and listened.

"Billiger!" she exclaimed in a horse whisper, shaking her snoring husband, "I hear a noise!"

"Wh-wh-what? Where?" said Mr. McSwat, waking with a jerk. "What's the matter, Lobelia?"

"Sh! Listen! There it is again! It's down stairs. Billiger, there's somebody in the house!"

Billiger listened a moment.

She was right.

There was a noise down stairs—a shuffling, stealthy kind of noise, as if made by somebody who was unacquainted with the premises and had no business there.

He rose and dressed himself by thrusting his feet in a pair of slippers and pulling on a dressing gown. Then he lighted a dark lantern he had purchased for emergencies of this kind, armed himself with a patent carpet stretcher—one of the deadliest weapons known to science—and turned to his wife.

"Lobelia," he whispered huskily, "remain here. You can do no good. I will meet this invader alone. But stay! If there should be more than one," he continued, grinding his teeth, "and you hear me call out, you may come to the top of the stairs and yell. Make all the noise you can. It will convey the impression that we are expecting them and are prepared."

With his dark lantern in one hand and the deadly carpet stretcher in the other he started slowly down the stairway, coughing loudly as he went.

Mrs. McSwat listened with painful eagerness. She could hear Billiger rasping his terrible weapon against the balustrade and coughing with a violence that increased every moment.

Presently the noises ceased. It was evident that Billiger was searching the house with a view to slipping upon the marauders unawares.

Then there came a wild yell.

Without waiting to assure herself whether it came from Billiger or the burglars Mrs. McSwat seized a chair, ran to the head of the stairs, screamed with all her might, tumbled the chair down to the floor below, rushed back for the washbowl and pitcher, sent them flying after the chair and hurled down a broom, another chair, a small trunk, a bootjack and several other articles of a portable nature that stood or lay within reach, her voice ringing out all the time in a series of wild, blood curdling shrieks.

While the din was at its height Mr. Billiger McSwat appeared at the foot of the stairs.

"Lobelia!" he shouted, dodging nimbly as a towel rack flew past his head, "what on earth do you mean by this infernal racket? You've broken $100 worth of furniture and roused the neighborhood! The police and the fire department will be here if you don't stop!"

"Wasn't there any burglar, Billiger?" asked Mrs. McSwat.

"Burglar!" snorted Billiger, climbing over the ruins in the hallway and bounding up the stairs three steps at a time. "Burglar! No! It was only the cat. Didn't you hear it screech when I kicked it out of the parlor? Burglar!" he exclaimed contemptuously, throwing the patent carpet stretcher under the bureau, extinguishing the dark lantern and crawling between the sheets again. "Lobelia, if you hear any more burglars or thieves or robbers in this house tonight and wake me up again there's going to be trouble, madam. Go to bed!"

And all the rest of the long, weary night Lobelia lay abed, wide awake, and listened to the deep, regular, ceaseless snoring of Mr. Billiger McSwat.—Chicago Tribune.

Humiliating.

The duchess stamped her foot.

"My lord," she cried, dashing the hot, blinding tears from her eyes, "I must insist that you make no further reference to my father's avocation."

"Darling"—gasped his grace in bewilderment.

An impatient gesture waved him to silence.

"After all I have said about"—

Her ladyship's voice trembled.

—"I think it is positively cruel for you to mention your armorial crest and almost in the same breath to speak of the quarterings of our family as if"—

She bit her lip fiercely.

—"you wanted all the world to know I am a butcher's daughter."—Detroit Tribune.

A Sensitive Plant.

The company are seated at the dinner table. Enter Baptiste (a servant), haggard, excited and exclaiming:

"Quick, quick—a glass of wine!"

People stare at each other, and at last the wish is complied with. Baptiste drinks off a glass of wine which has been poured out by the mistress of the house, who inquires what has happened.

"Oh, madame, I've been dreadfully upset! Ah, that wine has done me good! I feel better now. Only fancy, I have just managed to break both the large Sevres china marmalade dishes!"—Voltaire.

Relieved.

Women prayed and men cursed.

The storm howled and beat against the vessel's stanch ribs.

A white robed figure clung to the after rail and peered into the darkness.

"She is gone."

The figure swayed in the tempest.

"No, she rises."

A great wave swept over the deck. The figure was kneeling now.

"She has sunk thrice. Is it a dream? After all these years to be alone at last!"

After a time the figure crept forward and reported the loss of a chaperon.—Detroit News-Tribune.

The Grand Central Railroad Station Chicago.

Is being fitted up for hotel purposes during the world's fair. This magnificent fire-proof structure, located at the corner of Harrison street and 5th avenue, in the very heart of the city will devote the 3rd; 4th and 6th floors to this purpose. It will be run on the European plan. Each room will have hot and cold water, electric light and be steam heated. The office and ladies parlors etc. will be located on the 3rd floor and the building will be supplied with all modern conveniences. There will be from 100 to 200 rooms for guests.

This acquisition to the hotel facilities of Chicago will be appreciated by those who wish to be safely housed in a fire-proof building, conveniently located in the city hall.

Those desiring accommodations can secure them by addressing Mr. T. C. Clifford, the manager, at Chicago Ill. The hotel will be opened May 15th 1893.

The Grand Central Station is the Chicago depot of the Northern Pacific railroad. [Wisconsin Central division] and by taking this through car line to the world's fair city, visitors will avoid the discomfort of transfer through the city.

VISITORS TO THE TWIN CITIES!

No one should visit the Twin Cities this summer without running out to Minnetonka Beach and Hotel Lafayette the largest and best located resort house in the west. The lake is one of the most picturesque in the country and is well supplied with steamers and sailing, rowing and fishing craft. A number of regattas will be given. The Great Northern has a double track line to the lake and runs frequent trains.

MINNESOTA STATE NORMAL SCHOOLS

WINONA, MANKATO, ST. CLOUD AND MOORHEAD.

These schools are organized for the training of teachers for the common schools of the state.

ORGANIZATION.—Each school comprises two departments—the normal department and the training department or Model School.

The Normal department embraces;

(a) An elementary course for teachers of rural districts and elementary grades.

(b) An advanced course for teachers of advanced grades.

(c) A Professional course for teachers who have completed the required, academic work elsewhere.

(d) A kindergarten training course (at Winona and St. Cloud.

ADMISSION.—Graduates of high schools and colleges and teachers holding county superintendents' first and second grade certificate are admitted without examination. All others are required to pass an entrance examination.

EXPENSES.—Tuition is free to all who pledge themselves to teach in Minnesota.

Text books are furnished at a rental of three dollars per year. Provision is made in each school for economical living. The average cost of furnished rooms with board is $3.00 per week. The Ladies' Home at St. Cloud offers board, furnished room, heat and light at $3.50 per week.

The new dormitory at Moorhead will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall term.

DEVILS LAKE CHAUTAUQUA.

The first summer Assembly of the North Dakota Chautauqua comes off June 25th to July 17th. An extensive program has been arranged, including many noted speakers, singers, etc., and the occasion promises to be most interesting and instructive. Devils Lake is a summer resort point. The Great Northern Railway gives reduced rates. Address J. B. Faucher, Secretary, Devils Lake, N. D. for programs and other inform. A trip to the lake and assembly will make an enjoyable outing.

A LARGE DROP IN RATES TO THE WEST

The Great Northern inaugurated its new train service to the Pacific Coast on the 18th inst. With sweeping reductions in rates, amounting to 40 percent in many cases. The rate From St. Paul and Minneapolis to Puget Sound was reduced First-class from $60.00 to $35 to Spokane from $36 to $30; and to Helena and Butte from $40 to $25, with corresponding reductions on second-class tickets both through rates applying proportionately to intermediate points. It is the purpose of the Great Northern to make rates to help the development of its territory. It is much the shortest line across the continent, was built on business principles, and at a cost of about one half of that of the older trans-continental lines, and is therefore prepared to correspondingly well by its territory and patrons in rates and accommodations.

Last summer I was attacked with a bad case of flux, and after taking four doses of Beggs' Diarrhoea Balsam was immediately relieved and cured. I have sold it for the past six months and must say that it gives general satisfaction—J. W. Smith, M. D. Puxico, Mo.—For sale by J. L. Johnson, Druggest.

ORIGIN OF THE LIBERTY CAP.

Known as the Emblem of Freedom in the Days of the Roman Empire.

The "liberty cap," that bag-shaped head gear so often seen on the head of the goddess of liberty and which surmounts the national colors on nearly all our silver coins, according to the Philadelphia Press, owes its origin to the Roman empire, where it was given to slaves as a sign of their manumission. The principal significance of the "liberty cap" to the American mind is not, however, its Roman origin, but rather its use as the official cap of the successive doges of republican Venice, that "model of the most stable government ever framed by man." In the Doge's Palace at Venice there is a gallery of portraits of the doges who ruled the republic for 700 years, and the conspicuous place occupied by the "liberty cap" in these portraits shows its importance as a national symbol of freedom. It rather heightens the significance of this ancient symbol in the minds of good Americans when it is remembered that the Emperor Frederick Barbarossa humbled himself before a wearer of the "liberty cap," and that Andrea Dandolo wore it on the fourth crusade and at the conquest of Constantinople. It occupied a place in the forefront of the advancing hosts that in the early part of the fifteenth century swept the Dalmation towns and conquered the entire coast from the estuary of the Po to the Island of Corfu. While Columbus was discovering America the wearers of the "liberty cap" were acquiring Zante and Cyprus, and when the first half of the half-starved settlements on the Massachusetts coast were battling for existence the republic from which we borrowed our "liberty cap," having successfully resisted a league of all the kings of Christendom, was at the zenith of its glory. The "liberty cap" is not as conspicuous in our national signs and symbols as it was in those of the rulers of the Adriatic, yet in a modest way it immortalizes the greatest republic of early times.

How a Sword Fish Can Fight.

Capt. Amery, of the schooner Origin, which has arrived at Plymouth from Labrador with fish, reported that while on the outward voyage from England the vessel was attacked by a swordfish, whose sword penetrated the hull and broke off as the fish attempted to withdraw it. The fish then turned several somersaults and disappeared, as if either stunned or killed by the force of the shock. The sword left in the side of the ship measured eighteen inches. Before Newfoundland was reached the vessel made over a foot of water, and the crew are of the opinion that if the fish had succeeded in withdrawing its sword the vessel would have foundered.—London Daily News.

DIAMONDS SET IN IVORY.

A New Plan Being Tried by Fashionable European Jewelers—The Advantages.

The fashionable jewelers of London, Paris and other continental capitals have hit upon a new idea regarding the setting of diamonds, says a foreign exchange. They propose to use in the setting ivory instead of silver or gold, and it must be acknowledged that there is some reason for doing so. It is well known how difficult it is to clean the silver or gold setting properly and to preserve the original luster. Gold settings have the drawback of reflecting their yellow color on to the stone, and to depreciate thereby the water of the stone. Another weighty objection is that they lose the brightness which is peculiar to these metals as soon as they are used as the only setting for reflecting and transparent stones, while they are beautiful and add to the appearance of diamonds set with pearls, cat's-eyes or chrysopras. Ivory would solve this question at once, which at present can only be attained by setting the transparent with a half transparent stone in gold or silver

Marseilles an Ancient Port.

The earliest dates assigned for the foundation of the port of Marseilles, France, is B. C. 1200-1000, when, it is alleged, certain Phoenician settlers established trading ports in this locality; and the theory—that the city owes its origin to the Phoenicians—has been strengthened by certain archaeological traces which were brought to light during the opening up of streets in 1863. Classical tradition, however, but with less supporting evidence, ascribes the foundation of "Massila" to a colony of the Phoenicians who emigrated with families from Asia Minor to escape the tyranny of Cyrus (B. C. 600,) and of whom mention is made by Herodotus and Horace. To whatever founder the city may look for its origin, its rapid development is a matter upon which there lies no shadow of doubt. It soon acquired sufficient force to enable it to contend with and conquer Carthage in a sea fight, and it was looked upon at an early date as an important factor among the Mediterranean powers.—The Mariner.

Equine Tenant of the White House.

A horse has his home at the White House. This is a literal fact which visitors never discover and which few Washington people know. The horse which shares the executive mansion with the President isn't a thoroughbred. He has neither pedigree nor record. He is just a plain, every-day horse, with a white star in his forehead, a faithful companion to Edgar R. Beckley. And who is Edgar R. Beckley? The man who for twenty-five years has carried to and from the White House all of the interesting and valuable mail received and sent, and who has never been found remiss in his duty. There are men who seem to me monuments of fidelity to routine trusts. Beckley is one of them. Rain or shine, in all seasons, he makes the hourly trips between the White House and the city postoffice. He is the White House mail carrier. And the horse that has his home in the White House carries Beckley. The part of the mansion set apart for the horse is one corner of the conservatory. A thin partition is all that separates the roomy stall from the orchids. There is just room enough for the stall and a temporary supply of feed, and there the horse eats and sleeps, under the same roof with the President of the United States.—Globe-Democrat.

No Danger of a Salt Famine.

According to a computation of the Berg und Huettenmaennische Zeitung, the amount of salt in the sea waters of the globe, if extracted, would be greater in mass than the land, so far as it appears above the surface. The seas, it says, cover 73 per cent of the earth's surface, estimated at 9,260,000 (German) square miles. The percentage of chlornatrium in the sea is the same at all depths. Assuming that the average depth of the sea is a half (German) mile, there are then 3,400,000 cubic miles of sea water. A cubic mile of sea water contains, on the average, about twenty-five kilograms of salt. The 3,400,000 cubic miles of sea water would, therefore, contain 85,000 cubic miles of distilled pure salt.

THE WORK OF CONGRESS.

RESUME OF PROCEEDINGS OF THE SENATE AND HOUSE.

Condensed Record of the Important Transactions of Our National Lawmakers—The Work Done in Both Branches.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The Hawaiian affair came up in the senate in the shape of a resolution asking the president to submit to congress instructions regarding Hawaii. The resolution went over. Mr. Dolph then addressed the senate on the Hawaiian affair. He said that he was opposed to the restoration of a corrupt and licentious queen, and favored annexation. He denounced Mr. Blount's report as one-sided and colored.

The vice president laid before the senate a communication from Gov. Altgeld of Illinois, advising the senate that the State of Illinois, in view of the invitation extended to the states by congress, had caused to be made and placed in Statuary hall of the national capitol a bronze statue of Gen. James Shields, one of Illinois' most distinguished warriors and statesmen. Mr. Cullom gave notice that he would introduce an appropriate resolution in reference to the statue for the consideration of the senate. Among the petitions presented was one by Mr. Dolph, of the Oregon Horticultural society, favoring the maintenance of the present duties on prunes. The senate passed, with slight amendments, the house joint resolution appropriating $50,000 for employment of additional deputy collectors of internal revenue to aid in the execution of the Chinese exclusion acts.

The first bill called up at this session in the house was one for the establishment of a light and fog signal station at Butter Flats, New Bedford, Mass. Gov. Sayres, the new watchdog of the treasury, keen and alert, insisted that the bill should be considered in committee of the whole, and Mr. Andrews, who has charge of the measure, was forced to yield to his demand. Mr. Blanchard of Louisiana had the honor of being the first member called to preside over the house in committee. Mr. Anderson made a statement covering the urgency of the appropriation, to which Gov. Sayres replied that the station was not recommended by the light house board, and until it was so recommended, he should fight it. Accordingly Mr. Anderson withdrew it. The joint resolution for the relief of bona fide settlers on the Mille Lacs reservation passed.

Col. Kiefer is preparing a resolution calling on the attorney general for information as to what has been done in the direction of the anti-trust laws.

Washington, Dec. 7.—In the senate when Senator Hoar's Hawaiian resolution was taken up, Senator Hill created a sensation by making, perhaps, the strongest speech of his senatorial career. He challenged the right of the president to use military force to restore the Hawaiian queen. "There are three co-ordinate branches of this government," he said, "and this is an authority which is not vested in the president alone." The contemplated action of the president, he declared, would be a usurpation of the rights of congress. He was attentively listened to throughout, and the galleries rapidly filled up as the report of the sensational character of his speech spread through the capitol. When Senator Hill finished he was followed by Senator Sherman, who also challenged the correctness of the president's position. Mr. Hoar's resolution was adopted.

Nothing of importance was done in the house.

Congress.

Washington, Dec 8.—The proceedings of the senate were devoid of the intense interest which characterized the discussion yesterday on the Hawaiian question. The important occurrences was the announcement by Mr. Hill of New York that on Monday next he would move to take up the bill repealing the federal election laws. On motion of Mr. Manderson (Rep. Neb.) the senate bill to reimburse the State of Nebraska for expenses incurred in repelling a threatened invasion and raid by the Sioux in 1890 and 1891 was taken up and passed. The following bills were also passed: House bill to amend the railroad land grant forfeiture acts; senate bill granting to the State of North Dakota the use of its militia certain lands heretofore set apart as a wood reservation for Fort Totten military reservation.

The house resolved itself into committee of the whole for the further consideration of the bankruptcy bill.

Washington, Dec. 9.—The Torrey bankruptcy bill was strangled unexpectedly by the house just as the consideration of the bill under the five-minute rule was about to begin. Col. Oates, the champion of the measure, had declined to permit the house to vote on his substitute providing simply for a voluntary system of bankruptcy, whereupon Mr. Bland of Missouri precipitated the entire question by moving to strike out the enacting clause of the bill. Vainly the advocates of the measure protested that it was unfair to reject the bill before the house had had a chance to perfect it by amendment. Their pleadings were unavailing. The vote was decisive. It was carried by a majority of 142 to 111. Judge Terrey of St. Louis, the author of the measure, who has been here for ten years promoting the interests of the bill, sat disconsolately in the gallery. The vote was not a strict party one. An analysis shows that 115 Democrats, 18 Republicans and 9 Populists voted to strike out the enacting clause and 64 Republicans and 47 Democrats voted against it. The full strength of both sides was polled on the vote, and the defeat of the advocates of the bankruptcy bill was crushing.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The sudden collapse of the bankruptcy bill in the house has somewhat disorganized the programme in the house for this week which it was supposed would be almost entirely devoted to that subject. As it is the house will begin the week to-day with no definite work in view. The tariff will not come up for debate until next Monday at the earliest, although if the present intention of the Democratic members of the ways and means committee holds, the bill, that is the custom features of the bill, will be reported on Wednesday. The majority report will be filed with the bill, but it will be some days later before the Republicans have their report prepared. The bill for the admission of Utah will again come up to-day. The Republicans will probably continue a filibustering programme, and at the conclusion of the hour the privilege of the bill will end and it will return to its place on the calender. Mr. Kilgore, of Texas, who is in charge of the measure, says that in that event he will ask the committee on rules for a day for consideration, and he expects that before next Saturday night the bill will have passed the house and have been sent to the senate. Mr. Bailey's bill for the establishment of a voluntary system of bankruptcy will come up this week, and although the house gave a crushing majority against the Torrey bill, which included both the involuntary features, the prevailing opinion is that an overwhelming sentiment in the house favors a single voluntary bankruptcy law, and Mr. Bailey thinks that it can and will be passed without debate.

In the senate the contest over Senator Hill's federal election repeal bill is expected to furnish more genuine political talk than any likely to be under discussion. Senator Hill's motion will be antagonized by a counter motion from Republicans to refer the bill to the committee on privileges and elections. There is likely to be considerable debate of a partisan character before the result can be determined. The programme for the week also promises a speech by Senator Mcrill on the financial features of the president's message. The venerable senator from Vermont generally treats the senate to a speech early in the session on some financial topic. The Hawaiian question will again during the week receive the attention of the senate. The past week has developed the fact that a large number of Democratic senators stand ready to defend Mr. Cleveland's policy. Consequently the discussion of this topic will not be one-sided when it shall occur. The senate calendar, while not very long, contains a sufficient number of bills and resolutions to keep that body entirely employed.

Fire in Antwerp.

Antwerp, Dec. 11.—The Hanseatic house, or Mansion Hanseatique block, was burned this morning. It was 265 feet long and 213 feet broad. The building was begun in 1564 and completed in 1568 from the plans of Cornelius de Vrien. The loss is over 5,000,000 francs. Two men, believed to be the incendiaries, were seen to leave the warehouse and run along the quay. At the time there wasn't the slightest indication of fire, but it was only after the men's disappearance that the flames were seen to burst forth in all their fury. Within an hour after the fire was first discovered the entire building was wrapped in flames. The warehouse contained eleven million kilograms of grain and two hundred thousand kilograms of linseed. A part of one of the walls fell. There was a great scattering of the spectators to get out of danger. One unfortunate, a policeman, was buried in the debris and was instantly killed. Many persons were wounded.

For a Big Museum.

Minneapolis, Dec. 11.—State Geologist Winchell has a plan whereby the managers of the Minneapolis exposition building can unload the heavy burden they are now carrying to the great advantage of the entire state. In brief, his idea is that the old hulk be given over to the university authorities, to be by them converted into a great museum, representing the science, art, education, even the politics of the entire Northwest.

Ticket Office Robbed.

St. Charles, Ill., Dec. 11.—The ticket office of the Chicago Great Western road was robbed last night by four men. They smashed the glass in the office windows, and covering Night Operator Foster and his friend "Brick" Matteson with revolvers compelled them to open the door. They then bound Foster and Matteson, both of whom are only eighteen years of age, to a chair, drilled a hole in the safe and blew it open. They secured $110 in money and some checks and receipts. They then made their escape.

Many Passengers Hurt.

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 11.—A Lordsburg, N. Mex., special says: "A Southern Pacific passenger train left the track ten miles east of here last night. The train was a few hours late and was running about forty miles an hour when it struck a broken fish-plate and the entire train left the track. The coaches were dragged some distance before toppling over. Some of them were thrown twenty feet from the track and landed on their sides. Thirty-seven passengers were cut and bruised.

Irrigation Company Fails.

San Bernardino, Cal., Dec. 11.—On petition of the Allesandro irrigation district the supreme court has appointed E. P. Merrison receiver for the Bear Valley Irrigation company. The company has a capital stock of $4,000, and until recently paid dividends of 15 per cent on that amount. The company supplies a large part of San Bernardino county with water, but has become financially embarrassed and cannot pay for recent improvements.

A Quick Courtship.

Marshfield, Wis., Dec. 11.—The News says there was quite a romantic marriage at Tomah last week when a sister of Mrs. Charles Kelly became the wife of L. W. Paddock. The groom is a well-to-do farmer residing about four miles from Cataract. He is a widower with an adopted son seven years of age, while she is a divorced wife with a little girl six years old. The newly wedded couple met for the first time last Saturday and in less than twenty-four hours were made man and wife.

Helping Michigan's Afflicted.

Detroit, Dec. 11.—Messrs. W. C. Maybury, E. W. Cottrell and R. H. Fyfe, the relief committee that has been investigating the condition of the starving miners in the upper peninsula, have arrived in Detroit. It is regarded as almost certain that the owners of the iron mines in the upper peninsula have decided to do something to alleviate the distress of the destitute there by starting up the mines.

Keystone Bank Wreckers Defense.

Philadelphia, Dec. 11.—The defense in the trial of H. H. Yard for complicity in wrecking the Keystone bank, opened its case with a general denial of all the facts offered by the government. The hearing will be continued this week.

Wolverines Gold-Crazed.

Rhodes, Mich, Dec. 11.—It is believed that there is more in the gold excitement in Bentley township than was at first supposed. The excitement is at a high pitch, and every one is prospecting for the yellow metal.

Combatting Consumption.

Berlin, Dec. 11.—The National Zeitung announces that Prof. Koch will shortly publish a comprehensive method of using tuberculin and the diagnostic qualities of tuberculin for the recognition of tuberculosis in its first stages.

The Michigan Destitute.

Marquette, Mich. Special—The Detroit relief committee, consisting of ex-Congressman William Maybury and two leading Detroit merchants, commissioned to investigate the destitution among the miners in the upper peninsula, concluded their work here to-day, and will report that in Gogebic, Iron and Dickinson counties the distress is even greater than hitherto represented. The committee has spent a week in these counties and personally investigated nearly every case. They estimate about $200,000 will be necessary to sustain the destitute families in decent comfort until spring. Food and clothing are great necessities, as fuel is abundant and can be had for the taking. The committee will make a special effort to induce the mining companies to find employment for idle men, if only for wages sufficient to support bare existence. They will appeal to Gov. Rich and all charitably inclined people for liberal contributions. While much distress exists in Marquette county, the county poor commissioners claim ability to care for their poor without outside aid. Mayor Nathan M. Kaufman of this city to-day forwarded a car load of flour in hundred-pound sacks to the Gogebic relief committee as his personal donation.

They Carried Their Gall.

Helena, Mont., Dec. 11.—Two highwaymen went to the house of John Bower in the north part of town. In answer to their knock the door was opened by a boy of sixteen. Guns were poked into his face and he was ordered to keep quiet. Then the robbers entered the house and drove Mrs. Bower and three children into a bed room and kept them prisoners for more than two hours, in the meantime ransacking the house, but taking nothing. When Bower came home, and as he stepped on the porch the highwaymen opened the door, brought their guns down on him and ordered him to come in quietly. They went through his pockets, getting $26 and a watch. Then they left and are still at large. Bower keeps a small grocery store, and they doubtless expected to get his day's receipts.

Early Saturday morning two masked men held up a saloonkeeper and his guests at Big Timber, getting $00. Just as they had finished their work the clerk of a hotel a few doors away bustled into the saloon and shouted: "Change a five?" "Give me that five," demanded one of the robbers, and the clerk accommodated him as soon as his blood thawed out enough to permit of compliance.

Can Blount Be Prosecuted?

Washington, Dec. 11.—Has James H. Blount been guilty of a crime against the existance of a government as defined in chapter 2 of the penal statutes? There are a number of eminent senators learned in law who think that he has. Mr. Blount, when in Hawaii, held his office unknown to the law. He was particularly designated by the president as "My personal representative." His name was never sent to the senate for its consideration in connection with any office. The senate has never advised or consented to his appointment to an office. So far as the statutes of the United States go, he was a private citizen when he was in Hawaii. In his capacity as private citizen under the law he engaged in correspondence with a foreign government, which, in the opinion of some of the most eminent senators who have been considering the subject, is, within the meaning of the statutes, criminal. This subject will undoubtedly be called to the attention of the senate at an early day. It is claimed that Mr. Blount, not having been an officer known to law, and not having been confirmed by the senate to any diplomatic position, or to a position of any sort, in his communications with the Hawaiian government comes within the definition of the penalties of section 5335, United States statutes, in the chapter on crimes against the existence of the government, and is liable to fine and imprisonment.

Scheig's Return.

New York, Dec. 11.—Among the passengers on the steamship New York were Inspector Hoy and Detective Lawrence, of the Minneapolis police, with Philip M. Scheig, the defaulting cashier of the Bank of Minneapolis, and his confederate, Frank Floyd. Louis Floyd, another confederate and a brother of one of the prisoners, was captured in this city several weeks ago and taken back to Minneapolis. He was about to sail for a Brazilian port when he was arrested. His brother and Scheig were on their way across the ocean, intending to go to Brazil from London, but they were arrested at Southampton. The greater part of the stolen money was found on Scheig when he was arrested. Floyd and Scheig will be taken back to Minneapolis.

Aiding the Poor.

Pittsburg, Dec. 11.—The city officials have been holding conferences recently to devise means to aid the unemployed and deserving poor. It has finally been decided to raise $1,000,000 by popular subscription and use the money for city and park improvements. A number of the leading capitalists here volunteered to make large donations to the fund, and it is thought there will not be much trouble in raising the amounts required.

Too Talkative.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—In the case of Assassin Prendergast Saturday the state's attorney announced that ten insanity experts will be in attendance during the trial. During the proceedings Prendergast twice created a disturbance by attempting to talk to the judge and the council for the prosecution, but was promptly silenced by court bailiffs. After exhausting the special venire the court adjourned, no additional jurors having been secured.

Too Much for Lobengula.

Capetown, Dec. 11.—Reports received from native sources say that King Lobengula is ill, and has abandoned his intention to cross the Zambesi.

Sugar Negotiations With Spain.

Madrid, Dec. 11.—It is reported that fresh negotiations are pending with the United States in regard to Dutch sugar.

The Closets Were Sanitary.

Norfolk, Neb., Dec. 11.—Early in the fall there was complaint made of the system of dry closets used in the high school building. The ventilating stacks were raised eight feet, and the school board made a thorough investigation, deciding unanimously that the closets were odorless and in successful operation. The Smead system is the one used.

Didn't Criticise It.

Rome, Dec. 11.—Cardinal Mazolla has authorized the Associated Press to deny that he is the author of an interview containing unfavorable criticisms of the Catholic university at Washington.

May Strike.

Pittsburg, Special—Within the next ten days the 6,000 miners of the Monongahela valley will likely demand a 2 1-2-cent mining rate, and the refusal on the part of the river coal operators to grant it will precipitate a strike. This is the programme already arranged by the representatives of the miners who are now at work in the different pools agitating the matter in order that the question may reach the issue as soon as possible. This proposed move was hinted at in the convention of the operators and miners held yesterday.

Not a Local Disease

Because Catarrh affects your head it is not therefore a local disease. If it did not exist in your blood it could not manifest itself in your nose: It is a constitutional disease, and to cure it, therefore, it requires a constitutional remedy and a thorough blood purifier like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which expels all trace of the impurity in which the disease originates, and thus perfectly and permanently cures Catarrh. Mistress—What kind of pies are these, cook?

Cook—Some av 'em is appul an' some is mince.

Mistress—But I told you to mark them so they could be told apart; and they are all marked "T. M."

Cook—So they be, mum—"'Tis mince" an' "'Tain't mince."—Judge.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

"German Syrup"

I must say a word as to the efficacy of German Syrup. I have used it in my family for Bronchitis, the result of Colds, with most excellent success. I have taken it myself for Throat Troubles, and have derived good results therefrom. I therefore recommend it to my neighbors as an excellent remedy in such cases. James T. Durette, Earlysville, Va. Beware of dealers who offer you "something just as good." Always insist on having Boschee's German Syrup.

Insurance on the stock of Levine Bros., $44,500, and on fixtures, $1,500; on building, $6,000, and rents, $5,000; total $57,000. The loss on the clothing was almost total the building being damaged but little. The origin of the fire is a mystery. Jacob Levine states it probably caught on the floor above the store.

Not to Be Had.

"I'd like a set of knittin'-needles 'thout any seam-needle," said Obed Jenkins in an impressive whisper to the Berryville storekeeper.

"What!" ejaculated that worthy, surveying Obed's guileless countenance, which wore an expression of unusual anxiety. He repeated his request.

"What in Tunkett do you mean?" inquired the storekeeper, with some severity.

"Why, jest what I say," repeated Obed. "I want 'em for my wife. She's eternally knittin', seems 's if, an' whenever I want her to do anythin' she allus says, 'I'll do it jest as soon as I've knit into the middle o' my seam-needle.' An' I cal'lated if I c'd buy her a set 'thout any seam-needle, an' kinder lose the old set someways, mebbe 'twould save me a good mess o' waitin' off n' on."

When the storekeeper had recovered from his laugh sufficiently to explain to Obed the impossibility of complying with his request, the old man shuffled out of the store with a crestfallen air, muttering as he went, "I declare to 't, there ain't no gettin' ahead o' women-folks, noways!"

What He Meant.

An amusing incident told by a resident of Washington county, Mississippi, was printed in Harper's Magazine some years ago.

In this part of the great Mississippi valley, which is liable to annual inundation from the Father of Waters, dwells old Jesse D——, noted for his quaint speeches and imperturbable manner. On one occasion he was witness on a case with which the moisture or aridity of the soil had not the remotest connection; but notwithstanding this, he prefaced his answer to every question with the irrelevant remark, "Wa'al, I war desp'rately overflowed that year."

Becoming a little annoyed by the constant repetition of this remark, the examining counsel finally said, in a rather sneering tone:

"Mr. D——, will you please state to the court and jury what you mean by being 'desp'rately overflowed?'"

Straightening himself up to his full height,—six feet three,—and with a drawl of corresponding length, he replied:

"Wa'al, sir, I mean thar war too much water for wagonin', and not enough for boatin'!"

The counsel gave it up.

THE WORK OF CONGRESS

RESUME OF PROCEEDINGS OF THE SENATE AND HOUSE.

Condensed Record of the Important Transactions of Our National Lawmakers—The Work Done in Both Branches.

Washington, Dec. 12.—In the senate Mr. Hoar introduced a resolution calling upon the president for further information as to his actions on Hawaiian affairs. The resolution by imputation attacks the president's appointment of a commissioner without the advice and consent of the senate. Mr. Hoar said if it were true that the president (the senate being in session) authorized an officer to execute paramount diplomatic authority in another country with which the United States was at peace, authorized him to employ at his discretion the naval force of the United States, and had given him the title, which was enumerated as one of the diplomatic offices in the act of congress, he was standing upon very slippery ground, and he had better step on terra firma rapidly and at once. One of the allegations was that the president on March 7, 1893, (the senate being in session) commissioned a person to go to Hawaii, accrediting him by a letter as a commissioner from this government, and said, in the letter of instructions, that he was to be paramount as a representative of the United States in the Hawaiian islands. If that allegation were true, said Mr. Hoar, it seemed to him as gross a violation of the constitution of the United States as was ever charged upon or imputed to any public official. It was not necessary to say to the senate or to the administration people that an attempt to usurp the power of the appointing or commissioning such an officer without the consent of the senate was an attempt to usurp all the diplomatic relations of the government. The resolution was further debated by Messrs. Hoar and Gray and was then laid over until to-morrow. The Mille Lacs bill was then passed. Senator Hill's bill to repeal the federal election law went over by consent.

The session of the house was brief and uninteresting. Several bills of minor importance were passed during the morning hour, and an agreement was reached by which to-morrow will be devoted to the consideration of the bill for the admission of the Territory of Utah. The bill to review the claims arising out of the captured and abandoned property act aroused the partisan opposition of the Republicans and notice was served on the Democratic side by Mr. Reed that this bill could only be considered under the stress of a special order from the committee on rules. The remainder of the session after the expiration of the morning hour was devoted to District of Columbia matters.

Washington, Dec. 13.—The first gun of the inevitable parliamentary battle in the senate upon the repeal of the federal election laws was fired yesterday, and it came from one of the opponents of repeal—Senator Cullom of Illinois. In the course of his remarks Mr. Cullom attacked the New York machine, and especially Isaac H. Maynard, the defeated candidate for judge. This brought Senator Hill to his feet, and a long dialogue was begun. The Democratic managers are very desirous of having the federal elections bill disposed of in the senate before the holidays. They are especially anxious to have the bill out of the way before the tariff bill shall reach the senate. In this they may be antagonized by the Republicans, who have shown a disposition to discuss the bill at length. Senator Stewart of Nevada, in a short speech, advocated the repeal of the election laws, and incidentally gave expression to some of his well known views on the financial question. The resolution calling upon the president for additional information in the Hawaiian matter was laid over in order that Mr. Frye of Maine might submit some remarks.

The house discussed the question of planning another star on the American flag. The consideration of the bill for the admission into the sisterhood of states was begun. The principal point at issue was whether the enabling act should contain a proviso imposing pains and penalties for polygamous marriages, the contention on the one hand being that the state should come in on an equal footing with other states, unhandicapped by such provisions, and on the other that, as polygamy had been stamped out by federal statutes, and as the admission of the territory would repeal that statute, congress should make it practically part of the enabling act.

Washington, Dec. 14. — The Bowers amendment to the bill of the admission of Utah prohibiting polygamy forever, has been agreed to by the house. The bill was then passed without division. Just before adjournment the resolution by Mr. Hitt calling for the correspondence in the Hawaiian affair, amended so as to include an extension of period to be covered by the correspondence to March, 1889, the beginning of the Harrison administration, was taken up and passed. It was expected that a lively debate would occur when this resolution was reported back to the house, but Mr. Hitt, the author, refrained from criticism, and there was no explosion. Mr. Boutelle of Maine, who manifested a disposition to speak, was taken off his feet by the motion to order the previous question.

The president pro tem. laid before the senate the resolution offered by Mr. Hoar calling on the president for further information on the Hawaiian matter, and Mr. Frye (Rep. Me.) addressed the senate thereon, and said that Mr. Blount, in his report, has not written one single unvarnished line of truth, given one unprejudiced opinion or rendered an impartial judgment. Mr. Vest followed Mr. Frye. He said as he understood the condition of affairs in Hawaii, the provisional government was a defacto government. As he understood international law, a de facto government had all the rights of a de jure government, whether that government was established rightfully or wrongfully. It was to-day a de facto government, and any assault upon it by armed force on the part of the United States or any other country must be an act of war, which can only be brought about by the action of congress. The resolution was referred to the committee on foreign affairs.

Washington, Dec. 15.—The house was dead-locked for two hours by the refusal of the Republicans to vote on the motion to go into committee of the whole for the consideration of the Arizona statehood bill. The Democratic leaders had decided to proceed with the consideration of the Arizona and New Mexico bills and dispose of them before the holidays. The Republican leaders do not relish the idea of bringing these Democratic territories into the Union, and they at the request of the leaders refrained from voting, except those from the far West, especially those from the newly admitted States of Washington, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho and the Dakotas, who could not with consistency place any obstacle in they way of their sister territories. The Democrats expect to have their own quorum to-morrow. The McGarrahan bill was called up during the morning hour, but was filibustered against by Mr. Sayres of Texas, chairman of the appropriations committee.

In the senate much business of a miscellaneous character was transacted. The house bill repealing the federal election laws, referred to the committee on privileges and elections a few days ago, was reported back favorably and placed on the calendar. Among the bills introduced the most important was one by Senator Voorhees, chairman of the committee on finance, providing for the coinage of the silver seignorage in the treasury at the rate of $2,000,000 per month, and when that is exhausted, for the purchase and coinage of a similar amount of silver monthly. The senate bill to repeal a clause in the last pension appropriation bill which prohibited the payment of pensions to persons residing in foreign countries was taken from the calender and passed.

Washington, Dec. 16.—The course of events in the house resembled the halcyon days of the Reed congress when legislation was rushed through at galloping speed. The bill for the admission of Arizona was put through under whip and spur, and the bill for the admission of New Mexico was well under way when a wrangle over what was to be done with Oklahoma intervened, and the debate thus precipitated lasted until adjournment. The bulk of the Eastern opposition to the territories as expressed by Mr. Bingham of Philadelphia, was predicted on the theory that while the Eastern states, rich in wealth and strong in population, would be able to hold their own in the house where the basis of representation was population, influence of the real states of the Union would be overbalanced by the greatly increased state representation in the senate. Mr. Hepburn of Iowa in an impassioned speech precipitated a very lively discussion of the merits of the bill. He said the house ought to stop and consider what it proposed to do when it passed this bill. It proposed to give to Arizona four sections in every range, or one-ninth of the total area of the state, 73,000,000 acres. In addition to that it gave a part of the sale of the proceeds of one-tenth of the land besides several other grants of 100,000 acres. The Republicans continued their filibustering tactics and the ayes and nays were demanded. As on yesterday the Republicans, except a few from the West, refused to vote, in order, if possible, to break a quorum. They were unsuccessful, however, as the motion was carried by a vote of 182 to 5. As soon as the vote was announced Gen. Wheeler moved that the house go into committee of the whole on the bill for the admission of New Mexico. The Republicans made no attempt to filibuster against the motion, which was carried without division, but when it came to a vote they filibustered, and the bill went over.

Washington, Dec. 18.—It is the present intention of the powers that be in congress to adjourn for the holiday recess next Thursday until Jan. 4 of the new year. The tariff debate, which the Democratic leaders had hoped to enter upon before the adjournment cannot now begin until after the recess, although the bill will be reported to the house either to-morrow or Wednesday. The four days before adjournment premise to be busy ones. After the urgent deficiency bill is disposed of the New Mexico statehood bill, which is the special order after the morning hour, will again come forward, and it is expected that it will go through this afternoon or Tuesday, provided the Democratic quorum remains intact. If the Republicans filibuster and the quorum breaks the house may be dead-locked for the rest of the week, as far as business after the morning is concerned. The transmission of the Hawaiian correspondence by the president may lead to some debate on this question in open house. The president's message transmitting the correspondence will probably show that the administration has done all in its power by the aid of diplomacy to right the wrong from its standpoint done the Hawaiian monarchy, and that the situation is now one for the congress of the United States to deal with. In other words that diplomacy has failed to restore the conditions existing prior to the revolution, and congress must now decide whether other means are to be employed.

For the third week in succession Hawaii promises to be the important subject before the senate. The president will comply with the requests of both houses of congress for copies of all the recent correspondence on the Hawaiian question, and it is considered almost certain that whatsoever condition of affairs the correspondence and the message accompanying it may reveal, the senate will find in it a text for numerous speeches. The programme in the senate includes the reception of the president's Hawaiian message and speeches by Senators Hansbrough and Dolph, the former in explanation of the bill for the extermination of the Russian thistle, and the latter on the subject of the tariff.

Agnes Davis' Search.

Nashua, Iowa, Dec. 18.—Miss Agnes Davis, a bright girl of twenty-one from Marietta, Wis., arrived in Nashua in search of W. M. G. Davis, her father, a traveling man, whom she had not seen in thirteen years. Davis travels for a Chicago house, presumably the Nickson company. Agnes was left at seven years of age with her grandmother. Davis has been remarried for eight years, and she has not heard from him. The grandmother is dying. She went to work in a millinery store to earn money to make the search, which began two weeks ago. Her money is about gone.

Surprise for Cracksmen.

Detroit, Dec. 18.—Early this morning Aleck Burdoin, an ex-convict, was shot and killed while trying to enter a saloon for the purpose of burglarising it. He and three others were surprise at work by the police and during the fusillade Burdoin was killed. Two of the cracks were arrested.

Married at De Smet.

De Smet, S. D., Dec. 18.—C. A. Savage, a prominent young attorney of this place, was married to Miss Lizzie Armstrong, a daughter of Hon. John Armstrong, a wealthy ranchman and horse fancier.

No New Silver Party.

Washington, Dec. 18.—A. J. Warner, the president of the conference of the bimetallic league which has been in session here for several days, gave out an explanatory statement of the action of the conference. The meetings of the conference have been well attended. A number of public men in congress lent their aid by being present. These include Senator Stewart and Senator Jones of Nevada, Peffer of Kansas, Power of Montana, Allen of Nebraska and Hansbrough of North Dakota, and Representatives Pence and Bell of Colorado, Simpson of Kansas and Sibley of Pennsylvania. The following is President Warner's statement:

"It was unanimously agreed in the conference:

"First—That the money question is, and will continue to be, the paramount issue till it is settled, and settled rightly, and on sound principles; and that it can be displaced by no other.

"Second—That the first battle is for the next congress.

"Third—That to achieve results the silver men must not only stay silver men after they reach congress, but they must there unite, and, putting silver above party, work incessantly to accomplish the object for which they were elected.

"A number of delegates were in favor of organizing a new party, out and out, with the declaration as made on the money question as the sole issue, and leaving the way open for the affiliation of not only the People's party, but of the 6,000,000 who refused to vote at all at the late elections, but the conference was not called for such a purpose, and a majority of the delegates present believed the course finally agreed upon to be the better policy in the coming congressional elections.

"The conference recommended that the bimetallic league urgently suggest to friends of silver everywhere, in all parties that they support for the Fifty-fourth congress only such candidates as will pledge themselves in nominating conventions and openly and publicly in their canvass for election to the cause of silver in case of their election."

Died a Raving Maniac.

San Francisco, Dec. 18.—The Pacific Mail steamer Rio de Janeiro which arrived from China, was a floating lunatic asylum during the voyage. It brought the corpse of American Consul General Alfred D. Jones of Shanghai, who died seven days after leaving port, a raving maniac, and it also brought Purser J. H. Mahar, late of the steamer Peru, who was also violently insane. Consul Jones seemed to be suffering from melancholia when taken aboard at Shanghai, but he soon became violent and smashed articles in his cabin and tried to run amuck on deck. He was manacled and a watch put over him, but he steadily grew worse and died on Dec. 9. Purser Mahar became insane at Hong Kong and was sent back here for treatment. He smashed windows in the steamer salon and had to be put in irons. On the voyage to China one of the Rio's Chinese passengers developed insanity and run amuck with a big carving knife. He was knocked down before he hurt any one.

Looking for Bodies.

Louisville, Dec. 18.—Work was continued at the scene of Friday's bridge disaster, and a large force of men has been at work clearing away the wreckage in search for the bodies of the missing men. The body of C. F. Holderer, one of the missing men, was taken out. The injured at the hospital, with the exception of Edward Hoben and Edward Hildebrand, are doing nicely, and Dr. Rodman says they will soon be out again. George Thorpe has been discharged. Hoben is in a very critical condition and may die at any time. His brother has arrived, and is in attendance. Hildebrand is also in a precarious condition.

Fatal Labor Fight.

Apollo, Pa., Dec. 18.—Last night the bad blood that has developed between the strikers and the non-union men at the Apollo iron mills resulted in a collision that will end in murder. It appears that a party of strikers got after a man named Mason, and beat him. To protect himself Mason fired into the group of his assailants and shot William Kelly, a striker who was active in the attack upon him. Kelly's death is only a question of hours. There have been reports that he had died, but they are not generally believed. Mason was taken to jail.

So many members of the Owl Club are away that there will be no meetings this week.

Miss Mary Kyande returned today from Duluth where she has been for several months past.

Editor H. E. Mussey, of the Thief River Falls Press, made us a call today He was one of a dozen who went down from there to Crookston as special jurors.

Business starts in fairly brisk and will probably continue good this week. Then we may look for quiet times for a while,

We have had a couple of snow storms the past week and now have plenty of snow for good sleighing.

W. A. Sorsoleil reports that business is good in the flour and feed line. He has sold as high as three cars of flour in one week lately,

We will have a quiet christmas. For the first time in several years there will be no christmas tree and the little ones this year must depend on their stockings for presents,

The M, E, social at the Church last evening was very well attended and the receipts were more than were expected The auction brought about forty dollars and the supper over fifteen more.

CHRISTMAS BALL

A ball will be given in Bjerks hall on Christmas night. Good music will be furnished and strict order will be maintained. All are cordially invited to attend and have a good time.

The trial of Pendergast the murderer of Mayor Harrison of Chicago drags on in a way that makes the average citizen very tired. Such men should be tried one week and promply nanged the next.

Don't forget that S. M. Owen will speak at Crookston next Wednesday night December 26th. Go down and hear him if possible.

We have had a couple of days of mild weather this week for which we are truly grateful,

District Court will adjourn next Saturday until January when the term will be finished. It will take abut three weeks.

S. M. Dainard returned from Crookston last Friday considerably elated over the fact that he was a winner in the suit for damages by Hygenius Erickson. The plaintiff failed to show where he had sustained any damage by Dainard besides Dainard was justified as an officer of the village in doing as he did.

The gold reserve in the treasury has gone down to less than $5,000,000 again The gold-bugs in congress said it was reduced before by the silver law. Since that law has been repealed it would be in order for them to explain why it has gone down now. Every act of the Wall street advocates and every fact of history go to prove their hipocrisy and dishonesty. By the way what has become of that law they were going to give us as a substitute for the Sherman law?—Clay Center Dispatch.

Joseph Smith, of Red Lake Falls, was in town last Monday.

Over eighty millions of dollars heaped up in the New York banks and very nearly all of it during this year of panic. Eighty millions withdrawn from business channels—Eighty millions of exchange medium sadly needed in circulation. About half of this immense amount has accumulated since the silver repeal bill passed—since that one step was taken which we were told would restore confidence among bankers and bring prosperity to the people.

Deputy Sheriff Martin Losey struck town this morning looking for jurors for the Tweeton case. He succeeded in finding eight here and they started for Crookston this afternoon. The lucky ones were C. G. Rapp, E. M. Hoff, P. S. Stranahan, Leonard Holmes, O. H. Peters, E. W. Twing, C. A. Brink and Dan Patterson. A special venire of fifty has been called and the twelve jurors will be selected from among this number. The trial will open to-morrow Thursday, morning. It is stated that Attorney General Childs will assist the county attorney in trying the case.

In the hot municipal campaign now raging in Chicago the United States vote is receiving scant attention at the hands of the partisan press. The papers are saying a great deal about the "German vote," the "Scandinavian vote" the "Irish vote," the "Polish vote"—all Europe seems interested —but the American vote is not taken into account. And yet all persons entitled to the franchise are Americans, either by birth or adoption, and should insist upon being designated as such.—Tribune

A most remarkable proceeding is recorded on the part of some of the great mill owners of Massachusetts. In order to influence congress to defeat the new tarriff bill they have issued notice to all employes that if the bill becomes a law they will make a heavy reduction in the wages of their employes and suggesting a general protest from them against the passage of the act. It is one of the many weak spots in this government that such manufacturing of public sentiment is not a crime under the law.—Lumberman.

The pine land investigation case inaugurated by the last legislature has ended in a manner satisfactory to a large majority of the people throughout the state. C.A. Smith & Co, a Minneapolis lumbering firm, had purchased the timber on a certain tract of land for $2 per thousand at a private sale. The appraiser accredited that certain piece of land with 700,000 feet The legislature started an investigation and the facts were brought out at the trial that there were nearly 6,000,000 feet of timber on the land: that it was worth $4 per thousand, and that the state auditor had no right to sell timber at private sale. This decision will turn considerable additional money into the state school funds, and had the matter been brought up years ago that fund would have been benefited accordingly. It is the first black eye that the pine barons of this state have ever received, but we hope it will not be the last.—Swift County Monitor.

And still the money is piling up in the east and is getting more and more scarce in the west. It is dificult to explain the reason of this condition. The owners of that money are every day losing by keeping it in idleness. There is plenty of good security and the rate of interest is high. There is one explanation. There is no doubt that the screws were put upon the country during the pendency of the silver repeal bill. The "pinching" process has yet to be continued to influence, if possible, the action of congress upon the tariff.

One thing is evident: The east owns the money of the country. If it did not own it how could it call the cash home and keep it? So long have the manufacturers and corporations been protected and pampered that they own the country. So well have they prospered under the paternal care of the government that they can foreclose on the resources of the nation when they choose. The west is mortgaged and the east hold the mortgages. And still our gold plated contemporary on the corner rays we must continue to help the east. How long, O Lord how long.—Norman County Herald,

$3,000.00 A YEAR FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS.

If you want work that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5.00 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Nothing difficult to learn or that requires much time. The work is easy, healthy, and honorable, and can be done during daytime or evenings, right in your own locality, wherever you live. The result of a few hours' work often equals a week's wages. We have taught thousands of both sexes and all ages, and many have laid foundations that will surely bring them riches. Some of the smartest men in this country owe their success in life to the start given them while in our employ years ago. You, reader, may do as well; try it. You cannot fail. No capital necessary. We fit you out with something that is new, solid, and sure. A book brimful of advice is free to all. Help yourself by writing for it to-day—not to-morrow. Delays are costly.

The government takes a letter from one point to another for two cents. An express company takes one on the same train, has its own car, pay no more for its transportation than the government does for its mail car, does not pay its employes as much as the government does, and charges you twenty-five cents See result: In the near future government will do all the express business in the interest of the people.—Ex

The gold is again flowing out of the country. Last spring it was the Sherman law that caused it, so it was alleged, but what causes it now? The foreigner seems to have a strong pull on the stuff, and takes it in spite of everything. British and other foreign capitalists own enough gold bonds and other gold securities to enable them to drain all the gold out of this country whenever they desire to do so.—Warren Sheaf.

What He Said.

In an English court a man was on trial who could speak nothing but Irish, and an interpreter was called and duly sworn. The prisoner at once asked him some question, and he replied. The judge interposed sharply.

"What does the prisoner say?" demanded the judge.

"Nothing, my lord," answered the interpreter.

"How dare you say that when we all heard him? What was it?"

"My lord," said the interpreter, beginning to tremble, "it had nothing to do with the case."

"If you don't answer, I'll commit you. What did he say?"

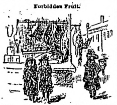
"Well, my lord, you'll excuse me, but he said, 'Who's that ould woman with the red bed curtain round her sitting up there?'"

The court roared.

"And what did you say?" asked the judge, looking a little uncomfortable.

"I said: 'Whist, ye spalpeen! That's the ould boy that's going to hang yez.'"—Youth's Companion.

Forbidden Fruit.



"Bessy, do you think she'd let me hold that doll for a minute if I wuz to ask her?"—Life.

Very Disappointing.

"Now look at that letter," said young Summers as he threw a scented square envelope across the cafe table. "What would you think to find that in your letterbox when you came into the club?"

"Why," said the visitor, picking it up and noticing the delicate handwriting, "I should think that some fair young woman was going to invite me to drink tea with her tomorrow afternoon."

"Do you know, that's just what I thought when I saw it, and that's why I am disgusted. The other night at the horse show I was introduced to an awfully pretty girl who lives up the avenue. The next night I met her again at the Van Hartman's, and we had quite a chat. She promised to send me her card. I thought this was it. It's a shame."

"Oh, but she may send it yet. I wouldn't despair so soon."

"It isn't that. It's the idea of getting such a letter as that instead of the one I expected. Don't you see what it is?"

"Do you want me to read it?"

"You may if you care for such things. There is nothing private about things that gain your confidence under false pretenses of perfumed and sealed envelopes and feminine hands. It's getting outrageous that one should at every turn have his heart set beating with visions of pretty notes, only to find printed slips telling you of the virtues of the latest clothes cleaning establishment and the low priced menu of the new restaurant on the corner. That note informs me that I can have my trousers pressed regularly once a week for 25 cents, and the wagon will call to get them. Isn't that a romantic message to crave respectful attention in polite and insinuating guise!"—New York Tribune.

Getting Even.

A prominent Englishman, Lord D., a proverbial hater of America and Americans, was dining lately in Paris with the British minister, and next to him at the table was a noted Newport belle, Miss X. The conversation had drifted to a discussion of things American. It is needless to say that Lord D. made some pretty disagreeable remarks about some Americans he had met and some Yankee customs he abhorred.

"Why, d'ye know," he continued, with an almost unpardonable want of tact, "that at some of the places I dined in America I saw people eat with their knives and spill their soup on the tablecloth."

Miss X. was thoroughly provoked by this time, but she replied with an apparent unconcern:

"What poor letters of introduction you must have had, my lord!"

There was no more unpleasant talk about America that evening.—Harper's Bazar.

What Hurt Him.

"I don't mind your refusing me cold victuals, ma'am," said the time worn and travel stained pilgrim at the kitchen door, buttoning his faded remnant of a coat under his chin, "but when you call me a worthless tramp you do me a cruel injustice. I have a standing offer of $15, ma'am, from one of the best medical colleges in this country for my corporosity, just as it stands."

And with a stately bow he turned away, shuffled down the steps and carried his insulted corporosity to the next kitchen.—Chicago Tribune.

Explained.

Teacher—Tommy, have you found out the difference between a republic and a monarchy yet?

Tommy—I asked pa about it, and he said that in a monarchy the people obey their rulers because they respect them, and in a republic they obey the bosses 'cause they can't help it.—Indianapolis Journal.

Precisely.

"How is it that Dodger finds boarding cheaper than housekeeping with his large family?"

"I suppose one reason is that he never pays his board bill."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Great Combination.

Penelope—Don't you see the advantage?

Richley—No; I do not.

Penelope—Why, you know how to make money, and I know how to spend it. What a team we'd make!—Life.

Exceptions.

Henderson—Do policemen always run away when there is a fight going on?

Williamson—Oh, no. I saw six or seven of them rush right into a dog fight the other day.—Truth.

The Retort Courteous.

Said the foreman to the printer
One dull afternoon last winter,
"You're a clever sort of chap, I don't deny,
But you're worse than Jew or peddler
In the sense of being a meddler,
For you're always got a finger in the pi!"

Here the printer let his copy
Fall upon the floor so sloppy,
As he answered, "Mr. Foreman, I shall stop
Fingering the pi hereafter,
So just cease your jokes and laughter,
For you see, sir, I have let the matter drop."
—Raymond's Monthly.

A REAL POET.

But His Pa Didn't Want Him to Start In as Devil.

"Yes, sir," went on the gentleman from Corncobville as he drew up his pants and took a seat in the editor's office, "there hain't no use a-talkin. I've got one o' the smartest boys to hum ye ever seed, an I've come in town today with the sole object o' findin a place for him where he might have a chance to let his great, big usefulness unspring."

"Indeed!" interrogated the editor wearily. "And in what channel does your son's talent run?"

"Oh, it's all to writin," came the answer; "all to writin. 'Pon my soul, it jess beats all the way that boy kin write. Why, sir, he's got yards an yards o' stuff writ out up to hum, an I'm swashed if he can't beat anything I ever heerd. He writes po'try, you know, an that's mighty hard to write. We've only had 'bout a dozen real poets, mind yer, so says the teacher to hum, an my boy's a goin to make another one."

The editor gave a sigh and looked as if he would like to hear Gabriel sound the note that time was no more.

"Now, this here, as far as I kin remember," went on the hayseed visitor, scratching at his head, "is one of his pomes—pomes, mind yer, an my boy writ it:"

"The trees wuz full of leafy leaves;
The sun shone bright an fair;
The birds wuz singin sweetly, an
The wind blowed through the air.

"Now, what do ye think o' that? Don't that rhyme immense? Well, my boy writ that, an he's got barrels more jess like it. Now, I've heerd as how some men make mighty big wages writin stuff fur papers, an I'm in town today to make arrangements fur my boy."

"Well," the poor editor managed to say, raising his eyebrows, "if you want your boy to enter a newspaper office, I think I can give him a job."

"That's the way to talk. What'll it be?"

"I can make him the 'devil.'"

"Devil? I s'pose that's one on a paper that jess writes stuff what makes people roar an keeps up the old Harry all the time, eh?"

"No; it is not that."

"Reckon it's one that prints the paper then?" not so hilariously.

"No."

"Well, what is it then, and how much'll he git?"

"Well, it's the position of one who is just learning the printing trade. He will be required to delve in grease, oil and ink, and his wages will be $3 a week."

"Hah!" exclaimed the farmer, jumping to his feet. "Delve in grease, oil and ink an git $3 a week! Why, you old baldheaded jackass, if my wife'd hear you say such a thing she'd fill yer mouth full o' smashed teeth. Delve in grease, oil and ink! Say, look-a-here! If you'll jess lay down that there pen an come out on the sidewalk, I'm gum dast if I won't scatter yer constitution over the hull o' creation. My son's a poet, he is, an ye've insulted him. Ye kin jess scratch my name off yer book, for I'm smithered if I'd read a line in yer rotten old paper for $4!"

And the door banged after him.—Boston Courier.

His Conclusion.

When General Tom Thumb and his wife were on their return from their wedding tour in Europe, they stopped for a day or two at Hartford, but did not place themselves on exhibition.

There happened to be in Hartford at the time an old farmer from the neighborhood of Litchfield Hill, who heard that Tom Thumb was in the place and resolved that he would see him before he went home.

The farmer found his way to the hotel, where Tom Thumb was stopping, and was told to go, if he wished to see him, to a certain room on the second floor and rap on the door.

The farmer went up and knocked, as he was bidden. But it happened that the room was occupied by a certain Colonel Jones, a prominent politician who lived in an adjoining county and who was a man of enormous stature, measuring almost 7 feet in height.

The colonel had already been rallied a little on the fact that his next door neighbor down the corridor was Tom Thumb, and when the visitor knocked at his door he was rather out of humor.

"Come in!" he called out.

The farmer opened the door and peered in.

"I'm a-lookin," he said, "for General Tom Thumb."

"Sir," said the colonel, raising himself to his full height, "you see him before you!"

"I want to know! Be you Tom Thumb?"

"Yes!"

"You don't say so!" said the farmer. "Wal, I guess you've growed some sence you had your pictur' took, hain't ye?"—Youth's Companion.

A Laughable Story.

A few workingmen were discussing the names of great scientists in Manchester. The name of Darwin cropped up. One of the company, less learned than the rest, said:

"Darwen: I kna that place. A've been ther monny a toime."

"Get out, you fool!" said another. "We're nut talkin aboot the place called Darwen, but the mon. Hevn't ye niver heerd o' Darwen? Why, if it hadn't been for Darwen we s'ould all hev been chatterin monkeys, and nut gentlemen, like we are."—Sheffield Telegraph.

A Philosopher.

"Terrapin," said Mr. Dreflleshort, "is one of those things that come high that you don't have to have."

And he laid the bill of fare down and cheerfully ordered fried liver.—Chicago Tribune.

Bore Traces of His Guilt.

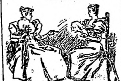
"Harold Honesteele," said the beautiful girl in scornful tones, "'tis useless for you to try to deceive me. You have been shaving yourself; your face betrays you!"—Puck.

The Very First Thing.

May—If you were I, what would you do?

Jack—Well, first of all, I'd let me kiss you.—Life.

Found Out.



Claudia—Oh, I was so very, very sorry to find you out when I called yesterday.

Elvira—I, too, regretted it of course. But do tell me why you were so very, very sorry.

Claudia—Because I'd just seen you enter the house five minutes before.—Truth.

Relieved.

Women prayed and men cursed.

The storm howled and beat against the vessel's stanch ribs.

A white robed figure clung to the after-rail and peered into the darkness.

"She is gone."

The figure swayed in the tempest.

"No, she rises."

A great wave swept over the deck. The figure was kneeling now.

"She has sunk thrice. Is it a dream? After all these years to be alone at last!"

After a time the figure crept forward and reported the loss of a chaperon.—Detroit News-Tribune.

The Grand Central Railroad Station Chicago.

Is being fitted up for hotel purposes during the world's fair. This magnificent fire-proof structure, located at the corner of Harrison street and 5th avenue, in the very heart of the city will devote the 3rd, 4th and 6th floors to this purpose. It will be run on the European plan. Each room will have hot and cold water, electric lights and be steam heated. The office and ladies parlors etc. will be located on the 3rd floor and the building will be supplied with all modern conveniences. There will be from 100 to 200 rooms for guests.

This acquisition to the hotel facilities of Chicago will be appreciated by those who wish to be safely housed in a fire-proof building, conveniently located in the city itself.

Those desiring accommodations can secure them by addressing Mr. T. C. Clifford, the manager, at Chicago Ill. The hotel will be opened May 15th 1893.

The Grand Central Station is the Chicago depot of the Northern Pacific railroad, [Wisconsin Central division] and by taking this through car line to the world's fair city, visitors will avoid the discomfort of transfer through the city.

VISITORS TO THE TWIN CITIES.

No one should visit the Twin Cities this summer without running out to Minnetonka Beach and Hotel Lafayette, the largest and best located resort house in the west. The lake is one of the most picturesque in the country and is well supplied with steamers and sailing, rowing and fishing craft. A number of regattas will be given. The Great Northern has a double track line to the lake and runs frequent trains.

MINNESOTA STATE NORMAL SCHOOLS

WINONA, MANKATO, ST. CLOUD AND MOORHEAD.

These schools are organized for the training of teachers for the common schools of the state.

ORGANIZATION.—Each school comprises two departments —the normal department and the training department or Model School

The Normal department embraces;

(a) An elementary course for teachers of rural districts and elementary grades.

(b) An advanced course for teachers of advanced grades.

(c) A Professional course for teachers who have completed the required academic work elsewhere.

(d) A kindergarten training course (at Winona and St. Cloud.

ADMISSION.—Graduates of high schools and colleges, and teachers holding county superintendents' first and second grade certificate are admitted without examination. All others are required to pass an entrance examination.

EXPENSES.—Tuition is free to all who pledge themselves to teach in Minnesota.

Text books are furnished at a rental of three dollars per year. Provision is made in each school for economical living. The average cost of furnished rooms with board is $3.00 per week. The Ladies' Home at St. Cloud offers board, furnished room, heat and light at $3.00 per week.

The new dormitory at Moorhead will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall term,

DIPLOMAS.—By a recent act of the legislature a diploma becomes a state teachers certificate of the first grade.

The next school year opens at Winona, Sept. 1st; at Mankato, Sept. 4th; at St. Cloud, Aug. 29th; and at Moorhead, Oct. 3rd.

DEVILS LAKE CHAUTAUQUA.

The first summer Assembly of the North Dakota Chautauqua comes off June 28th to July 17th. An extensive program has been arranged, including many noted speakers, singers, etc., and the occasion promises to be most interesting and instructive. Devils Lake is a summer resort point. The Great Northern Railway gives reduced rates. Address J. B. Fancher, Secretary, Devils Lake, N. D. for programs and other inform. A trip to the lake and assembly will make an enjoyable outing.

A LARGE DROP IN RATES TO THE WEST

The Great Northern inaugurated its new train service to the Pacific Coast on the 6th inst. With sweeping reductions in rates, amounting to 40 percent in many cases. The rate From St. Paul and Minneapolis to Puget Sound was reduced First-class from $60.00 to ; to Spokane from $35 to $30; and to Helena and Butte from $40 to $25, with corresponding reductions on second-class tickets both through rates applying proportionately to intermediate points. It is the purpose of the Great Northern to make rates to help the development of its territory. It is much the shortest line across the continent, was built on business principles, and at a cost of about one half of that of the older trans-continental lines, and is therefore prepared to correspondingly well by its territory and patrons in rates and accommodations.

Last summer I was attacked with a bad case of flux, and after taking four doses of Beggs' Diarrhoea Balsam was immediately relieved and cured. I have sold it for the past six months and must say that it gives general satisfaction.—W. Smith, M. D. Puxico, Mo.—For sale by J. L. Johnson, Druggist.

A Giant Kentucky Family, Consisting of Parents and Nine Children.

"As a specimen of what Kentucky can do in the way of producing stalwart sons and daughters," said a proud native of the Blue Grass country to a New York Sun man, "I might mention the old Joe Morrison family of Bourbon county. Anybody of the present generation who ever lived in Kentucky will remember old Joe Morrison's family. The family consisted of Joe and his wife and six sons and three daughters. Joe stood 6 feet 4 in his stockings and weighed 210 pounds. His wife was the same height exactly, but she weighed 266 pounds. The oldest son, Tom, was also 6 feet 4, and he weighed 286 pounds. Jim topped his brother Tom two inches in height, but he wasn't as heavy by 70 pounds. Their sister Sarah was a slim girl, weighing only 155 pounds, but she could look over the heads of both Tom and Jim, for she stood 6 feet 6 1-2 inches. But John was the big boy of the family. He only lacked an inch of being 7 feet high, and he weighed 300 pounds. Sister Mary was a midget of 6 feet 2, and only weighed 149 pounds. Elijah wasn't very tall, either, being the same height as his sister Mary, but he was of pretty fair heft, tipping the scales at 212. Matthew was 6 feet 2, also, and weighed 220, while Eli, standing 6 feet 4, weighed less than 200. The youngest girl, Martha, was 6 feet 3, and 160 pounds in weight. She would undoubtedly have been the giant of the family, for that was her height and weight at the age of 14, a few weeks before she died. When these measurements were taken a few years ago, the family were all together, but since then old Joe and his wife have died and the boys and girls are married and scattered about the state. I don't know what their progeny have done to keep up the family reputation as to size, but I'll bet on 'em to keep up the record."

A Mining Opportunity Missed.

"Speaking of gold excitements," said George W. Beal in the presence of a little social gathering in West Park street a few evenings since, "reminds me of a chance I once had to purchase a placer claim in Confederate gulch. The men who owned the bar offered it to me for $400 cash, and were anxious to sell it at that figure, but I hesitated. Finally I told them I would have an expert examine and test the ground and if it was what they represented it to be I would purchase it. This was satisfactory, and my expert made the test and reported unfavorably upon it. That settled the deal, and I went on my way in search of other fields. About two months later I returned to Confederate gulch and found a six-mule team and a wagon behind it containing two tons of gold taken from a portion of the bar those men wanted to sell me for $400. The team was ready to start for Fort Benton with the gold, and was surrounded by thirty armed men, who were to guard the metal on the way. After I refused to purchase the ground the men concluded to work it themselves, and from a space of 100 feet square had taken the two tons of gold. I have not seen the 'expert' since then."—Butte Miner.

Migration of Colorado Deer.

Deer, in their annual migrations, have been leaving the mountains of Western Colorado by thousands during the last few weeks, traveling westward to the valleys of Utah, where the weather is milder and food abundant. They will spend the winter, returning to their mountain haunts after the snow begins to melt in the spring. Hunters do not often see the animals on the move, as most of their traveling is done at night; but narrow, deeply worn fresh trails discovered in the morning tell the story of migration. The animals go in small herds, keeping well up on the slopes of the mountains that trend westerly, descending into the valleys only when necessary in order to keep their course and always climbing high up from the valley upon the next westerly mountain.—New York Sun.

A Tramp Bottle Recently Picked Up in the Gulf of Mexico.

Joseph Altman runs a small sail boat attached to the mosquito fleet reserve, and as Mr. Altman is one of those who go down to the sea in ships he is on the lookout for flotsam and jetsam at all times. So when one morning recently he noticed a bottle on the beach at Boliver, about thirty miles northeast from Galveston, he took it in his net, figuratively speaking, says the News. It was just a common old glass bottle, the same as many others which have done duty as holders of whisky, but this bottle held no whisky, nor did the cork show marks of teeth—a sailor always uncorks a bottle with his teeth. The bottle was covered with barnacles and contained a circular printed in German, which stated that two bottles were set afloat from the P. and O. steamer Petropolis of Hamburg, Capt. Th. Albert, at 6 o'clock a. m., on the 17th day of May, 1891, in south latitude, 2 degrees 40 minutes, west longitude from Greenwich, 31 degrees 46 minutes. The Petropolis was then en route from Lisbon to Bahai. The finder of the bottle was requested to forward the circular to the German hydrographic bureau at Hamburg, or to the nearest German consul, together with the time of its finding and whether the bottle contained no sand. The point at which this bottle was cast into the sea is about 1,300 miles east of Para and about 630 miles northeast of Bahai. Here the equatorial current sweeps along, following the trend of the coast of northern South America, the Isthmus of Panama, Mexico and the gulf states. And along with it went the bottle, flouted and jeered at by goggle-eyed fishes, until it was stranded on Bolivar beach. The waif had been 379 days on the trip, provided it had just landed when Mr. Altman found it. As the distance traveled is something over 6,000 miles, and as the bottle was picked up 379 days after it was set afloat, it must have loafed along the way somewhat.

FASCINATING BUT NOT PRETTY.

Some Traits of the Too-Often Easy-Going Frenchwoman of Society.

The genuine Frenchwoman of society is rarely beautiful. She is always more or less fascinating. Like the French nobleman, she is tall, lithe, intelligent, appreciative of art, with much delicacy of feeling, and has either very strong, almost bigoted principles, or none at all. As there is no possibility for the development of love before marriage, writes the Marquise de San Carlos in the North American Review, this most natural of all human passions is apt to assert its power long after the excitable young French woman has contracted an alliance with some "unsympathetic fellow," and it needs much character and very solid virtue to resist the courtship of enterprising French noblemen, who swarm around young brides with the skepticism of true libertines. Women of strict principles, who have not become nuns on leaving schools, and who have the courage to withstand the current of youth and passion, lead after marriage, for the most part, lives of silent domestic martyrdom. Those who have rather loose morals, and they are, perchance, the greater number, seem to have a pretty good time of it and spend their golden years trompant leurs maris with a vengeance, while they bring up their children with the greatest severity on a system of blindfold ignorance. In fact, the cool way the French women have of being immoral without giving up going to church on Sunday is a mystery. One sister will be a Carmelite and the others will accept the homage of half a dozen admirers. Yet both have been educated in the same convent; both have shared the same life till the age of 18, when the gay, laughing blonde entered a religious order, and the dark, almond-eyed sister sought the marriage tie for the sole purpose of securing freedom.

A CHRISTMAS CARD.

It is at once painful and perplexing to be answered by a heavy sigh where one expects an exclamation of pleasure and admiration; so it was not wonderful that Mrs. Austin, under these exact conditions, looked anxiously into her husband's face. She was holding up for his inspection a large wax doll, one of the treasures for Madge, the blue-eyed darling of four years, who was counting the days until Santa Claus should come. Every stitch of Miss Dollie's elaborate costume was the work of Mrs. Austin's busy fingers in hours when Madge was dreaming of full stockings and Christmas trees, and the last stitch set, the result was displayed for papa's approval.

Now papa was quite as devoted a parent to Madge and two-year-old Harold as mamma, and took deep interest in all nursery matters. It may be that the memory of two other curly heads and baby faces that had brightened the nursery for a few brief months and then been hid by coffin-lids deepened the love for the children who came later to comfort the aching hearts. But it is very certain that the little Austins were as much loved and petted as children could be, and did not dream more hopefully of Christmas treasures than their parents did lovingly of supplying them.

So it was with some alarm, too, that Mrs. Austin put aside her last triumph of needlework and threw her arm around her husband's neck.

"What is it, Charlie?" she asked.

He drew her into a loving embrace before he said, sadly:

"I met my father again to-day. Margaret, it will kill me to have things go on so. He was downright shabby, feeble and broken; looking so old and so sick that I could not keep the tears out of my eyes. But he would not speak to me. I said all I could say in the street, and tried to follow him home; but he stopped short and said: 'I do not know you, sir! You will cease to annoy me!' And I could not make a scene in the street."

There was a choking sound in Charles Austin's voice as he ceased speaking, but, being a man, he kept back the sob that would have followed. Mrs. Austin's tears were falling fast.

"At Christmas time, too," she said. "It is useless to send presents, Charlie; he has sent them back every year."

The story this conversation referred to was an old one, a true love marriage made in the face of disinheritance and paternal displeasure. Mrs. Austin had been a poor girl, employed in the factory of Simon Austin, then a man of great wealth and good social position; a man purse-proud, arrogant and full of his own importance. When his only child, his idolized, indulged son and heir, told him of his love for pretty Margaret Hay, a factory girl, living in the factory boarding house, wearing calico dresses, and earning a mere living, the old man was a maniac in his fury.

He would not see that the girl was pleasing in manner, refined in taste, well educated and sweet-tempered, one to brighten any home and make any good man thoroughly happy. He gave a fierce command that the matter should end then and there. Charles Austin, utterly unaccustomed to being crossed in any fancy, refused obedience, never before exacted, and the conversation ended in a stormy quarrel and the young man's expulsion from home.

But with a good fortune that does not often follow disobedient sons, Charles was at once taken into the employ and favor of his mother's brother, an eccentric old bachelor, who gave the young couple a home in his own luxurious house. It was a new life to the old gentleman, and he took the keenest interest in all the household affairs as Margaret managed them, loved and mourned the older children, and dying, when Madge was but a year old, left his entire large estate to his "beloved nephew, Charles Austin."

And while the sunshine of prosperity had no clouds for this wayward son, the father's fortunes had all gone awry. Some commercial panic was the first blow to Simon Austin, and an effort to repair the loss by speculation only added to disaster. He missed the cool, clear head of the son who had of late years been his active partner, the judgment he had first trained and then trusted to guide his large business. He was angry, and his angry impulses led him into dire blunders, until he grew so involved that there was no escape, and he failed for more than his entire fortune.

At once Charles hastened to him, offering his entire wealth to save him, only to be met by a proud, fierce refusal to be under any obligation to a disobedient child or his beggar-wife.

Over and over again, as poverty became more and more bitter to the man broken and aged, did his son implore him to allow him to help him, offer him a home, love, care, obedience even, only to be thrown back with angry scorn.

A proud man always, Simon Austin cherished his wrath as the last remnant of the old arrogance, and would not bend one inch. He found letters telling him anonymous sums of money were in the bank in his name, and wrote back refusing to claim them. He mistrusted every offer of service, as dictated by his son, and returned to Charles every scrap of aid sent to him, often perplexing his son by sending what had not come from him, though he always refused to believe this.

And being old and broken in health, he sank lower and lower, unable to fill lucrative positions, and taking the work that gave him barely food and the poorest clothing.

Very sadly the son and wife talked of the impossibility of helping one who would not let any appeal touch him, until suddenly Margaret cried:

"Charles, I have an idea! Let me try to win your father over. I will send him a Christmas card."

"My dear, he would not open the envelope."

"But it will not go in an envelope. Don't ask any questions. Let me try, and see if your father does not dine with us to-morrow."

"Dine with us! Margaret, you must be crazy!"

"Not a bit of it. Just let me have my own way dear."

"Do you ever fail to get that?" was the laughing query, for something in his wife's face gave a fresh hope to Charles Austin's heart.

* * * * * * *

It was a very mean room in a very poor house where the sun of a bright Christmas morning wakened Simon Austin. Everything in the shabby place told of the lack of woman's care and love. Dust hung upon everything; disorder reigned. There were no dainty trifles of needlework; the curtains were dingy and crooked; the carpet torn and dirty.

Verily wearily and slowly the old man dressed himself, lit a fire in the grate and rang for the poor breakfast his landlady provided. Dinner and tea he was supposed to buy outside, but very often this muddy coffee, stale bread and tough chop or steak were the sole repast of the 24 hours.

It was Christmas day, and no business took the old man abroad; so, after the untempting tray was removed, he took a newspaper and drew shiveringly to the fire. But before he had read one column there came a knock upon the door, and then it opened wide and closed again behind a child—a little girl in a quaint Mother Hubbard cloak and hat, with large blue eyes and clustering golden curls, and holding a large flat basket full of fresh, beautiful flowers. While the old man gazed at her in silent amazement she said, in a sweet, childish voice:

"If you please, dear, grandpa, I am your Christmas card!"

"You—you are what?" he said, utterly bewildered.

"If you please, dear grandpa, I am your Christmas card!"

"Who sent you here? What is your name?"

"Mamma brought me here! I am Madge Austin, dear grandpa—" and and the poor room, the child's eyes filled and her lips trembled. "I want to go home!" she whispered.

"Don't cry!" Mr. Austin said, finding his senses, and taking her into his arms, very tenderly, too. "Don't cry, dear, I will take you home."

"Oh, if you please, because my big doll is there and all the toys Santa Claus brought, and brother Harry. What did Santa Claus bring you?"

"Nothing!"

"Oh!" with a very deep-drawn sigh, "was it because you are up so many stairs? But he always comes to our house, and mamma said, perhaps, to-day, he would bring us our grandpapa! We haven't got any now, you know, and mamma said if he did come we would love him just the same as papa, and he would love us. And please, grandpapa, so we will." And here the child put her little arms round the head bent low before her, and lifted the face quivering and tear-stained.

"Oh, don't cry! Oh, please, men don't cry; only naughty girls and boys! Oh!" and again the terror found voice in the plea: "I want to go home!"

"Yes, yes! I will take you home. Bring your flowers, child. This is no place for flowers or—or—Christmas cards!"

Down the crazy old stairs the old man led the child, tenderly watchful that the little feet did not slip nor stumble. Through the sunny streets, unheeding the cold, she walked beside him, prattling of her home, and of the dear grandpapa that she had been taught to love.

That was the crowning amazement. No child in a few short hours could have been taught to talk of the estranged parent as this child talked. She told the old man of the prayer she said night and morning, "Please, dear Lord, send my grandpapa home!" of the talks with her mother about this unknown relative whom she was to reverence and love, should he ever come home, opening to the hardened but, oh such a lonely heart a hope of rest and affection, that he felt it would be bitter as death to thrust aside now.

There was no need to pull the doorbell of the stately mansion to which Simon Austin led his grandchild. Eager hands were waiting to open its portals wide; eager eyes were watching for the coming of the pair. Tender arms and strong hands led Simon Austin into the parlor; Margaret's kisses fell warm and caressing upon his wrinkled cheeks, Charlie's hands removed the shabby overcoat; baby Harold clung to his knees, shouting:

"Danpa's tum! Santa Tlaus bringed dandpa!"

There was no pride could stand against this loving, sincere welcome, so pride collapsed.

"You really want me, Charlie?" the old man faltered. "It is not mere charity?"

"Hush!" whispered Margaret. "Do not grieve him by such a word. He will never be happy until you come home, dear father."

And so Christmas once again gathered up the tangled threads of estrangement and knit them into strong bands of home-love.—New York Ledger.

Popular Trees for Christmas.

The most popular tree for a Christmas celebration is the balsam. This tree attains perfection at the age of twenty years. After this it begins to wither at the top and gradually dies. The large balsam trees are cut in great numbers for churches and Sunday schools. The branches are strong and thickly covered with bluish green leaves. They are cut as young as six years. They are merely bushes then, however, and are used mainly by private families.

Next to the balsam in popularity comes the spruce. This tree, although it attains a greater height than the balsam, has a scraggy appearance. It is cut when it is about ten years old. The color is not so good, being a yellowish green, which withers very soon. The cedar trees are only cut by special order, as the demands for them are very limited. But they are the most fragrant smelling tree of the lot. While pine trees are used for the grocery and butcher shops to decorate with. They have a deep green color and last longer than any of the others.

How Helen Saw Santa Clau.

In the dining room chimney was a register which opened and shut like a door, and when it was opened it made the best kind of a place for Santa Claus to come through.

Right beside it Helen's small stocking was hung on Christmas eve, and for fear it might not hold all Santa would bring, it was put over a chair.

When the long night was at last ended, Helen's delight was unbounded, and as she found the presents she would go to the register and say: "Tank, tank, Santa Claus!"

A few days afterward a plumber was called in to repair the pipe leading to the same register, and just as he was drawing himself out of the opening Helen came into the room.

The man was large and good-natured, with a long gray beard. He smiled at sight of the little two-year-old, who looked at him doubtingly for a moment, with her hands clasped behind her. His smile reassured her, and, going up to him, she said:

"Is you dot any doll babies in your potet?"

With a kind reply the man took his departure, and to this day little Helen is sure she has seen and talked with old Santa Claus himself.—Youth's Companion.

Christmas Reunions.

It is a day when every one who has had a home and has one no longer is reunited to the vanished home and the loved ones that made it so dear, whether they still linger here or have passed beyond. It is a day when those who have never had a home are united in visions to an ideal home, a place where the heart may rest and find peace. It is a day when parents love to gather around them their children and grandchildren, and rejoice with them over the great gift of God to the world, and in the multiplied mercies and blessings which that gift includes.

Not all are able to give golden gifts, or gifts bought with gold. But who is so poor that on this Christmas day he may not bestow a pleasant word on some one poorer than himself? Who is so downcast that he may not give a token of sympathy to some fellow mortal in distress, a smile of friendly recognition to some forlorn one? Even a cup of cold water given in the name of a disciple shall not lose its reward.

Mrs. Flippant had received a legacy from a dead uncle Christmas day, and a lawyer was called to settle up the affair, took occasion to inquire her age. The matron, who had long since doffed the "widow's weeds," attempted to look prim and much younger than she really was, as she replied:

"Thirty-five years, sir."

Then, turning to the daughter, he said:

"May I be so bold, miss, as to inquire your age?"

"Certainly. I am a little past thirty-two—most three years younger than mother."

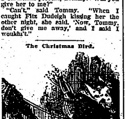
How He Popped.

Tommy entered the parlor where his sister Mamie was entertaining her best young man.

"I would like to have your sister for a Christmas present, Tommy. Will you give her to me?"

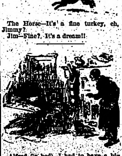
"Can't," said Tommy. "When I caught Fitz Dudeigh kissing her the other night, she said, 'Now, Tommy, don't give me away,' and I said I wouldn't."

The Christmas Bird.



The Horse—It's a fine turkey, eh, Jimmy?

Jim—Fine? It's a dream!!



Alfred (in bed)—I had to have a big one, 'cause I wrote on that paper there for Santa Claus to leave me a little brother, a Shetland pony, an' a drum!—Life.

A Family Laxative.

Physicians are not inclined to recommend self medication to the laity. Yet there is one need, says the American Analyst, which they are almost unable to supply. We refer to the "family laxative." The family physician is able to prescribe for the most complicated and obscure of maladies and yet is often puzzled to know just what to give when asked for a remedy which can be kept in the house for family use as a laxative, that shall be effective, free from danger, and not unpleasant to take. When absent on our summer vacation we were asked by four different parties, representing as many families, what we thought of the "Syrup of Figs." Not one word did we volunteer on the subject, and we were somewhat surprised to find that there was this small token of the very general use of that preparation. These parties said they derived more benefit from it and found it more pleasant to take than anything of the kind they had ever used. The simple question with them, was, is it a dangerous compound? We informed them that its active ingredient was a preparation of senna, and that it was entirely free from danger. With this assurance they volunteered the information that they should continue to keep it in the house.

The therapeutical properties of senna are so well known that comment on this seems unnecessary. It might be well to notice, however, that Bartholow says it is "a very safe and serviceable cathartic," and that it is "highly prized as a remedy for constipation." He also makes the important observation that its use "is not followed by intestinal torpor and constipation."

The simple truth of the matter is, we have altogether too few preparations which we can recommend to our families as effective laxatives. But the California Fig Syrup company has one of the most desirable combinations for this purpose with which we are familiar. The Fig Syrup company gives to the profession the composition of this preparation, therefore there is no secret about it; the persons who use this laxative speak in the highest terms about it; and we are pleased to notice that a large number of physicians are prescribing it.

Viewed from the narrowest and most selfish standpoint the physician will lose nothing by recommending such a preparation as Syrup of Figs to his patients; while viewed from the highest standpoint of doing the best possible by those who place themselves in our care, we would say the profession can not do better than give their indorsement to such a preparation.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

THE WORK OF CONGRESS

RESUME OF PROCEEDINGS OF THE SENATE AND HOUSE.

Condensed Record of the Important Transactions of Our National Lawmakers—The Work Done in Both Branches.

Washington, Dec. 18.—It is the present intention of the powers that be in congress to adjourn for the holiday recess next Thursday until Jan. 4 of the new year. The tariff debate, which the Democratic leaders had hoped to enter upon before the adjournment cannot now begin until after the recess, although the bill will be reported to the house either to-morrow or Wednesday. The four days before adjournment promise to be busy ones. After the urgent deficiency bill is disposed of the New Mexico statehood bill, which is the special order after the morning hour, will again come forward, and it is expected that it will go through this afternoon or Tuesday, provided the Democratic quorum remains intact. If the Republicans filibuster and the quorum breaks the house may be dead-locked for the rest of the week, as far as business after the morning is concerned. The transmission of the Hawaiian correspondence by the president may lead to some debate on this question in open house. The president's message transmitting the correspondence will probably show that the administration has done all in its power by the aid of diplomacy to right the wrong from its standpoint done the Hawaiian monarchy, and that the situation is now one for the congress of the United States to deal with. In other words that diplomacy has failed to restore the conditions existing prior to the revolution, and congress must now decide whether other means are to be employed.

For the third week in succession Hawaii promises to be the important subject before the senate. The president will comply with the requests of both houses of congress for copies of all the recent correspondence on the Hawaiian question, and it is considered almost certain that whatsoever condition of affairs the correspondence and the message accompanying it may reveal, the senate will find in it a text for numerous speeches. The programme in the senate includes the reception of the president's Hawaiian message and speeches by Senators Hansbrough and Dolph, the former in explanation of the bill for the extermination of the Russian thistle, and the latter on the subject of the tariff.

Washington, Dec. 19.—The fight over the Hawaiian matter in the house followed fast and furious on the heels of the reading of the message which was delayed on account of the pension debate until 3:30. The first skirmish occurred over the question of reading the instructions to Minister Willis, which was insisted upon by Mr. Boutelle of Maine. The house finally agreed to this, and immediately after the conclusion of this reading Mr. Boutelle renewed the assault by bringing forward a resolution declaring the administration policy inconsistent with the spirit of the constitution and the traditions of the government. Great excitement reigned and in the confusion Mr. Boutelle failed to follow up his parliamentary advantage and was ruled out of order. A resolution of Mr. Cockran for the appointment of a committee of seven to investigate the alleged invasion by the territorial integrity of the United States of the last administration also went under a retaliatory objection of Mr. Boutelle. The confusion was so great that the sergeant-at-arms was called in to preserve order. An adjournment was caused by the lack of a quorum on a motion to go into committee. Party feeling ran very high at the close of the session, and there is no doubt the struggle will be continued as soon as opportunity offers in the house to-morrow.

In the senate the long-looked-for message from the president as to the relations of this government and this country to the Hawaiian islands was received and its reading listened to most attentively. A request by Mr. Chandler of New Hampshire for the reading of the instructions of Minister Willis led to a debate of an hour's duration, and they were finally read. The message and accompanying documents are now before the senate, the pending question being on the motion of Mr Hoar of Massachusetts to refer them to the committee on foreign relations.

Washington, Dec. 20.—The Republicans were in a fighting temper over the Hawaiian situation when the house met, and the row opened immediately. Mr. Cockran's resolution was presented and hurriedly referred to the committee on rules. Then came the sharp skirmish on the Boutelle resolution. By means of this resolution Mr. Boutelle succeeded in getting an opportunity to address the house, but his philippic against the administration was suddenly cut short by the action of the speaker in deciding the point of order to which Mr. Boutelle was speaking in his favor, and referred the resolution to the committee under the rules.

"The message of the president read here indicates that this country may be involved in war with a friendly power for all we know," said Mr. Boutelle in a loud voice, "the arms of the United States may be even now pinioning with bayonets a friendly nation with whom the mass of the people of this country sympathize."

He held, he said, that it was the imperative duty of congress, reluctantly recognized by the president, to disavow, discredit and reprobate a policy designed to bring the country into discredit in the eyes of the civilized world. (Great applause on the Republican side.)

"I care not whence this policy emanates," continued Mr. Boutelle, "whether from a Republican president or a Democratic usurper." The confusion that followed the word "usurper" drowned the rest of the sentence. He continued to talk amid loud cries for order, and the speaker at last, with the aid of his gavel, brought the house to a standstill. Consideration of the urgency deficiency bill was then renewed.

The debate which was expected in the senate on the president's message as to Hawaii was averted by Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts, whose motion to refer the message and accompanying documents to the committee on foreign affairs is the pending question in the senate, yielding to Senator Berry of Arkansas, and to Senator Peffer of Kansas. The first named addressed the senate in advocacy of the bill to repeal the federal election laws, while Senator Peffer argued in favor of the bill introduced by him appropriating money for immediate use in relieving want and destitution throughout the country. Mr. Hoar stated, however, that on to-morrow he would call up his motion to refer the president's message and accompanying documents to the committee on foreign relations; and in all probability he will address the senate at the time, upon the Hawaiian situation generally.

Washington, Dec. 21.—The Hawaiian question was disposed of for the present in the senate when, after Mr. Hoar's argument the message and accompanying documents were referred to the committee on foreign relations. Later in the day, by resolution offered by the chairman of the committee on foreign relations that committee was directed to inquire and report whether, and if so, what irregularities have occurred in the diplomatic or other intercourse between the United States and Hawaii in relation to the recent revolution in those islands. The resolution for a joint committee of three senators and three members of the house to examine and report to congress upon the maratime canal company of Nicaragua, with authority to visit Nicaragua, was agreed to.

The house spent the day in the consideration of the two pending conference reports, those on the urgent deficiency of the last session and for the New York and New Jersey bridge bill, preparatory to the adjournment for the holiday recess. Both reports were agreed to after some very lively speeches. The deficiency bill called forth a very bitter arraigument of both parties for wanton extravagance from Mr. Hutchinson of Texas, and the bridge bill as amended by the senate was vigorously opposed by Mr. Bartlett of New York, but it was finally passed by a decisive vote. The pure food bill introduced by Mr. Hatch was referred to the committee on commerce, and when the house met Mr. Hatch moved a change of reference to the agricultural committee, of which he is chairman; but the demand was withdrawn.

Washington, Dec. 22.—Both houses of congress have adjourned until Jan. 3 for the usual holiday recess.

The Hawaiian matter figured prominently in the last session of the house before the holiday recess. Mr. Boutelle and Mr. Blair each offered resolutions, the former calling on the secretary of the navy for instructions whereby the admiral in charge of the naval forces at Honolulu was placed under the command of Commissioner Blount and the warrant therefor; the latter instructing the foreign affairs committee to investigate the questions of fact relative to the Hawaiian revolution. A substitute for the Hitt and Boutelle resolution was also presented by the chairman of the foreign affairs committee. Debate on each of these resolutions was avoided by the prompt action of the speaker in referring them. Before adjournment Mr. Wilson gave notice that the debate on the Wilson bill would begin the day of the reconvening of congress, and Mr. McCreary also informed the house that within ten days after meeting two days would be given for consideration of the Hawaiian resolutions reported by the foreign affairs committee. Mr. Boutelle sent up a resolution which he said was privileged. The speaker ordered it referred to the committee on naval affairs. Mr. Boutelle vainly sought to discuss the question of his right to discuss the reolution, but the speaker cut him short and a lively scene resulted, but the speaker came out ahead and the Hawaiian affair will rest for a season.

In the senate a good part of the time was devoted to executive business, and many nominations were confirmed. During the brief legislative session Mr. Mitchell of Oregon took occasion, in securing an order for the reprinting of a memorial on the subject of bankruptcy, to say that ther was no justification for the impression throughout the country that all hope of bankruptcy legislation was now dead. Mr. Proctor (Rep., Vt.) introduced a bill to annex the territory of Utah to the State of Nevada. Referred to the committee on territories. At 12:45 the senate, on motion of Mr. Mills (Dem., Tex.), proceeded to the consideration of executive business. When the doors were again opened the corrected house joint resolution providing for the holiday recess of congress until Wednesday, Jan. 3, was laid before the senate and concurred in, and the senate adjourned.

Murphy Not Guilty.

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 22.—Judge Templeton charged the jury in the Murphy homicide case yesterday morning. A verdict was returned "Not guilty because of insanity." The verdict gives general satisfaction, as the popular sentiment has justified Murphy in avenging the crime against his only daughter. The verdict is not understood to mean that the jury consider him insane, but simply that his mind was so affected at the time by the relation of the villain's deed that he was not responsible for his action in promptly ridding the earth of the monster.

West Duluth Sues.

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 22.—The village of West Duluth brought suit against the Duluth Street Railway company for $6,000 damages, claiming that the railway company failed to live up to agreements made with it when the franchise in West Duluth was granted.

Died at the Age of 97.

Dundas, Minn., Dec. 22.—Mrs. Elizabeth Partlow, who has been confined to her bed ten years, died at her home yesterday, aged ninety-seven years. She has been a resident of this county since 1858, and could read a newspaper without glasses.

Youthful Burglar Sent Up.

Aberdeen, S. D., Dec. 22.—James Riley, a young man nineteen years old, was sentenced to two and one-half years in the state penitentiary by Judge Campbell. Riley was convicted of burglarizing Witte's hardware store here last July.

A Hermit-Widow Dead.

Oshkosh, Wis., Dec. 22.—Mrs. Nancy Snyder, aged seventy-two years, died last evening of pneumonia. She was wealthy, and lived as a hermit for some years. Several grandchildren are the heirs.

Is Miss Watson's Penknife Open?

Northfield, Minn., Dec. 22.—The fall term of Carleton college closed yesterday. The winter term opens Jan. 4.

SHE IS OUT OF HER MIND

SAD CONDITION OF A SPOKANE LADY IN ST. PAUL.

She Becomes Insane While on Her Way to Visit Friends in Illinois—She Labors Under the Delusion That She Has Been Poisoned.

St. Paul, Dec. 20.—Mrs. C. J. Smith, wife of a mine superintendent in Spokane, Wash., was taken to the county jail yesterday morning suffering from the insane impression that somebody had poisoned her. Mrs. Smith is a handsome woman about forty-six years old. She was richly attired, well supplied with money, and was on her way from her home in Spokane to Huntley, Ill., where she intended visiting relatives during the holidays. The unfortunate woman's reason became dethroned while en route on a Great Northern train in Montana. She left the train at a small station and wandered two days around the country, telling everybody she met a pitiable tale about having been poisoned for her money and jewelry. Her wanderings brought her again to the station at which she had alighted from the train. The station agent becoming cognizant of her sad mental condition placed her on board the next east-bound train under the care of the conductor. She was not violent in her mania until the train neared St. Paul, when it was feared she might harm herself, and she was taken to the central police station and thence to the county jail by order of Dr. Hanley. At the central station Mrs. Smith solemnly informed Police Matron Walker that a poison had been poured over her which was turning her skin black wherever it had touched her. She affirmed that her face and neck had been burnt and swollen by the poison, and pleaded with the matron to keep her enemies away from her. On all other subjects she appeared rational enough. She spoke intelligently of her husband and family and of her journey, but did not mention the two days which she had wandered around the country in Montana. Evidently her mind had then been a blank. Mrs. Smith will be detained at the county jail until her husband and relatives can be communicated with regarding her condition and disposition.

No Longer Aggressive.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 20.—John Wundergen shot and killed John Eickman of this city. For some time Eickman has been paying attention to Wundergen's young wife. Wundergen interposed an objection, whereupon Eickman announced that he would kill the entire family. Immediately after supper he appeared with a double-barreled shotgun and tried to force the front door of Wundergen's house. Failing in this, he went around to the kitchen and smashed in the door. Wundergen stood in the room with a shotgun, and as the door swung open fired the entire charge into Eickman's neck.

Earthquake.

Huntington, Pa., Dec. 20.—A very perceptible shock of earthquake was felt in this section this morning about 4 o'clock, lasting only a few seconds, and apparently moving from southwest to northwest.

Bedford, Pa., Dec. 20.—Reports from various parts of this country indicate that yesterday's earthquake lasted eighteen or twenty seconds. In many places houses were shaken to such an extent as to seriously alarm the in mates. The shock appears to have traveled in a southeasterly direction, and was most perceptible to those persons living near the mountains.

Prominent Iowan Dead.

Cleveland, Ohio., Dec. 20.—Chauncey H. Andrews, one of the leading citizens of Youngstown, Ohio, died, aged seventy. For years he had taken a leading part in building up the business of Mahoning valley, and he accumulated a fortune in developing the coal lands, building railways and establishing manufacturing plants in that section. He was also largely interested in the banking institutions of Youngstown. Mr. Andrews leaves a widow and two daughters, one of whom is the wife of John A. Logan, Jr.

Coleman Protests.

Washington, Dec. 20.—A telegram has been received at the war department from Gen. D. C. Coleman of St. Louis protesting against the award of a medal of honor to Gen. Dennis L. Kirby for services at the battle of Chickamauga. Gen. Coleman commanded the Eighth Missouri volunteers, of which Kirby was the major. Gen. Coleman concedes Gen. Kirby's bravery, but says that a reward for service on that occasion is due to Capt. Neil rather than Gen. Kirby.

Acted Like a Tub.

Queenstown, Dec. 20.—The officers of the British battleship Resolution, which was damaged during a severe gale in the Bay of Biscay on her voyage to Gibraltar, and which was compelled to put back to this port, have made a report. They say that the ship rolled terribly for three days, and that the seas were so high that the life boat was hoisted thirty feet above load line, then submerged and carried away. The Resolution shipped quantities of water which threatened to quench the fires.

Three Are Guilty.

Portland, Or., Dec. 20.—The jury in the Chinese conspiracy case, after being out twenty-two hours, brought in a verdict. The jury finds C. J. Mulkey, ex-special agent of the treasury department, William Dunbar and P. J. Bannon guilty. In the case of John Lotan, ex-collector of customs, and Leid Lack (Chinaman) they disagreed. The remaining seventeen defendants were acquitted.

Inspecting the Mica Mines.

Custer City, S. D., Dec. 20.—H. Robinson and H. H. Francis of Akron, Ohio, are here inspecting the mica mines recently purchased by a company they represent. A force of men has commenced work on one of their purchases.

Damage Cases.

Washington, Special.—Two damage cases in which the Northern Pacific was the defendant in the United States circuit court for Dakota and is now the appellant before the supreme court were submitted without oral argument to-day. In the one case George Hambly, a laborer, recovered $2,500 and in the other William J. Everett recovered $7,000. Both accidents occurred at Jamestown.

Marshal Price Resigns.

Washington, Special.—The attorney general has received the resignation of Albert A. Pierce, United States marshal for North Dakota.

Mayor Arrested.

Hastings, Minn., Dec. 20. — Mayor Charles Fitch and Chief of Police Patrick Gibbons of South St. Paul were arrested by Deputy Michael Gahan at the instance of Sheriff J. H. Hyland, upon bench warrants, and brought here Saturday morning, indictments having been returned against them by the grand jury of Dakota county for unlawfully conniving at the escape of one Thomas Hindred from the prison at that place on Sept. 21. Upon being arraigned they pleaded not guilty of the offense charged, and were admitted to bail in the sum of $500 to appear in court when required, the sureties being Stephen Newell and J. F. McLaughlin. Deputy Gahan, after arresting Fitch and Gibbons, was very considerate in the matter, and sent notice to Judge F. M. Crosby to hold court after the arrival of the prisoners, which he did, or otherwise they would have spent Christmas in the county jail.

Fire in San Francisco.

San Francisco, Dec. 20.—Fire broke out in the block bounded by Clay, Commercial, Sansorre and Leidersdorf streets, and in a few minutes one of the biggest fires of the year was raging. The block is composed of some of the oldest brick buildings in the city, and was occupied by the Call and Bulletin newspaper offices; Francis Valentine & Co., printers; the Mosqui Printing and Engraving company; Blake, Moffitt & Towne, paper warehouse; E. J. Shattuck & Co., ink manufacturers; the Commercial Steam Power company, and numerous other smaller concerns. Every engine in the city was called out, and it was over two hours before the fire was out. Fire Marshal Towne estimates the losses at $600,000; insurance half.

Wedded in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Dec. 26.—The marriage of Miss Frances Ewing, daughter of Judge Ewing, United States minister to Brussels, and niece of Vice President Stevenson, to Mr. B. Bayliss Beecher, a prominent banker of Memphis, Tenn., took place last night at St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. W. Clampitt, rector of the church, who is a brother-in-law of the bride, assisted by Rt. Rev. William Paret, bishop of the diocese of Maryland. The bride was given away by her uncle, Vice President Stevenson. The only other attendant of the bridal party was Miss Julia Stevenson, daughter of the vice president, who was maid of honor. The bride wore white silk with diamonds.

A Case of Brutality.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 26. — A woman named Burke was found in a hovel on East street, Allegheny, dying from starvation, abuse and neglect. She has been unconscious for two days, and the physicians say she will die. Her husband was lying beside her in the bed intoxicated. Some bruises on her face and body are supposed to be caused by his having beaten her. He was arrested and is now in the central station. It is said that the woman has been sick for some time, and has not had food for several days. She was removed to the general hospital.

Not Settled.

Washington, Dec. 26.—The rumor to the effect that the suit of Miss Madeline Y. Pollard against Representative Breckinridge for $50,000 for breach of promise will be compromised and settled out of court is not credited in this city. Enoch Totten, one of Mr. Breckinridge's attorneys, said: "I saw Mr. Breckinridge day before yesterday, and he said nothing to me of any settlement, or, indeed, of any proposition on his part or that of Miss Pollard, respecting a settlement."

A County Auditors' Meeting.

Mitchell, S. D., Dec. 26.—A meeting of the several county auditors and treasurers will be held in this city on Jan. 23, 1894, for the purpose of originating and adopting a uniform system of accounts. Some action may also be taken relative to sending a lobby to Pierre next winter to work for an increase in the salary of county auditors, which is now too small to secure competent men.

A Messenger Robbed.

St. Louis, Dec. 26.—A telegram from Marshall, Tex., to the Post-Dispatch says that this morning Pacific Express Messenger McCullough was knocked down on the railroad station platform by a negro and robbed of a pouch which contained from $5,000 to $8,000. Although the act was done while a crowd of people was on the platform the robber escaped. There is no clue to his identity.

Dervishes Routed.

Rome, Dec. 26.—A dispatch from Massowah says that Col. Arimonda, in command of the Italian forces, has arrived at Kufit and reports that after the recent battle between the dervishes and the Italians, European and native troops, the Arabs fled in complete disorder toward Awasiat, closely pursued by the Italians. The Italians, after following the dervishes for some distance were recalled.

A Boom for Danford.

Forman, N. D., Dec. 26.—A quiet movement is on foot in this county looking to the nomination of Prof. S. A. Danford, principal of the Minot public school, for state superintendent on the Republican ticket at the next election. He is one of the ablest educators in the state, and his friends here hope to secure for him the nomination. This county was not represented on the last state ticket, and location would be a strong argument in his favor.

Gushers for Onida.

Blunt, S. D., Dec. 26.—The people of Onida, the county seat of Sully county, are about to bond the township for the purpose of sinking an artesian well. The town is now supplied by means of a town well, with the aid of a few private wells, and the demand upon these has become so great that some other means for supplying this demand has become necessary.

Triple Funeral.

Chicago, Special.—There was a sad triple funeral from the smallpox hospital yesterday afternoon. The dead were all of one family, the children of John Petersch, of 148 Townsend street. Two died in the evening and the third in the morning. The little coffins were buried in one grave. There were no mourners, the health officers deeming it unsafe for any one to approach. The city pest house is almost full of smallpox cases. Measures are being taken to prevent the spread of the disease by almost universal vaccination throughout the city.

IT IS WRITTEN BY REED

THE MINORITY REPORT ON THE TARIFF BILL PRESENTED.

The Ex-Speaker Devotes His Attention to the Tariff and Tells Why It Is His Opinion That the Wilson Bill Is Not a Good One.

Washington, Dec. 22.—The report of the minority members of the ways and means committee on the tariff bill has been submitted to the house. The first part of the report, discussing the bill generally, was prepared by ex-Speaker Reed. The other members of the minority, Messrs. Burrows, Payne, Dalzell, Hopkins and Gear, prepared the portion of the report dealing with special features. The report says in part:

The most surprising feature about this bill, which we will treat of in detail somewhat later, is the fact that this proposition to raise revenue will lower the revenue of this country $74,000,000 below the revenue of 1893, which was only $2,000,000 above our expenses. This fact and the other fact that by this bill the larger part of the burden of taxation is transferred from foreigners and brought to our own citizens should always be kept in mind during the discussion.

Had the committee, in making what the chairman on the floor of the house has called "a political bill," followed the plain, uncompromising declaration of the party which they represent and abolished protection, giving us a tariff for revenue only, our task in commenting upon the result of the committee's efforts would have been much more simple. The bill would then have been a straightforward, manly attempt to carry out pledges, and have placed in issue two great principles and have led to a clear and comprehensible discussion.

So far, however, have the committee departed from the demands of their national convention that we should have been much tempted to borrow a phrase from their own platform and designate the bill as a "cowardly makeshift," were it not that the results have been already too serious for mere epithets.

Such a phrase, even thus sanctioned, would be out of place in a discussion which involves so much of importance to all classes of citizens. It still, however, remains a fact that the bill presented can in no way be justified by people who claim to have obtained possession of all branches of the government upon a distinct promise, which they now as distinctly repudiate.

If it should be said that these pledges, solemnly made on a yea and nay vote, after full discussion, were not intended for action, then the breaking of the pledges has the additional disadvantages of premeditation. If subsequent events, and they have been numerous enough and weighty enough to startle the country, have convinced the committee that the Democratic platform is as utterly wrong and indefensible as history will know it to be, then it is a great misfortune to this country that the committee did not have the courage to openly abandon the false doctrine and leave the country undisturbed, so that it might convalesce from the shock of its great mistake.

But the committee, instead of proceeding in its great work of abolishing protection and preserving the people from the load of taxation which they have always averred was the result of protection, has presented a bill which is only another tariff tinkering bill, the like of which has disturbed the conditions of business so many times the last thirty years.

It is a great misfortune that such is the case, for had the bill for revenue only, in the only sense possible for that term, been presented, the people of this country might have seen at one glance whether they desired the one policy or the other, and the question might have been settled once for all and the country might have attained to that repose, stability and certainty which our business prosperity so much needs.

This other and fresher plan has all the faults which the framers of this bill charged upon the old, and very few of its virtues. It is open to all the derisive and harsh epithets with which the present system used to be overwhelmed. It taxes the people with a tariff tax; it creates, or rather proposes to maintain, what they used to call privileged classes, and is defined by its authors by arguments and expressions strangely like those which they used so freely to denounce. A manufacturer is told that the duty will protect him, and his claims are listened to on that basis and are argued for him on that basis just as in the brave days of old.

These so-called free raw materials, free wool, free coal and free iron, are not put on the free list with any reference, direct or indirect, to raising revenue. They are placed there to encourage manufacturers, who are to be compensated for any loss in this market by the markets of the world, where they will have the chance to struggle with the cheaper labor of the old world with whatever energy they may have left after the struggle at home with that same cheaper labor, let into our markets by a lower tariff which does not give us the compensation even of a larger revenue.

All the objections so often urged by the dominant party against the existing system, we repeat, lie against this bill. The difference is only one of degree. If the present system be "robbery," as these men have iterated and reiterated, the proposed system is precisely the same.

It is true that the consumer will no longer pay tribute to the Western farmer for the wool of the sheep, but the New England and other manufacturers are still authorized to lay tribute upon the citizens of the United States, who must pay, so these men have always said, 30, 40 and 45 per cent to the manufacturer on every yard of woolens and worsteds, while the country will only receive, by way of revenue, a lessened sum, unless increased importations signalize the death of American production.

Minneapolis School Board Loan.

Minneapolis, Dec. 22.—At a special meeting of the board of education Tuesday afternoon the report of the committee on finance advising the borrowing of $40,000 was adopted, and the amount was secured from H. J. Neller at 4 3-4 per cent, with $50 commission.

Policeman on Trial.

Crookston, Minn., Dec. 22.—The trial of Policeman Tweeten for shooting Andrew Thompson commenced here to-day. Eleven jurors were secured up to adjournment. State's Attorney Edgerton is in attendance.

The Christmas tree given in the M. E Church for the Sunday School children on Christmas night was a very pleasant affair. A large number of the little folks were present and an enjoyable evening passed.

A Washington Special to the St Paul Globe says that Frank J. Parks the special agent of the general land office, who, under direct orders from the commissioner, recently investigated Red Lake pine matters in Minnesota returned a day or two since. He was seen today by a Globe representative, and talked very freely as to the recent unpleasantness in relation to the timber estimates out in that region.

It seems that the main trouble was provoked by an unfortunate young man named Hall who was a little too garrulous when in his cups, and thus gave an opportunity for the men who served as estimators under the last administration to criticise the new appointees. Hall was aided and abetted in his conviviality by a Minnesota appointee named Stacy, and as soon as the actual facts were made known these two joined in receiving the g. b. by Mr. Veiling, of Wisconsin—the latter for general and particular disability.

Mr. Parke reports that the men now in the service of the department as timber estimators are exceptionally capable, honest and reliable. They are doing their difficult task faithfully, although under difficulties, and the special agent seems prepared to vouch for them—both as to capacity and honesty.

He further reports that it is shameful to deprive the settlers of the advantage that would accrue to them upon the opening of the timber to sale under the law as it exists. The settlers around St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls are today using shingles manufactured in and shipped from Washington state and lumber from Minnesota and Duluth while the pine almost at their very door is being destroyed by cyclones and forest fires. It is even asserted that conflagrations are started on purpose, so that the Indians may get the advantage of selling dead and down timber which the law permits them to do.

He further says that the reports of former estimators—those under Noble's administration—are largely unreliable and that he believes that the present corps is rectifying in a great degree that unreliability.

He thinks the key-note to the settlement of the entire matter is for Secretary Smith to open up sale on the reports of the present estimators—selling (as he may do under the law) in large or small tracts and either gradually or rapidly. If this is not done the people would almost be justified in revolution, for the development of the country is being retarded not to speak of the timber being wasted most extravagantly, because of the unsatisfactory status of affairs. He thinks it very improbable that the government will be able to get a fairer or more reliable estimate of the timber than the present corps are making, and they must be sold on somebody's estimate at some time and that very soon. If the twelve apostles, with Paul at their head, should be constituted estimators up there—Mr. Park thinks—somebody would accuse these good men of working in some other body's interest. There are doubtless men waiting to buy the lands; but would it not be better to permit some man to make money out of the venture than to perpetuate the present unsatisfactory state of affairs?

This is the substance of Mr. Park's general talk with the Globe representative with no effort to give it literally in the shape of an interview,—Crookston Times.

Nels Olson, of Norman county, who was found not guilty by the district court at Ada about a month ago, on the charge of grand larceny, has brought suit against Sheriff Grundysen for $2,500 damages for the treatment he received while here in the county jail. The Times made mention of the fact when he was relieved from jail here after being incarcerated for about eight months, that he was liable to make it warm for some of the officers He is a jeweler living at Strand, in Norman county. He makes the charge that he was almost starved while in jail and was told when he kicked about the food, that he could eat it or do without food. Sheriff Grundysen could not be found this afternoon in regard to the matter.—Crookston Times.

I have recommended Beggs' Blood Purifier and Cherry Cough Syrup several times and must say that I have been surprised and more than pleased at results following use of same. I am not in habit of endorsing patent medicines, but can say truthfully, Beggs' medicines are all that is claimed for them.—Tesah Jones, M. D., Wintersville, Mo.—For sale by J. L. Johnson Druggest.

Upholstered tourist cars in charge of porter and equipped with bedding, curtains, linen, ranges and all conveniences form an important part of the Great Northern Railway through train between St. Paul and Seattle, For the present cars will leave St. Paul Tuesdays Thursdays and Sundays at 7.45 P.M., Minneapolis 8.15 P.M., returning leave Settle Monday. Thursday and Saturdays at 8. 50 A.M. Daily service will commence within two weeks, First car leaves St Paul Sept. 28th. First car leaves Seattle Oct. 2nd. The comfort of all classes of passengers is most carefully considered by the officials of this Company.

I have handled Beggs' Little Giant Pill for eight years and have customers to whom it would be impossible to sell any other. In fact, all of Beggs' family medicines are quite satisfactory, and I have good success with them. —W. P. Shane, Solomon City, Kansas.—For sale by J. L. Johnson, Druggist.

HIS PARTY CALL.

He tore him from the merry throng
Within the billiard hall;
He was got on up regardlessly
To pay his party call.
His thoughts were dire and dark within,
Discourteous to fate.
"Ah, me! These social debts incurred
Are hard to liquidate."

His boots were slender, long and trim;
His collar tall and swell.
His hats were made by Dunlap,
And his coats were cut by Bell;
A symphony in black and white,
"Of our set" the pride,
Yet he lingered on his way—
He would that he had died.

His feet caressed the lonely way,
The pave gave forth no sound.
They seemed in pitying silence clothed.
West eadward he was bound.
He approached the mansion stealthily:
The steps looked cold and chill.
He glanced into the vestibule,
But all was calm and still.

He fingered nervously the bell,
His cardcase in his hand.
He saw the mirror in the hall—
Solemn, stately, grand.
Suddenly his spirits rose;
The drawing room looked dim;
The menial filled his soul with joy
With "No, there's no one in."

With fiendish glee he stole away;
His heart was gay and light,
Happy that he went and paid
His party call that night.
His steps turned to the billiard hall;
Blissfully he trod.
He entered. "What, returned so soon?"
Replied, "She's out, thank God!"

Sixteen cues were put to rest
Within their upright beds,
And sixteen different tiles were placed
On sixteen level heads;
Sixteen men upon the street
In solid phalanx all,
And sixteen men on duty bent
To pay their party call.

When the fairest of her sex came home—
At early dawn, I ween—
She slowly looked the cards all out:
They numbered seventeen.
With calm relief she raised her eyes,
Filled with grateful light;
"Oh, merciful Fate, look down and see What I've escaped this night!"

A Smart Servant.

The other day a man of gentlemanly appearance called at a house in a well known suburb of a provincial town. In answer to his knock the housemaid came to the door.

"Is Mr. P. in?" said the gentleman.

"He's just gone out; sir."

"Is Mrs. P. at home?"

"No, sir; she went out with master."

"Dear me, how unfortunate! I wanted particularly to see one of them. Can I leave a note?"

"Oh, yes, sir. Come in, please," replied the girl, ushering the visitor into the dining room. But instead of leaving him alone she rang for another servant, whom she desired to bring writing materials.

The gentleman wrote his note, inclosed it in an envelope, addressed it and left it on the table.

This being done, he departed with a profusion of thanks to the maid, who escorted him to the door.

On returning home Mr. P. found the note awaiting him. It ran thus:

"Your servant is no fool!"

This compliment was fully justified by a paragraph in the next day's paper giving an account of the plunder of a neighboring mansion by a similar visitor.—Tit-Bits.

Her Reason.

The other day I was told of a little girl who attended a distribution of prizes given by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. She had won, you must know, a book as a reward for writing the best essay on the subject given, and, with the other successful children, was undergoing a viva voce examination.

"Well, my dear," said the gentleman who had given away the prizes, "can you tell me why it is cruel to dock horses' tails and trim dogs' ears?"

"Because," answered the little girl, "what God had joined together let no man put asunder."—Leisure Hour.

Overheard at the Club.

"Do you know young Gontran?"

"Not particularly."

"Do you think he is well off?"

"That he is and no mistake. He never borrows less than 50 louis at a time."—Voltaire.

Slangy.

He—Oh, darling, I know it is very late, but I simply cannot tear myself away.

She—Well, then, break away, George.—Truth.

On a Lady Barber.

Before this newer age began
We thought the art tonsorial
Belonged, by right of birth, to man
From ages immemorial.
But she has come, with fixed intent,
To prove to all the nations
That man is not pre-eminent
In barbar-ous operations.

Oh, shaving is a sweet delight
Since she the razor wielded!
My heart unto her charms so bright
Has altogether yielded.
And though she thinks 'tis only gush—
My ecstasies amaze her—
I hail her Queen of Comb and Brush
And Goddess of the Razor.

Some day, with lather on my cheek
(Such is the plan I harbor),
I shall courageously seek
The hand of my fair barber.
But if she has already found
Some man to love and praise her,
Her "No" would "cut" me, I'll be bound,
More deeply than her razor.
—Fun.

TIME TO ADJOURN.

A Meeting Broken Up by a Too Truthful Man.

When it had been incidentally learned that the man with the corncob pipe was from Arkansas, the Cincinnati man winked at each one of us in turn and observed:

"Stranger, they have a species of bird called a gallinipper down in your state, haven't they?"

"Yaas, a sorter species," replied the old man as he lazily faced around.

"I've heard they were monsters in size."

"Wall, some folks call 'em monsters, I believe."

"And I've been told they could bite as hard as a dog."

"They bite purty hard, stranger."

"Do you live where the insects are called full grown?"

"Oh, yes. It is said that the big marsh nigh my house grows the biggest 'nippers in the state."

"Now then," continued the buckeye as he drew a long breath and winked at each one of us again, "I'd like to know how large a 'nipper you ever saw? I've always wanted to meet an honest, truthful man from your state who'd give me honest figures."

"I'd—I'd druther not tell," replied the man as he hitched around uneasily.

"But why? You don't look like a man given to exaggeration, and I for one am ready to take your word for it."

"I'm afraid you wouldn't. You know we hev some awful big 'nippers in Arkansaw."

"I know you have, but I want to know how big."

"Really, but I dasn't tell."

"Oh! Come off! Did you ever see one as big as a full sized grasshopper?"

The old chap hitched some more.

"As big as a canary bird?"

He ceased hitching to blush and look out of the window.

"Well, then, as big as a robin?"

"Stranger, don't ask me to tell!" pleaded the man from canebrake land.

"But I do!" persisted the other.

"And won't you call me a liar?"

"No. I will implicitly believe whatever statement you make."

"Wall, then, I'll make affidavy in any court that I've seen an Arkansaw 'nipper as large as—as large as"——

"Go on, old man. Don't keep us in suspense!"

"Wall, I reckon the largest one I ever saw was mighty nigh as big around as a shingle nail and mighty nigh as long as a carpet tack, and I reckon he was that savage that if he'd bit a baby"——

"Gentlemen!" interrupted the Cincinnati man as a look of deepest sorrow settled on his face, "the meeting is adjourned! Such of you as care to stay and hear about the baby can do so, but you will please excuse me! When we have mosquitoes as big as railroad spikes in Ohio, I'm not going to waste my time on Arkansas gallinippers no bigger than carpet tacks. This is my busy day, anyhow, and I wish you good afternoon."—Detroit Free Press.

The World of Chance.

If young Higger had not been reading "Lady Fitz-Maudlin's Dark Secret" until 2 o'clock in the morning, he would not have arrived at the dry goods store with his head full of Chesterfieldian and elegant phrases with which to regale the girls at the glove counter.

If he had not had these phrases in his head, he would not have made an impression of elegance and education upon the wife of the proprietor, who happened to call in and pause near the bargain counter to ask a question.

If he had not made such an impression, the wife of the proprietor would not have expatiated about him to her husband for about 10 consecutive breakfasts.

If she had not thus expatiated, her husband would not have been led to place young Higger in a position where he could look important and do no particular harm, from which position he was successively pushed up to higher places and at last to a partnership in the firm.

If young Higger hadn't been reading "Lady Fitz-Maudlin's Dark Secret," he would still be salesman in the silk department. But the world says he is a man of wonderful enterprise and a Napoleon of finance.—Chicago Record.

Pretty Thin Stuff.

The extreme thinness of the gold on cheap jewelry has long been a subject for jest by humorists. A party of Boston jewelers was being shown through one of the great plating factories by the proprietor, a man well known as a wag. As the visitors stood looking into one of the vats where different articles were being plated with gold by means of a chemical process, a gentleman asked:

"Uncle John, just how much gold do you use here in your business?"

The old man looked up and answered, with a twinkle in his eye: "Well, boys, I'll tell you. When I started in, 15 years ago, I put a $10 goldpiece into the vat, and I guess there's some of it left yet!"—Boston Journal.

Railroad Station Chicago.

Is being fitted up for hotel purposes during the world's fair. This magnificent fire-proof structure, located at the corner of Harrison street and 5th avenue, in the very heart of the city will devote the 3rd; 4th and 5th floors to this purpose. It will be run on the European plan. Each room will have hot and cold water, electric lights and be steam heated. The office and ladies parlors etc. will be located on the 3rd floor and the building will be supplied with all modern conveniences. There will be from 150 to 200 rooms for guests.

This acquisition to the hotel facilities of Chicago will be appreciated by those who wish to be safely housed in a fire-proof building, conveniently located in the city itself.

Those desiring accommodations can secure them by addressing Mr. T. C. Clifford, the manager, at Chicago Ill. The hotel will be opened May 15th 1893.

The Grand Central Station is the Chicago depot of the Northern Pacific railroad, [Wisconsin Central division] and by taking this through car line to the world's fair city, visitors will avoid the discomfort of transfer through the city.

VISITORS TO THE TWIN-CITIES.

No one should visit the Twin Cities this summer without running out to Minnetonka Beach and Hotel Lafayette the largest and best located resort house in the west. The lake is one of the most picturesque in the country and is well supplied with steamers and sailing, rowing and fishing craft. A number of regattas will be given. The Great Northern has a double track line to the lake and runs frequent trains.

DEVILS LAKE CHAUTAUQUA.

The first summer Assembly of the North Dakota Chautauqua comes off June 28th to July 17th. An extensive program has been arranged, including many noted speakers, singers, etc., and the occasion promises to be most interesting and instructive Devils Lake is a summer resort point. The Great Northern Railway gives reduced rates Address J. B. Fancher, Secretary, Devils Lake. N. D. for programs and other inform. A trip to the lake and assembly will make an enjoyable outing.

A LARGE DROP IN RATES TO THE WEST

The Great Northern inaugurated its new train service to the Pacific Coast on the 18th inst. With sweeping reductions in rates amounting to 40 percent in many cases. The rate From St. Paul and Minneapolis to Puget Sound was reduced First-class from $60.00 to [illegible] to Spokane from $36 to $30; and to Helena and Butte from $40 to $25, with corresponding reductions on second-class tickets both through rates applying proportionately to intermediate points. It is the purpose of the Great Northern to make rates to help the development of its territory. It is much the shortest line across the continent, was built on business principles, and at a cost of about one half of that of the older trans-continental lines, and is therefore prepared to correspondingly well by its territory and patrons in rates and accommodations.

Good Speed With a Steam Carriage.

C. L. Simonds, of Lynn, Mass., has made a steam carriage for his own use that will make ten miles an hour. The carriage weighs only 400 pounds and can carry two persons at a time. It has the appearance of an ordinary carriage in front, except there are no provisions made for a horse. The wheels are of cycle make and are four in number. The hind wheels are 43 inches and the front wheels are 36 inches, with rubber tires. The boiler and engine set just in the rear of the seat and give the carriage the appearance of a fire engine. The steam generates in what is called a porcupine boiler, which weighs 100 pounds. The steam is made by naphtha flames from three jets. The naphtha is kept in a cylinder, enough to last seven hours, and there is a water tank that will hold ten gallons. There is a pump that is automatic in action directly connected with the engine. The steering part consists of a crank wheel on the footboard, so that the engineer can steer and attend to the engine at the same time. The body of the carriage rests on a cradle and three springs. It is easy riding, and allowance has been made for every movement. The shafts are of steel, and can stand all of 1,000 pounds. Mr. Simonds has given the steam carriage a trial already and it has proved a success. It started off at a ten-mile gait; there was no noise, smoke or trouble whatever.—Springfield Republican.

The usual treatment of catarrh is very unsatisfactory, as thousands can testify. Proper local treatment is positively necessary to success, but many, if not most, of the remedies in general use afford but temporary benefit. A cure certainly cannot be expected from snuffs, powders, douches and washes. Ely's Cream Balm, which is so highly commended, is a remedy which combines the important requisites of quick action, specific curative power with perfect safety and pleasantness to the patient.

BEDROOM SETS OF BRASS.

How Furniture May be Preserved From Tarnishing.

"When your brass bedstead," said a maker of those things, "begins to show any signs of tarnishing, you can send it out to one of the repair shops and have it newly lacquered for from $3 to $5. It will then look as well as a new one."

He said it seriously enough, but there was something in his eye that implied a hidden meaning in the words. Evidently he waited to be questioned and he was gratified.

"What is the process for lacquering a brass bedstead?" was the question asked.

"Why should I tell you a trade secret?" he replied. "But I can hardly call this a trade secret, because it belongs to a dozen trades in common. The gasfitter puts the same lacquer on your brass chandelier that we put on your brass bedstead. Your brass picture frames, if you have any, are treated in the same way. Nearly all the brasswork, except on shipboard, is lacquered to prevent corrosion and save labor in polishing.

"The material used is merely gum shellac dissolved in alcohol. This makes a thin varnish, which is applied with a paint brush. Ten cents' worth will lacquer a brass bedstead, and an ordinary workman will do the work inside of an hour at a total cost of between 30 and 40 cents.

Electric Water Level Indicator.

An apparatus has been designed by Mr. Dieudonne to indicate the water level in a reservoir, boiler, etc., at any distance by means of electric signals conveyed by a telegraph wire. At the receiving station, when it is desired to know the water level, all that is necessary is to complete the circuit which has been established between the reservoir and the station by pressing a button. This actuates suitable electro-magnetic apparatus, and a radical arm is caused to travel over an ebonite plate, breaking the circuit a number of times and indicating the position of a circular index sector and float at the reservoir. As the angular motion of the sector always corresponds to the rise or fall of the float, and as any change in the position of either is at once made apparent to the operator in the station, a record of the water level can be kept with great precision.

FREEDOM from the aches, pains, and weaknesses peculiar to womanhood comes with Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. First it relieves them; then it cures them. Have a little patience, perhaps, if they're serious. The troubles that come slowly have to go slowly; but go they will, if you'll faithfully use the "Prescription," and they'll go permanently.

For every "female complaint" and derangement, or in any "run-down" and exhausted condition of the female system, this medicine is the only remedy so safe and certain that it can be guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in the case of every tired or afflicted woman, she'll have her money back. Chorea, St. Vitus's Dance, Nervous and General Debility, Sleeplessness and kindred ailments promptly relieved and cured by it.

FISHING DOGS.

A Scene That Can Be Viewed Nowhere but in Siberia.

At a certain point all the men and dogs came to a halt. Half the dogs and men then moved further along the water's edge about 200 yards. At a concerted signal the dogs were started from their respective points and swam straight out seaward in single file in two columns. At a wild, sharp cry from all the Ainus, the right column wheeled left and the left column wheeled right, until the head of each column met. Then at another signal all of them swam in line toward the shore, advancing more and more in crescentic formation.

As they neared the shore, increasing numbers of fish appeared in the shallow water, frightened forward by the splashing of the advancing column of dogs, which, as soon as their feet touched bottom, pounced upon the fishes as quick as a flash. The dogs promptly brought the fish which they had seized to their masters, who cut off the heads, and gave each dog the head which belonged to him as his shares of the catch. The dog which caught nothing got nothing. I believe this dog drill of the Ainus is entirely unique.—Life with Trans-Siberian Savages.

An Artificial Larynx.

A French surgeon has devised an artificial larynx, which enables the patient to speak with air supplied to it by means of a pneumatic appliance fastened on his chest. The larynx, which is of silver tubing, contains a reed which gives a uniform tone to the artificial voice. The air pressure is derived from two rubber bags communicating together and with the larynx by flexible pipes, and this arrangement is actuated by a collapsing bulb held in the hand. The bulbs serve as reservoirs for the air, and the other bulb is used to fill them.

THE GAY CONDUCTOR.

The conductor I trow is the luckiest man
Who dwells on the face of the earth;
Of all the gay fellows I happen to know,
He's got the most comfortable berth.

For when the train stops and the people alight,
Such maids as in beauty abound
He will seize by the hand, the elbow, or arm,
And gracefully swing to the ground.

Little help he vouchsafes to those who help need—
Sad spinsters antique and alone—
They can stumble and tumble and fall to the ground.
The affair is entirely their own.

The old and infirm, the maimed, and the halt
Get never a steadying touch;
But the young and the beautiful, handsome, and fair
Can never escape his clutch.

But while it seems wrong, it is really right,
For surely you all are aware
That the faithful conductor's chief duty in life
Is getting his hands on the fare.

AT THE MASQUERADE.

Peggy Hildreth was the belle of the village. No one ever questioned that fact. There were many girls as pretty as Peggy, but none as bright and saucy. Certainly no young girl of 18 had had more suitors or knew better how to refuse them and still keep them at her feet.

Now Peggy had a stepmother and no father, and like the traditional stepmother this one was hard to live with. Perhaps Peggy was a little bit to blame herself, for she strongly objected to being dictated to, even when, as Mrs. Hildreth would inform her, "it was only for her own good;" but as it was only the week before she had been heard to say she "should be glad when that witch was well married and out of the house," we can hardly blame Peggy for not having unquestioned faith in Mrs. Hildreth's desire for her good.

One afternoon, when these two had had a few words of anything but an amiable nature, the servant announced a caller for Miss Peggy, Mr. Jack Leslie, of the 7th regiment, it appeared from the card, and Peggy hastened to meet him, looking, with her sparkling blue eyes and golden curls, gowned in a short-waisted white muslin tied up under the arms with a broad sash, like an animate Kate Greenaway picture.

"Oh, Jack, I'm so glad you've come! Mrs. H. and I have been having it again, although I came out ahead," with a laugh.

"As usual, I see. But what were you quarreling over this time?"

"Well, I'll tell you. I called that young Bliss a fool or an idiot, I don't remember which, and as he is distantly related to Mrs. H., she naturally objected. We argued the matter to some length, and then she told me to prove my statement or take it back. I said I could, and that she would agree with me if she had only heard him propose the other night.

"It was done in this way," and Peggy stood up at an angle of forty-five degrees and toyed with an imaginary eye-glass: 'Weally, Miss Hildweth, you weally must do me the aw—extreme kindness of accepting my name and aw—estates, doncher know,' and then after that she gave in," and Peggy took two waltz turns and sank into an easy chair and said:

"Now Jack, let's have it. I know you've brought some good news by the disagreeable way the lines in your forehead run."

"Well, you've guessed aright, so just hold your breath while I relate all I know. The 7th intend giving a ball on the 3d of next month, and I've come over to invite you early so there can be no mistake about your going with me."

"Really—honor bright, cut your throat? How nice of you to come over and tell me before the other girls knew anything about it!"

"Well, as long as you don't throw me over for Overalle or any of the Wainright boys, I shall feel repaid."

Peggy actually colored, for Howard Overalle was one of the few men whom she could not bring to her feet. Not a very handsome man, but tall and distinguished-looking, bearing himself like the true honest soldier that he was. He had often watched Peggy Hildreth from afar, and contrasted her with the pale, tired, invalid sister he had at home in far away Montana. Jack Leslie had purposely mentioned Overalle just to tease Peggy. He had always known her and as she pestered him when it suited her mood he once in a while retaliated.

It was war to the knife between the two until Jack left and then Peggy went upstairs to pull over some old trunks of her own mother's to see what she could find suitable to wear to the ball. She came across a beautiful white brocade with tiny pink rosebuds embroidered over it.

"Now," she soliloquized, "this would just suit me made up with a little of this honiton lace. Mrs. Hildreth will faint with horror at the idea and say I'll look like my own grandmother. Then perhaps somebody will fall in love with my own grandmother. Now, I'll put it on and dance the minuet with somebody's grandfather. I wish the somebody's grandfather looked like Howard Overalle the hateful old thing. I'd like the fun of refusing him. Now, Peggy wait a moment. If Mr. Overalle should ask you to accompany him to Montana and spend a dull existence with an invalid sister and an old dull mother, would you, after all, refuse? Oh, bother it's too warm to get into discussions with one's self."

And doing the sweet old-fashioned gown up into a bundle, Peggy sauntered down to the village dress-maker, and after leaving there, decided she'd just run in and see if Widow Tucker's boy, was recovering from a slow fever.

It was a poor, little cottage, into which Peggy wended her way, and the widow herself looked half-fed.

"I don't believe you've had any dinner today," thought Peggy, "and as you're too proud to ask for it, I'll have to plan."

"Why don't you take a walk while I sit by Jamie and tell him stories?" she said, aloud. "And, by the way, if you are going by my house just stop in and get my cape and tell Hannah to give you your dinner. It will save you cooking here."

The widow gladly went, and Peggy amused herself and Jamie inventing stories.

While in the middle of one she glanced up and beheld Howard Overalle standing in the doorway with a look of rapt admiration on his face.

"Do you come here often?" Was the first remark.

"Never," she replied, while Jamie's eyes dilated to such an extent one would know she was not telling the truth.

"What are you here for?" he asked.

"My laundry," was the brief reply.

He saw her home through the twilight, and Peggy after that took more interest than ever in her gown for the 3d.

The evening came and with it Jack Leslie for Peggy, and when he saw her he exclaimed:

"Why, Peggy Hildreth, you lovely picture! I'm almost tempted to carry you off by main force, you look so beautiful."

"Well, you needn't," serenely remarked Peggy, as she gathered her opera cloak around her and let him put her into the carriage.

Words of admiration could be heard from all sides as she entered the hall with her escort. And she did look lovely. The golden curls were gathered onto the top of her head and the beautiful brocade was modernized. Slippers had been made to match the gown, and although Peggy took only a No. 3 boot, she had squeezed her foot into a 2, the result being before the evening was half over in one giving way when she was dancing with Capt. Van Leaten.

"Now," said Peggy, philosophically, "I am finished for dancing. All I can do is to flirt."

"No such thing," said the captain. "I shall send for more slippers;" and he was as good as his word.

When they came Peggy was surrounded by admirers, and holding up the pretty broken slipper she said:

"Now, what do you bid for it?"

"A box of gloves," said Jack Leslie.

"Two boxes," said Capt. Van Leaten.

"I'll go you one better and offer three boxes and a five-pound box of candy," exclaimed an ardent admirer.

Peggy saw Mrs. Hildreth gazing at her in horror, and with her eyes dancing with merriment she said:

"Come quickly! Bid away! I'll marry the highest bidder!"

"A diamond bracelet!"

"Diamond pin!"

"Two tickets for Patti!"

And so the bids ratteld on and Peggy found herself the center of a large and admiring circle, and she began to wish she was well out of it all.

At that moment Mr. Overalle appeared, and stepping forward quickly said:

"I offer over-all." and Peggy laughingly called "Gone!" and started waltzing with the highest bidder.

"The circle disbanded murmuring:

"Tricked," "Puns not allowed," and similar remarks, but Peggy was happy, and when half an hour later she met the possessor of her slipper in the conservatory and he asked her if she would confirm her remark and marry the highest bidder she only said, in a half laughing manner, but with a serious look in the blue eyes for once: "I always keep my word."—Exchange.

Bees as Burglars.

It appears that the monarchies of bees, well governed as they seem to be, are afflicted, nevertheless, by organized criminal classes—sneak thieves and highway robbers. Some of these robber bees go in strong bands to pillage, and are able to storm and sack a hive. After the slaughter they carry all the provisions home. Some colonies of bees never work; they live entirely by robbery and murder. There are also thieves who creep unperceived into strange hives to steal honey. If successful, they return afterward, with hordes of burglar bees, break open the honey-safes, and carry away the contents. But the most curious facts is that these bees can be artificially produced, according to Buchner, by feeding the larvæ upon honey mixed with brandy. In the words of the naturalist himself: "Just as man does, the bees become victims of this beverage, which exercises the same pernicious influence upon them as upon us; they become excited, drunk, and cease to work. When hunger comes upon them they fall, like man, from one vice to another, and finally give themselves up without scruple to robbery, pillage, and violence."

One Way to Sell Cigars.

A South Illinois street druggist man worked a novel cigar-selling scheme a few weeks ago in the following fashion: He found a stray nickle on the floor of his store one morning and resolved to post this notice on the window of his store:

"A sum of money found on Tuesday last in this establishment. The owner will receive same within upon describing the money."

The scheme worked like a charm. Hundreds of citizens came in daily for over a week, while the notice was left on the window, describing their losses and bewailing their misfortune. Invariably every applicant for the lost money bought a cigar. Some were satisfied with 5-cent straight whiffs, but the great majority, anxious to impress the drug man favorably toward their claims, invested in two for a quarter. So great was the rush that the fortunate druggist had to order a fresh consignment of choice brands. None of the applicants ever applied for the nickle. All the claims ran up into the hundreds of dollars, one man stating he missed his handbook with $1,500.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Dinners Without Wine.

The progress of total abstinence in dinner-giving circles causes a certain amount of embarrassment now and then. If the person invited does not happen to be aware that his would-be hosts are total abstainers and do not give wine to their guests, he is apt to experience a slight chill of disappointment when the lemonade and iced water are handed around. It may be presumed that emotion the reverse of pleasurable has on occasion depicted itself perfectly distinctly upon the countenances of diners who are accustomed to drinking wine, for it is now proposed that all invitations to wineless dinners are to be accompanied by a small bow of blue ribbon securely fastened to the card.—London [illegible]

A Smart Boy's Letter.

Apropos of children's letters, a correspondent of an English paper has presented a copy of a "genuine letter" from a lad at school to his mother. After complaining generally of the school, and narrating some trifling mishaps that had befallen him, the young gentleman said:

"I hope Matilda's cold is better. I am glad she is not at schule. I think I have got consumption, the boys at this place are not gentlemanly, but of course you did not know this when you sent me here. I will try not to get bad habits.

"The trousers have worn out at the knees. I think the tailor must have cheated you, the buttons have come off, and they are loose behind. I don't think the food is good, but I should not mind if I was stronger. The piece of meat I sent you is off the beef we had on Sunday, but on other days it is more stringy.

"There are black beadles in the kitchen, and sometimes they cook them in the dinner, which can't be holesome when you are not strong. * * * do not mind my being so uncomfortable, because I do not think I shall last long. Please send me some more money as I o 8d. If you cannot spare it I think I can borrow it off a boy who is going to leave at the half quarter, but perhaps you wd. not like to be under an obligation to his parents, as they are tradespeople. I think you deal at their shop. —Yr. loving but retched son."

Jailers and Convicts in Partnership.

Two wards of the Barnset jail, near Calcutta, have been convicted of conspiracy which has probably no parallel in the history of criminal prisoners. These unfaithful guardians of the cells conceived the idea of establishing a profitable partnership with certain burglars under their charge. To this end they selected one night three convicts, took them to the warders' quarters, exchanged their jail apparel for every-day clothing, and told them to go forth and break into the houses in the locality. The plunder was to be brought "home" in the morning for equal distribution among the parties concerned, and the convicts were then to resume their peaceful daily work. Fortunately for the interests of society, the burglars became discontented with their share of the spoils and were overheard discussing their grievances by another warder, who gave information to the prison authorities. The warders with whom this audaciously ingenious scheme originated have been sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment, but on appeal their case is stated to have been committed to the criminal sessions, to be dealt with by a jury.—London Daily News.

How Not to Take Cold.

A little bit of really valuable advice for this season of the year: Keep your mouth shut. If people would only do this they would avoid colds and coughs, and ofttimes serious illness. The prescription is a very simple one, and not even the merit of originality can he claim for it; but it undoubtedly is efficacious. Mr. Catlin, the celebrated traveler among the North American Indians, discovered that they were free from many of the diseases which afflict civilized nations, and he attributed this exemption to the practice of keeping their mouths closed at almost all times, except when they are eating or talking. The mothers teach the children this from their earliest infancy. And does it not stand to reason that it is better to breathe through the nostrils the chilly air when leaving a heated room for the street, or even when going into a cold passage, then letting it go straight to the lungs in an ordinary way? Mr. Catlin declares that "Shut your mouth" is the most important motto which the human language can convey.—National Educator.

Dodging an Unwelcome Guest

The present to the Queen of a lion and lioness from the Sultan of Zanzibar reminds us that her good-natured Majesty must, in her time, have received a dozen complete menageries from her foreign admirers and savage contemporary rulers. It is not everybody, however, who will frankly accept the denizens of the forest and wilderness as does the Queen. A good story is told of the late Sultan Burghash and Sir John Kirk, then our Consul-General at the Turkish capital. The Sultan had a very savage chained lion and, as a happy thought, he offered it to Sir John, reminding him that the lion formed one of the supporters of the Royal Arms above the gate of the British Consulate, and that the presence of the real brute would, therefore, be highly appropriate. Alive to the jest, Sir John quickly capped it and at the same time escaped the necessity of accepting such an unpleasant gift. "I am sure that your highness would never make an incomplete present," he replied, "and when you are able to accompany the lion with a unicorn I shall be delighted to receive your munificent offer."—Black and White.

Queer Names for Streets.

A woman lately returned from Brazil, tells of the curious nomenclature of the streets of Para. They are Biblical or commemorative of some event in the Brazilian history. It seems to her quite irreverent to be told that a desirable locality was "at the corner of St. John the Baptist and St. John the Evangelist streets." She went with her uncle, who was on business, to dine at the house of a wealthy merchant.

Everything was very gorgeous and lavish, in South American style, but, on leaving she was amazed to have her hospitable host say to her:

"If you have any washing, send it here."

It is the custom there, it seems, for wealthy households to take in laundry work as an employment for their large retinue of servants.

"It did, however," said the relator, "give me a turn at the end of a formal dinner party to be asked for my soiled linen."

Pasture and Soiling.

Soiling is that system in which the cows are confined and the green food supplied them, instead of turning them out on the pasture. In two years both pasturing during a dry season and soiling were tested, one lot of cows receiving the same ration of grain during both seasons. The result was that the the increased product of butter was sufficient to pay for the grain and at a period when pasturage was not plentiful the result was the same. In all cases the increased product of butter simply paid for the grain. The largest yield of milk was from the use of pasturage alone, and as the milk is also valuable as well as the butter, this is an important point in favor of grass, and especially as the grass-fed cows gave not only more milk but fully as much butter as the others. This leaves the question open for discussion, the cost of the land used as pasturage being a factor for consideration. [illegible]

TERRIBLE REVENGE.

Talleyrand's Proposition to Talk Napoleon to Death.

A curious anecdote, in the Edinburgh Review is illustrative of the disposition of Talleyrand. It was resolved that each of the allied powers should designate a commissioner charged with the surveillance of Napoleon at St. Helena. Talleyrand proposed to the king for this office M. de Montchenu, described as "an insupportable babbler, a complete nonentity." On being asked why he had selected this man, Talleyrand replied: "It is the only revenge which I wish to take for this treatment of me; however, it is terrible. What a punishment for a man of Bonaparte's stamp to be obliged to live with an ignorant and pedantic chatterer! I know him; he will not be able to support this annoyance, it will make him ill, and he will die of it by slow degrees."

Expensive Trimmings and Linings.

The costly richness of trimmings grows with every year, and now that so many different kinds may be used in conjunction with the same garment there seems to be no limit to the expense. It used at one time to be considered most unorthodox to combine fur and lace on any article of dress, just in the same way that it was deemed a vulgarity to put flowers and feathers on the same hat. But now all that is changed, and even on a tweed coat or cape lace and fur are used together.

Linings are very sumptuous, but this is no novelty. For several years past a fashionably dressed woman has made it a matter of conscience to have her linings at least as expensive as the materials they line. One of the favorite linings of this season is shot pink silk in blue and yellow, with black or dark brown stripes. This conjunction suits almost any color, the pink and yellow between them producing a sort of sunset gold, the effect of which is delightful to the eye on a raw, gray day.—New York Press.

A successful method of applying the sand blast to the cleaning of public buildings externally is found to be by the use of an apparatus in the shape of a sheet-tin tube of some three feet length and two and one-half inches diameter, this being bent into a goose neck at one end and terminating in a two-inch nozzle. A second tube, one inch in diameter, enters the first at the upper bend of the goose neck and terminates about three inches inside, being thus central with the nozzle. The sand is fed with the proper degree of directness and force through this tube from a hopper, and is projected steadily against the work by an air blast through the outer tube. It is stated that, with an air pressure of some two pounds per square inch at the nozzle, one square foot of marble will be abraded to a depth of 1-32 inch to 1-64-inch in one minute, leaving a fresh clean surface.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

CATARRH
IN CHILDREN
For over two years my little girl's life was made miserable by a case of Catarrh. The discharge from the nose was large, constant and very offensive. Her eyes became inflamed, the lids swollen and very painful. After trying various remedies, I gave her S.S.S. The first bottle seemed to aggravate the disease, but the symptoms soon abated, and in a short time she was cured.
